Churches of Christ at Work

PASTORING THE FLOCK

Otto Foster*

Some ten different designations are applied to the workers in the church of our Lord commonly referred to by Christians as "elders."

Pastor (Latin), meaning shepherd in Anglo-Saxon, refers to tending and feeding the flock. "Overseer" in Greek means the same as "bishop" in Anglo-Saxon. Only the pastoring, the shepherding, the overseeing by the elder can we consider in this short article.

We find always a plurality of pastors, and God so ordered in his church. These pastors (elders) were to, "Feed the flock of God"—the church. Of all the work that is given to these overseers, none is more important than proper feeding. In becoming shepherds they are to watch over and feed the flock of God. This proper feeding brings them under the most sacred obligation known—to guard and maintain the honor of God, to keep his teaching and his service pure from all innovations, to feed the flock with the pure milk of the word of God that it may grow spiritually. Since these sheep must be properly fed and the pastors are to do it, or see that it is done, it is plainly stated that these men are to be "apt to teach."

If the congregation goes astray for the want of proper food, the elders (pastors) are at fault. This does not mean that only fundamentals must be taught; they should strive to teach their flock to observe all that God commands. They should impress upon the brethren that they stand for something; that Christ lives in them and that they must be about their Father's business, carrying out the command of Christ to preach the gospel to all the world insofar as within them lies that power; that God's great love, on which they feed daily, teaches them to share it with others. In no other way can they be saved. Therefore, the teaching of the flock properly requires the shepherds to teach the giving of their means liberally, regularly, cheerfully, and persistently, that the use of that which God has given them may help save their souls (Mark 8:35, 36). God gave us all that we possess. Will we damn our souls by using it to try to buy the pleasures of sin for a season? (Matt. 25:30).

If the pastors teach the congregation to properly live, they must be examples before them in living and giving. The shepherd leads his sheep (Psalm 23). "Take heed unto yourselves," Paul said to the elders from Ephesus, "and to all the flock." Pastor the flock, but look to yourselves first; see that you are an example (1 Peter 5:3).

"Tend the flock"—shepherd or pastor the flock. The imagery here is beautiful. The church is the flock, Christ is the chief Shepherd, and the elders are the under-shepherds. As the shepherd feeds his flock and protects them from wild animals, thieves and robbers, so the elders must care for the church. They must protect it from evils without and within. If there is a hobbyist in the congregation, the elders should not give him recognition as a public teacher and should prevent him from sowing discord among brethren, insofar as such is possible. They should keep out false teachers. They must guard against all teaching and practices that rest on human authority, for such vitiate the service of God and defile the spiritual nature of the taught and cut them off from the blessings of God, which come to men only through the appointments of God unmixed with human inventions and traditions.

"Take the oversight"—In keeping with God's plan, all activities of the church are to be directed and supervised, in the proper spirit, by the elders. This does not mean that they should do all the work themselves. Instead, they should delegate it to others, for by becoming active in the Lord's work the others grow and develop spiritually. It is the duty of the elders to see that these activities are properly performed—this is pastoring the flock.

The modern "pastor system" that seems to be the tendency in many churches today is regrettable. The preacher is not to take the place and do the work of the pastors. Usually he is not one of them.

"Rule well"—as overseers it is in order and necessary for decisions to be made, for work to be outlined, etc. That certainly is the work of the overseer. In the doing of such work, he will have to study and know the individual members of his flock and their ability, as well as their willingness and desire to work in the church. These elders should rule their flock in somewhat the same manner that a kind, tactful, yet firm and watchful father rules the family. Certainly they are not to usurp authority or to become puffed up with a feeling of self importance (1 Peter 5:3). That would disqualify them to serve. They are to watch in behalf of the souls of the flock, and that requires constant watchcare over each individual; advising with them, praying with and for them, hearing and keeping their confidences and giving careful and considerate advice.

Oh! the responsibility of a pastor of a congregation of Christians; but how wonderful to work with them and with Christ, the chief Shepherd (1 Peter 5:4).

IMPROVING THE SINGING

Horace Coffman*

The first great step toward better singing is to awaken the members of our Lord's church to the urgent need for improvement. The statement that "all are in agreement that we should improve," is incorrect for even among some leaders of the church we find an attitude that "we are doing well enough." In fact congregations are often commended and song leaders complimented by elders, preachers, or members when the singing is very poor. Evidently they are unaware of how bad it is.

We need to improve our singing because God commanded that we sing and he knew that good singing would lift us to higher planes of spirituality. Each act of worship ordained of God has its place and fills a need in our lives. Therefore, nothing else can take the place of good singing. To neglect our singing is just as disastrous as to neglect the Lord's Supper, prayer, or any of the other acts of worship.

Through the ages God has asked for the best from each individual who would be well pleasing unto him. Under the law of Moses a lamb for sacrifice had to be the best from the flock. In our time it is not enough just to worship, but we must worship him in spirit and in truth; not enough just to pray, but pray with the spirit and understanding; not enough just to sing, but sing with the spirit and the understanding. We can be lost for not singing! But you say, "Our congregation sings." Are you sure? Does it really sing? When a group of Christians pay little attention to the meaning of the words of a song, they have in great part sung it without the spirit and the understanding. We must sing scripturally to be acceptable.

Now we come to the "self-justification" phase of this study. Many say that they cannot sing, or else sing too poorly to try. Others try but excuse their continued feeble efforts on the grounds that they do not have the ability to improve. When Timothy was commanded to study, would he have been excused from this command on the grounds that he had never learned to read or perhaps did not read very well. Neither can we neglect God's command to sing simply because we have never learned to sing or because we sing poorly. With sufficient effort and time you can, not only learn to sing, but you can continue to improve. Some learn more rapidly and some sing more beautifully than others, but remember that God requires of us according to our ability. Let us start using more of our ability in learning to carry out God's commands.

Following are a few suggestions for improving our singing. No doubt there are many others that you think of. Use them for the improvement of the singing of the church:

The Song Leader

1. Select good songs that are appropriate for the occasion and for that specified part of the service for which they are intended.

2. Select your numbers long enough before service time that you can become more familiar with the words and the musical score. (Note: The ability to sight-read rapidly is a wonderful asset, but even a leader with this ability can do much better if he really knows his song; preferably without the book).

3. Stand erect, speak to be heard (when announcing the number or making any comment), look toward the audience, preferably during the entire song.

4. Pitch the song accurately or at least so it is easily singable. Sing with confidence and manifest the time with a baton or with your hands. It will help you and the congregation.

5. Humbly remember you are the leader. Your action, spirit, and attitude will be reflected in your congregation, therefore, try to be a good example.

6. Be ready to commend and encourage signs of improvement, but always press on toward perfection.

The Preacher

1. Preach on the subject of singing and its importance in the life of every Christian.

2. Be a good example by singing with the congregation as you await time to arise and preach the sermon.

3. Commend the song leader and the congregation when they sing well. It will encourage them and cause them to do even better.

4. You are a man of great influence, so push the singing program of the church, also, just as you do other phases of the work.

The Elders

1. Look with favor on efforts to improve the singing. Provide ample opportunities for all ages to learn how to sing and to sing better.

2. Provide singing schools, song drills, or singing normals. Encourage teaching of songs and sight reading in year-round classes.

3. Encourage your song leaders.

4. Remember that over a period of time interest and attendance will increase because of every good effort. Don't become discouraged.

The Congregation

1. Sit erect, watch the leader, and stay together.
2. Let the spirit of the song be part of you. Put your whole being into it. Sing unto the Lord.
3. Sing the best you can no matter how it may seem to others. However, take advantage of every opportunity to improve your best.

I would encourage all to do some long-range planning. Start now, but remember that the improvement we need in our singing is attained a little at a time; week by week. Every effort to improve will bear some fruit and some day each congregation will see its singing a real glory to God and a blessing to man.

EFFECTIVE PERSONAL VISITATION WORK

Otis Gatewood*

Many members of the church are dead spiritually. They do not read their Bibles, pray, or attend services regularly, except on Sunday mornings. And why? In my estimation it is because they are not given any definite work to do in the church.

We have found in the church in Germany that the members who are given some definite work to do as soon as they are baptized grow and develop, but those who remain inactive grow weaker and ultimately quit coming to church altogether.

It is impossible to keep all of the members of the church active unless they are given personal work to do. Sermons can be preached on the need of personal work, but these will not do any good unless members of the church are given some leadership in showing them what to do.

We have found here in Germany that one of the best ways to get personal work done is to have a definite work evening. We use Tuesday evening because it is soon after Sunday and we therefore can contact the new people who were at church the last Sunday as soon as possible. We do not leave personal work on a voluntary basis. We select definite members of the church and ask them in writing to meet with us on a definite evening for work. If you make a public announcement in church inviting all the members of the church to come, very few if any will be there. And often with such a public announcement the least qualified will be present and those with the best ability will never come. But by a written invitation each one invited will make a special effort to be present. There is a denominational church in Detroit that is known as the largest church in America. They attribute their growth to one work evening each week. Members of the church of Christ meet often to worship and study the Bible, but very few churches have work evenings where the members are given some active part in the church.

After personal workers come together on a particular evening naturally the question arises of how their work is to be assigned. One of the poorest ways for them to do personal work is to go from door to door calling on total strangers. One of the best ways is for them to visit the non-members who attended church services. If your congregation and community is small, the best way to get these names is to ask two or three members of the church to meet all non-members who come. If they know the people who come they should make a list of the non-members who attend. If strangers come, those responsible should go to these visitors and ask them to sign a guest book or visitor's card. If the congregation is large a public announcement should be made asking all visitors to sign cards or guest book. In large congregations it is also good to get the names of visitors in the different Bible classes. Much of the personal work should be built around these people who thus have shown an active interest in the church by attending.

Before the meeting on Tuesday night, the evangelist and someone should get together and decide how the work should be done. Two people should visit together, and here in Frankfurt the names of those to be visited are written on blank sheets of paper with whatever information is available about each person. Each two personal workers are given about four different names on four different sheets of paper. These sheets are placed in a folder with the names of the ones to do the visiting on the back of each folder. This simplifies assignments, for each personal worker has in writing the work he is to do. After a short talk by the leader and a prayer the work can be started with little loss of time. After each visit the personal worker should write out a description of the visit on the sheet of the person he visited. Those folders should be returned to the evangelist and the person in charge not later than the Wednesday night at prayer meeting after the visits are made on Tuesday night. The leader in personal work can tell from the written reports what should be done in future visits with each contact.

Several things should be observed by those doing the personal work. When you first go to a home, after you introduce yourself, you should say that you come from the church of Christ and that you wish to tell them how glad the church was to have had them in the services last Sunday. Try to establish some personal contact between you and the family, and tell them that you would like for them to meet your family. Then the next Sunday be sure to watch for the people, and if they are present be sure to remember their names and greet them. Invite them and the children to come with you to the Bible classes. If they are not present the next Sunday, be sure to go back the next Tuesday and see why they were absent. If they are interested in Bible study in their home, go back each week and keep teaching this family until they are converted. It is best as soon as possible to invite them to your home. If possible, invite other members of the church at the same time so that their acquaintance with members of the church will be broadened. Be sure to stay in contact with a good prospect when you have found one until you have converted him. Don't think that you must find a new prospect each week. As the personal workers get all the contacts they can take care of other members of the church should be assigned to new prospects. In this way all the members of the church can be kept busy.

But such a program must have someone to lead and direct the personal workers. Even if all the personal workers do not meet each week, the leader should know what is done and should see to it that something active is done each week by each personal worker with his contacts. At least once each month all personal workers should be called together by the leader and reports before the other personal workers should be made about what each has done and the progress that is made. If such meetings are not held regularly the interest in personal work sags and dies.

Many preachers work themselves to death trying to do all the personal work in a congregation. It's much better to use such a program to keep the members of the church busy. It takes a lot of work in planning, but such activity is good for the members. It causes them to be more interested, to read their Bibles regularly, pray often, and be in church every time the doors are open. Brethren, we can give the church a new spiritual awakening with such a work evening and work program. Frankfurt A.M., Germany.

ELDERS MUST WORK

John G. Young*

The duties of elders as given in the Bible lay upon them serious obligations. These obligations should not be taken lightly. They have to do with the welfare of the church and the spreading of the gospel. I believe the work and progress, the peace, the growth, and the strength of Christ's church depends upon the strength of the eldership to a large extent.

An elder should be devoted to his task and willing to devote time and serious thought to his office. He should be unselfish, ready at all times to labor and anxious to be used. When true devotion exists among elders, and abounding love of the church is present, and courage to go forward is abundant, then the church abounds unto every good work. Lacking such love, devotion, or courage, the church will lack the leadership needed to strengthen and expand the kingdom. An elder, selfish of time or lazy of mind or body will fail to perform his obligations. He should be willing to give of his time and thought and planning that the church might be a busy workshop for the Lord.

The planning of the work of the congregation should be with broad vision. "Where there is no vision the people perish." Every phase of activity should be planned: the minister with his preaching and teaching and visitation, the Bible school, vacation schools, singing, radio work, revival meetings, fellowship meetings, local co-operating work, establishing new congregations, aiding needy congregations, Negro work, Mexican work, U. S. mission work and foreign mission work. All these need to be planned if they are to be done by a church in a businesslike and orderly way.

Now the planning of these are good, but the stimulation and encouragement of the whole membership that they may feel that they have a necessary part in them is better. Christians grow by work. I am convinced that they will usually accept a challenge to good work and accomplish it and be ready again and again for further challenges to do Christian work. This has been proved many times over in the one congregation that I know best.

Devoted members come and ask to be given work. Members move to a congregation and need to be given a task. Of course the Lord puts every Christian to work, but the elders can specify and encourage. An elder who cannot or will not shoulder and discharge these obligations should ask to be relieved.

An elder should strive to know the membership. He should know their strength, abilities and capabilities; their weaknesses and temptations, that they may be used to the utmost in church activities and that they may be strengthened in living. An elder should be available for counseling in time of need. He should be so versed in knowledge that he can be of aid. He should be approachable, peaceful, steady and full of hospitality, in the broad sense, that his counsel will be sought. "A shepherd" is one of his descriptive names.

Elders should plan the work of the church. Deacons working under their supervision can be given many duties and they in turn can utilize many other members in their work. Thus an ever widening circle of workers will be laboring for the cause.

Members sometimes leave a congregation because, they say, "There was no work for me to do" or, "They are not working and I want to be where work is being done."

The elders must maintain the teaching and preaching of the gospel in its purity and simplicity and be ever on guard against error. They should therefore have knowledge of truth that a deviation therefrom is recognized. This requires working with the word, study, and devotion. They should be working examples in teaching and life.

Purity of teaching, shepherding the congregation, planning for ever-increasing activity, the encouragement of the saints, the converting of others to work in the kingdom, these are all a part of the worthy work of elders. Courage, vision, faith, love and devotion should be their attributes.

IMPROVING QUALITY OF BIBLE SCHOOL WORK

Alan Bryan*

Often we are conscious of the need to increase the quantity of our work in Bible school but fail to realize that the quality of our teaching program must be improved constantly. Failure to do this will not only defeat the primary aims of the Bible school in leading souls to Christ and in fostering Christian growth and development, but also will eventually hamper the quantitative growth. Increase in quantity often comes easy and quickly. Improvement in quality comes about only through constant and long periods of planning, tireless preparation, work and evaluation.

We in the church today have been very conscious of the need for numerical growth but often we have left the possibility of our improving the quality to mere chance. Elders in every congregation to which God has delegated the "feeding of the flock" should realize that God expects them to see that teaching is done and that such teaching is improved week by week, year in and year out.

We, as elders, preachers, and teachers entrusted by God with the teaching of souls, must answer to God not only as to WHAT we teach, but HOW we teach. God will hold the man accountable that neglects the HOW just as much as the man that neglects the WHAT. When the church everywhere realizes that improvement of quality is not only necessary but is possible in every instance, more and better teaching will be done. Here are some practical suggestions for the improvement of the quality of Bible school work:

1. Elders can better prepare themselves to do this all important job of overseeing the spiritual nourishment of the flock by attending lectureships, teacher training courses and similar services held at congregations and colleges throughout the brotherhood. Every worthwhile article or book published in the field of teaching should be studied carefully by elders. This will do much to increase the vision of the bishops and to train them in the actual supervision of the phase of church work.

*The author gives practically full time to working with the teaching program of the church at Broadway and "T", Lubbock, Texas. They average 1100 in Sunday morning classes and have an annual week of teacher training. There were 1300 in vacation Bible school.

2. Every opportunity to get qualified men to speak to the local congregation on the educational work of the church should be used. This will include special one night services, special series, or similar occasions.

3. A constant training program should be conducted in every congregation for the training and development of present and prospective teachers. Too often one is selected to teach because he or she is willing rather than because he or she is trained and qualified for such a task.

4. Regular teachers meetings, both of a general and a departmental nature, should be held. The elders should constantly confer with all teachers as to the work being done and the improvement of such.

5. The church can facilitate further training by providing a library of teacher training materials and by encouraging each teacher to build up a personal library in his or her particular field. The adage, "Reading maketh a ready man" is true in Bible school teaching also.

6. A constant visitation program should be carried on in every class of the Bible school. Every teacher should visit every home at least once every three months. The co-teacher, or assistant, should supplement this visiting by aiding the teacher in visiting absentees and prospective members. A parent of one of the children in each class can be selected as a visiting teacher to help further in a constant visitation program.

7. A close contact must be maintained at all times between teacher, pupils, and the homes of the pupils. This can be done by such mediums as open house (services conducted on a week night when parents are allowed to observe classroom procedure), teacher-parent conferences, and meetings attended by teachers and parents in discussing the work of the Bible school.

8. A constant program should be carried on in educating the entire congregation on the work and possibilities of the Bible school. This can be done through the church bulletin, letters sent to church members by the elders or preacher, and sermons.

9. A constant study should be made by both elders and teachers of materials being used and other materials that might be used in the teaching program of the church. Teachers can learn to produce materials well suited to certain needs for the local congregation.

These are but a few suggestions that might help to improve the quality of Bible school work. One has truly said, "We are what we have been taught to be." The better man, therefore, is the better taught man. God being our helpers, we can through constant work and prayer do a better job of teaching souls the way of Christ.

TRAINING BIBLE TEACHERS

Leonard Mullens

Alert elders are always watching for any right way to increase the amount of good the church does. These overseers have the high responsibility of conducting the Bible school in such a way that God is glorified, the church edified, and souls saved. Whatever can be done to improve the work of Bible teaching deserves their attention.

The quickest and best way to aid the work of the Bible school is by improving the teaching. But the only way to improve the teaching is through the teachers in the classes. This calls for training the teachers in their high and holy calling of breaking the bread of life to those who come.

Teachers are made, not born. Regardless of the native ability that God has granted to any individual, that talent can be improved. Many people in the church today could develop into fine Bible teachers if only the incentive to prepare can be furnished them. Here then the supervisors of the church are faced with the responsibility of providing the necessary training in order to make this great work of teaching more effective. This is not to say that many devoted men and women in the past have not done untold good by teaching hungry souls the truth, nor to reflect upon the earnest sincere efforts of any teacher now striving to teach, who may not have had any teacher training. It is, though, rather obvious that those who now do a good work without any training could do an even better work with the right kind of help.

The question comes: "Does the church have the right to teach teachers how to teach?" Certainly implied in the command of Christ to teach is found also the right of the elders to provide that which will make the teaching more effective. We are not now discussing what is to be taught. That is not within the province of this matter. The gospel is to be taught. This goes without saying. When we study methods of teaching, and ways of presenting the truth to the various age levels in the Bible classes, we only improve talents God has given.

That there is a need for such training has been rather widely recognized in the church, and does not here need much discussions. How shall this training be given? When shall it be given?

First, we may suggest that every congregation ought to conduct regular meetings for the teachers. These should be conducted under the supervision of the elders of the church. At this time, the work of the Bible school in a general way may be set before the teachers, and a portion of the time devoted to a study of those things that will help the teachers to improve their work of spreading Bible knowledge to their pupils. In just about every congregation there ought to be someone found who has a knowledge of the principles of teaching, and who can set these things before the teachers. If not, then the elders can select a man from outside the local church to aid the teachers in such work.

What ought Bible teachers know? It goes without saying that they should and must know the Bible. A teacher cannot teach what a teacher does not know. Let us train the teachers in Old and New Testament history, and see that each one has a broad, general working knowledge of the entire word of God. Let us insist that teachers know first the principles of the Bible. It is much better to have a teacher who knows the Bible than to have one who knows all the best methods, but who does not have any working knowledge of the truth of God. Let us train the teachers in human nature; in the human mind, and its workings. Let us endeavor to impress upon the teacher of a Bible class that each pupil is an individual soul.

Teachers need to be trained in the best methods of teaching. How may this be done? Good books that set forth these methods may be purchased by the church and placed in the church library, or circulated among the teachers in the school. These may then be discussed in the regular meetings. For $25.00 a dozen excellent books on teaching methods can be acquired. Or, as suggested above, a good man or woman to aid the teachers can be brought in from outside to assist in this work. Again, a good correspondence course can be prepared for home study on the part of the teachers that will train them in the use of better methods. The elders may also arrange for the teachers to visit other local churches of Christ where they may observe good teachers at work, and so be instructed by example.

It may even be necessary to instruct these teachers in the rudiments of the English language. Words are vehicles of thought. This shows us the importance of our teachers using the words of our language in such a way that the truth is clearly set forth for the minds and hearts of the pupils. Let each teacher be instructed in the history of the specific denominations that exist about us. It is especially important that all teachers from the junior age level on up be able to handle and to refute false doctrine. This will call for a study by the teacher of the beliefs and practices of the various religious sects.

As you may now realize, the field of information related to teacher training is quite a broad one indeed, and the work of teacher training requires time and effort. It is only possible for us to make suggestions that will stimulate your thinking.

When shall these periods of training for teachers be conducted? This will have to be left up to the judgment of the local bishops. For those teachers who are already teaching, some night during the week will have to be selected. The regularity of such meetings will also be determined by local circumstances. Or, a class of training teachers how to teach may be held on Sunday evening just before the evening worship hour, if desired. A class for prospective teachers could even take place on Sunday morning, although this does not seem to be the best thing to do.

In a city or in a locality where enough local churches are close together, these congregations may cooperate in having special times for teacher training. All the teachers can come together in a central place, and outstanding teachers of the different departments of work can be brought in for these institutes. This is a wonderful way to improve the teaching work of the local church. However, such a joint effort, held usually for about five nights once or twice a year, ought not to substitute for the meetings for training in the local congregation itself.

How great are the rewards for the sincere Bible teacher! How tremendous are the responsibilities of those who speak forth the words of life! Let us recall that the quality of our teaching is to be measured by the fruit that it bears in the lives of those taught. If it does not affect the life, and change it into the image of God, we have failed. For this reason, a teacher must first be sound in life and character personally. No amount of training can ever take the place of real Christianity in the heart of the teacher. Remember you are not just a teacher, but a teacher of the Bible! May God help you to be just that.

Dallas, Texas.

A GOOD PUBLICITY PROGRAM CAN HELP FORWARD THE LORD'S WORK

Ralph Bumpass*

The laundry business has something in common with the Lord's business. That may sound like an absurd statement; but in the laundry business, everybody is a prospect. Every family is a prospect. Every person who wears clothes and gets them dirty is a prospect. It does not matter if that person is washing his own clothes on a board or carrying them to a laundrette. No matter what he is doing with his clothes at the present time, he still remains a prospect for the power laundries.

That same fact holds true in the Lord's business. Every creature is a prospect for the church of the Lord. The gospel of Christ is for every individual, so each and every person is definitely a prospect.

Second, there is a certain amount of prejudice against power laundries. There are people who say: "Don't send your clothes to a power laundry. They will tear off the buttons, tear up your shirts, lose your clothes, or wear them out. They won't pay their claims, and they even wash your shirts in the same washer and the very same water with other people's shirts."

Now what do some people say about the church of Christ: "Oh, that group thinks that they are better than anyone else's denomination. Why, those bigoted folks over there believe they are the only ones who can preach the gospel of Christ! They believe that they are the only ones who are right. They even teach water salvation."

Both of the statements above are misconceptions based on prejudice. Let's consider briefly the first one dealing with the laundry industry: Do the power laundries wash your shirts with the other man's shirts? Are different bundles of clothes washed in the same machines in the same water? What difference can that make, since every washer of clothes is passed through nine to twelve different waters, at varying degrees of temperature. Certain chemicals and disinfectants are used on all clothes so that when the last rinse water is drained off your socks and shirts, the bacteria count will be less than in the tap water of your own faucet at home. So you can see how sanitary it is when you send your clothes to a power laundry.

Now let's look at the statements often made about the church: It has been said that the church of Christ may think they are better than anybody else's denomination. In the first place, the church of the Lord is not bound by any denominational teaching in any form. It is not a denomination, but it includes all of the saved people of the earth. It is not bound by denominational lines or sectarian teaching. Its teaching is much broader than that. Still, some of these prejudices remain.

How can these types of prejudice be broken down? That is one of the problems that faces each of us who are concerned with or interested in the furthering of Christ's work in the community. I would suggest a strong, public relations program—advertising, if you please!

It has not been too many years ago that a woman's smoking in public was considered bad or immoral. People in general today do not feel that is true. How has such a change come about? The cigarette companies have broken down that idea. Billboards on every highway carry the picture of a beautiful woman smoking a cigarette. There are advertisements in the newspapers and on the screens in movie theaters. Constant repetition of women's smoking cigarettes in an attractive light have softened the people's viewpoint and influenced them to accept a woman's smoking today. Some of us might personally believe that a woman should not smoke; still the general public has begun to accept it because of advertising.

Another modern-day industry which is just growing by leaps and bounds spends millions of dollars annually in selling its product—old, hard liquor! At random recently, I clipped ads related to whiskey from a newspaper in West Texas, and I found that one entire page had been used in that newspaper by different concerns who were advertising liquor in an attractive manner. Such statements as these were used: "The highest flavor"; "a gift of beauty, a joy forever"; "celebrating its 82nd Christmas of old-fashioned goodness." There were many others, and all of them contributed to a magnificent public relations program, a good selling job. We need to ad-

However, notice that we have left one part of the parallel off. We have forgotten all about the preparation of the soil. The farmer who goes out to scatter his seed would have a poor harvest if he failed to soften up the soil, get the weeds out or prepare the soil for the seed to bring forth. The same thing is true with the human heart. It needs to be prepared. Prejudices should be broken down through a good publicity program before the seed is planted in the heart. Once that has been done a Christian is more likely to be born. A person who has no

EDITORIAL

G. H. P. SHOWALTER, Editor

SPECIAL ISSUE

We present with pleasure this special issue of the Firm Foundation examining from several standpoints by a number of capable writers the great subject of the "Church of Christ at Work." The editorial direction of this issue is in the hands of Brother M. Norvel Young. Brother Young has done a fine piece of work on his part, and the writers have contributed matter that we believe will be read with interest and profit by the many thousands of people who have the opportunity of reading the Firm Foundation.

As we go to press, we are trying to take care of all orders that have been received or that may be received during the present week. On this account, we urgently ask all who would like to have any number of copies to write us or wire us; and we will be prepared to fill all orders. A large number of churches have ordered a thousand copies each and many others—500, 200, or a smaller number of copies. These will be distributed in places where they will be read, and we feel sure that great good will be accomplished.

Already some have suggested that we bring out the entire series of articles in a pamphlet form that will be convenient to read. We are asking all of our readers to communicate with us immediately as to how many copies of such a tract they are in a position to handle.

For copies of this issue of the Firm Foundation send $1.75 for fifty copies or $3.50 for 100 copies or $35.00 for 1,000 copies.

We appreciate the fine articles prepared by these brethren and extend our thanks for this service.

WOMEN AT WORK IN THE CHURCH

Anna Roberts

In one of my college classrooms there hung this motto: "I want you to grow to be as beautiful as God meant you to be when he thought of you first." God's first thought of woman was as a helpmeet for man. Hence holy women will never lose sight of what God meant them to be when he thought of them first. The very nature of her creation—being taken out of man—adds to the closeness of this relationship to him. Every time the word "woman" is spoken it is a reminder that she was taken out of man—literally bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh.

The name which the first man gave his wife is also significant: "Eve, the mother of all living." So, from the beginning, woman's responsibilities were twofold: helpmeet and mother. Any activity in which she engages today is or should be but an enlargement of these two obligations.

The apostle Peter says that the holy women aforetime adorned themselves with the incorruptible apparel of a meek and quiet spirit (1 Peter 3:4). Holy women realize that spiritual attire takes precedence over the outward adorning. One who wore the robes of a queen told her son that the clothing of a worthy woman are strength and dignity (Prov. 31:25).

Recently I heard (by transcription) Brother Homer Hailey preach a sermon on elders and their work. He said we have stressed the qualifications of elders to the extent that we have almost lost sight of the work of elders. Might there not be a parallel with woman's work in the church. Stress has been put on what women cannot do until many think there is nothing they can do. I heard a gospel preacher, who had made the change from the group who oppose Bible classes and other practices to work with us, say that he had seen women in those groups who usurped the authority of men by their attitudes, speech, and actions far more than some women who were teaching God's word in classes. Woman can, by her attitude, fail to be in subjection though she may never step outside her sphere in the usual sense of the word.

What then is woman's part in building up the church? Let us remember that a Christian woman's every activity is done as a member of the church as she is in the church whether she be at work at home or elsewhere, in her social life or in working with groups in various capacities. I say the first work of women in building up the church is the building of a truly Christian home. Only insofar as this is done can the church be built up according to the more than a dozen ways spoken of in this special issue. In the primary sense it is the mothers of men that train elders and deacons, gospel preachers, and singers, that win friends for the church and teach stewardship.

A national organization for women has for the past several years been conducting a survey called, "The Cost of Neglect Program," wherein it is attempted to measure the harm done to children as a result of many mothers' working away from the home during World War II. Statistics are not necessary. If you have seen one instance of a sad result you know the cost was too great.

I like the meaningful words which the Holy Spirit via the New Testament writers used to speak of Christian women: Chaste, meek and quiet spirit, reverent, not slanderers, teachers of that which is good, sober minded, kind, keepers at home, full of good works, laboring in the gospel. Ponder these words.

*The author is the wife of Luther Roberts, evangelist of the church in Corsicana, and has had much experience in teaching women's classes, women Bible school teachers and as dean of women at Abilene Christian College.

But remember also that while these specific things are said of women, every statement in the New Testament (except the ones specifically addressed to men) pertaining to spiritual growth and service is spoken to woman as well as man. Certainly woman has restrictions placed upon her. For that she should be thankful. In a spiritual as well as a literal sense woman's work is never done. Christian women do not have time to be bored (which a popular columnist says is the most widespread disease of the modern world), to be lazy, neurotic, or even phlegmatic.

What can and should women be doing? Maintain peaceful, comfortable homes where strength of character and fear of love for God can be implanted in the lives of those who dwell therein. Be sure that you and your family do not miss an opportunity to receive both inspiration and information from every service in which the congregation assembles. Be a good neighbor; maintain the respect of the people in your community. Render any worthwhile service which you are called upon to do by the elders of the church or by those appointed by them for certain works. And if you are not called upon, find something to do. It is ever present. Visit a sick neighbor or friend—or a well one who needs encouragement and who might be receptive to the truth of God's word. Women in the church can maintain a "welcome wagon" such as many cities have, not in the sense of taking material gifts to newcomers in the city but in the capacity of going into the homes of newcomers and making them feel welcome and creating within them the desire to be associated with such as you are.

Or again, grow flowers and add beauty to life or vegetables and fruits that give strength to our being, remembering that thereby we are being God-like, as it was he who planted the first garden. Or make garments as did Dorcas and be full of good works and alms deeds. Or help someone to learn the way of the Lord more perfectly as did Priscilla. Never let your mind stop growing. Remember we are commanded to think, to grow, to study, and to exercise our senses sufficiently to discern.

Work willingly with your hands even if it means rising early as was said of the worthy woman. Give food to your household (Prov. 31). This very week in two discussions with couples who were having difficulties the statement was made of the woman: "She never prepared a decent meal." Give tasks to your maidens (Prov. 31)—teach those young girls in your household to be (like you) keepers or workers at home. Teach your sons to have respect for the home and for womankind. Remember that any character building or civic organization, whether it be P.T.A., study club, boy or girl scouts, or a small sewing club, is secondary and should be kept in its place. If ever there is a choice to make between attendance at something of this kind and a meeting with God's people, you have no choice. Christian women are to seek first the kingdom of God.

Offer your home as a place where wholesome recreation may be planned for your children and their friends, or plan it yourself. Do not feel that it is the obligation of their teachers or of the church to make all of the provisions for their entertainment. Work toward the development of yourself and your family in what someone has called, growing on the square; that is, in wisdom, in stature, and in favor with God and man. Be conscious of the fact that while the physical and mental needs of both you and your family are important, the spiritual needs tower above them and that the fulfilling of the physical and mental needs should but serve as means to the one great end—building spiritual character.

Both time and space fail me to tell of other good works which holy women may pursue, but may we sum it all up as the gospel writer did of Jesus—to go about doing good.

An ancient proverb counsels: "If thou hast two pence, spend one for bread and with the other buy hyacinths for the soul." There is a balance in life between bread and food for the soul and holy women will strive to find and maintain that balance and help others to know of its worth and beauty.

PERSONAL EXPERIENCES IN DOING PERSONAL WORK

Wayne Hargrove*

Until recently I was an "associate minister" in a large congregation in Houston, the South's largest city. I directed the singing and taught classes regularly and preached when the other minister was away, but one of my major tasks was "personal work." Some of the problems I have faced and experiences I have had are presented herewith for whatever they may be worth to the reader. Not all of the individuals mentioned are members of the congregation where I labor.

In this city of more than 600,000 souls, this city to which multitudes have come to find employment, "to buy and sell and get gain," to attempt to lose themselves and their problems in this cosmopolitan mass of humanity—here are found all types of people. In this city are found the native and the foreigner, the rich and the poor, the cocksure and the bewildered, the ambitious and the discouraged, the triumphant and the frustrated, the sincere and the dishonest, the highly educated and the ignorant, the indifferent and the interested.

We ask every visitor at worship to give us his name, address, business, and religious affiliation on a "visitor's card." Then we ministers make personal calls on as many of these individuals as possible. Frequently we are called on to advise with members of the church concerning their personal problems. Also, we are asked often to help with the problems of friends and acquaintances of members. Numerous letters are received from anxious mothers and fathers all over the nation asking that we visit their son or daughter in an effort to interest them in the church. Visitation in the more than fifty hospitals here present all sorts of mental, moral, and spiritual problems.

My personal work, of course, is scattered all over this sprawling metropolis. The calls are made sometimes in homes of people, sometimes in the offices, shops, stores and factories where they work. New streets and subdivisions in such a rapidly growing area sometimes make addresses hard to find. I drive an average of more than forty miles per day within the city limits. One visit is often fifteen or twenty miles across town from the other. Not infrequently the call that requires two hours of driving and hunting is in vain—the person sought has moved and left no address. On a recent afternoon (in very hot weather) I drove thirty-five miles making nine calls and found no one home. One of the individuals had moved just thirty minutes before I arrived, and had left no address. Sometimes I make as many as ten attempts before I find an individual. Sometimes I make more calls than that before getting the person alone in a situation where I can talk to him or her personally. But how profitable is all the time and work expended when that person is baptized into Christ or is brought closer to God. Truly, "Our labor is not in vain in the Lord."

Sometimes personal calls are made just in the nick of time.

*The author is now evangelist for the McGregor Park church in Houston. He still devotes much time to personal work.

I had been told that a certain young man was very troubled and depressed because his wife had left him and had taken their child. One afternoon I made an appointment to take him home from his work. His condition was more serious than I had been led to believe. He was ready to commit suicide. After more than two hours of reasoning with him I convinced him that God, not suicide, was his solution.

On another occasion, I spent many sessions of several hours each discussing personal domestic problems with a young man and his wife. The only time I could visit with both of them together was between 11:00 p.m. and 2:00 a.m. As a result, however, the couple stayed together and later she was baptized.

Stark tragedy is common in a city such as this. One of the most acute problems here (and most other places, I suppose) is alcoholism. A few months ago I was studying in my office when the phone rang. It was a man in his middle thirties, a member of the church (not a member of the congregation where I preach). He said, "I need some help. I need a whole lot of help." I said, "What's the trouble?" He replied, "I've been drunk for thirty-two days. I'm an alcoholic. I've tried all the medicines—I've tried just about everything, but I'm getting worse. I've lost just about all the faith I ever had. I'd like to talk with you." I assured him that I would be glad to talk with him—and did later, when he was more sober. Because of drink, he had lost his job, his health, his wife, his sons, his self-respect. Now he has gone on to another city, to be with his sister's family—in a final desperate effort to rehabilitate his life and his soul.

Sometimes the personal worker is involved in awkward situations. Once it fell my lot to introduce two wives (both members of the Lord's church) to each other. They lived in different cities, but both had been married (or so they thought) to the same man for years. Neither knew about the other. The truth came to light after the husband had been apprehended by the law and sent to prison on several felony convictions.

On still another occasion, a drunk husband in my presence threatened to kill his wife, and, to demonstrate his ability, threw his knife across the room into the baseboard moulding. I had an opportunity to divert his attention long enough for the wife to pick up and hide the knife.

Of course, most of the above-mentioned individuals are not members of this congregation. But a minister in a large, centrally located congregation walks into many situations such as these while doing personal work. One afternoon I visited two non-members. One was an agnostic nearly ninety years old (reputedly worth fifty million dollars) and the other was a poor young woman who was desperately in need of financial assistance.

As has been suggested, many discouragements face the personal worker. I think of the dozens of worldly-minded young men and women who have rejected the Christian way because they prefer the broad way. I see the scores of members who came to the city years ago, failed to place membership and become active in a congregation, allowed the flame of their spiritual life to flicker and be snuffed out by the world's infiltrating influences, and now apparently are beyond reach.

As most personal workers do, I sow in all kinds of soil. The crop is discouraging when I plant in the rocky and thorny soil and by the wayside, but there is a great deal of good soil—honest and good hearts who respond. The young woman whose heart was opened when prejudice had been dispelled, the fine Jewish woman who accepted Christ, the Canadian who left darkness and came into the light, the French student priest whose face shone radiantly after his obedience to the gospel—these cause one to "thank God and take courage."

Sometimes personal work becomes very personal—very intimate. One man I do not think I shall ever forget. He was troubled. I visited with him in my car. Several times we had lunch together. Day after day we talked for hours at a time, discussing the Bible and how it was the answer to his problems. He had broken God's laws promiscuously. Gradually "he came to himself." But he did not see how he could do Christ's will in his personal life—it looked impossible to him. Finally, putting my arm around him, I told him that I loved him like a brother, and said, "You can, you must! God's way is the only way out!" With tears streaming down his cheeks, he said he would try. The man obeyed the gospel. He became anxious to know and to do God's will; his whole purpose in life had been marvelously changed "since Jesus came into his heart." Just one such experience as this make a lifetime of personal work worthwhile.

Personal work requires sacrifice. The hours between 5:00 and 10:00 p.m. are often the only opportunity to see individuals alone. As a result, many social engagements must be foregone, and many evenings must be spent away from the family. But, candidly, is anything more important? Souls that are lost may not otherwise be saved.

"Down in the human heart,"

Crushed by the tempter,

Feelings lie buried that grace can restore;

Touched by a loving hand,

Wakened by kindness,

Chords that were broken will vibrate once more."

Frankly, I would not trade my opportunities to touch the souls of men and women through the personal touch, the friendly heart-to-heart conversation. Men and women, boys and girls need God—and this is an effective means of bringing them to him. Jesus used this method. He left us an example. Let us follow in his steps.

A BOOKLET ON OVERCOMING SORROW

Batsell Barrett Baxter

Preachers are often called upon to help those who are in sorrow. Some of us have felt the need of some attractive printed matter with scriptures and brief messages of comfort to leave with the bereaved. A 40-page booklet designed to meet this need has just been published. It contains articles by such writers as Frank L. Cox, Harold Thomas, R. C. Bell, J. P. Sanders, Elbridge B. Linn, S. P. Pittman, E. H. Dams, and Leonard Burford. Those who have suffered sorrow will appreciate this material. Copies can be obtained from the Firm Foundation. Price, 10 cents.

WINNING FRIENDS FOR THE CHURCH

Willard Collins, Vice President, David Lipscomb College

A destructive tornado tore through Fayetteville, Tennessee, in the spring of 1952. The auditorium of the church and the preacher's home were demolished, but in a few hours, in spite of their loss, the members of the church of Christ had set up relief stations and were on the job as ministers for Jesus. Neighboring congregations sent money, clothing and food, and the Lord's church in Fayetteville served Christ by helping others. In so doing they won many friends for the New Testament church. The $10,000 spent and the many truckloads of clothing distributed were given in the name of the Savior.

A congregation that ministers to the needy wins friends for the church. A few years ago when I was preaching in a meeting for the Tenth and Bell congregation in Shawnee, Oklahoma, one of the members there told me of an experience of a congregation in Texas. A family began attending the services in this congregation, placed their membership since they had just moved to that town, but after a few Sundays they stopped attending.

Upon investigation, the leaders of the congregation found that this family was very needy. The man, wife, and children lived in a barn at the edge of town, and the father had become ill. Immediately this church rented a house in town, moved the family out of the barn and sent for a physician. When the husband was well, the members helped him secure a job. The family was deserving and worked as faithful members of the congregation.

Many people in a Texas town who were not members of the church heard of this assistance given to the needy. This case won friends for Christ. Some started attending the services, heard the gospel and became Christians, because the great purpose of winning friends for the church is to save the souls of the individuals. Jesus gave the key by teaching, "For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many" (Mark 10:45). It is so easy to forget that the Christian life demands service to others.

Case in Davidson County

Elders of the White Creek Church of Christ in Davidson County, Tennessee, have an understanding with the County Welfare Department to furnish the church names of the needy in their community. Members of the church are taken and cared for by the church and those who are not members receive assistance to the extent that this church is able.

Individual members of the congregation can win friends for Christ and his church. One big reason for the growth of the church in Waterloo, Indiana, is a Christian physician who in his work has referred deserving, needy cases to the church for assistance. The Waterloo congregation has won friends, many such have been baptized after being taught the gospel, and this congregation in that mission field is on the march.

One of the preachers in Lubbock, Texas, keeps a list of prospects and continually works to win their friendship and confidence, that he might lead these to Christ with the gospel. When I worked with him in a meeting, he carried me to homes, newspapers, and bank offices, business houses, and teachers' offices as we sought to win people for the Master. This plan is productive there. It may take ten or fifteen years to win some in this way, but a diligent preacher can do much for the kingdom in this way. I was impressed by a bank president who told this preacher, "In all of my years in this office, you are the first one to ever visit me to talk about the salvation of my soul, and I appreciate it."

Vacation Bible schools are proving an effective medium in the Middle Tennessee area for encouraging children of non-members and their parents to attend the services. I have a friend who preaches in Nashville who is effectively winning friends for the church by writing letters to the members of bereaved families when death comes. He secures his information from the daily newspaper. Think of the contacts that Christians can make in the hospitals, schools, nursing homes, and institutions for the needy and distressed.

But none of these contacts are effective unless those who make them are "the salt of the earth." An unbeliever must see Christ in the Christian if visits are successful. It is very difficult to convert a good moral man who isn't a Christian when he knows a so-called Christian who isn't a good moral man of integrity.

Nashville, Tennessee.

DEAD FLIES IN THE OINTMENT

T. B. Crews

"Dead flies cause the ointment of the apothecary to send forth a stinking savour: so doth a little folly him that is in reputation for wisdom and honor" (Eccl. 10:1).

Put an attractive bottle of expensive perfume on the counter as a display and every woman who likes perfume will be attracted by it, tempted to buy it, and probably would but for the price. Put a dead fly in the same bottle of perfume, display it on the same counter, cut the price in half and no woman will want it. The same perfume in the same bottle, none taken out or none added to, just the addition of one little fly. Hardly any amount of price slashing will cause it to sell. It lost its beauty, its power of temptation, when the fly was added. Thus the bottle of perfume can regain its value only when the fly is removed and even then those that knew that the fly had been in it will not want it. Such is life.

The Christian life is beautiful, attractive, honored and admired. Even the greatest enemies of Christianity cannot help but be attracted by the beauty of the life of one who really lives up to the principles of it. The friendly smile, willing hand, benevolent attitude and consecrated life of a Christian is recognized by all and adorned by all but the most hardened sinners and usually by most of them. Now to that life, add a word of slander, a night of drunkenness, a theft or an act of adultery and what do you have? Forgotten are the days of beauty, attractiveness and honor and in its place comes suspicion and doubt. Yes, like the dead fly in the ointment the life emits no longer the sweet smelling odor that attracts but the scent of a thing that stinks.

The gospel is the sweetest story of the most perfect life, offering the most to men of anything at his disposal. In its purity and simplicity it offers salvation to the lost, a home for the wanderer, freedom to the captives of sin and hope for all concerned. Why is it that the world is so attracted to doctrines that have added something to the gospel? It is not possible to add to the gospel (Gal. 1:6-8), without facing a curse. Why will the person attracted by a perfume, turned aside by a fly; attracted by a Christian life, turned aside by a sin, still be attracted by a doctrine which has perverted the gospel of Christ?

THE USE OF PRINTED MATERIAL

M. Norvel Young, Associate Editor, Firm Foundation—Minister, Broadway Church of Christ, Lubbock, Texas

Brother L. P. Bennett and his wife have given a million dollars and more than a half century of service to the cause of Christ. He never had the opportunity to spend one day enrolled as a student in school. But he gained a good education independently, and learned to read by studying an old copy of Ashley S. Johnson's sermons. Of course he learned the gospel while he was learning to read. Consider the power of the printed page for good!

One of the great bottlenecks to the continued growth of the church is the lack of qualified elders, preachers, and teachers of the Bible. There are some 15,000 churches of Christ in the United States alone, but only about 7,000 men who are preaching publicly. It takes time to grow up a generation of consecrated, well-grounded, loyal gospel preachers. The brethren have money to build buildings, money to support many more preachers, but the full-time laborers are few. How apt is Jesus' statement: "The harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into his harvest" (Luke 10:2). Verily the harvest is plentiful today in these United States, in Japan, Germany, Italy, and dozens of other lands.

A well-prepared, effective gospel preacher can build a church of the Lord in any one of 10,000 communities in this country where there is no church of any kind. Often this can be done within a few years so that the church will be self-supporting. The bottleneck is in the lack of such men to go. Let us pray that the Lord will send us more laborers. Let us challenge our young men to give full-time service in preaching the gospel at home and abroad!

In the meantime the printed page offers one way in which brethren can multiply the effectiveness of the few preachers and teachers among us. Through gospel articles in newspapers (at reduced rates for churches), through attractive and brief tracts, through larger pamphlets for those already interested, and through books, we can sow the seed in thousands of homes. Who knows where another L. P. Bennett lives waiting for the gospel to be put into his hand in printed form. More people are reading and more people know how to read today than ever before in history. God has blessed his children with money more than ever before. The printing presses are able to produce beautiful and effective tracts that people will read. What hinders us using the printed page as powerfully as the Seventh Day Adventists are doing, or the Christian Scientists, or the Roman Catholics? Why not good gospel articles in every newspaper in the land just as we are putting the gospel on the radio in all the major cities?

1. First, we need to use the talent of Christians who are versed in printing and advertising. Our tracts need to be done by professionals who know how to set them up, how to illustrate them, how to print them. Then the pure word of the Lord will be read. No matter how true the message, it does not do any good in a tract if the tract isn't read.

2. Secondly, we need to persuade churches to put sizable amounts in their budgets for the production and purchase of good tracts, or gospel articles in the papers, or pamphlets. Often only 1 percent of the budget is so allocated. Why not 10 percent? Good, sound, appealing, attractive gospel articles do not cost, they actually pay in results.

3. Thirdly, we need to learn to properly distribute the literature which has been produced. It is not enough to hand it out after services. The tracts need to be mailed to homes, or personally given to friends, or put in newspapers and magazines that are read. Distribution spells success or failure. Tract racks can be put up in waiting rooms, doctor's offices, beauty and barber shops, and similar locations. Army camps offer an effective place for distribution. If we get the living word of God to enough people in a medium which assures their reading, then we may be sure that his word will not return unto him void. It will get the job done. Brethren, let us lift up our eyes and see the harvest, and multiply the effectiveness of the laborers by the use of the printed page.

ARE YOU USING GOSPEL LITERATURE?

Are you personally taking advantage of the gospel literature which is available? First, are you taking several good gospel papers in your home. Of course you are probably receiving the Firm Foundation weekly. If not, you will benefit by the news and practical articles it carries. But have you thought of taking the Christian Woman for the women in the family? It is a 34-page monthly written by women for women and edited by Winifred Showalter. Then are you subscribing to the 20th Century Christian for the young people in the home? It is a 38-page monthly in attractive cover with brief, practical and inspirational articles and specializes in having about eight special issues on definite themes each year. Gospel papers will help your home. They cost so little compared with the daily paper and they stimulate interest in the spiritual values of life.

Is The Church Using These Pamphlets

Is the church where you worship using these attractive pamphlets to give to church members and visitors, to distribute to prospects prior to gospel meetings. Churches like Belmont Avenue in Nashville, Proctor Street in Port Arthur, Skillman Avenue in Dallas; Idalou; Sunset and Broadway in Lubbock; Borger; Hereford; Corpus Christi; San Angelo, and dozens of others are using these with good results. Here are the ones available: "Understanding the Bible," "The New Testament Church," "God's Way of Salvation," "The Alcohol Problem," "Making Christian Marriages Work," "Overcoming Sorrow," "One Christ for One World," "Worldliness." Each pamphlet is 38 pages with back printed in color with pictures. Cost 10 cents each. Order from Firm Foundation.

CONDUCTING EFFECTIVE GOSPEL MEETINGS

Reuel Lemmons*

The age of gospel meetings is not over. It is not true that effective gospel meetings can no longer be held. It is true that times have changed until it takes an entirely different approach to the problem to provide the results we once had. Now we gather sheaves the year round rather than look for the entire year's harvest during the light moon in August. Now, the aftermath of a meeting may provide as many "results" as the actual campaign. But gospel meetings are here to stay. The effective gospel meeting can still be a most powerful means of spreading the gospel, interesting people, saving souls, and strengthening the saints.

Meetings that fail do so because they are not prepared for. Unfortunately, perhaps, a meeting can almost "happen." A preacher, a singer, and a crowd equal a meeting in the average mind. Most of the responsibility is on the preacher and singer, and they are usually strangers. Some sort of service will be carried on by them, and no local person feels the meeting will fail if he doesn't fly in and make it a success. Too many times the only preparation for a meeting is an announcement to the assembly of the church, a little ad in the local paper and somebody to open the door and turn on the lights. Sometimes the meeting is half over before it leaks out that one is being held.

A meeting is a success or a failure before it starts. The average evangelist has sized up the prospects for a good meeting before the congregation reaches the chorus of the first verse of the first song. If the church is ready for a meeting, nearly any preacher can hold a good one. If the church is not ready, no preacher, however talented, can make it a success. Meetings are usually foreordained and predestined before they are born to either a success or a failure.

A preacher cannot hold a meeting by himself. Don't ever hire a man to confidence that it leaves the entire meeting up to him to hold. Rather, hire a man that every member of the congregation is afraid cannot do the job. Then each member, rather than see the meeting fail, will get out and do something. When this happens anyone can hold a good meeting. Really, the preacher doesn't have as much to do with the success of a meeting as most folks give him credit for having. The success or failure of a meeting lies with the church—not the preacher.

A congregation should start well in advance to prepare for a meeting. First, the church itself must be prepared. The membership must be made to WANT to have a meeting. Defeatism must be eliminated. The, "We're going to have a meeting, but there probably won't be any additions" complex must be banished. Enthusiasm must be generated. An air of expectancy must be made to hover over the group like that which permeates a community before the circus comes to town.

The plans for every individual member must be made to coincide with the plans for the meeting. Work must be shifted. Trips must be postponed. Personal pleasures must be sacrificed. We've got ten days' work to do that cannot be interfered with.

We must plan to see that the children hear this man. It will be an experience they will always cherish. We will have the Smith's home with us for dinner during that time. We'll take the Jones with us Tuesday night. We'll call the Browns and ask them to go. We'll write the folks and have them come. Every one of us will pray like this whole thing depended upon God, and work as if the whole thing depended upon us.

Gospel meetings are conducted in the interest of souls. You will be selling the gospel to people who will die lost without it. Keep in mind the prospects. Plan a meeting to reach, interest, and convert people. The lost souls—some of them are your kith and kin. The visiting evangelist does not bear all responsibility for the souls yet unsaved in your community.

Advertise the meeting! You don't have many meetings each year. Spend some money on it! Study effective methods of advertising used by others. Not all advertising is effective. Reach the community with more than an announcement. Make the advertising personal. Make it definite. See that it has pulling power. Make it ring with sincerity. Engineered advertising has a great advantage over a two-by-four box with the preacher's picture in it.

Pray for the meeting. God will hear the prayer of a saint for a sinner! Pray for those who do not pray for themselves. Pray for those who are laying the congregational plans for the meeting. Pray for the evangelist. Pray for yourself that you may have wisdom enough and zeal enough to be able to save some lost soul on your own initiative during the meeting. Pray without ceasing. Pray in faith. Pray with the Spirit. Pray publicly. Pray privately. Pray early. Pray late. I believe that our prayers, thus uttered, can and will bring to our aid powers and possibilities, and swing wide doors of opportunity, that our feeble hands could never have swung. A series of cottage prayer meetings in ten or fifteen homes a week in advance is very helpful.

Then, work for the meeting. It is your meeting. Its "results" will be your harvest. Be thoughtful, watchful, and cooperative at every service. Be friendly, be courteous, and considerate to those who come. Be unselfish, be enthusiastic, and be helpful during the whole meeting. Make the meeting something you will be proud of; something you will remember; and something from which you will benefit.

Effective gospel meetings do not just happen. They are not something that you can order in a package from Sears and Roebuck. They are prayerfully planned and patiently perpetrated. We have unfruitful meetings for the same reason that we have unfruitful lives. You cannot pay for with money what it takes the soul of a man to produce. You cannot buy so much preaching for so much pay and expect an effective gospel meeting. The soul of a man and the soul of a church must also go into a meeting to make it a success, for after all, as Solomon said: "The spirit of man is the candle of the Lord."

USE OF RADIO

James W. Nichols*

Radio is just one of several means of preaching the gospel. It is effective and economical, but not necessarily the most effective or most economical.

The first thing that we must realize, above all, in radio evangelism is that we must make our manner as simple as possible. I well remember a series of lectures by an outstanding authority in the radio field. Every lecture was started with these words: You must be simple! The average adult radio listener in the United States cannot define the word "adult."

The second thing that must be considered is that the majority of the listeners have no real interest in religion at all. Only approximately half of the people in the United States have any religious affiliation, and of course, many of these who are affiliated have no real interest. Therefore, to keep the listener from turning the dial, we must try to present the gospel in such a way that it will attract interest. This does not mean, however, that there needs to be any leaning toward sensationalism, for if the gospel is presented in an earnest, sincere, simple manner, it is as effective and interesting as any person would desire it to be.

Every scriptural style of teaching should be used for an effective program. We should teach in song, in sermon, and in the reading of God's word. This was God's plan, and it is still the most effective, whether the service is conducted in sight or by radio. The songs by radio will instruct and inspire and exhort as effectively as they do in our church buildings. By correct interpretation of the scripture we can lead men not only to believe the word of God, but to love it and to respect it.

In sermon, our appeals should be as forthright as they are from the pulpit, with a special exhortation to obedience that day. Many radio programs fall short of accomplishing the desired results because of the failure of the speaker to recognize the need of trying to move the audience to action.

It should be kept in mind, however, that the average listener's attention cannot be maintained for longer than 15 minutes of steady speaking.

The results of radio work are hard to measure, as are the results of every other phase of preaching. There are very few cases in which we can attribute the conversion of a person solely to pulpit work, personal work, or Bible classes. Neither would it be right to say or to believe that thousands will be converted solely by radio evangelism. But it is a very effective and economical means of opening the door to the hearts of men. It is estimated that it costs two-tenths of one cent to reach one person with the nation-wide radio program known as the "Herald of Truth" for 30 minutes. The response that has been received to this program indicates the effectiveness of radio evangelism. On an average of 125 to 150 letters are received every day. Numerous instances could be cited of conversions in all sections of the nation, some as a result of radio teaching alone, others as a result of the program planting the seed first with pulpit work and personal work helping to bring about the conversion. At least two congregations have been established in a six-month period as a result of follow-up of contacts from the national radio program, "The Herald of Truth." Then, of course, the number of sermons that is requested by both members of the church and interested non-members, indicates the effectiveness of radio evangelism. There are about 8,000 to 10,000 sermons that are mailed each month—copies of sermons that are preached over the radio program known as "The Herald of Truth."

In closing, may it be said that this writer does not believe for one moment that a national radio program is the only way to carry on radio evangelism. Local radio programs should not be discontinued in the interest of a national program, but the two together can and should be effective working mates for the cause of Christ. Brethren, let us use every means that is right to preach the word, redeeming the world and our own souls.

THE LOCAL PREACHER AT WORK

Clifton Rogers*

A Preacher

"From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (Matt. 4:17). "He opened his mouth and taught them" (Matt. 5:2)—preaching, teaching—this is the very heart and soul of the evangelist's activities. Provided a livelihood (1 Cor. 9:7-11) so that he can devote his entire time and talent to his Master's cause, his feeling of devotion and responsibility keeps him working (2 Tim. 4:5), with a keen sense of urgency. And although he has many calls for his time, although he earnestly helps in the planning of congregational activities and in pushing the work, although he gives of himself to charitable ends, he keeps in mind that primarily, fundamentally he is an evangelist—a proclaimer of the glad tidings. "Preach the word" (2 Tim. 4:2). "Give heed to reading, to exhortation, to teaching" (1 Tim. 4:13).

Preaching

Pulpit Preaching. A great opportunity affords itself in the proclamation of the gospel of Christ in a public way. The evangelist views this opportunity as a strong responsibility to preach Christ and his way to the very best of his ability upon every occasion. This is no time for theorizing or conjecturing—"Preach the word." This is no time to tickle the ears of men—preach the truth boldly, without fear and without any touch of compromise. This is no time for hesitancy and vagueness—preach the word precisely and pointedly. In this, of course, there is no place for crude sarcasm intended to insult and humiliate, no place for softly spoken words designed to provoke laughter at sincere people. The attitude of the apostle Paul can always be maintained: "The Lord's servant must not strive, but be gentle towards all, apt to teach, forbearing, in meekness correcting them that oppose themselves" (2 Tim. 2:24, 25); consider also 1 Thess. 2:7, 11). Truth and personality are so closely related in a sermon that listeners can hardly separate the message from the attitude of the man proclaiming it. Thus, it is vital that the truth be preached in the right way, with the prayerful desire that it will reach into the inner man unto ultimate conversion. It is easy to tell, but hard to "make all see" (note Eph. 3:9).

"In Season, Out of Season." As a general rule, conversions will be in proportion to the preaching done in a given locality. Hence, additional opportunities are grasped or created for such work. Radio programs, whether daily or weekly, open many doors to the truth. Funerals, weddings, and other special occasions afford further opportunities for teaching the fullness of Christ's way. Prayerful consecration assures that the minister maintains a strong sense of urgency at all times (note 2 Tim. 4:2-5; Acts 20:18-20). This certainly does not insist that effort should be made to revolutionize a situation overnight. Time and patience will be required to do a thorough job of preparing the soil, sowing the seed, and cultivating that which has been sown.

Teaching

Bible Classes. Definite, systematized classes are arranged to meet the peculiar needs of the congregation. The evangelist has a prominent part in this teaching program, but an extensive field still awaits for personal teaching in homes, in the church study, etc. Whether one earnest soul or a group is involved, many such classes can be taught each week if serious effort is made toward that end. One conversion always leads to other opportunities.

The author has done an outstanding work in Humble Road, Texas, and at Port Arthur. The church where he works has a high average of per capita giving and attendance. More than 100 people work seven days a week.

Counselling. Many hours of the evangelist's time are devoted to quiet periods of counselling those with special problems. Teaching is provided the doubting and the inquiring, encouragement is given the troubled and the wavering, comfort is extended the sorrowing. Some of this may take place in the minister's study, but much of it will be in the homes of those to whom the compassionate man of God thoughtfully goes in his earnest desire to be a true servant of Christ.

Writing. Constructive teaching is done each week through the church bulletin, outlines and lessons for class work, articles for periodicals and newspapers, material for tracts and books. Moreover, scores of letters are written—some instructive, some encouraging, some comforting, some complimentary. This is additional work, but it is highly productive work.

A STUDENT

Learning the Bible

"Give diligence (study) to present thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, handling aright the word of truth" (2 Tim. 2:15) requires that an evangelist never neglect his careful and continuing study of the word of God. Nothing can take the place of a ready knowledge of the Bible if he is to declare the whole counsel of God (Acts 20:27). Congregations which have been built by promotionalism—increasing in numbers while receiving a starvation diet from a preacher who is too busy to study—will soon be awakened to the lack of spiritual fervor among the members. So the minister maintains an established time for study as closely as possible—even though each day seems to have too few hours and each week too few days—and knowledge is built upon knowledge as the years quickly pass.

Living the Truth

"Be thou an ensample to them that believe, in word, in manner of life, in love, in faith, in purity" (1 Tim. 4:12). Here is a disciple, a learner, a follower. The teachings of his Master become part of every fiber of his being. On his knees in his closet or by his office desk he prays fervently every day that he may live what he teaches, that he may have the wisdom and strength to meet his personal problems and those imposed upon him in his work with his brethren (note James 1:5; 2 Cor. 11:28). Gradually and surely—through study, prayer, and experience—he grows in spirituality (note Eph. 3:20, 21). In his godliness of life people are able to see that he walks with an abiding sense of comradeship with God (2 Cor. 6:1). In true meekness he realizes that he is indeed but a humble servant of Christ (1 Cor. 3:5-7), having dedicated himself to building upon the only foundation (1 Cor. 3:10-15). More and more his life is characterized by lessening ambition for place and position—less of self and more of Christ—looking forward to the day when he shall lay it all aside to be with the Lord whom he served through the years.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

The Fight of Faith

Paul said, "Fight the good fight of faith; lay hold on eternal life." Of himself Paul said, "I have fought a good fight; I have kept the faith." It is in the life of Paul more than in any other New Testament character, that we see the meaning of the "good fight of faith." Paul suffered much for the gospel of Christ. He constantly pressed the battle in Jesus' name. No hardships or obstruction could cause him to cower.

It is rather striking how ready Paul was for anything that might happen to him. He was ready to live and he was ready to die; ready for prosperity and ready for adversity; ready to be a free man and ready to be a prisoner of the Lord. Paul did not recognize emergencies; he was alert to all situations. When he got into trouble, he depended on the Lord to get him out. The thing that made him strong in the battles of life was his unremitting faith in Christ. By the help of the Lord he was master of all situations.

It is not easy to fight an invisible enemy. In the fight of faith, the enemy is often out of sight. Worldly-minded people wonder what we are doing when we struggle with an unseen foe. They think we are beside ourselves. They regard us as visionary and unrealistic. They think our faith is fantastic—not founded in reality. When these worldly people see one fighting a battle of faith, they regard it as a case of hallucination. Many think there is no battle if they cannot see the fire and smoke, and hear the rumble of cannons. In carnal warfare men walk by sight—in spiritual warfare they walk by faith. The conquest of our own hearts and adverse circumstances is regarded by many as only a sham battle.

When Paul knew his earthly life was done, three things made him ready to die. First, he had fought a good fight. I reckon Paul was one man who could say he had done his best. Not many can say that at the close of life. Paul had preached nothing but the truth. He had preached all the truth. He had not shuned to declare all the counsel of God. Second, Paul had finished his course. And this does not only mean that he was through with life on earth, but he had completed his work. Death finds many not half through with their work. Third, Paul had kept the faith. These things made him ready to die. By these three rules all men can prepare to die.

Sowing and Reaping

A great many people shrink from the interpretation of destiny in the light of the way they live. They do their best to ignore consideration of the connection between character and destiny.

But this is a law as fixed and inexorable as God himself.

Many things in the Bible teach it. Paul says, "Be not deceived, God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." It does not require argument to prove this. It is a self-evident truth. All men, women and children know that whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. Anyone with a speck of knowledge knows that one can never raise oats by planting corn.

What are we sowing in the field of life? Why should anyone deliberately sow bad seed in his own life? That is exactly what many are doing. Those who have common sense know that they must reap what they sow. If they sow to the flesh, they must reap corruption. The only way to reap everlasting life is to sow to the Spirit. Life is the seed time, eternity is the harvest. Death, like a narrow sea, divides our present life from our future life. It does not change the truth for men to put far away from them these solemn thoughts. The clock of time is ticking fast; the day of life will soon be over, then what shall the harvest be?

Sunday, "The Lord's Day!"

J. Luther Dabney

I don't know that anyone in the church of Christ ever questioned the statement that the Lord's day in Revelation 1:10 refers to the first day, or the day on which Christ arose from the dead, until I read Brother Wilkinson's article in the Firm Foundation. I knew that Adventists contend that it is Saturday, or the Sabbath. It isn't difficult to see why they would hold this view since if they could prove it, then they could prove that John was in some way observing the sabbath, therefore we ought to do the same. It isn't difficult to see that there is some logic in their position. Since God gave man the Sabbath, and since he called Lord God, certainly it isn't difficult to see how one might logically speak of the Sabbath as Lord's day. The weakness of such reasoning, however, becomes evident when we remember that this is a New Testament statement, and was made after the law had been nailed to the cross and taken away, including the observance of the Sabbath. One would have to be hard pressed to take such a position, the statement being found where it is in the New Testament. He would have to use far more imagination than reasoning to prove such a claim.

Christ is Lord now, and since he arose from the dead on the first day of the week, and since it was upon this day that the disciples have from the beginning met together to worship him, is there any wonder members of the church generally conclude that "the Lord's day" is the first day? But, supposing a thing does not prove it. Here we have a missing link that we are attempting to mend by logic. The missing link according to Brother Wilkinson is found in such passages as Psalm 118:22 and John 8:56. In these passages "my day" and "this is the day" do not refer to any particular day of the week, but to this dispensation. Grant that they do, it does not follow that this is the meaning of Lord's day. Did David and Christ refer to the same day John does in Revelation? If so, John meant to say, "I was in the spirit in this dispensation." Let us substitute the definition for the words used and see: "I, John, your brother and partaker with you in the tribulation and kingdom and patience which are in Jesus, was in the isle that is called Patmos, for the word of God and the testimony of Jesus. I was in the Spirit (in this dispensation) and I heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet." Would that make sense to the churches in Asia when they read it. John was telling them how, where, why, and when he received the Revelation. If he meant to tell them that he received it during this dispensation, I am sure they knew less after reading what he said than before. They knew what year, month, and week he was there, but they did not know on what day of the week he received it.

But this is only inductive reasoning and is based upon that which seems most logical. A thing can seem very logical and still be wrong. Some think they know positively that Christ is coming back to earth to rule and reign in Jerusalem. How do they prove it? By inductive reasoning, and what to them evidently seems logical. The frailty of the human mind is such that it cannot always be relied on in the absence of positive statements. To Brother Wilkinson the state of reasoning he has built up may seem as certain as a statement of fact. And as for me, as I see it, I would go on believing that the "Lord's day" could be nothing else than the first day. I confess, that so far as the Bible is concerned, my views rest upon inductive reasoning, and does not enable me to supply the missing link except by logic. It stands therefore that the most logical view is the one most likely to be correct. The difficulty is: what is logical to one mind is not logical to the same degree to another. So what?

Brother Wilkinson's worst blunder is stated in these words: "The Lord's day, used by the apostle John in the tenth verse of the first chapter of the Revelation cannot, in the light of any recorded information, either secular or divine, refer to the first day of the week or any other day of the week." The statement, "Any recorded information, either secular or divine," is a rather broad one, all must admit. In fact it is too broad, for the meaning of "the Lord's day" in Revelation has challenged the research and thought of some of the greatest minds of this dispensation. The very absence of positive information in the New Testament has led men to search the ancient records of the past to ascertain the exact meaning. In the "New Archaeological Discoveries," by Cambden M. Cobern, page 36, I find this: "He (Deissmann) howed more fully also that the so-called 'Hebraisms' of the Bible could, in almost every instance, be paralleled in the secular non-Jewish papyri, e.g., 'name' occurring with the meaning of 'person': 'Lord's day' finding its exact parallel in 'emperor's day.'" Since the emperor of Rome was worshipped, a day had been named on which to worship him. When Jesus became Lord of heaven and earth, what was more logical than that Christians should call the first day, the Lord's day, just as the pagans called the day on which they worshipped the emperor, the emperor's day?

Again, on page 128 Cobern says, "All of this, as Deissmann shows, throws a brilliant light upon the adjective, 'the Lord's,' that is, 'belonging to the Lord,' as used in the New Testament. So ordinarily used, the 'Lord's day' meant 'emperor's day.' So 'Christian' meant originally an imperial slave, or soldier belonging to the divine Christ, just as 'Caesarian' meant slave or soldier of the Caesar. In the same way 'freedman of the Lord' (1 Cor. 7:22) corresponds to 'freedman of the emperor, and the phrases so common with early Christians, 'friend of Christ' and the 'acquainted with God' correspond exactly to the words in the inscription 'friend of the emperor' and 'acquainted with the emperor.'"

We may conclude from the following quotation from the letter of Barnabas, that Christians during the second century, knowing that the time for observing the Sabbath had long since past, leaned a little backward in making sure that everyone understood that they worshipped the Lord on the first day instead of the Sabbath. Barnabas says, "Your new moons and Sabbath I cannot endure." "You see what he means: it is not the present Sabbaths that are acceptable to me, but the one that I have made, on which, having brought everything to rest, I will make the beginning of an eighth day, that is, the beginning of another world. This is why we also observe the eighth day with rejoicing, on which Jesus also rose from the dead, and having shown himself ascended to heaven" (The Apostolic Fathers, chap. 15, vs. 8, 9).

Now back to Cobern and a quotation directly to the point from the Didache, under the heading, "The Lord's Day and the Sacrifice" Cobern first comments saying: "It is noticeable that there is no commandment in this document to keep the Sabbath, and that already at the end of the first century Sunday is the sacred day of worship." He then quotes from the Didache as follows: 1. "And on the day of the Lord come together and break bread and give thanks, having before confessed your transgressions, that your sacrifice may be pure." 2. "Let no one who has a dispute with his fellow come together with you until they are reconciled, that your sacrifice may not be defiled." 3. "For this is that which is spoken by the Lord: In every place and time offer me a pure sacrifice, for I am a great King saith the Lord, and my name is wonderful among the Gentiles."

When one reads a statement like the above, "And on the day of the Lord come together and break bread and give thanks," from a document as ancient as the Didache has been proven to be, we know that Brother Wilkinson hadn't read enough before making the statement, "The Lord's day," used by the apostle John in the tenth verse of the first chapter of Revelation cannot, in the light of any recorded information, either secular or divine, refer to the first day of the week." It is easy for any of us to speak more than we know, and to know less than has been recorded.

Austin, Texas

Ralph L. Stirman

Ralph L. Stirman departed this life Tuesday night, December 30, 1952, as the tragic effect of a polio attack. Interment was in Austin Memorial Park, January 1, 1953. His wife, Ruth, their two little daughters and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Stirman of Wichita Falls, Texas, survive him.

Ralph L. Stirman

Ralph was 31 years of age but he had lived a full life. He grew up in Wichita Falls, where he finished high school. His undergraduate work was done in Harding College. From there he went into the service of his country, serving three years and a half in the Navy, but everywhere he was stationed he found the church, if one was in the community, and helped a number of small congregations in their singing and teaching.

His graduate work was in the University of Texas where he received a degree in architecture. After graduation he located in Abilene for a while, where he worked on the plans for the new church building at Abilene Christian College. He designed several other church buildings which stand as a memorial to his interest in the church and his ability as an architect. He was devoted to the church and always loyal, using his varied talents in the service of our Lord. He directed singing, both with small groups and large congregations. He was an unusually capable teacher of young people and worked with them untiringly, doing an extraordinary job with the young folk in the University Avenue church in Austin, where he was located at the time of his death.

In all his activities Ralph Stirman was a genuine Christian. He was a living demonstration of the principles of Christianity. His influence was felt in a number of congregations and in the lives of a great host of friends who mourn his untimely passing.

Funeral services were conducted from the University Avenue church at Austin, Texas, where Brother R. B. Sweet spoke comforting words from the Holy Scriptures to the friends, brethren, and loved ones of our departed brother, so suddenly called from our fellowship, and brotherly association to depart and be with Christ which is very far better. Our grief is the more intensified when we think of one so well educated, specially in the Scriptures, so young in years and so active and capable, and so interested in church work, being called in the very morning of life from our association; yet we realize that we will soon follow him. To his loved ones we extend our love and sympathy, and commend them to the grace of God whose exceeding great and precious promises are revealed in the Bible.

"FILL OUT LONG FORM 1040—IT'S ONLY ONE MORE PAGE

Wayne Hargrove

March 15 is just around the corner. It is not too early for us to be working on that important Income Tax Return for 1952. In the interest of the Lord's cause, this article is written to remind us that filling out Long Form 1040 instead of shorter forms, most of us can save considerable income tax—possibly several hundred dollars.

Saving on your income tax is not "beating the government." The official instruction pamphlet which your government mailed you recently states on page 3:

"The law expects you to pay your correct tax—no more—no less. It will pay you to think for a moment which of these three types of returns is the best . . . in your case."

Many of us live in homes for which we are paying via an F.H.A. or similar loan. Most of this loan payment (in most instances) each month goes for interest and taxes, which are deductible in figuring income tax. The figures used below are for a somewhat typical member of the congregation where I preach in Houston, Texas—a man with a wife and two children and a 1952 income of $4200, or $350 per month. According to the tax table, this man already has paid $311 tax; this amount was taken from his paycheck before he received it.

But this man can receive a sizeable refund if he will fill out one more page of his Income Tax Form 1040. Assuming that this man is buying a car and is buying a home on which he has a mortgage of approximately $8000, he has the following approximate deductions:

Interest on house mortgage	$350
Interest on car loan, fence loan, and interest figured into the insurance on house (if insurance is paid monthly)	110
City, school, state and county taxes paid in house payment	120
Poll taxes and car license	20
State gasoline tax (4c per gallon on 500 gals.)	20
Deductions	$620

If the above is all he has to deduct (assuming he gave not one penny to the church), and if he had no other deductible expenses (which is unlikely), his tax figures $261.96, and he could receive a refund of $49.04.

If he contributed ten per cent ($420) to the church, his tax would be $168.72, and his refund would be $142.28.

If he contributed twenty per cent ($840) to the church (which the government by law last summer encouraged us to do), his tax would be only $75.48, and his refund $235.52.

The above case does not include other interest, casualty losses, thefts, business deductions, or miscellaneous deductions such as dues to union or professional societies, safety equipment, certain tools, etc., which may be deducted. Neither does it include any medical or dental expenses; all such expenses in excess of five per cent of income (in this case, all over $210.00) are deductible in figuring tax.

Your situation will vary with the locality where you live. This is only one example. If your income taxes already have been deducted from your salary or wages, or if you still owe for your 1952 tax, check and see how much you can save or have refunded. Whatever your income was for 1952, if you are the average member, it is likely that you do not really owe as much tax as the standard tax table shows.

It is your duty to look into your tax situation, even if your income tax already has been withheld from wages. Every penny we have is the Lord's money; we are merely stewards (1 Cor. 10:26; Psalm 89:11). "As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same . . . as good stewards . . ." (1 Peter 4:10). "Moreover, it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful" (1 Cor. 4:2).

Figuring and claiming tax deductions requires a little pencil figuring with the hands. It is even possible that Ephesians 4:28 might apply: "Let him that stole steal no more: but rather let him labor, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth."

By saving income tax, we will have more to contribute to the Lord's work; and the more we contribute to the Lord's work, the less income tax we will be required to pay. This is assuming that most church members give less than twenty per cent—and I think that's a safe assumption.

Brethren, think on these things!

ACC PLANNING HUGE LECTURE PROGRAM FEBRUARY 22-26, 1953

J. D. Thomas

The 1953 Lectureship at Abilene Christian College on "The Church at Work" is planned to be the greatest in size and scope of any that we have ever had.

Whereas we used two auditoriums last year for dual-programs with much success, this year for the evening lectures we are planning to use three auditoriums with simultaneous programs.

Arrangements are being made to enlarge seating arrangements in Bennett gymnasium, and it, together with Sewell auditorium and the auditorium of the College Church of Christ, will be used to take care of an unexpected 6,000 to 7,000 people. Over 4,000 were in attendance at the 1952 lectureship.

There will be six different speakers for the evening week-day lectures, and each man will speak twice so that the audience will have a choice and an opportunity to hear the address that interests them most. There will be missionaries from the various mission fields with up-to-date reports of the activities in their field. This has always been one of the main features of the ACC Lectureship.

A new feature to be incorporated this year will be a series of panel discussions in Sewell auditorium each afternoon where various phases of the theme, "The Church at Work," will be discussed. There will be an exchange of views at these meetings and an opportunity given for questions from the floor.

As in previous years, the "Opportunities in New Fields," meeting under the direction of Paul Southern, will be continued each day at 11 a.m.

What we believe will be one of our most useful features in a series of classes considering the practical aspects of the work of the church which will be conducted each day at the same hour by instructors who are especially competent in these fields. These classes will include:

Teaching the Pre-School Age, Teaching the Primary Grades, Teaching the Juniors, Teaching the Intermediate Group, Teaching Children to Sing, Teaching Women's Classes, Personal Work for Women, Handling the Church's Business Affairs, Problems of the Preacher, Elders and Their Work, Modernism and Archaeology, Building the Sermon, Directing Congregational Singing, The Restoration Movement, Sound Doctrine, Establishing New Congregations, Organizing and Supervising the Bible School, Visual Aids for Use in the Bible School Work, The Church and Young People.

Each person will select the class that he feels will profit him most and attend that same class each day for the four days in order to get the most benefit from it. It is expected that these classes, or similar ones, will be repeated from year to year so that in the course of time each person can have an opportunity to have specific training in several areas.

The largest preachers-elders dinner ever held is planned for Tuesday evening of Lectureship Week and will be held in the gymnasium at 5 p.m. A short program will be given. Last year over 800 elders and preachers from throughout the United States attended the dinner.

Several choruses and musical organizations will be used at various times during the week, and another new feature will be found at one of the afternoon hours when four student-preachers of Abilene Christian College will deliver especially prepared sermons.

There will be an alumni luncheon during the week and special features for the ladies who are visiting on the campus.

Any inquiries, suggestions, or other correspondence concerning the 1953 lectureship may be addressed to J. D. Thomas, Lectureship Director, Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas.

Studies In Galatians (No. 2)

R. C. Bell

Since the Galatians had been led to doubt Paul's apostolic authority, and as everything depended on it, he confidently affirmed in the first verse that his apostleship, independently of all human intermediaries, derived personally and directly from, "Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who raised him from the dead." As if to ask, "Can Peter, James, and John have better authority than that?" He deemed this point so important that he made, as we shall see, three arguments, covering about a third of Galatians, to establish it.

The salutary sentence, consisting of five verses, full of elementary Christian doctrine, continues: "Grace to you and peace from God the Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, who gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us from this present evil world, according to the will of our God and Father." This scripture teaches that the grace and will of God, as executed in Christ, "Who gave himself (the ultimate in giving) a ransom for all," procure for all men who will accept it as God's free gift the threefold blessing of redemption from sin, deliverance for this evil world, and, "The peace of God, which passeth all understanding." What a blessing! Where are our tears of gratitude?

God's Two Governments

God's government for humanity from the beginning has always been a theocracy—that is, a monarchy over which God himself is sole and absolute Monarch. However when men rebel against this government, God suffers them, under the leadership of the archrebel Satan, to set up a provisional, secondary government, as he suffered the Jews for a time because of their "hardness of heart" to put away their wives; but from the beginning it hath not been so" (Matt. 19:8). Under Moses, God permitted, as expedients, both divorce and secondary government. Though he has long since abolished the former, he still permits and uses the latter, according to his sovereign will.

This primary spiritual government is, "The kingdom of heaven"; these secondary, worldly governments are "the kingdoms of the world." In saying to Pilate, "My kingdom is not of this world . . ." (John 18:36), Christ made a sharp distinction between the two, and made them incompatible. It was these "kingdoms of the world" (Matt. 4:8), in the aggregate that the devil, "the deceiver of the whole world" (Rev. 12:9), and "the god of this world" (2 Cor. 4:4), offered Christ. These same kingdoms Paul here calls "this present evil world." Founded in rebellion to God, they all contain the seeds of decay and death within themselves, and, as the Bible teaches, God will destroy them as such, after they have served his purpose. "That God may be all in all," this will leave only God's eternal, spiritual kingdom in its solitary grandeur and perfection.

Deliverance "from this present evil world" means much more than remission of sins, or justification, which to us Christians is always a glorious, motivating, past event. Christ tells when and how justification comes: "He that heareth my word, and believeth him that sent me, hath eternal life, and cometh not into judgment (with the world), but hath passed out of death into life" (John 5:24). "There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus" (Rom. 8:1). We are called out of the world, and are separate from worldlings in life, in death, in resurrection, in judgment, and in eternal destiny. We are in this world, but as strangers in a land occupied by the enemy. We "are not of this world" even as Christ is "not of this world" (John 17:14). During our sojourn on earth as colonists of heaven, "Our citizenship is in heaven; whence we also wait for a Savior" (Phil. 3:20). Father Abraham, as a pilgrim of earth seeking "a better country; that is, a heavenly," could have but little interest and part in the God-doomed Canaanitish civilization amidst which he lived a century in tents. Even so are we delivered from unequal yokings with their frustrations, from strivings after wind with their emptiness, from the waste, the brutality, and the desolation which so largely make up "this present evil world." All this gain and freedom on earth, with "new heavens and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness" to come. Who would not be a Christian pilgrim?

A Perverted Gospel

In the first two chapters of Galatians (the personal part), Paul's concern is to restore the Galatians' confidence in him as an authentic apostle, chosen, qualified, and sent by God. As we have already seen, Judaizers had persuaded them that Paul did not preach "the whole counsel of God."

After the salutation, Paul, without defining it, refers to a deadly perversion of gospel doctrine in their midst. Since the heresy strikes at the wisdom and throne of God, the gravity of the situation justifies his strong language: "But though we, or an angel from heaven, should preach unto you any gospel other than that which we preached unto you, let him be anathema (accursed)." Then in the next verse as if to assure them that what he was saying, instead of being the hasty, explosive words of an angry man, were the sober, measured words of a most earnest man, he deliberately spells out the curse again. The Galatians and all men since, therefore, may know that if Gabriel from heaven, or Paul back to earth, should come to preach, they would have nothing to add to what Paul had already preached unto them. How the impressible Galatians must have solemnly read on to learn the nature of their error which Paul took so seriously.

Evidently Paul's enemies had said that he was an unprincipled, popularity-seeking opportunist. Evil men by misrepresentations, twisted meanings, and half truths can always make out a case, even when their victim is Christ or Paul. We judge from Paul's reply, "If I were still pleasing men, I could not be a servant of Christ" (v. 10), that his traducers probably said they could sustain their indictment by the fact that he circumcised Timothy, but refused to circumcise Titus, in conformity to policy instead of conscience. For simplicity, compression, and completeness, this answer is an incomparable statement of the immutable, fundamental Christian truth that the interests of men-pleasers and of Christians cannot be reconciled. May we not be thankful that since Christians unto the end of time must suffer similarly, this extreme case of such vile slander and persecution occurred long ago while Paul was still living to make his stabilizing and comforting answer?

Financing The Church (No. 7)

Jack Meyer

In coming to the final essay in this series of "Financing the Church," space is too limited to warrant a lengthy paragraph in summarizing the arguments here presented. You who care to, may consult the previous numbers for that information. Hence, let us move at once to a study of 2 Cor. 9:7: "Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver."

People have abused the "as God hath prospered him" of 1 Cor. 16:2 to wrest the Scriptures into encouraging a haphazard contributing, having no certain plan as to either percentage or amount. But the passage just quoted ruins that twisting of scripture, and demands a definite amount—either in precise figures, or particular percentage. The Spirit has Paul to specify that our contributing must be according to purpose. Contributing according to purpose will demand a plan. For a person to say that "I purpose to give as I am prospered," is not to fulfill the scriptural demand. If that is all that the apostle meant by specifying giving according to purpose, there would have been no point to saying that. He had already given the instruction about giving as prospered. The addition of according to purpose is to show that they were to purpose the amount. The scholarship of the world will unite in showing that this is the point of the passage. If you have ever been mixed up and duped into saying that you are satisfying the scriptural demand by saying that you purpose to give as prospered, ask God to forgive you and resolve never to be guilty of that again.

Again that always-occurring quibble sticks up its selfish head, saying: "But I can't purpose a definite amount. I don't know exactly what my income will be." Two facts ruin that argument, and place a question over the one making it. First, the fact that an income is changeable does NOT prevent a definite purpose, because the contributor can purpose a definite percentage. That will take care of the amount. (The man in business would, of course, figure his cost of business, and then figure his personal income. Or, if his salary is set as a part of the cost of his business, he still has a personal income). Second, the United States government through its income tax laws has proved that all people can compute a definite amount as a tax on income, even when the income is variable. If a man can figure his definite obligations to the government, he can to the Lord. And the government even has us figuring estimates in advance. The man who can do this for the government, and denies he can do it for the Lord through his church, just simply can't convince anyone that he is playing honest with his Lord.

If one absorbs the spirit of the remainder of 2 Cor. 9:7, one will have no trouble purposing, planning, deciding a definite amount or percentage. Paul says that the contributing is to be cheerfully done, not grudgingly or of necessity. He who contributes only through fear or duty needs to see how selfish, narrow, and shrunk he is. He needs to see something of the sacrifice and love of Christ, to learn the meaning of gratitude, and then he will cheerfully give. 1 Cor. 13:1-3 shows that Christian service without love is neither Christian nor profitable. The church will be amply financed when members contribute regularly, into the church treasury, purposing to give more than the Jews under the law, according to ability, definite amounts of percentages, out of a sense of gratitude and love, not forgetting to do so with self-denial.

TV Opportunities In Maine

J. Harold Thomas

The church in Bangor, Maine, has been assured the opportunity to purchase broadcasting time on the first television station to operate in the state of Maine. This station began televising February 1st. The time purchased by the church will be available not later than March 1st.

This station will be the only TV station in the state of Maine for two years according to announcements from the FCC. The area it serves includes sixty percent of Maine's nearly one million population. This means that the church through this program can reach thousands of homes with which it has no contact through any other channel at the present time. The TV program will have no competition for TV hearers. Our radio programs, which are accomplishing much good, have to compete with other radio stations in Bangor and in Houlton, Rockland, Waterville, Augusta, Lewiston and Portland.

The cost of the fifteen-minute telecast on a one-year contract basis is to be $54.00 per week. The church in Shacklett, Tennessee, has already sent funds for the initial program. The church in Pegram, Tennessee, has sent a contribution nearly sufficient for the second telecast and has promised $10.00 monthly for one year. Some individuals in Washington, D.C., have promised $25.00 per month for a year. The total monthly cost will be $215.00.

A television audience is a quiet and attentive audience. The opportunity to be seen and heard in these thousands of homes is second only to that of entering those homes personally to discuss religion with these people. Our small number of workers could not enter these homes—so many of them—for years. It is a wonderful opportunity for us—and a wonderful opportunity for you. Won't you help us? And beyond any financial help you may give—pray for us that we shall wisely and fruitfully use this great new open door.

THE CATASTROPHE IN HOLLAND

Answering inquiries from many, we are advised there is no need of clothing for the destitute; there is sore need on the part of the Government and of individuals for money, of course. Brother Harry Payne's fine article detailing important matter of interest reached us just a little too late to appear in this issue; look for it next week. None of the Paynes or their helpers have suffered loss, nor were either the church buildings at Haarlam, or Amsterdam, damaged. Brother Payne reports that their obligations and opportunities have been greatly increased as a result of the great national disaster.—G. H. P. SHOWALTER.

One Way To Show Our Gratitude To God

Let us notice one way we can show our gratitude for God and for his spiritual blessings in Christ. We cannot give God anything directly that would repay him for his gift to us of his only begotten Son. But we can show our appreciation for Christ and the church which Jesus bought with his own precious blood by sharing the blessings with others. We can carry the "good news" of the way of salvation to those who have not yet heard of it.

Last week we saw Paul and Silas begin an evangelistic tour of Asia Minor. Today let us take up this study in the 16th chapter of Acts. I hope you are reading the book of Acts as we study these lessons in it. Paul had a vision and saw a man of Macedonia (the northern section of Greece) standing "beseeching him, and saying, Come over into Macedonia and help us" (Tcts 16:9).

Paul concluded that it was his duty to take ship at Troas and go to Macedonia and preach the wonderful news of Christ to them. He did without delay and found some very sincere women just waiting to obey the gospel.

The lesson for all who are new-born creatures in Christ is that we must share our blessings with others. New Testament Christianity is intensely evangelistic and missionary in its spirit. A Christian who has been baptized into Christ for the remission of his sins (Acts 2:38) cannot afford to be content to go to worship each Lord's day, study his Bible, pray and enjoy the peach of Christ by himself. He must heed Christ's command to "go . . . teach all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I command you" (Matt. 28:19, 20).

That is why churches of Christ in America are constantly seeking to preach simply New Testament Christianity to more and more people in every corner of this land, and to preach the same gospel in Germany, Italy, Japan, Africa, Canada, South America, India, and around the world. The same New Testament that tells us that God loves us and graciously prepared salvation for us through the death of his Son on the cross, tells us that he loves all men. If we want to show our appreciation to God for giving us an abundant life here in Christ and eternal life in heaven, we must sacrifice to share this message with others.

"Come over into Macedonia and help us." This is the cry of millions of sincere people in the world today who are in darkness spiritually and earnestly desire to know God. Men like Otis Gatewood in Germany, and Harry Robert Fox in Japan, and Cline Paden in Italy, tell us of thousands who eagerly study the Bible when they are introduced to it. Through the efforts of Christians in Texas alone, thousands have come in contact with the simple plea for a return to New Testament Christianity with no creed but Christ, no rule of faith but the Bible. Other tens of thousands are waiting to hear the gospel. Will you not trust the Lord Jesus Christ today and confess him before men as the Son of God, repent of your sins, and be buried with your Lord in baptism to rise and walk a new life sacrificing your time and ability and money that little children now in pagan homes may grow up to become Christian men and women. The call still rings out: "Come over and help us."

The Passing of Brother M. O. Daley

Marshall Olla Daley was born February 25, 1869, in Union county, Kentucky. He moved with his parents in 1877 when he was about eight years old, to Florence, Texas, and maintained the old family homestead until about five years ago, which was about seventy years.

He and his wife were baptized during a meeting held in Florence by Brother J. D. Tant in August of 1888. He preached his first sermon in Florence in February of 1891, and afterward preached for the church in Florence for more than twenty years. Following this, he preached for churches in San Antonio; Little Rock, Arkansas; Comanche and Hollis, Oklahoma; Brownfield and Mission, Texas, and the last eight years of his ministry was at Rock Springs, Texas, from which place he retired from regular preaching at the age of seventy-six.

He has held meetings in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, and of course, many in Texas.

He died in San Antonio, Monday evening, November 10, at about 7:30. Survivors include a son, V. F. Daley, Boerne; four daughters, Mrs. R. E. Kirk, El Campo; Mrs. W. M. Blakey, San Antonio; Mrs. Ken Wallace, Monroe, La., and Mrs. L. P. Kleinoeder, Washington, D.C.; two grandsons and two granddaughters and two great granddaughters.

Funeral services were conducted at Florence, Texas, by A. Hugh Clark and G. H. P. Showalter.

The following address was delivered by Brother Daley at the Abilene Christian College Lectureship of 1951, and at the request of the family was read in its entirety to the large crowd assembled for the funeral. It was impressive in its content and solemnity. Brother Daley was one of our greatest gospel preachers, and one of my most devoted personal friends.—G. H. P. SHOWALTER.

MY BODY—ITS VICTORY

Brethren and friends: With genuine appreciation I grasp this opportunity so generously afforded me, to talk heart to heart with you about a matter that grows dearer to me as life's shadows rapidly lengthen. That matter is MY BODY'S VICTORY.

BORN—DIED. Little words are they—just four letters each! Yet, in the vocabularies of men there are none bigger. None bigger, because of the wonderful human possibilities, and the far-reaching consequences they suggest. They represent the "Alpha" and the "Omega" of life—of your life, and mine. They record the beginning and the ending of a series of victories and defeats of which life is made up, beginning with possible victory, and ending with seeming defeat. So closely associated are we with our bodies in all the epochs of life, that, naturally, we attribute to them an all-important part in life's warfare. In so doing, we may have erred at some point—more than likely have. But let us hope the error is pardonable, since we are all guilty! We have a feeling within, that without them, ultimate victory cannot come. The feeling is well-nigh universal, as is also the question: Is it based on fiction, or upon truth?

I love my body. Even though it be a mystery to me, I love it. I saw it grow and develop, as it did day by day, 'til it reached manhood's mountaintop, where it proudly lingered for a time. In sadness, I saw it turn, slowly at first, then with increasing speed, down life's sunny slope. Its growth was a matter of pride, because every gain made less probable the defeats I detested, and gave increased promise of the victories I craved. Its decline, sharpened the desire to turn back the lengthening shadows—if possible. If not that, then, for someone to lift the curtain before me, and let me have just a glimpse into the beyond. What shall I do? Shall I rush in search of the fabled Fountain of Youth, so eagerly sought, but never found, by the countless millions before me? History, both ancient and modern, says Nay. Shall I muster all the reserve forces at my command, set them in battle array, steeled for one mighty and decisive charge, and turn defeat into victory? Something in me says, "Do it." "Bring up the reserves" is on my lips, but the command dies ere it is born, just as it did in all those gone before me. Everywhere I turn, there's a crepe on the door!

But what did they do? Just what you and I are doing. In sheer desperation we repeat the question so often asked by them—"Is there no escape for me?" I've escaped thus far! But where are my co-laborers of yesterday, my boyhood friends and schoolmates, the parents that gave me a being in the world? Where are those who taught and encouraged me, and showed me the road they had traveled, when I was young? A sympathizing poet, with a fellow-feeling, has tried to help, thus—

"Just what we are we cannot tell,
Our time is short on earth to dwell,
A bubble on the wave today,
A shadow soon to pass away.
But where it goes no human knows,
Except in earth must decompose,
And there return to mother dust,
As God, its maker said it must."—(Dennis) —and trailing back, as his voice dies away, comes, "As God, its maker said it must," in whispered sadness. No escape for you—or for me! "Tomorrow," there'll be a new-made mound on the hillside, and some friend or loved one will place a block or stone at its head, and inscribe thereon, "Born—Died"—died, because, "My maker said I must." "In Adam all die." "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men." Back yonder in time's first war, upon grounds of Adam's choosing, the battle was lost, and man's defeat was fated—we must die. Is man's defeat God's defeat, too? If so, the title of this discourse is false—there'll be no victory. And down to defeat I go with every atom of my being rebelling, and crying out: "There'll be another day."

Will there really be another day—another day for me? "Yes" you tell me, "The spirit returns to God who gave it." Is that all? The spirit is only a part of me, and such a victory would be a victory only in part, which would be no victory at all. Nothing in me is satisfied with the answer. Must I go "to dust" depending upon a God who, if he too, accepts the defeat, is as weak as I? Did the God that made me so exhaust himself that he has no power left by which he could overrule the consequences of one sin? If so, what must it be when he is confronted with the sum total of earth's millions? I know that God, himself, inflicted the penalty of sinful man's defeat, and that he is enforcing it with unerring precision. I know that he could have rung down the curtain of finality upon the awful scene by casting sin and everything it had touched, its author, and its children, into Tophet and walled it up, and arched it over, and let it rankle in its own corruption in eternal isolation. But he didn't, and our living presence is the proof. Instead of eternal silence, I hear him say: "So in Christ shall all be made alive," and, "He that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies." And again, "Thy dead men shall live, together with my body shall they arise." Desire buds into hope; and hope sees a star!

Just here, the favored sons of those who scoffed at Paul's Mars Hill mention of the resurrection of the dead, and those whom Paul warns Timothy against—philosophers and scientists, so called, with affected pity, attempt to correct my ignorance by deluging me with theories—and plunging me into deeper despair! From whence came this gloating arrogance of science, that it should with complacency, ravish all the finer instincts of a human being, and rob it of faith? No science is as yet perfect. It is still in its swaddling clothes. It has been the business of one age to modify and improve the science of the past age. The future age will but expose the learned follies of this. Must this old Book, the Bible, hoary with the age of centuries, written by the "finger of God," born at Sinai and completed amid the splendors of the Apocalypse, whose footprints are seen in the crumbling dust of earth's wrecked and ruined greatness, fly the stage before the gorgeous diction of a philosophy, whose foundation is as shifting as the desert sands? One distinguished for his learning has modestly affirmed that, "None of the highest, the essentially spiritual facts of man's knowledge and experience fall within the scope of what is known as scientific proof. Hence, when one demands scientific proof of immortality, it is as if he demanded the linear measurement of a principle, the troy weight of an atom, or the color of an affection."

"The wisdom of this world is foolishness with God," declares Paul in warning against basing faith upon the wisdom of man. The resurrection of the dead being peculiar to Christianity, and having nothing analogous in nature, has been a favorite object of attack by every school of skeptics since its announcement. They denounce it as false because it involves a mystery. And a mystery with them is an absurdity. Yet I know of no class of critics who revel with greater satisfaction in mystery than do they. Is every mystery an absurdity? If so, there is nothing true in Christianity, since about every truth dear to the Christian there clusters some of the mysterious. As the profound technicians they would have us believe they are, they, nevertheless, convict themselves of confounding mystery as to fact, and mystery as to mode—two essentially different things. A thing may be very clear as to fact, yet mysterious as to mode. To the Sadducees Jesus said, "Ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God." Of Agrippa, Paul asked, "Why should you think it an incredible thing that God should raise the dead?" In both passages, the resurrection of the dead is declared to be a fact, but the mode is not mentioned. Then again, a matter may be a profound mystery in one age, and made perfectly plain in another, as is affirmed by Paul of the facts of the gospel.

From Calvary, Christ journeyed to the hades world, and while there, broke the bars of death, and came forth a conqueror, bringing, "Life and immortality to light." But, if through the work of Christ, the soul only is immortalized, then the shout of victory, supposedly from the other shore, is but the swan song of disembodied spirits from the sunless vales of despair. In New Testament times the controversy was about the body, not the spirit. "How are the dead raised up?" is a ready question with those who would delve into the musty past, and join hands with the heathen philosophers of Paul's day, whose mission was to confuse rather than enlighten. They admitted the immortality of the soul, but denied it to the body. Yet, they complained of an inequality of things, saying, "The sun went down at night, and rose again in the morning, but their friends go down into the gloomy darkness of death and rise no more." They saw upon the face of every mysterious providence which swept the earth in bold and living colors, the pencillings of immortality; they felt the truth attested within by instinctive shrinking back from annihilation. Still, the tomb was invested with an eternal darkness, and the body surrendered to a perpetual sleep. With them the night of death was starless. There was no anticipated morning whose auroral splendors would break upon the darkness of the grave, and hang the rainbow of hope over the dust of the dead.

A victory like that would be but a tantalizing phantom. Offer it to the widowed wife as she pillows against a heaving bosom, the lifeless form of a husband just gone, as she vainly tries to coax him into speaking to her "just one more time." That body not be raised? Tell this sordid story to the sister, as she gazes upon the shattered form and obliterated features of a brother beloved, that that form and face will never be restored to happy recognition again. Tell the mother, who baptized her boy with blessings and sent him to war's bloody front, where he fell and was buried, uncoffined, in some unknown grave, with no block, stone, or vine to mark his resting place, that he will never come to her arms again. Tell the bereaved of earth—fathers, mothers, and orphans—that there will be no resurrection of the dead, and a universal shriek will rend the air and crack the vaulted heavens, till God in heaven hears and feels, and angels weep in pity. Such a victory would shatter the dreams, and blast the hopes of earth's sorrowing children, whose weeping would elicit far more sympathy than "Rachael weeping for her children," who refused to be comforted.

Go stand by Bethany's new-made grave of the long ago, and hear the quivering voice of Jesus, which will one day pour its trumpet thunders through the vast carnal house of the dead, and bid its sleepers awake, as he did that day. Hear the shout of joy springing from the sorrowing, bleeding hearts of Martha and Mary as they clasp to their bosoms the sheeted, but now living form of Lazarus. Draw near, and peer over the garden wall, in the early dawn, while the dew drop glistens in the morning light, and hear the shout of gladness, as Mary rushes to clasp in fond embrace the newly risen Lord, and learn a lesson that will remove forever the canker of doubt from the soul, and exact the gloom of despair from a sorrowing heart, and plant instead, the ever-blooming rose of joy. These are both a pledge and a tithe of the "good things God has in store for those who love him."

Again, and again, it is asked, "How are the dead raised?" Let Paul answer: "Who shall change our vile bodies, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things to himself" (Phil. 3). "He that raised up Christ from the dead, shall also quicken your mortal bodies" (Rom. 8). The resurrection of the body is here promised. The combined power of the God-head is pledged to its performance. That power that confounded chaos with order, and laid the foundation deep down on nothing, and sent its towering columns into empty space, crowned with constellations of worlds, propped against the throne of God; that power which carpeted creation's temple with emerald, roofed it with azure, and lighted it with ten thousand suns; that power which drives the planets along their orbits, and hurls the erratic comet to kindle its fires on the dark altars of night where suns never shine; that power which shakes the earth, shivers its granite, ruptures its strata, overturning mountains and upheaving its valleys—that power is pledged to raise me from the dead. Can it do it?

Ah! my friends, the key to the grave is in high and powerful hands. Yet, you tell me of powers great and terrible, other than these just mentioned! Are you doubting still? See the triumphant son of Mary standing in the dazzling splendor of day's new-born light, holding aloft the "keys of death," and hear him proclaimed, "The first fruits of them that sleep." It's God's pledge to a trembling world that victory will come. Suspense is ended. Christ has conquered, and the battle is won. Victory over all that was lost. It is not a you-take-the-body-and-I'll-take-the-spirit compromise. It is victory. Do not tell me I am wrong in this. You talk about wonderful power! You may tell me of a power that can still the raging storm and soothe out the rolling billows of an angry sea. You may tell me of a power that can reach out and pluck the stars from their withering vaults of night, and I'm an interested listener. But I grow weary when you tell me that that victory, for which all sigh, is complete while my body lies mouldering in a grave lost to man and forgotten of God.

God's pledged power will one day be exercised. The last day will come. The sun will refuse to shine, and the stars will hide their faces. The moon will roll up to heaven turned to blood, and hang her crimson livery upon the wings of night. The earth will reel as doth a drunken man, and mountains of woe will lodge upon her heart, the trump of God shall sound. Old Time, the father of centuries, and the tomb builder of generations, will drop his scythe and break his glass, careen and fall, a giant in ruins. The dingy king will drop his scepter in ringing fragments on the damp pavements of the grave. The antiquated dead will start into life from their ashy urns and funeral pyres. Pyramids of granite and crypts of marble will be rent in twain to let the rising bodies come. Mummies will fling off the trappings of centuries and pour from their vaulted chambers. Inquisitions will rock upon their foundations, while the dead stream from their dungeons. Wanderers will shake off their winding sheets of sand and rise from the desert, while Old Ocean will heave and swell with its teeming millions.

Our village churchyards and family burial grounds will be deserted. Leveled and long forgotten graves will be opened. Abraham will shake off the dust of Machpelah and rise with Sarah by his side. Patriarchs, prophets, Jews and Gentiles, saints and sinners, bond and free, rich and poor, fathers, mothers, children, all—all from Adam down will come forth. God's pledge has been redeemed. And all the saved, all around the world all together will hail this: redemption's grand consummation, with one proud anthem, whose choral thunders rolling along the paths of space, will shake the universe with its bursting chorus—"O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" Victory! My body has risen! Victorious body of mine! Hallelujah, we shall rise.

A. W. Chism, 415 Highland Park, Lebanon, Tennessee, January 30: We are thankful again to report eight additions to the Highland congregation during the month of January, four baptized and four identified. Also an increase beyond expectation in attendance and contribution. The work here is pleasant and most rewarding, and we shall not stand idle until every person in this city knows that we are interested in them, and that we care for their souls.

Oscar Smith, Sr., 6447 Pinehurst Drive, Houston 3, Texas, January 30: We moved into our new church building in Oak Forest in November, and since that time our Bible school attendance has grown, and our crowds are much larger than they were. The new church building is located at 1333 Old Wakefield Road, and is near the Oak Forest addition. We are anxious for our friends in Oak Forest to visit us. About ten have taken membership with us recently.

Joseph Sherman, 709 East Third Street, Kinsley, Kansas, January 19: I preached January 4 at El Monte, California, and baptized one there that day. I also preached in South Tucson, Arizona on the trip. I broadcast from station KVGB, Great Bend. The broadcast began more than two years ago, and is now sponsored by the Kinsley congregation. A number of congregations and individual Christians, have made this program possible, Saturdays, 8:15-8:30 A.M. 1590 kcs. KVGB. The work here is pleasant.

Horace N. Mann, Hohenwald, Tennessee, Route 1: I preached among the small congregations in 1952, as follows: Rush, Seiber Chapel, Little Swan, Branch and Riverside, in Lewis County; Topsy, Mt. Hope and Morrow Valley, in Wayne County, Tennessee; one service with Old Salem, Franklin County, Tennessee, near Beanscreek, Tennessee. Younger preachers hold meetings for these places each year with some additions to the church. Most all are small congregations.

Sister U. G. Wilkinson, Box 192, Comanche, Oklahoma, January 26: Lord's day was a great day with the church here. Brother Allison preached a wonderful sermon on "Unity." It is great when we can have Bible unity. At 2:30 in the afternoon, the monthly Stephens County church of Christ singing met here. We had wonderful singing. Singers from different places had an opportunity to lead. Our new church is large and was well filled. Brother Allison is doing great work. Love to the Firm Foundation.

Wilburn Whittington, Mt. Pleasant, Texas, January 19: We had a fine day at the North Jefferson congregation yesterday, despite much illness. Three adults obeyed the gospel in the evening services. This makes a total of nineteen additions since I moved here the first of last June. Conditions here in the church are improving steadily and the work is pleasant and encouraging. Listen in on our Sunday morning radio program at 8 o'clock, 960 on your dial. Bill Thompson of Lufkin will be with us in our spring meeting April 20-29.

H. L. Matheny, Goldsmith, Texas, January 19: We moved here the first week in January, 1953. The church here is very strong and active. They have much work planned for this year. We are happy to be here and work with these good people. One man obeyed the gospel last Sunday evening.

Lynn Cook, Third and Bennett Streets, Booneville, Arkansas, January 19: Beginning the first of March I will begin work with the church in Harrisburg, Illinois. The church in Booneville is one of the best in the state in many respects. Perfect unity, excellent elders and working members. In the past year better than thirty-five have answered the invitation. They will need a preacher to take my place. If anyone is interested you may contact Brother L. R. Johnston (Elder).

Harold Truex, P. O. Box 183, Piggott, Arkansas, February 2: I baptized two young ladies not long ago. In September, 1952 I led singing for my father, Milton E. Truex, in a meeting. I have completed one year of college work at Freed-Hardeman College. I have also completed one half year of college work at Harding College at Searcy, Arkansas. When school is out in June of this year, I would like to hold some meetings or I would consider working with some congregation until school starts in the fall. I have been preaching about five years.

A. H. Bryant, 1445 Nogales, Del Paso Heights, California, January 31: Wednesday evening, at our mid-week Bible study, two, husband and wife, were baptized. These were very fine young folks and have a promising future. A week ago on Lord's day another husband and wife recently from Tahlequah, Oklahoma, made a confession of wrongs and asked for membership with us. Plans for a new auditorium here are finding much favor and we are hopeful will soon be well underway. We are happy in our work with these fine Christians on the West coast.

John W. Hedge, Jacksonville, Texas, January 28: To the many churches of Christ which have patronized S-K Fixtures and Church Furniture Company, in their purchase of their church furniture through my solicitation, I want to say Thank You, and to Brother Showalter, who carries the ad for this fine reputable company, regularly in the Firm Foundation, we want to say Thank You for helping us to make ourselves known to the brotherhood in this way. Our increasing sales of church furniture to the churches of Christ, as well as to other religious groups, is the evidence of the material and workmanship which goes into our products.

George T. Jones, 2401 Pease Street, Vernon, Texas, February 4: The Houston and Pease church is sending a preacher to Opelousas, Louisiana. Bill Crews of Lake Charles, Louisiana will move there March 15, fully supported by this church. He will be the second preacher in Louisiana supported by this church. J. R. Colvin is in his second year at Ringgold, Louisiana, and doing an excellent work. Opelousas is a city of 25,000. The congregation there is a little over a year old and composed of about twenty-five members, mostly women. Since the presentation of a budget, our contributions here have increased about forty per cent. Our enlarged program includes a daily radio program over our local station. Lately, there have been three additions by restoration and membership. Horace W. Busby will be here in a meeting February 15-22.

Clifford S. Owens, 309-Tamworth, Drive, Nashville, Tennessee, January 28: Last week I was called to the home of my paternal grandfather where he made the good confession and was baptized into Christ. He is 84 years old and now seriously ill. Pray for him.

Clifton Trimble, 108 West Pawley Road, Oak Ridge, Tenn., February 3: On January 28, 1953, I completed 13 months of work with the Joseph Avenue congregation in Nashville. During 1952 there were sixty-two responses to the invitation. A new record of 288 was set in Bible Study. During January, 1953, three were restored and one placed membership. Brother Paul C. Mills, Jr., will succeed me at Joseph Avenue. On February 1, I began work with the New York Avenue congregation in Oak Ridge, Tennessee. The prospects for future growth here are good. Please visit us when passing through.

J. P. Thornton, 700 Allison Avenue, Canon City, Colorado, February 3: We had 30 responses in the local work during 1952. Of this number twelve were baptized, five restored, and thirteen identified. Eight have been baptized thus far this year. The outlook for the work is encouraging. The elders would like to have correspondence with faithful gospel preachers who plan to pass through Canon City this year and would be willing to speak on a Lord's Day or a Wednesday evening. Tourists will find a friendly welcome and simple New Testament worship near the Royal Gorge. The church meets at 320 N. 5th Street.

Max T. Neel, 2700 Pine Avenue, January 27: We had another good day here at Herring Avenue last Lord's day, with four being restored. Sickness has about subsided, and we look forward to renewed interest. The Parent-Teacher Training Course sponsored by most of the churches in Waco, got under way last night in a splendid manner. Brother Wilburn C. Hill of Wichita, Kansas, is the director. There were as many as ten different towns represented substantially, the very first service. The Lord willing, I am to be with the church in Ennis, March 23-29 inclusive, in a gospel meeting. Pray for us!

P. D. Wilmeth, 808 Hamvas Lane, Tyler, Texas, January 31: Two placed membership and one was baptized last Lord's Day. Our budget was presented to the congregation and a fine spirit prevails. 1953 bids fair to be a great year. My first meeting is at Henderson, Texas March 23rd. April 19th-26th will find me at Magnolia, Arkansas, and May 4th-10th at Hearne. Our Spring Lectureship is scheduled for March 8-13. A program will appear elsewhere in the Firm Foundation. Brother Antonio Ochoa will speak here on Sunday afternoon February 15th at 3 o'clock. We anticipate a full house.

A. H. Bryant, 1445 Nogales, Del Paso Heights, California: We are happy to report some favorable progress being made in the church here in Del Paso Heights. Three adults made a confession of wrongs yesterday stating a neglect of duty for their action. A number of new congregations have had their beginning on the West Coast recently. There remains a great lot of work to be done, but the church of Christ in this area is definitely on a move forward. Meetings are being conducted in several congregations near here, by visiting preachers now. Let us go forward with more courage and determination. Souls must be garnered for the master.

HINES-TOTTY DEBATES

J. Lee Hines

Paden City, West Virginia, February 5 and 6.

Garfield Heights church house, Indianapolis, Indiana, March 12th and 13th.

Subject: Institutionalism. I affirm at Paden City and Brother Totty at Indianapolis.

J. Emmett Wainwright, 1330 South Third Street, Las Vegas, Nevada, January 31: One baptism on the sixth Lord's day with this fine group, largest audience since the ministry of Brother B. L. Bedwell more than a year ago. He will be speaking during February. I will be assisting two fine groups, Oldale and Exeter in the San Joaquin Valley of California. The trustees have the property in Las Vegas in excellent condition according to authorities at the abstract office, the court house, and bank. The congregation authorized them to enlarge the building by doubling capacity of auditorium, making special preparation for mothers and babies, and a two-story annex providing class rooms on the ground floor and living quarters upstairs. I have postponed my planned work for British Isles and will return to Las Vegas March 1st to assist the excellent servants of the Lord extend the work of righteousness according to the New Testament pattern. Brother V. M. (Bud) Watson of San Diego pioneered here; he is encouraging us in every possible manner.

Orlan Miller, 302 S. Denver Street, Jackson 9, Mississippi, January 30: January 7th brought to a close my labors with the Robinson and Faulkner church, Conway, Arkansas. In the closing days of the work there, six were baptized into the kingdom. It was a pleasure to labor for the congregation in the town where I was born and to work among "home folks." Conway is in position to do much for the Lord in that community in the years to come. I trust that they will. On January 18th, I began work with the West Capitol congregation in Jackson, at which time there were two baptisms and one to place membership. The brethren here have an aggressive program of work outlined for 1953; we are anticipating a good work among them.

David O. Sprague, 401 N. 6th, Lawton, Oklahoma, February 4: Last week I received news that my application to the Chaplaincy in the Army has been accepted and that I am to report to active duty beginning February 8, 1953. About March 20, I shall (Lord willing) be located at Camp Polk, Louisiana. It is my wish that those who have loved ones or know of friends that are members of the church of Christ Jesus and are stationed at Camp Polk, would write to me their names that I might contact them. Otherwise, I may not be able to contact all whom I should. At this time, mail should be addressed to 401 N. 6th, Lawton, Oklahoma. It is my desire to thank all brethren for the confidence you may have in me and I pray earnestly that I may fulfill this confidence in a good ministry for Christ and in help to brethren in the Armed Forces.

A. R. Holton, 145 Fifth Avenue, North Nashville-3, Tennessee, February 4: We are glad to announce to the brotherhood that Bill Davis of Dallas, Texas will be the song leader at the camp meeting and that he will teach a course on Hymn Appreciation. He will also be able to give valuable help to song leaders. We would like to hear from young men over the nation who would like to prepare for song leading under one of the best in the nation. Let us hear from you if you can arrange your time to be with us for an intensive study at Blue Ridge. There will also be Bible Classes. There will be classes in Teacher Training for teachers of all ages and groups. There will be an opportunity to learn of the great open doors of the church in North and South Carolina. Brethren who are preaching in these two states will give us first-hand information about the needs and opportunities in these two states. Reservations for the Blue Ridge, North Carolina, Camp Meeting, July 18-24, are being accepted now.

D. D. Woody, 127 Oakwood Dr., Baton Rouge 9, Louisiana, January 30: Interest in the Lord's work in Baton Rouge is growing. New faces are seen in our audiences most every Sunday. People are coming to see and hear for themselves. Our local radio broadcast on Sunday morning at eight-thirty and the Herald of Truth on Sunday afternoon at one o'clock are getting our message to the people. During the eight days, January 18-25, five were added to our membership, three by baptism and two by transfer. The church is working and growing.

Theron N. Bohannon, 6429 Orion Avenue, Van Nuys, California, January 31: The Lord's work has now passed its third anniversary in this locality. We have, during this time, been meeting in the rented Women's Club building of the community. In spite of obstacles that were thrown in the path of ever marching truth we have grown tremendously. These human obstacles have been hurtled and from a small group of faithful Christians of about thirty we have grown to about one hundred and twenty-five or thirty since August, 1951. Under the plain and powerful preaching of the gospel by Brother Robert E. Byrd we have witnessed many baptisms and restorations. The congregation has appointed elders and next week, the Lord willing, will see us pouring concrete in the foundations of our new church building. Our new building will have a legal seating capacity in the auditorium of two hundred and fifty-two persons, plus six class rooms. Much of the labor on the building is being donated by the brethren of the congregation and the interest and good feeling is running high on the part of all. The Lord has been so very good to us all and to him be all the glory.

Jesse Lewis, 306 Southeast Monroe, Idabel, Oklahoma, Phone 182R: Having finished two of the most fruitful years of my ministry, I feel that it is time to move on. I am leaving one of the best churches it has been my pleasure to work with. Since coming here we have baptized about thirty, appointed elders and deacons and built a new brick building with a seating capacity of 340. Any church interested in my services may write or call me here. Any preacher desiring a change would certainly be wise to contact the elders here. The right man can do a real work here.

W. Dale Pearson, Grand and Palm, Ponca City, Oklahoma, February 4: Last Lord's Day, February 1, was my first day with the fine brethren here at Ponca City, Oklahoma. The services were most enjoyable and impressive. The church here has a nice new building with adequate classroom space for the teaching program, a fine group of elders with ability and vision to carry on a good program of work. I succeed M. W. Chaffin. Brother Chaffin has done a good work, and is well thought of among the brethren. We are anticipating a very pleasant work. We left Amarillo with many regrets, for we had never had a more enjoyable work than this. The Pleasant Valley congregation is a good one filled with fine people. Brother Paul Lusby is following me there. He is a good preacher and will help them much. Our association with the other preachers, Curtis Camp, Russell Ingalls, Hoyt Houchen, Arthur Golden, Jack Mackey, and D. Glover (colored), was enjoyed to the fullest. The seven congregations of the Lord's church in Amarillo are strong, loyal churches. Their elders are good men. The work there has a very bright future. I shall always remember my brethren there. Address all future mailing in care of the church, Grand and Palm, Ponca City, Oklahoma.

Walter Nichols, 709 Adams Street, Portsmouth, Ohio, January 20: I concluded two years work with the Grant and Summit Street church here November 16. Since that time I have been selected by the churches in this area to do full time mission work in the vicinity of the Atomic Energy Plant. The Plant site is sixteen miles north of Portsmouth, but our work will take place in a part of four counties. We want to begin a Bible study class in Piketon and Waverly, just as soon as we can find a place to meet. The churches in this area can see a wonderful opportunity with thirty thousand workers moving into this section, therefore, they are supporting me to work full time in that vicinity. We are interested in the souls of those moving into this section and we want to help them. Therefore, if you have relatives or friends moving here, please contact me at the above address, or phone me at Portsmouth, 4-0734. I closed a good meeting at Crum, West Virginia, January 14. The interest and attendance were good throughout the meeting. Brother W. G. Corns has done a fine work there, and it was a pleasure to work with him through the meeting.

A. Chester Grimes, 1548 Heights Boulevard, Houston, Texas: Thirteen have been added to the Heights congregation in the past five weeks of the new year. Two were baptized last Sunday and four by membership. Our Bible School attendance for the new year has averaged 325 per Sunday, with an all-time high of 344 on the 11th of January. Our balcony was used for the first time in regular services last Sunday. Next Sunday marks the beginning of my fourth year with this splendid congregation. Brother Anthony Emmons, of Sheffield, Alabama, will be with us in a meeting the first two Sundays in March. Brother Emmons once labored with this congregation and is loved and admired by all its members.

Bill Kinney, Box 252, Forsan, Texas, January 19: This is to report to the Firm Foundation that as of February 2, 1953, my work with the church here in Forsan, Texas, will be terminated. Our work has been pleasant; ties have been made that are precious, encouraging, and lasting. But we leave, feeling also that our new work will be challenging and profitable in the Lord. I next begin laboring with the church in Itasca, Texas. We trust that we may combine our efforts with those of the saints there, with the result that all may glorify the Master. May we ever pray that his will be done. We welcome you to visit with us and with the church in Itasca when you come our way. My mailing address will be: Box 295, Itasca, Texas. At the present time no definite arrangements have been made with another to come for the work. Inquiries should be addressed to one of the following elders: O. W. Fletcher, Sterling City Route, Big Spring, Texas; V. L. Bennett, Box 184, Forsan, Texas; Erda Lewis, Sterling City Route, Big Spring, Texas. P. S. One lady was baptized at services last evening. This unites the family in Christ Jesus.

CONFESSION AND RESTORATION OF FELLOWSHIP

Speaking in behalf of the San Pablo congregation—we, the elders, confess that in regard to our difficulties with the Richmond church we have sinned against God and the Richmond church. We therefore repent and ask God and the Richmond church to forgive us.

We, the elders of the Richmond church, confess that we have sinned in the handling of the trouble between the two groups of Christians, San Pablo and Richmond. We repent and ask the forgiveness of God as well as the forgiveness of Christians everywhere.

We are happy to announce that all disagreements between the congregations of the church, San Pablo and Richmond, California, have been settled. Both sides have confessed their sins one to the other; and satisfactory agreement has been reached, and fellowship has been established between the two groups.

We, the undersigned elders of the congregations, San Pablo and Richmond, California, agree to the above statements.

Mack Lyon, 501 West 16th, Ada, Oklahoma, January 29: Sunday, February 1, will mark the beginning of our second year with the Southwest Church in Ada. During our first year there were sixty-one responses to the Lord's Invitation. Twenty-eight of these were baptized, twelve restored and twenty-one placed membership here. Attendance and contributions have greatly increased and we anticipate a profitable year ahead of us. When you are in this area, worship with us.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

The Church of Christ at 4th & K Streets, Grants Pass, Oregon is happy to recommend Brother Charles Degenhart, Jr. as a sound gospel preacher. He and his good wife have labored with us since June 1, 1952. He is leaving us to labor elsewhere because of our inability to adequately support them. They both live the gospel he preaches. Since beginning with us, we have had nine responses to the gospel invitation.

If some strong congregation would help support a man here, we can furnish house, utilities and $16.00 per week. Any preacher interested, write Brother H. A. Beltz, Rt. 2, Box 677, Grants Pass, Oregon. Please give references.

Dean Rhodes, Box 344, Eden, Texas, January 19: Attendance and contribution has increased some here, but not as much as the zealous ones would like. A man and his wife gladly received the word and were baptized here yesterday. They begin with much zeal which we pray will continue. If so many did not lose the "zeal of their first love," there would be no limit to the growth of the church. Visit us, you will find a welcome here.

Ebb Randol, West First and Avenue F, Muleshoe, Texas: I appreciated so very much your letter addressed to the preachers of the gospel. It is words of encouragement like these that makes life worth living. I want to express to you my personal appreciation for the work that you have done and are doing. I have been reading the Firm Foundation ever since I have been old enough to read, which dates back to the early days of this century. May God's blessings continue to be upon you.

Joe H. Morris, 2707 Ky Avenue, Paducah, Kentucky, February 2: Attendance continues to grow at every service. One baptized and three by transfer of membership at Clements Street yesterday.

Fred Peeler, Lampasas, Texas, January 13: I wish to report the cause of Christ, located at Copperas Cove, Texas. This town is located between Lampasas and Temple, in the edge of the large Fort Hood Army Camp. The camp covers about 200,000 acres and has over 6,000 Army buildings, also joins the Gray Air Base. Many thousand boys are here from all over the United States. The church at Copperas Cove is composed of some 35 members, but others are moving into Copperas Cove and are helping with the church. The church at this time is trying to build and have started a nice small building, will seat some 150 people. But the members need $2,000 to help complete the work—If strong churches will send $5.00 to $10.00 or more if able it will help the local members to complete the building and strengthen the cause very much. My wife and I met with the church January 4. Brother and Sister R. L. McPherson went with us. They have been living in Houston and were members of the church at Lawndale Ave. He has a grocery store here now. Mr. and Mrs. Karah L. Hutton and children from the Arlington Heights church of Christ have just moved to Copperas Cove from Fort Worth. We also found Brother and Sister L. G. Pole there. He is teaching Bible for the church. His home is Sinton, Texas. A young Brother Curtis Hayes is preaching for the church. Anyone able and willing to help in this work can send their donations to the following men members, who have charge of the Building Funds: M. A. Hooten, L. A. Whitt, and James Hall. We are all backing this work.

H. McDonald, Rising Star, Texas, January 12: The church here has enjoyed a very good year in 1952. Due to the work of the Elders, who are God-fearing men, and who move cautiously endeavoring to keep peace and harmony, yet looking ahead and using all means to the upbuilding of the kingdom, and to glorify God, the church has been able to grow. There have been several improvements to the building, and to the lots. We have enjoyed a continual growth in Bible study attendance. Our Ladies' class has a 31 average per meeting for the year. There have been twenty-three baptized, seven restored and five by membership. We have had three successful meetings by Brother Mack Kercheville, Brother O. M. Reynolds, Brother A. F. Waller. Even though we have lost several families due to the drouth, we have gained in many ways over 1951. Our contribution was $1,141.67 or an average of $96.00 per month more than 1951. We have had two added this month, and one to confess faults. Our program for 1953—besides our home work is $50.00 per month to the support of Brother Varela in Mexico, $30.00 to Orphan homes, and $10.00 to The Herald of Truth. "All praise and glory to God." When passing our way worship with us.

THE OTHELLO LECTURESHIP

Chester L. Hewitt

Beginning December 25, 1952, the congregation at Othello, Washington, held a three day Lectureship, which was well attended. Twelve speeches on the general theme of attitudes were given and well received. Fourteen preachers were present at some time during the Lectureship and delivered some fine speeches. They were Omar Bixler, Moses Lake, Washington; H. W. Prior, Spokane, Washington; Morris May, Sunnyside, Washington; Hal Hougey, Omak, Washington; Seth E. Rehkop, Wenatchee, Washington; J. C. Bunn, Port Orchard, Washington; Charles Andrews, Vancouver, Washington; J. O. Golphenece, Wenatchee, Washington; Kenneth Shrabie, Moses Lake, Washington; Virgil W. Jackson, Moses Lake, Washington; Fred A. Talley, Kingman, Arizona; Durwood Biggerstaff, Coeur D'Alene, Idaho; Sam May, Othello, Washington; and Chester L. Hewitt, Othello, Washington. Members from several other congregations were in attendance. We feel much good was done. Plans were started to make this a yearly lectureship.

In connection with the Lectureship, a week's meeting was held. The preaching was done in a fine way by Durwood Biggerstaff of Coeur D'Alene, Idaho. Several non-members were in attendance and seemed to appreciate the good lessons.

James D. Willeford, 48 South Marquette, Madison 4, Wisconsin, February 2: I have just received word from Sister Virgil Wartick of Amberg, Wisconsin that a good high school teacher-preacher is needed in her town. This would be a wonderful opportunity for a strong Christian man to earn his living and help up a promising congregation. The Amberg congregation is about ready to buy a nice church building and this will increase the possibilities for growth. Several people are interested in obeying the gospel, but the church must have a good leader if it is to make progress. If any man is interested he should write Sister Wartick, Amberg, Wisconsin.

James Baird

At the present time Brother Darling is making an effort to raise his own support in order to begin work with the church in Coffeyville, Kansas. The letter below reflects the belief of the Hale Center congregation in Brother Darling's ability to do a needed work in a needy field.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Instrumental Music

Since the church of Christ has a nation-wide radio program there is a revival of certain issues in our distinctive plea. People now want to know about some things the church of Christ teaches. There was a period of very little inquiry concerning our position respecting instrumental music in the worship, but again there are many people asking why we do not use instrumental music in church services. They are not asking this for the sake of controversy, but because they want to know the truth. Many who are listening to "The Herald of Truth" program are honestly seeking for the true way. Using instruments of music is such a popular practice among the denominations that many who are not informed on the subject have come to think that we have a valid reason for not using it, and they want to know what it is.

The church of Christ is not made up of a group of members who do not like to hear instrumental music. Many who are members of the church are professional musicians. This subject has been an issue of controversy, for centuries, not only in the church of Christ, but in nearly all the denominations. The Greek Catholic church does not use instrumental music in its worship. Orthodox Jewish Synagogues do not use it. One branch of the Presbyterian church does not use it. If you ask a well informed Roman Catholic on what ground they justify the use of instrumental music in the worship, he will tell you it was made valid by an edict of the pope. He will not claim that there is New Testament authority for it. In the Roman church the pope has the right to change the laws of God or to make new laws. If their claims for his infallibility and his relationship to God are correct, he does have the right to change laws or make laws.

The majority of people, including the preachers of denominations, are not informed on this subject. They try to find authority for this practice in the New Testament when it is not there. Then some people think that a religious practice is not wrong, unless it is specifically condemned in the Bible. Instead of this, any religious practice that has no authority in the New Testament is a sin.

Excess Weight

A fat man cannot reduce his weight by reading books on the subject. I have seen people who were trying to reduce their weight, but kept on eating foods the doctor had forbidden. If one is to reduce, he must abstain from foods that make him fat. Some people try to be Christians by continuing in sin. Paul says, "What shall we say then, shall we continue in sin that grace may abound? God forbid" (Rom. 6:1). Evidently some of the Romans thought they could not be saved by grace if they quit their sins. Some people now try to be Christians by repenting of some of their sins, not all of them. If a man does not repent of all his sins, he does not repent.

Paul told the Hebrews to "lay aside every weight." Those who ran in races kept weights on their feet while they were training. It would be impossible for them to win the race if they kept the weights on the race course. So they took them off before the race started. Many Christians fail in the race of life because they carry weights. They do not lay aside all sin when they start in the divine life. Because they do not give up the things that hold them back, they fail in the race. Christians should search their hearts for lurking evils that retard their progress in the Christian life.

Confessing and Following Christ

Hoyt Bailey

Coming into the coasts of Caesarea Philippi, Jesus "asked his disciples, saying, whom do men say that I the Son of man am? And they said, some say that thou art John the Baptist: some, Elias; and others, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets" (Mt. 16:13-14). It should be observed in this connection that Jesus was not pleased with their explanation of who he is. Inasmuch as Jesus is not John the Baptist, Elias, Jeremiah or some of the other prophets, he was not satisfied with their answer. But modern religious thinking would approve all their mis-judgment of who Jesus is. For present day teaching is that one belief is as good as another belief, that one faith is as good as another faith, that believing one church to be right is as good as believing that another church is the right church, and modern day thinking is that one has a right to his own choice. Jesus Christ, the Son of God, would not permit such thinking to go un-challenged while he was upon the earth. Christ did not approve the answer, or explanation of who he is. "He saith unto them, but who say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said, thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God" (Mt. 16:15-16). Jesus Christ did not accept anything less than the confession that he is the Son of God. Who has the right to declare that there is nothing in a name? Had there been nothing in a name during the days of Jesus' personal ministry, why didn't Christ accept either of the names suggested for him by the various individuals? Why didn't he go along with the idea that anything and any name is agreeable in the realm of religion? Did Christ approve the idea that he should be thought of as John the Baptist, or Elijah, or Jeremiah, or one of the other prophets? Do you find in the text indication of Jesus wishing to be called by any name and thought of as wearing different names?

Jesus demands a confession of him as God's Son. He says: "Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father who is in heaven. But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father who is in heaven" (Mt. 10:32-33). The apostle Paul said: "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved" (Rom. 10:9). These and many other passages emphasize that Christ must be confessed by individuals upon this earth if those individuals expect to be confessed by Christ in heaven. For one to confess some human creed, to confess some ordinance, or some method of accomplishing things, or to confess a certain form of church government is not confessing Jesus Christ. When the life of the apostle Peter was hanging in the balance, he said to the court assembled: "If we this day be examined of the good deed done to this impotent man, by what means he is made whole; Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you whole. This is the stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner. Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:9-12).

When Jesus sought to teach his followers concerning the bread of life, "From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him. Then said Jesus unto the twelve, will ye also go away? Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life. And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God" (Jn. 6:66-69). It was after Peter confessed, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God" that "Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father who is in heaven. And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it" (Mt. 16:17-18). Jesus Christ nowhere commanded Peter to get a group of people to cast a vote either in favor or against him respecting the confession that he had made.

Confessing Christ one confesses him who exercised power over nature, power over disease, power over demons, and power over death. He confesses him who has all authority in heaven and earth. For "he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes" (Mt. 7:29). After his resurrection, "Jesus came and spake unto his disciples, saying, all authority is given unto me in heaven and in earth" (Mt. 28:18). The one who confesses Jesus Christ confesses the head of the New Testament church. It is Jesus Christ who said: "I will build my church" (Mt. 16:18). God "gave Christ to be head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all" (Eph. 1:22-23). The one confessing Jesus Christ as God's Son confesses the Savior of the soul. The angel said: "Thou shalt call his name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins" (Mt. 1:21). Confessing the Saviour of men one also confesses the Saviour of the church. "Christ is the head of the church: and he is the Saviour of the body" (Eph. 5:23). Confessing Jesus Christ as God's Son means confessing him as the foundation of the church. "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ" (1 Cor. 3:11). The person confessing Christ confesses the one builder of the church. Christ said: "I will build my church" (Mt. 16:18). Individuals confess the author and finisher of their faith in confessing Jesus Christ (Heb. 12:2). It is confess Christ willingly or be forced to confess him at the judgment. "Wherefore also God highly exalted him, and gave unto him the name which is above every name; that in the name of Jesus every knee should bow . . . and every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father" (Phil. 2:9-11). Again in Rom. 14:11 "As I live, saith the Lord, to me every knee shall bow, and every tongue shall confess to God."

Acceptable confession of Jesus Christ must be coupled with obedience to him. The eunuch not only confessed Christ with the mouth, but he obeyed him in baptism. One truly confesses Christ by obeying him. For Christ is the author of eternal salvation unto all who obey him (Heb. 5:9).

Those confessing and following Christ during the first century of Christianity entered the church or were added to the church by obeying Christ. After the sermon preached in the name of Christ by Peter, the hearers "were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, men and brethren, what shall we do? Then Peter said unto them, repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins . . . Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls . . . And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved" (Acts 2:37-47).

The apostle Peter misunderstood the sacrifices included in following after Christ. When "Jesus began to shew unto his disciples, how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day. Then Peter took him, and began to rebuke him, saying, Be it far from thee, Lord: this shall not be unto thee. But he turned and said unto Peter, Get thee behind me, Satan: thou art an offence unto me: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men" (Mt. 16:21-23). It is of interest to note that an apostle made a serious mistake here. The Lord authorized such be put in the background. Christ said to Peter, "Get thee behind me, Satan: thou art an offence unto me." Peter had just confessed that Jesus Christ is the Son of the living God, and Christ pronounced a blessing upon that confession. This incident here should be such as to remind followers of Christ that there is a serious danger of falling from one's steadfastness in Christ Jesus. The apostle Paul warned: "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall" (1 Cor. 10:12). The Simon who bewitched the people of Samaria heard the preaching of the evangelist Philip. "Then Simon himself believed also: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and signs which were done" (Acts 8:13). Surely Simon became a Christian if anyone in Samaria did. The Bible plainly says that he "believed also: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip." Men who believe the doctrine of eternal security, once in grace always in grace, or once saved always saved cannot harmonize their belief with New Testament teaching. Simon desired to obtain the power of imparting the Holy Spirit through the laying on of hands, but such a thought was a wicked thought. The apostle said: "Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee. For I perceive that thou art in the gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity. Then answered Simon, and said, Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of these things which ye have spoken come upon me" (Acts 8:22-24). This man had an evil thought after he was baptized. His evil or wicked thought needed to be forgiven, or the punishment was to come upon him. This man was not commanded to be baptized anew or baptized a second time in order to obtain forgiveness because he had been baptized before this occurred. He was to repent and pray for forgiveness. Every erring child of God is taught to repent and pray for the forgiveness of his mistakes along the way of life (Jas. 5:16).

It is Jesus who says: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me" (Mt. 16:24). In confessing and following Christ, we are taught "Be ye all likeminded, compassionate, loving as brethren, tender-hearted, humble-minded: not rendering evil for evil, or reviling for reviling; but contrariwise blessing; for hereunto were ye called, that ye should inherit a blessing. For he that would love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no guile: And let him turn away from evil, and do good; Let him seek peace, and pursue it. For the eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous, and his ears unto their supplication: But the face of the Lord is upon them that do evil" (1 Pet. 3:8-12).

The apostle asked, "For what glory is it, if when ye sin, and are buffeted for it, ye shall take it patiently? but if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye shall take it patiently, this is acceptable with God. For hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for you leaving you an example, that ye should follow his steps: who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth" (1 Pet. 2:20-22). This passage affirms that one is not to glory in being buffeted for sin. It shows that suffering for wrong doing or for sinning is of no value in the sight of God. The passage goes on to say, "But if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye shall take it patiently, this is acceptable with God." Following Christ in living a Christ like life is the thing that pleases God. Christ lived in such a way as to be pleasing unto to God and by so doing left us an example, "that we should follow his steps." Everyone seeking to follow Christ should keep in mind that "Christ did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth."

Paul said to Titus: "But speak thou the things which become sound doctrine: That the aged men be sober, grave, temperate, sound in faith, in charity, in patience. The aged women likewise, that they be in behaviour as becometh holiness, not false accusers, not given to much wine, teachers of good things; that they may teach the young women to be sober, to love their husbands, to love their children, to be discreet, chaste, keepers at home, good obedient to their own husbands, and young men are in all things to shew themselves a pattern of good works" (Titus 2:1-8).

News From Holland

Men Against the Sea

A terrible catastrophe of which you have all heard has shaken the Netherlands. Heartbreakingly, the story of the magnificent struggle of the Dutch people against the sea is not always a story of victory. Sometimes the sea gets the upper hand, and when it does, the story that follows is always one of untold sorrow.

Tragedy in the Province Zeeland

In the province Zeeland (made up of a number of small islands in Southwest Holland in the vicinity of Rotterdam), many people went to their beds on Saturday night, January 31, never to rise again. A wind that had begun softly to sway the tree tops on the previous Tuesday, gradually increased in might until by Saturday night it had reached its peak, a hurricane force. Most of the little islands with their scores of villages and many thousands of people were protected by three dikes. These dikes were trustingly named by the Hollanders, "Wakker" (meaning awake). This dike stood against the sea as first protection; the second they named "Dromer" (meaning dreamer). This was in case the first dike should break; the third, as sure protection, was named "Slaper" (sleeper). The safety of the people depended upon those three dikes, the Watcher, the Dreamer, and the Sleeper.

But that night what was considered as a "one-in-a-million" chance happened. Just as the North Sea moved into what the Hollanders call the "Springtij" (spring flood stage), the water, already lying high against the dikes, was lashed to a raging fury by the winds of hurricane force. The dikes, taking a terrible pounding from this double menace of high tide and storm, began to crumple! First, the Watcher, then the Dreamer, and finally the Sleeper, gave way. In some villages walls of water eighteen feet high swept down upon the now helpless people. In other villages, it crept slowly, but agonizingly higher and higher, until the people were forced first to attics, then to housetops, others to the tree tops, where many of them stayed for three days or more. Within just a very few hours, tens of thousands of people were completely cut off from escape to higher ground, isolated in places where their very lives were in danger, not only from the rising water, but from the freezing weather that followed immediately after the storm.

Sunday, February 1, National Emergency!

By Sunday morning, February 1, the news of the disaster had spread over all The Netherlands, and a state of national emergency was declared by the government. The thoughts of the people undoubtedly followed the history of the country back to 1421 when the dikes broke and 100,000 lives were lost. The courage now, with which the Hollanders have gone about relieving the suffering of their fellowmen and the repairing of dikes, during the last eight days, typifies the courage that has enabled them and their forefathers to fight off the sea for centuries. Their courage is now much strengthened, because working side by side with them are friends from France, Belgium, America, Germany, and many other countries.

Who Can Estimate the Damage?

It is hardly possible to estimate the material damage that the flood has caused. Land won from the sea by hard work over many years, land that had at last been made productive, that had finally been stocked with all kinds of livestock—has now in a 24-hour period—been reclaimed by the sea! And with it, it took the productivity of the soil, the livestock, and many of the people who had worked to build the land. One-sixth of the total area of this little country has been inundated by salt water. Even after the dikes have been rebuilt, it will take years to recondition the land for good farming. And then, there is the greatest loss of all—some 1400 men, women, and children have lost their lives!

Members of the Church Safe

The Payne and Richardson families live in Haarlem. My wife and I live in Bilthoven, two miles from Utrecht. The damaged and flooded areas is some 60 or 70 miles from both places. None of the other members of the church live in the danger area.

Yes, You Can Help!

Financial help is by far the most appropriate. More than enough used clothing, so badly needed the first few days, was given by the Hollanders themselves, and also by people of other countries. But the sufferers have lost everything! They must start from "scratch" now. But remember, brethren, in Holland your dollars is f3.80 (Dutch guilders). Every single thing that these unfortunates must have can be bought in Holland, and with the advantage of exchange it can be bought cheaper than you can buy it there. Is that true of clothing? Yes! Furniture? Yes! Food? Yes! And what they buy here will be more suitable for this country and climate, and it will be what they actually must have!

You brethren will understand that explanation, we know, and therefore, if you wish to help directly in this time of crisis among these people, we suggest that you make it financial help. Contributions may be sent to Brother Payne or Richardson, Spruitenboschstr. 9, Haarlem, and to me, Prins Hendriklaan 72, Bilthoven. Mark your contributions for this purpose as "emergency funds for disaster." We will see that your money helps some individual, or individual family, and perhaps in this way, through your generosity, some soul may be led to Christ.

There Are Other Broken Dikes

Now let me tell you of some other dikes that need working on here in Holland. These are the dikes of Faith and Obedience, concerning God's word. These dikes have grown very weak and have broken before the winds and waves of indifference, skepticism, worldliness, modernism, and denominationalism. Because of these broken dikes, millions of souls have been swept out into eternity—lost, without hope.

Those dikes are still broken and just one thing can rebuild them: the pure and simple gospel of Jesus Christ. We hope to do a lot of rebuilding this year, 1953. We are going to need your help to do it, your help in prayers and finances! But we believe that we can count on you.

Evacuees in Services

Last Sunday, February 8, we were happy to have six adults and three children, evacuees from the flooded area, in our services. This made the total attendance 24, a new record. The previous record was 23 on December 14, 1952. Our average attendance for the Sunday morning service since our beginning of full-time work is 18.9, and with the coming of spring we hope to see this average increase. Pray with us, brethren, that the church may spread here in Holland.

Notice: This message is from the elders of the Central Church of Christ in Victoria, Texas.

The church here is making a financial contribution to the "emergency fund for disaster." If you desire, you may send your contributions to the Central Church of Christ, located at 907 N. Cameron Street, Victoria, Texas, and they will be forwarded to Holland.—The elders, N. W. CRISP, D. W. PONTON.

The Work At Arcadia, California

Above you have a very good view of the house of worship at Arcadia. When we came here the first of November, 1950, they had been worshipping in this building for only a short time—the pews had not been fastened down, no carpet strips for the aisles, classrooms not provided for, the grounds not well kept, and a general cleaning up around the building sorely needed. What they sometimes call the dedication day came a Lord's day or two after we got here, at which time Joe W. White and Claude Lauraine, two who had much to do in getting this work started, were present, with their wives. Brother White delivered the address, and a very fine sermon it was, suggesting that we had just entered the land and it now remains to be taken. Today, January 21, 1953, with a few more things that have to be done, we feel that we are making some progress, but the carpeting has to be put down yet, and several other unfinished things to be attended to. The collections and attendance have almost doubled. We thank God and have our hearts set on going onward and upward.

Why We Are Here

The exact date I cannot now give, more than saying that years ago two of what I shall call my "Atlanta boys," with their wives, came here and joined my old friend, Esty Turner and his wife with a few other faithful souls in launching out for Christ and the salvation of souls. Brother White for three years helped me during the summer with the Atlanta work while he was in the Nashville Bible School, during the days of the lamented H. Leo Boles; and he found him a wife in the person of Dura Bell Stroud, niece of one of our elders. They were united by me in holy wedlock in Brother Stroud's home and lived for a while in Georgia. Claude Lauraine, a Georgia boy, was married to Lucile Harwell in the Harwell home. They came to this state and were together in this work. In addition to this, Brother and Sister Harwell spent a winter or two here and helped with the work. The Harwells were charter members of the work in Atlanta, and Brother Harwell was not only an elder but treasurer until failing health demanded that he turn the treasury into other hands. While Sister Harwell was here she started what they called, "The Friendship Club," which club continues here in her memory. Such a club had its beginning among the women of the West End church in Atlanta. All who were here when this club was started remember this good woman with deep appreciation for her love for the cause of Christ. James Harwell, another one I love to speak of as, "One of my boys" spent some time here as minister. We would love to name every preacher, every soul who has contributed to this work, but space forbids this. I am here because my boys preceded me, and came with the distinct understanding that I was coming just to preach on Lord's days, etc., and not get tied up again in local church work. I had spent fourteen years with the West End Avenue congregation in Atlanta, starting with only twenty-five members and left Atlanta with three going congregations and ten others established at other places. Then some two years at Sichel Street church in Los Angeles, from which the Central church was established and the Japanese congregation, too. Then to Russell Street where we lived for twenty-eight years and seven months. I stayed with that work until it sent me to the hospital to die, but God brought me out of it all. But know this: These people are good to me, restraining me from doing anything except the few things that I can do better than others. They even furnished a driver to take me places. But the work was so much needed that I lost my head and dived into it and had to go back to the hospital, which undoubtedly was providential; for certain it is, I have come to know how to eat to live—really not eat for any other purpose, and I now believe I will see my one hundredth birthday. For I have never felt better in all my life. The only work I now do is to preach Sunday morning and night, if I feel like it, and take care of my Bible classes, along with Sister Ralph Chase, one of the best teachers I have ever known. Just a few words about this work, and I close this bit of history.

An Interesting Story

One who claims to be a "free lancer"; that is, he represents no organized religious group, found a vacant lot and undertook to construct a small building on it and get together the children of the community in a Sunday school. Only a few of the people in the immediate vicinity fell in with it at first, but it had some growth. Two families, who are now with us, fell in and did a great deal in helping financially and with real hard work. But some scruples came to their minds about some of the things this minister did, so they pulled out. One of these families organized a Bible class in their home, and, fortunately, called our Sister Chase to teach it. One night after attending prayer meeting, I was called out of bed to meet Sister Chase with six members of the class to be baptized. This I did, having there two of our elders and their wives. Brother Chase did the baptizing. While he was baptizing the women, one of the husbands who came with them said to me: "Brother Hall, I was baptized when quite young in the Christian church and I want to be baptized." I at once asked him the question: "Do you believe with your whole heart that Christ is God's Son?" His answer was: "I most assuredly do." Then I said: "Please go to the men's dressing room and prepare for baptism." We keep our dressing rooms with a supply of changes, both for men and women for most any number that want to be baptized. Brother Chase was almost through with the women by the time he made the necessary changes, and baptized him. There are other things that should be told in connection with this baptizing, but space forbids. Suffice it to say that the influence of this class had so permeated the members of this little church—a number baptized being teachers—that some seven or eight others wanted to be immersed, so the preacher hurried them off to Pasadena and there immersed them. But a number of these have come to us—all with but one or two exceptions—and they were baptized "for the remission of their sins." For certain it is that anyone who is converted under the teaching of Sister Chase is baptized "for the remission of sins." The husbands of these women were turned over to me and we have baptized practically all of them. The two good people who organized the class for the women got busy and organized a class of men for me to teach on Tuesday nights. As stated, a number of these men have been baptized, and just last Lord's day, January 18th, I baptized one of the men, with his wife, into Christ.

But there is another interesting story. One Lord's day, I did my best to drive home that any wife whose husband is not a member or husband whose wife is not a member, and does not prayerfully work and pray for their conversion is not just what Christ wants them to be. I drove it home to fathers and mothers who strive so hard to educate and prepare their sons and daughters to go out and make money and fail to make just as earnest effort—which effort should be greater—to prepare their sons and daughters for eternity, could not be called a true father and mother. The next Lord's day, the head of the second family to which reference has already been made, came to me and said: "Brother Hall, your sermon last Lord's day so stirred me that my wife and I have gotten all of our relatives to join us in a Bible class in our home and we have called on Sister Chase to teach it." Think of the joy that came to my heart when, while unable to go to the baptizing, they informed me that they were assembling at the church house to baptize seven from this class and one other from a class Sister Chase was teaching in her own home, and five of the number baptized were son and wife, sister and husband, etc., relatives of these two godly souls.

Nothing has so electrified our work as this. I have about thirty in one of my classes and fifteen fine men in another class in the home where this class work began. Sister Chase teaches from four to five classes each week—one of which is about 25 miles from Arcadia, and other classes are called for. Another brother and his wife took Scripture Studies, Volume 1, and went to a home and studied it through, and all of that family were baptized—father, mother, and daughter, and they have another family about ready for baptism.

Perhaps it should be said that when we came to California, we rented a house just across the street from Pepperdine College and I was with Brother Nagai and Ishiguro on Wednesday nights with the Japanese brethren and drove out to Arcadia for the Lord's day morning and evening services. But this seemed to be a little too heavy for me, so we moved to Arcadia in the fall of 1951. I taught for two hours each week there until the Lord knocked me down again and, in this way said slow up. So that work had been dropped and my time is devoted now to preaching twice on Lord's days and helping with the class work. This work reminds me so much of the way I got the Atlanta work to growing so well as the work at Sichel Street, about which work I will give, in more detail in the "Story Of A Life or Compound Interest in Religion," the manuscript for which book Brother John Allen Hudson has been waiting more than two years. I began the story on New Year's Day and shortly after observing my seventy-fifth birthday. I am hoping to have it completed before this year ends, the Lord willing.

In closing, may I ask our friends, everywhere this is read, to pray for continued strength that I may accomplish what is so dear to my heart. To say that I have a joy that is unspeakable (1 Peter 1:8), and a peace that goes beyond understanding, expresses it mildly.—S. H. HALL.

Studies In Galatians (No. 3)

R. C. Bell

After at least one return visit to the congregations he had founded in Galatia during his first visit to that district, Paul, busily evangelizing other places, heard that Judaizing wolves, piously alleging that they were better informed than Paul, were working havoc in the Galatian churches.

These designing, false men, "wiser for their own generation than the sons of light," could make out a reasonable case against Paul before the facile Galatians. There is ample evidence in Galatians and the Corinthian letters to show that their chief line of attack was that Paul was only an upstart, inferior apostle, independent of and out of fellowship with the real, original apostles; and that he kept his disciples subordinate to other Christians by withholding from them truth essential to their full development. (Imagine how the proud, hot-headed Galatians would boil at that!)

The diabolic cleverness of these "deceitful workers" is better understood when it is remembered that ministers of the old Serpent, who "beguiled Eve in his craftiness" (2 Cor. 11:3) by persuading her that God was withholding good from her, "also fashion themselves as ministers of righteousness" (2 Cor. 11:14) in Corinth, Galatia, Moscow, Rome or Washington to serve the fiendish ends of their demonic master. To overthrow the souls of men, the ministers of the Devil have never needed better strategy than the Father of lies used in Eden.

Paul Explains

The small amount of truth in the lying accusations of Paul's detractors made these slanders all the more formidable. By giving the truth that Paul was independent of the real apostles a fatal twist, they had something so plausible, and yet so false, that it could be used against him with deadly effect. At the same time, however it furnished skillful Paul a good occasion to set all fairminded men right on a vital matter.

Paul's explanation is the boldest and fullest statement of his apostolic commission. He concedes, as charged, that he saw none of the apostles before he began preaching, and tells why: "For I made known to you, brethren, as touching the gospel which was preached by me, that it was not after men, nor was I taught it, but it came to me through revelation of Jesus Christ." Paul here reminds the Galatians that the gospel which they heard from him was not of human origin; nor did he acquire it by the customary educational methods of men; but it came to him directly from the risen, living, reigning Lord in heaven. Hence, the conclusion that in apostolic knowledge and authority, he, at least, could not be "a whit behind the very chiefest apostles" (2 Cor. 11:5) follows inevitably.

In the next five verses, to support this affirmation of divine instruction and ordination, Paul shows that he could not have learned of Christ, either before or after his conversion, in an ordinary way. Before, with characteristic energy and zeal he so persecuted "beyond measure . . . the church of God" that no Christian could have even thought of trying to win him. After, instead of going "up to Jerusalem to them that were apostles before" him to confer with "flesh and blood," he "went away into Arabia."

Paul in Arabia

Christ said to Paul: "For to this end have I appeared unto thee, to appoint thee a minister and a witness both of the things wherein thou hast seen me, and of the things wherein I will appear unto thee" (Acts 26:16). Thus, did Christ pledge himself to be Paul's future teacher. Following this initial appearance, five more appearances, selecting fields of labor, encouraging in prison, sustaining in shipwreck, and revealing the future, are recorded in the books of Acts. Furthermore, Paul to prove to the Corinthians that his apostleship was bona fides speaks of "visions and revelations of the Lord," and mentions one very special occasion when he was "caught up into Paradise, and heard unspeakable words" (2 Cor. 12:1-4). Now, we know how Paul learned "the deep things of God" which caused Peter to write: Paul also, according to the wisdom given to him, wrote . . . some things hard to be understood" (2 Peter 3:15, 16).

According to Galatians, part of the three years that elapsed between Paul's conversion and his seeing Peter, Paul spent in Damascus, and the remainder in Arabia. His reason for going to Arabia may be ascertained, I think, with reasonable certainty from the first chapter of Galatians.

Probably the life of no man has ever been so wrecked and so rebuilt as Paul's. Skeptics have always failed as miserably to account for his revolutionized life as for Christ's resurrection. No horizontal line of natural cause and effect can explain it, for it was caused by an original act of supernatural grace, coming down from God. Much vital Christian truth flashed into Paul's mind at the time of his conversion: the despised Nazarene was the Messiah; he had arisen from the dead, and was even now speaking to him from heaven. Dying Stephen had talked with him. Consequently, Paul's life, which he had so laboriously built up to lofty eminence, lay in ashes. Crushing guilt and terror fell upon his soul as he recalled his contempt for Christ and the innocent men and women he had tortured. To learned, successful, proud Paul, Damascus was the loss of everything. All he had prized in life suddenly became mere refuse.

But Paul had more to learn and to suffer. God's schooling for his "chosen vessels" includes solitude as attested by Moses in Midian, the Baptist in the wilderness, and John on Patmos. Even so, Paul needed time and quiet for soul work. "The nurse of full-grown souls is solitude." Could there be a fitter place than lonely Arabia and Sinai where fasting Moses received the law and despairing Elijah heard "a still small voice" that made him feel still smaller? Surely, some of Paul's "visions and revelations" came to him in Arabia. To help him understand the Old Testament, the letter of which he had mastered without getting a taste of its spirit, would not the Lord from heaven commune with him and aid him, as he on earth before his death communed with and aided the other apostles? The Bible would soon become to Paul another book. From every page new meanings would leap out at him. Must it not have amazed him exceedingly to realize that he so grossly, and for so long, had missed it all?

What Does The Bible Say?

A Declaration of Independence 1900 Years Ago!

We are all familiar with the declaration of independence of 1776, but many are unaware that 1900 years ago the apostles declared the independence of every Christian from the law of Moses!

Continuing our study of the history of the early church in Acts, chapter 15, we find that some of the Jews wanted to force the Gentile converts to be circumcised "after the manner of Moses." Actually this rite was a symbol of the whole law of Moses which these Jewish Christians wanted to bind upon all Christians. Peter expressed the will of the apostles when he rose and said: "Now therefore why tempt ye God, to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?" (Acts 15:10). James agreed with this and ordered a letter written to the Gentiles in Antioch commanding them to abstain from "pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood." These were all practices of the pagans around them. This meant that the Christians were no longer to be troubled about keeping the law of Moses concerning the sabbath, or circumcision or any other provisions of it, but were to keep the law of Christ.

It is easy to understand how the devout Jews had a hard time giving up the law of Moses. Paul devotes many paragraphs to answering the arguments of the Judaizing teachers who would make Christianity just an appendix to the Jewish faith. The strange thing is that even today many sincere believers in Christ want to bind the yoke of Moses upon Christians in the keeping of the Sabbath, tithing as a legal requirement, and other ordinances. Paul clearly taught that Jesus nailed the law to the cross, "blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross . . ." (Col. 2:14). The law was our schoolmaster, or tutor, to bring us to Christ our Teacher, but "after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster" (Gal. 3:24).

But some other sincere believers have gone to the other extreme and have taken the position that followers of Christ are under no law at all. The Scriptures plainly teach that although we are not under the law of Moses, we are under the law of Christ! "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ" (Gal. 6:2). Jesus' law is light compared with the law of Moses, but it must be obeyed. He said: "If ye love me ye will keep my commandments." The best in the moral principles of Moses' law are included in Jesus' law. James said: "But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work (doer that worketh), this man shall be blessed in his deed." So let us have "faith which works by love" in Christ!

I VISITED TURLEY

Hugh McCord

Some five years ago I first visited the Turley Children's Home, and I have since told others of it publicly and privately, and I have thanked God for giving such unselfish principles into the hearts of Tulsa Christians as to cause this work of faith and labor of love to be built. And God is not unrighteous to forget this noble endeavor which saints have shown toward his name, in that they have ministered to little ones, and do minister. Neither have the brethren forgotten, for gifts from near and far have come to bless and to encourage. And outsiders, on whom some Christianity has "run," have helped helpless ones.

The elders of the Main Street church in Tulsa have the oversight of Turley. Other congregations and individuals send money to the Main Street elders. It takes much to feed and clothe 22 boys and 15 girls. It is not that Main Street elders have a work too big for themselves and then "saddle" it off on the churches, saying, "It's your baby." Neither do the other contributing congregations and individuals surrender their independence, nor say they have done their duty, when they send checks. It is only that the Main Street church is doing what it can, and if others want to cooperate they are welcome, and more good is done.

I wish I could say I have always taught only the truth, but I cannot. I have been wrong and I covet the help of the brethren in keeping me straight. As I re-study private organizations (whether Bible colleges or orphanages) I do not find precept or example or necessary inference for their support from the church treasury. That they have a right to exist I affirm, but let their support be from private sources. Of course Bible colleges cannot be put under elderships, since their field of work goes beyond the pattern laid down for God's churches. But the work of remembering the poor is within the divine pattern, and thus may scripturally be pursued by the churches. Why then cannot all the orphanages be placed under elderships and let the local elders be the trustees for each home? Such certainly cannot be questioned, and would bring harmony.

PEPPERDINE COLLEGE LECTURESHIP ANNOUNCED FOR MARCH 16-20

Joseph Welles White

The 11th annual lectureship of George Pepperdine College will be held on the college campus March 16-20. The theme of the lectureship is "Christianity and the Ethical Foundations of Our Society."

After a careful consideration, the date of the lectureship for 1953 will be several weeks later than formerly. We have made this change for two reasons:

First it will come at a more advantageous time for the faculty and the students of the college. The new date will not be near either the beginning of the term, as formerly, or near any examination period. The second reason is that most of the college lectureships are very close to one another in time, which makes it difficult for brethren at a distance to attend two or more lectureships if they desire to do so.

Our chief speaker for this year will be Brother Burton Coffman, Washington, D. C. As has been our custom, he will speak at the five night sessions. His specific subjects will be: "Christianity and Democracy," "Christianity and Human Brotherhood," "Christianity and Capitalism," "Christianity and Peace," and "Christianity and the Church." He will also teach a class at afternoon sessions. This course may be taken for college credit, if desired.

This year our daily sessions will feature a practical workshop which will deal with methods and techniques useful in local church activities. Such matters of interest as the use of recorders, church bulletins, educational materials and the like will be treated. The discussions will be led by brethren who have done an outstanding work in the respective areas. Not the least interesting features will consist of demonstrations of recorders, mimeograph machines, etc.

As in previous years, we will provide lodging for those who come from a distance. Those who desire a printed program or further information may address me at George Pepperdine College, 1121 W. 79th Street, Los Angeles 44, California. We extend a cordial invitation to all to be with us during the week of March 16-20.

EDITORIAL

G. H. P. SHOWALTER, Editor

A NEW CHURCH HYMNAL

The Firm Foundation Publishing House is bringing out in the near future a new hymn book which is an answer to a strong demand for a book that will not only continue the publication of a careful selection of the great songs that will never die, but include a large number of recent compositions by late writers and present writers. We are going to have quite a number of songs that have never before been printed and plates are being made already. These new songs will represent the work of several of our young singers who have become noticeable not only as song leaders but as composers. And here is a special request: We are asking that all of our song leaders write us giving a few of their choices of songs that they think should go in the book. This applies also to any others who would like to see in the new book their favorite hymns. But please write us early; the work of compilation is going right forward and we are hoping to be able in a short time to announce actual date of publication. The committee having the work in charge will welcome mention of your favorite song, and you will be glad to see it in your book.

HOPEFUL PROSPECTS IN SOUTH AMERICA

Many of our readers are under the impression that not only Mexico and all of Central America, but all of the vast expanse of South America is wholly given to Catholicism. It is true that in most of these states the Catholic religion predominates, and has control of political affairs to such an extent that little and sometimes no progress is being made to restore the teaching of the New Testament, and even the protestant denominations are making little headway toward establishing their churches and schools. Brother D. H. Hadwin is now getting settled down to his work in Uruguay and gives a good report of conditions and of the prospects for the future. There is little doubt that the cause of Christ will go forward in a good way if several families will be found willing to go to that field to join Brother Hadwin and his group in a persistent effort to preach the gospel and establish the church. Our readers will be interested in the following report just received from Brother Hadwin. We shall endeavor to keep our friends posted as to the needs and the progress of this work in a new and promising field. It offers opportunity for young preachers and for churches that are in position to do more than they are now doing in the work of the Lord.

FIRM FOUNDATION

Austin 61, Texas, U.S.A.

Dear Brethren: We arrived here December 13 after being 30 days on the water—a very pleasant and interesting trip. We should have let you know through the paper about our arrival here long before this, but there has been too much to do in getting settled in a strange land. We did not get our typewriters out of customs for nearly six weeks, so that put a damper on the writing business. We do not have our portable radio yet.

After staying in a hotel, we were able to find a suitable house (it is really a ground floor apartment) in a good location, and move into it January 3. It is practically impossible to rent furnished houses or apartments here, so we have had to buy furniture. We have a six-room house. The dining room and living room have a large opening between them, and are big enough to accommodate a small group for services. We are within two blocks of bus lines to all parts of the city. Bus fare is only three cents, and the service is good.

We are very well pleased with Montevideo. It is a beautiful, very modern city, all buildings of fire-proof construction. The people here look very much like the people in a large city in the U.S.A. In fact, Uruguay is a melting pot of the world, very much like our own country. The people are friendly, and they have a warm feeling for the U.S.A. Perhaps our biggest problem will be their general indifference toward religion. Catholicism is not much of a problem here, compared to other South American countries. We were just reading after a Catholic writer, and he was bemoaning the fact that the Catholics are in the minority and are diminishing. A Methodist preacher who has been here 30 years tells us that perhaps 60 percent of the people have been "baptized" as Catholics, half of these may attend church once or twice a year, and only about 10 percent are faithful.

Floyd Decker's brother and family have been very friendly and helpful to us. Mr. Decker has lived here for some 30 years, and is well known and respected throughout the city. He is a rancher, and has served in the American Embassy.

We have recently placed advertisements with the English language newspapers to see if we can contact any members of the church who may be living here, but as yet we have received no replies. We will try the Spanish papers later. If you know of any members of the church living here in Montevideo, please write us, giving us their names and addresses. We live at Charrua 2636, but please mail your letters to our post office box as follows: Casilla de Correo 185, Montevideo, Uruguay. Please send all letters by air mail, which is ten cents from the U.S.A.

Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may run and be glorified, even as also it is with you.—Faithfully yours, D. H. HADWIN.

Help In Time of Need

Harry E. Payne

The Christians in Holland have had opportunity to demonstrate their faith by their works this week-end (January 31 through February 2). As you have in all probability already read in the newspapers, there has been a state of distress and dire emergency along the coasts of Western Europe and of England, due to terrific westerly and north-westerly winds. The seas have been unusually high and the tides at a record for this century. Much of the island province of Zeeland (southernmost coastal province of the Netherlands) is covered with water . . . and, of course, many thousands of people are stranded and homeless. The death toll, at present count, numbers around 400. (Now it numbers almost 1500 —J. W.)

With the cries of distress and the pressing need for help to rescue stranded and unfortunate, every possible agency has been called on to assist in the evacuation and care of these homeless people. In the midst of it all the church of our Lord here, though small in number and severely restricted in means, has been able to lend a hand. We had some clothing left over, in the storeroom at our building in Amsterdam. This was immediately given (on Sunday, February 1) after the flood emergency on Saturday night. Some quilts, which had been donated by various ladies' classes of churches in the U.S.A., are being given to the needy. Food packages will be offered as needed. Also we at Haarlem and Amsterdam are making it known to the city authorities in our respective cities that our church buildings will be available to care for some of the evacuees. And with this work of our hands and hearts go also our fervent prayers that the many others who yet remain in danger may be rescued and helped.

We cannot now tell just what will be the outcome of this tragic situation. But we hope that the Lord will also use us all to his glory in our preferred help. We are deeply thankful that God has preserved all of us (the Richardson, Adams, Payne, and Bakvis families . . . and, as far as we know, all members of our three congregations) from harm, and that we are in a state to help in this time of need. We are thankful too, to you brethren there in the states who regularly help us in this mission field, through your monetary contributions and through your prayers and other means of assistance. Our quilt supply and stock of warm clothing is exhausted. Also our funds for benevolent work are far too short. We shall appreciate any assistance you can lend to help out in this time of need.

(Note: The above was written by Brother Payne on February 2, and naturally doesn't tell the whole story. Since it was written there have been additional storms, and many thousands more have been made homeless. The death toll now stands at about 1500 and is expected to rise above the 2,000 mark. Let us as Christians come to the aid of these stricken people, and hold up the hands of these our brethren in the work they are trying to do. The more we contribute now, the more opportunity they will have to preach the gospel to these people after the catastrophe is over. Surely if these our brethren are willing to make the sacrifices that they will have to make to care for these people in their own homes, then we ought to be willing to give them the financial assistance that they so desperately need to carry on. Please urge the congregation where you worship to make a special contribution to this work.—JIMMY WOOD)

Contributions may be sent to the Northside Church of Christ, Box 443, Odessa, Texas, and will be forwarded immediately to our brethren in Holland.

Montgomery Bible College—Adieu

(The following is a copy of a speech which was delivered by Vice-President Johnson at a special ceremony at which time the name of Montgomery Bible College was changed to Alabama Christian College.—Rex A. Turner).

Mr. Turner, distinguished guests, and students.

This is the last time I shall ever address you concerning the history of Montgomery Bible College as a living entity. Within the hour the name Montgomery Bible College shall begin to fade from the memories of men and shall take its place among the names and things which have served well their purpose, but which time and circumstances forced to give way to the march of progress.

The history of Montgomery Bible College has been that of constant struggle, hard work, and steady growth. Nothing spectacular or phenomenal has been accomplished. We are a small school and have but little that strikes the eye, but we have been smaller and have had less. What has been achieved is the result of the labors of a sacrificing corps of teachers, a faithful board of trustees, a loyal group of students, and the kind providence of our gracious God.

Montgomery Bible College is the partial fulfillment of a dream—a dream I first mentioned to John L. McDonald, who has from the beginning been a member of our board—a dream which has taken shape in the form of grounds and buildings and equipment and hearts and consciences of young men and women—a dream which can find its remotest realization only in the aeons of eternity.

Montgomery Bible College was first publically announced with assets of less than $250. A conservative estimate of the value of the 27 acres of land and the property upon it today would exceed $200,000.

Ten and one-half years ago, we had one building—our present home economics building—where were, and this will astound you, our classrooms, auditorium, offices, and boys' dormitory! Nine buildings have been added to the original one—three small teachers' homes, a library building, a boys' dormitory, a girls' dormitory, a dining hall and the building where we are now. Most of the work on these buildings has been done by student labor. Every hour of work put into this particular building was put here by students. This building is now being used for classrooms, but was planned for and will later be converted into a married students' dormitory.

In September, 1942, our students numbered 23. We have enrolled over 350 students this year from 13 states, from California to South Carolina and from Florida to Iowa. Through our decade of history no college student has been turned away from our door because of the lack of money.

Our offerings for the first year were senior high school and one year of college work. By popular demand we have continued to increase our offerings until now our program includes the six years of accredited junior college work, and a four-year program of college Bible instruction.

Our greatest asset and our chief pride and joy are our students who have gone out into the various vocations and professions of life and have made good, who have established Christian homes, and who are living examples of the spirit of Montgomery Bible College.

With the change of name and through the vicissitudes of its future existence may this school never lose the spirit and purpose which prompted its beginning and to which it was originally dedicated.

Robert Goodman, Box 308, Overton, Texas, January 28: Since last report two have been baptized here. Brother Paul Wallace Gladewater, was with us in a meeting, November 24-December 3. Brother Robert Turner, Prescott, Arizona, will be with us April 15-26 in our next meeting.

Durward Boggs, 7825 Hillard, Dallas, Texas, February 3: Seven were added to our congregation during January by membership and restoration. Our attendance during the month was a little below average due to excessive amount of illness. We have a meeting March 8-15 with Brother Morris Moore preaching. The future looks very promising for the church in this community. When in Dallas we would like to have you with us at Pleasant Grove Church of Christ.

H. I. Taylor, Austin, Texas, February 4: The work at Northside progresses in a good way. During January six were baptized and seven identified themselves with us. Last Lord's day three placed membership. We expect to begin construction of a new auditorium to seat 900 in the very near future. Preston Cotham, 2000 Oakland Blvd., Fort Worth, Texas, February 12: One was baptized and three restored and placed membership at mid-week service last evening. Our Bible school is now averaging better than 300 and our contribution about $650. We now have about 375 members. Hulen Jackson of Dallas will do the preaching in our spring meeting in June. I am to be at McCamey, Texas, the latter part of March.

Dick Biggs, Cyril, Oklahoma, February 9: The work at Fletcher is coming along in a very fine way. Since my last report three have been baptized into the Lord. Interest and attendance in the work are good. We are planning an extensive program of personal work, in which we plan to visit every house in the town by the time our meeting begins March 16 with Brother Floyd Spivey of Colorado City, Texas, doing the preaching.

Bill Thompson, Lufkin, Texas, February 9: Friday evening we concluded the best meeting that has been conducted in Lufkin in more than four years that I have been here. Enthusiasm and attendance were at an all time high as we heard Merle Bryant, Roy L. Foutz, John W. Hedge, H. E. Johnston, and Cled E. Wallace preach. Six additions at Fourth and Groesbeck yesterday, three baptized, two by membership, and one reclaimed.

Robert P. Cooper, 2201 Gordon Street, Hopewell, Virginia, February 4: A sixty year old man was baptized here Sunday night. He was formerly a member of the "Pilgrim Holiness" sect. He had been hearing our daily radio program. This program is now over a year old. We are receiving encouraging reports from it. Attendance is holding up well here in spite of a severe epidemic of flu and other sickness. When in this vicinity visit with us. The church meets at 300 West Cawson Street.

V. C. Turner, 209 S. W. 3rd, Bethany, Oklahoma, February 5: The growth of the Bethany congregation is very encouraging. One hundred and thirty have responded to the invitation during the past twenty-five months. Our attendance and contributions are on an increase. Everything points to a continued good work. Our spring meeting will be April 6-15 with Brother Sterl A. Watson of St. Louis, Missouri, doing the preaching. Visit with us when you are in the Oklahoma City area.

Rufus R. Clifford, Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, February 9: H. A. Dixon, President of Freed-Hardeman College, and Alvand Dunkelberger, Editor of the Nashville Banner, preached here while I was in a meeting with the Timberland Drive church of Lufkin, Texas. Three were baptized and one placed membership. I had invitations for meetings this year from both congregations in Lufkin, and I offered to hold both meetings on the same trip, preaching first for the old church, but it was not satisfactory. All of the services of the meetings, except two, were broadcast, and many visitors attended as a result. One was baptized here while I was away. A. Hugh Clark, of San Antonio, Texas, will hold our meeting here April 5-12.

NOTICE TO PREACHERS

The elders of the church in Crosbyton, Texas, wish to advise that they have already selected a local preacher for the work there. Cline B. Drake, formerly of Lorenzo, Texas, moved to Crosbyton January 21 to take up the work there. The elders appreciate the interest being shown by the various preachers who have written regarding the work.

MINISTER URGENTLY NEEDED

L. P. Pitts, Asst. Treasurer

A relatively young congregation in the Carolinas is in immediate need of a gospel minister. This congregation is not large, however, prospects for growth are very good. A man interested in rendering a service in this mission field will find an energetic, zealous, congregation with which to labor, a new, fully equipped church building, and a modern minister's home adjacent to the church. Write Central Church of Christ, Box 131, Spartanburg, S. C.

Basil C. Doran, Ferris, Texas, February 7: The Ferris church begins a radio broadcast next Sunday morning, February 15, over Station KGKO, at 8:15 o'clock, from Dallas. This station is a new radio voice for this area. It operates on an assigned frequency of 1480 kcs, with a power of 1,000 watts, and may be heard throughout this area. This program will be known as "The Gospel in Song." We would appreciate it if you will announce this broadcast. Let us have a word as to its reception.

Paul D. Murphy, Box 645, Bastrop, Louisiana, February 14: Another good day here Sunday. Two Baptists were baptized, one confessed sins, and one was restored. Last Wednesday night a lady renounced the errors of the Christian Church and became identified with the true church. That brings to a total of 124 responses to the invitation here during the past ten months. We feel greatly encouraged. V. E. Howard will be with us for a meeting the last two weeks of April.

K. M. Kelly, Box 436, Alice, Texas, February 2: Yesterday was a good day for the church here in Alice. Our attendance and contribution were at an all time high despite the loss of seventy who have moved to other fields. Two have been baptized several have confessed sins and seven placed membership since our last report. The church has a good program for the mid-week Bible study, there were 141 present last week. Brother Guy N. Woods will begin his part of our spring meeting March 26th. We invite all who are in this section to attend this gospel meeting.

Mack Stirman, Box 346, Duncan, Oklahoma: In five consecutive services, beginning Sunday morning, February 8, there have been three restored and ten baptized at the Eastside congregation in Duncan. One of the number was a man eighty-one years of age, an invalid who was immersed while sitting in a chair, and was lifted from the baptism. The entire John Sanner family of five (the younges, age 15) were baptized last Sunday morning, February 15. Nothing recently has brought such joy and encouragement to this congregation. The Eastside congregation has volunteered to contribute $50 per month to the support of Brother L. E. O'Neal, who is returning to the Philippines. The Westside congregation has assumed the support of the O'Neals, and we are happy and proud to have a part in this most promising work.

Tom E. Wallace, P. O. Box 7, Hobbs, New Mexico, February 12: This Lord's day we move into our fifteen new classrooms. We are justifiably proud of them. We have composed a new church roster and have nearly five hundred active members in the congregation. Brother Wesley Mickey of Fort Worth will conduct our meeting in April. In the past six weeks there have been eighteen baptisms and ten restorations.

L. E. Garner, 508 Green Hill Drive, Benton, Kentucky, February 13: The last Sunday in January brought to a close over two years of pleasant labor with the church in Vinita, Oklahoma. The last night I preached there three were baptized. We began our labor with the church in Benton the first Lord's day in February. One was baptized last Lord's day. Three of the last four persons that I have baptized have come from the denominations. When visiting in or near Benton, worship with us.

C. B. Glasgow, Box 206, San Felipe, Texas, February 12: I have preached three Sundays at Sealy, Texas, with one middle-aged man confessing his sins and restored to fellowship. We had good crowds and the finest attention. Brother E. L. Stern, a good gospel preacher, has been preaching for these good people over five years and they love him and his good wife very much. If a congregation within a hundred miles of Sealy needs and desires Brother Stern's services, write or phone him at Sealy, Texas, as he is now thinking of making a change.

J. O. Jones, 1014 Berch Street, Little Rock, Arkansas: I have begun work with the Pulaski Heights church in Little Rock after more than eight years with Normal church in Memphis. February 8th completed my work this very wonderful church. This wonderful congregation will always be near and dear to me. Their future is truly bright. The elders have asked me to return for a meeting. One was baptized, two restored, and one placed membership on February 8. The opportunity here is very great, and everything seems to be in readiness for a good work. Eldon Dilbeck did a good work here and is loved much by every one.

R. V. Wood, Box 673, Crane, Texas, February 9: The work of the Lord moves along in a very fine way here in Crane, Texas. Attendance at all services are at an all-time high. The 250 new opera chairs installed last fall are now just about all filled for both of the Lord's day services. The midweek service averages about 135, and part of the Wednesday evening service is devoted to singing. We have a fine group of young people, and some twenty boys lead singing each Wednesday evening. Brother Guy N. Wood will be with us in a meeting beginning February 27. Any one in driving distance is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

W. H. Hale, 1601 East 19th St., Cheyenne, Wyoming, February 4: The work in Cheyenne is going fine. We had an overflowing crowd last Lord's day morning, and a nice crowd Lord's day evening, and our Wednesday evening crowds are increasing. We are very proud of the progress that the good brethren are striving to make, but of course as every one knows the church is not as strong in the west as it is in some other locations. The brethren here are trying to build a minister's home, but it is going to be mighty hard financially. If any one who reads this is able to send help, please send it to the elders of the Church of Christ, Cheyenne, Wyoming.

W. S. Wiley, 503 E. Huisache St., Kingsville, Texas: The congregation in Grapeland, Texas, is badly in need of a preacher. They are not asking that some other congregation support a preacher for them, but that some brother who is able to partially support himself for a while come and work with them. Grapeland has, with the exception of about three years out of the twenty-two years that I have known the church there, been of more service to the preachers working there than they have been able to be to the church. This is true for the reason that nine of the eleven preachers who have done any appreciable amount of work there during those twenty-two years, were just beginning their work as preachers. The writer began his preaching life there twenty-two years ago, being also the first man to locate and work with the congregation. I know that the brethren there were a far greater blessing to me than I was to them. Hulen Masters, now preaching the gospel in Vermont, grew up there and made his first talks in the services there. Guy Caskey, now preaching in Africa, was there and at the nearby Midway congregation, encouraged to become a gospel preacher. The Denman brothers were given much strength and encouragement by the Grapeland church as they began to develop as preachers of the Word. Others who began there, after having been reared elsewhere are John Teel, Avis McCloud, Earl Miller, and Barney Thompson. The church has remained small through the years, but there is no way to fully estimate the great good coming from their willingness to serve young preachers by helping them get started in life as preachers. The church has a nice, well located building and a small, though nearly new preacher's home. These are both paid for. They need a mature man who can supply about one-third of his support for a little while. I pray that such a man will get in touch with them. Alfred Caskey, the father of Guy Caskey, and Henry Lewis Masters, brother of Hulen Masters, are the elders. Having remained in constant touch with the church there through the years I feel able to commend, without reservations, the group there as a deserving people.

Arthur U. Johnson, 1414 Briggs Avenue, Parsons, Kansas, January 26: Brother U. R. Forrest is working hard here. I believe he is getting the two congregations closer together. Love, fellowship, cooperation and zeal accomplish great things if given a chance. Distribution of free tracts by Brother Brewer's new magazine can become a wonderful work if brethren will get behind it and make a few sacrifices to support it. There are a lot of things we can do without in order to support this movement for saving souls. Others put out millions of free tracts; why should not churches of Christ do the same when surely they have the truth? I hope these free tracts will not only oppose error but also preach a saving gospel to millions. Let's make good use of the many wonderful things the Lord has blessed us with by preaching the gospel to others. It will give happiness throughout life here and hereafter.

Joe Preston, Box 96, Duke Oklahoma, February 2: After a little over a year's labor with the congregation here at Duke. I have terminated my work here and will begin with the church at Wheeler, Texas next Sunday February 8th. During our stay here there have been seventeen baptisms and 3 confessions of wrongs. We are leaving many friends near and dear to us here but we know that we shall have the same kind of friends in the church at Wheeler. We anticipate a great work with the church at Wheeler. On March 1st through the 8th the writer will conduct a gospel meeting there. It is also our plan to conduct one or two meetings for some congregation not too far away who is not able to support a meeting for themselves. My successor has not been named here at Duke. If there are any who are interested in the work here, contact Elders of the church of Christ in care of Woodrow Reeves at Duke.

Wyndal H. Hudson, Box 130, New Deal, Texas, January 29: During the past three weeks we have had four responses to the gospel call. Three were restorations and one baptism. Last Lord's day we engaged Brethren Jack Hardcastle and Joe R. Chisholm in a Round Table Discussion concerning Elders and Their Appointment. The discussion was well attended and proved to be of great value. Another such program has been planned for this coming Lord's day with Brethren Cline Drake and C. B. Holmes as directors of the discussion. This method of inviting a preacher and an elder is very effective.

Neil R. Lightfoot, Lakeview Church of Christ, Waco, Texas, January 31: Last Wednesday night we enjoyed an excellent sermon preached by Brother Jerry C. Mathews. For forty-nine years Brother Mathews had been an ordained Baptist preacher. We at Lakeview rejoice that he is now one with us in Christ. His, indeed, is an unusual story. Brother Mathews, when a young man, was baptized "for the remission of sins." After he became a Baptist preacher, he baptized others "in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost for the remission of sins." On one occasion he affirmed in public debate against another Baptist minister that baptism was essential to salvation. During the course of his life as a Baptist minister, Brother Mathews wrote numerous articles for religious periodicals of his brethren, and even published several books. After years of constant study of the Scriptures, Brother Mathews gradually came to realize that human denominations, being governed by human creeds and wearing human names, were antithetical to God's purpose on earth. About ten years ago, he renounced his communion and severed his association from the Baptists, and became in his own words, a "free-lance preacher." When I came in contact with him several weeks ago I endeavored to show him that the Scriptures teach that the individual must do his work through the local congregation—that the Father is glorified through the church. When Brother Mathews fully realized this, he publicly denounced the error of his way. Notwithstanding his past denominational ties, the elders of the Lakeview congregation pronounce this man sound in faith and doctrine; his sermon Wednesday night was almost entirely composed of Scripture quotations. At the ripe age of sixty-seven, Brother Mathews is yet strong in body and mind. He has a burning desire to preach the gospel in its ancient purity and simplicity, and is praying that the Lord will open to him "doors of utterance." Let it be known to the brotherhood that Jerry C. Mathews now "preacheth the gospel which he once destroyed!"

Ben West, Lampasas, Texas, February 3: One baptised and one restored from non-class group Lord's Day. The house was filled at both hours. 232 in Bible classes, 190 at mid-week service. Ground is being cleared this week in preparation to start our new church building in enlarging our recently built auditorium to seat near 600. Interest is good in all our work. The whole group works harmoniously as they have done through the years. The writer is finishing his fifth year of ministry with the growing group. A substantial increase in salary as of February 1 is appreciated. I hope only that I can deserve such expressed confidence and proved worthy before God. We are not void of mistakes and if God were not merciful we would lose hope.

Fred W. McClung, P. O. Box 84, Fayetteville, Arkansas, February 2: Since my last report we lost in death one of our elders, Brother D. B. Hebbard. Three have been baptized, seven restored and four have placed membership. Wednesday I am to preach the funeral of Sister S. D. Bryant at Anson, Texas. I have never known a woman to try harder to be a faithful Christian since I converted her from the Baptist Church about two years ago. Make your plans to attend the "Young Peoples Camp" and "Old Fashioned Camp Meeting" on top of Mt. Sequoyah, here at Fayetteville, in the beautiful Ozark Mountains July 11-19. Send in your reservations not later than June 15th to Church of Christ, Box 84, Fayetteville, Arkansas. If you can teach or preach during this meeting then notify us at once.

Charles M. Adams, Box 285, Cleveland, Oklahoma, January 26: I have in the months that have passed visited different congregations in the interest of using the newspaper of their cities and communities, along with other means such as the radio, etc., to preach to the untold thousands that will never attend church services where the truth is preached. We write a short article for our own paper. The cost is not very much when we consider the great number of people who read the paper. The interest is further evidenced by the great number of letters and telephone calls that come to us. Also our attendance and interest is much increased. We are happy to report that the church in our city is growing in every good way. One baptism here yesterday. May I urge all who read these lines to investigate the wonderful opportunity that is offered through the newspaper of your own city to preach the gospel to the masses. The Roman Catholic Church is gaining many followers daily as a result of the printed page. Are you concerned? Your reaction will determine your interest in preaching the gospel to this vast audience.

Walter E. Bankes, 2 South Tasmania, Pontiac, Michigan, January 30: Pontiac, Michigan, had a good year in 1952: Eighty responses, with 40 baptisms. Our house (seating 300) overflows, with peace and harmony. Plans call for a larger and more satisfactory church home in the near future as class rooms are bulging and facilities are inadequate. A lectureship of one week precedes our meeting with Allen Killom, of Springfield, Tennessee. Preachers C. C. Burns, Hobart Ashby, Harold Hawley, Ken Maynard, O. D. McKendree, and Roy Wilson, in order named, preach in our lecture series beginning February 2nd. The church at Rochester, Michigan, was established last year by Pontiac, and we will be happy to contact your friends in the Rochester Area, as well as Pontiac.

Arley E. Moore, Box 984, Astoria, Oregon: Nearly three years ago we moved to Coos Bay to establish a congregation. During this time the church grew from five to forty members. Twenty-one were baptized, eight were restored, and forty-two placed membership. The church began meeting in my home, but now has a nice building, with complete facilities that will be adequate for some time. This building is almost paid for. When this and another small debt is paid, the church will be self-supporting.

One was baptized and two were restored recently. My work with the church at Coos Bay came to a close last week, and we moved to Astoria to build the church. Our work began today with one man making the confession and being baptized at the morning service. He had formerly been a Baptist. Thus we got off to a good start. We have a good nucleus consisting of a few faithful brethren who started meeting regularly last summer. The church meets in the Hughes-Ranson Funeral Chapel. We are much encouraged over the prospects. It will be necessary for me to do secular work to support my family in this work. My work here is under the direction of the elders at Eugene, but the church there is not able to help me financially. If any who read this know of members here or at Tongue Point Naval Base near here, please give me their names and addresses. We ask your prayers in the work here.

Urban Cox, 409 West Elm Street, Tyler, Texas, January 28: I attended a fine singing for first time at North Jefferson Street congregation at Mt. Pleasant, Texas, last Sunday afternoon. The house was full of singers and listeners. Visitors came from Pittsburg, Mt. Vernon, Hughes Springs, Sulphur Springs, Talco, Paris, Cookeville, Daingerfield, Rocky Branch, Bethel, Winfield, Blodgett, and possibly other congregations. We hope and pray that this will open up the way for more singing schools. Bethel was for years the leader in song services and fine meetings and has sent out several preachers and singers from Titus County. The singers will meet there Sunday evening. More training in song work is needed in the church. The harvest is white and grain ready for singing teachers and singers in the vineyard.

Ross W. Dye, 408 N. Marshall, Oklahoma City 10, Oklahoma, February 3: During the first five weeks of 1953 we have baptized four, three have been restored and two have been identified. Our building is now finished and already is quite an asset to the work.

Don Nelson, 867 East Center, Provo, Utah, February 5: Brother Onis F. Case was with us in a gospel meeting beginning January 25th and continuing through February 1st. Brother Case is the regular evangelist for the church in Cortez, Colorado. His lessons from God's Word were a source of strength and encouragement to Christians, as well as instructive in the way of salvation to our many visitors. This was the best-attended meeting we have had in Provo, which can be accredited to extensive advertising and personal evangelism on the part of the members. On the last day of the meeting one young lady accepted the Lord's invitation and was buried with him in baptism. We are praying that several more will soon be ready to follow her example. One highlight to get the meeting off to a good start was a singing held here the first Sunday of the meeting. Almost equal numbers were present from Salt Lake City, Ogden, and Provo.

Plans are being made to have a singing every month at one of the congregations in order to build up fellowship and to promote the Lord's cause in Utah. Our building fund has grown to $1303. With the aid of fellow Christians in other places we were able to add $245 to this fund last month. We are hoping to have enough in the near future to be able to formulate some definite building plans. We now have twenty members and all are pulling together, but your help is vitally needed. At your earliest convenience, please send your contribution to the church of Christ, 867 East Center, Provo, Utah. The Broadway church, Lubbock, Texas, continues to support my wife and me in this work. The elders of that congregation are to be commended for their great program of evangelism.

Monroe Tharp, El Paso, Texas, February 6: Fourteen people were added by transfer and one by baptism to the Montana Street church during January. Preliminary drawings have been made of a planned extension to our educational building which will add three classrooms and two rest rooms. At present we have only eleven classrooms, but we are using the office for a class, and with the auditorium class we have a total of thirteen Sunday morning classes. Quite a number of service men who are stationed at Fort Bliss and at Biggs Air Force Base are worshipping with us here. We are happy to have the names of all whom we should contact while they are here. All who wish us to contact men in the services here may write us, giving names and addresses of the men.

J. D. Pinkerton, 7306 Marcell, Austin, Texas, February 9: On January 27th I moved to Austin to labor with the church that meets at 31 San Marcos Street of this city. This work is beginning in a very pleasant and encouraging manner. Both services yesterday showed an increase in attendance. At the morning service, three were restored to their first love and were added to our number. Two of these, a husband and wife, were at one time identified with the Anti-Bible class brethren. When visiting in the capital city, we shall be glad to have you worship with us.

Dillard Thurman, 1200 E. Richmond, Fort Worth, Texas, February 8: I have accepted the work with the Highland Park congregation in Fort Worth and look forward to a pleasant and profitable ministry with these people. I shall continue the publication of Gospel Minutes. The circulation is growing steadily and we are gratified with the reports of good accomplished.

Herbert L. Newman, 559 West Mariposa Drive, San Antonio, Texas, January 20: M/Sgt. Edward A. Nash, a former member of the West Avenue church in San Antonio, Texas, is now stationed at Itazuke Air Base in Japan. No church of Christ services were conducted at Itazuke Air Base when he arrived; hence, he became very interested in finding other young men who wanted to worship as the New Testament teaches. He located several church members who had no place to worship, and now they are meeting for worship at Strip Chapel on Itazuke Air Base. Anyone knowing of other church members at the same location should write them and urge them to attend the services. Brother Nash may be reached by telephone. His number is Itazuke-66164.

Granville Jones, Box 364, Stinnett, Texas, January 19: Three baptisms last night, making a total of 30 responses to the invitation since August 1, 1952, when we moved here from Laverne, Oklahoma. Thirteen of these have been for baptism, ten identifying as Christians, and seven restorations. This congregation has a mind to work, and God has been good to us in giving the increase to our working forces. Attendance has increased to the extent that our seating capacity is taxed to the limit. A building fund has been included in the new budget for this year. Also included in the budget is a program of mission work. This congregation will send me for two mission meetings this year; so if we can assist you in this way, contact either Arthur Johnson or W. O. Blakeney, elders, or myself. It is a pleasure to work with this congregation.

R. C. Copeland, Jr., Clarendon, Texas, January 20: I continue to enjoy reading the Firm Foundation. We are now in our third year with the congregation here. The budget and plans for 1953 are better and bigger than before, and there is a bright future for this congregation. I have some time open for summer meetings. Congregations interested, please contact me early so a schedule can be completely arranged. Two books that should be in every Christian home are C. R. Nichol's Preacher of Righteousness and Preachers of Today. The book about Brother Nichol is an inspiration to all young preachers and the book about preachers will help all of us to be better acquainted with the great work preachers are doing. Brother Tillit S. Teddlie is scheduled to be with us again in the summer meeting. He did a wonderful job here last summer. May we press onward and actually travail for souls.

Trine Starnes, Box 602, Waco, Texas, February 3: We are in our fifth year of pleasant work with the Columbus Avenue congregation here. A highly successful Parent-Teacher training course was concluded last Friday night. Four Waco churches cooperated. They are: Columbus Avenue, Herring Avenue, Lakeview and South Waco. An average of 315 attended each evening session. Teachers participating were: Wilburn C. Hill, director, Reuel Lemmons, Adults; Sister E. A. Sowders, Pre-School; Sister Frank Pack, Primary; Sister Luther Roberts, Juniors; Sister C. A. Buchanan, Intermediates. Our gratitude is hereby publicly expressed to all these capable and inspirational teachers.

Our Departed

BEESON—Johnny Beeson was born January 21, 1900, at El Reno, Oklahoma. He lived in Grady County, Oklahoma, most of his life. Mr. Beeson was a member of the 16th & Florida Streets Church of Christ at Chickasha, Oklahoma, and died in Vallejo, California, of a heart attack April 9, 1952. Services were held in Chickasha.

WHITT—On Tuesday afternoon, September 30, Brother L. V. Nobles and I conducted funeral services for a fellow preacher. Brother Charles Elmore Whitt died suddenly of a heart attack at his home in Olney on Monday. Funeral services were conducted at the church house in Cherokee, Texas. Burial was in the Hannah Cemetery near Cherokee. Brother Whitt became a member of the church at the age of sixteen at San Benito, Texas, under the preaching of Brother Foy Wallace, Sr. For the last nine years, Brother Whitt had been very active in preaching. He served as minister for congregations at Kirbyville, Sweetwater, Crane, Laird Hill and Olney, Texas; and at Waldo, Arkansas. He was married to Miss Neva Elipse Beasley of Chase, Louisiana, on February 12, 1942. He leaves his widow and three small children, Eugene, Ann, and Sue; also his mother, Mrs. Belle Whitt of Cherokee; one brother, John Whitt of Tyler; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Christian of Port Arthur, and Mrs. Jessie Beasley of Llano. Brother Whitt was a Christian gentleman and a splendid preacher of the gospel. I think I knew him and his work well, having been very closely associated with him both in Arkansas and in Texas.

Agua Dulce, Texas.

LAIRD—Article Lee Laird, 2nd Lt., USAF, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Otis Lee Laird on August 27, 1929, in Huffsmith, Texas. His father preceded him in death. Article was educated in the public school at Tomball, Texas, and at Sam Houston State Teachers College, where he majored in Journalism. His ambition for the future was to be a publisher. After finishing the Officer Training School of the United States Air Force, Lt. Laird was married to Miss Patricia Ann Cloud, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Howard H. Cloud. Their wedding was solemnized in the Base Chapel at Ft. Sam Houston on December 27, 1951. They departed shortly thereafter for their first assignment—Larson Air Force Base, Moses Lake, Washington. It was there that death came suddenly to our beloved Brother in Arms, and also in Christ. With happy plans for reunion with his beloved wife and loving family, he boarded the ill-fated plane for his last flight—the last flight for 87 other men also. On December 20, his spirit winged its way to our God and Creator, and the reunion with his loved ones has been postponed awhile. We believe that reunion will take place some day as surely as we believe God's beautiful promises. Article was a Christian, having been baptized in July, 1944, by Brother M. Roy Stevens. As a Christian, he was a good Airman, a good husband, and we believe he would have been a good father to the baby he had known was to arrive at his home soon. Article did not go to our Maker empty-handed. Through his good influence his wife has embraced the faith, and has found the peace that passes all understanding. Though he lived only 23 years, the world is better for his life, and having done right by his country, his family, and his God, it must not have been hard for him to say, "Goodbye." Surviving Article in addition to his wife are his mother, Mrs. Otis Lee Laird, and sisters, Mrs. John Henschel, and Miss Patricia Ann Laird. It was my privilege to conduct Military and Christian rites in the Ft. Sam Houston National Cemetery, San Antonio, Texas, on December 29, 1952. Assisting with lovely hymns was a quartet from the Harlandale church. The big congregation of relatives, classmates, friends, and at least one former minister bespeak the esteem in which he was held by those who knew him best.

"The flight of another airman is over, his battles are all fought, his victories all won, and as in other days he lies down to rest awhile under the arching sky awaiting the bugle's call."

FRANK TRAYLER
Chaplain (Major), USAF

HUKEL—Brother D. Lee Hukel departed this life at Dallas, Texas, December 17, 1952, and was buried there on the following day. Funeral services were conducted at the Preston Roads church of Christ in Dallas by the writer, assisted by Brother Melvin Wise who read the scripture and Brother Hulen Jackson who lead in prayer. Brother Hukel is survived by his wife, Mrs. Charlsy Hukel, and four daughters: Mrs. Frank Heath, Amarillo; Mrs. Cecil Boyd, Petersburg; Mrs. Wilma Aday, Dallas; and Miss Mary Hukel, Dallas. Brother Hukel was a son of J. S. Hukel, one of our pioneer preachers. He was born in Missouri, in November, 1882, and came to Erath County, Texas, while very young. We grew up on our father's farms adjoining, and it was his request that I conduct his funeral. He was always interested in the study of the Bible and activities of the church. He began local work in 1923, making many sacrifices for the cause of Christ. He worked at Slaton, Clarendon, Crosbyton, Stamford, Coleman, and other places. I think he was most successful in evangelistic work, baptizing thousands in central Texas. He possessed a brilliant mind. He was a successful business man, and a teacher in public schools. These talents he sacrificed for Christ. In his life I saw Christianity at work. In his passing a rich heritage has been left behind. Some day, by the grace of our Lord we shall meet again.

STANLEY GIESECKE

Hico, Texas.

Agustin G. Figueroa L., Apdo. 24818, Admon. 59, Mexico, D. F., Mexico, February 6: Anyone coming to Mexico, please make sure you have the right address where you can find the brethren and meet with them for worship. Since there is not any church building, so far, the services have to be carried on in my home. So, when you come, please be sure not to ask for the church, for more than likely you will fail to get any accurate information. Beginning February 1, my address was changed to: Ave. Insurgentes 1657-101, Mexico, D. F. There is a drug store in the same building, and you can dial their phone number and ask them to call me. The number is 24-56-98. Also, you may write to me, addressing your letters to Apdo. 24818, Admon. 59, Mexico, D. F. The work here continues to prosper some. Though we have met with a few bad breaks and hard times, as ever, we have put our trust in God and he has been merciful and kind to us, granting us more prospects for better results in our efforts. We keep receiving lists of names of people who have been baptized elsewhere and this, of course, is a great help. Also, some have moved to the Capital from other cities throughout the States. We ask you to continue to remember us in your good prayers, that our Lord may see fit to bless our humble efforts and grant us the great blessing of seeing a nice strong congregation of his church established in this great capital. May his grace and love be with you.

Neall Marshall, Fort Worth, Texas, February 4: The year 1952 was another record year, in every respect, for the church here at Diamond Hill. There were 24 baptisms, 26 restorations, and 28 identified themselves. The average Bible study attendance, per Sunday, rose from 135 in 1951 to 183 in 1952. The average contribution, per Sunday rose from $181.35 to $291.24. Our budget for 1953 calls for an average of $300.00 per Sunday. Not only have we met this but gone beyond. The average contribution since the beginning of the year has been $319.98. Several have been baptized since my last report, including one Catholic man in his fifties, and a couple from the Baptist church. In a business meeting of all the elders and deacons, it was agreed that greater unity and harmony prevail here than has ever been known. For all this we bow humbly before God, expressing our thanks.

Levi Gentry, Box 369, Huntsville, Texas, January 30: During the last month of the year four were baptized here. This brought to twenty the number of baptisms during the year, and twenty others were either restored or identified with the local congregation. Our first meeting for this year will come in April. Brother Tex Williams, of Boles Home, Quinlan, is to be with us April 12th through 19th.

BOOK REVIEWS

P. D. Wilmeth

NOT A SPARROW FALLS, and Other Sermons. By Paul Quillian. Abingdon-Cokesbury Press. Nashville, Tenn. pp. 156. 1952. $2.00.

Here is a book of sermons from a highly gifted Methodist preacher, Dr. Paul Quillian. He was the preacher for the First Methodist church in Houston, Texas, the largest church in Methodism. At the time of his death, he was scheduled to become associated with Southern Methodist University in the Perkins School of Theology. These fourteen sermons came from the heart of the man, as he preached them to a large congregation. The sermons were recorded at the time of their delivery.

There is a movement and a fervor in each message that grips the reader as he reads the printed message. This is Methodist preaching at its best. There is the touch of the human appeal in these sermons. Each sermon has a dynamic to it that commends it. No preacher will read this volume without finding a seed-thought for his own sermonic preparation. There is the sense of counsel of guidance in each message, for the many areas of life. Some of the chapter headings will intrigue our readers: Not a Sparrow Falls. The Worth of the Individual. Take Care of Your Heart. A Healthy Humility. To Restore, Not Condemn. Achieving True Peace of Mind. The Preachers in the Pew. God's Service Station, and others.

THE PRESIDENTS, Men of Faith. By Bliss Isely. W. A. Wilde, 131 Clarendon St., Boston, Mass. pp. 284. 1953. $3.75.

Here is a volume that took years to produce. It is the result of twenty-two years of research, and now here it is. The author confesses that had he realized the magnitude of his task before beginning, he would never have begun. Force of circumstances for other articles, books and periodicals, caused him to side-step the final production of this book. But he always came back to his first love and here is the fascinating stories of the presidents. The thesis of the book has to do with the "religious faith" of each president. It is interesting beyond words.

Any one who enjoys biography on a high level, and with facts to supplement the story will not want to miss this book. It will find a happy audience among high school, and college students who may be interested in American history. This scribe's Junior High School boy found enjoyment in this volume while convalescing from an illness. The story of each president is at once captivating. The author begins with George Washington, and concludes with the present incumbent, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Never before has anybody written a book about the Presidents like this one, so throbbing with romance and action, with suffering and bravery, with service and triumph. Complete with full page photographs of each President and a comprehensive index.

"C. R. NICHOL, PREACHER OF RIGHTEOUSNESS"

By

MAUD JONES UNDERWOOD

Published By

THE NICHOL PUBLISHING COMPANY,
Clifton, Texas

This book is a source book for the history for the churches of Christ for the last half century. 1906 is the date given for the first federal census of the churches of Christ as a separate body. The force that led to the separation had been at work for half a century. C. R. Nichol began preaching at a time when these issues were being determined. The progress of the churches of Christ in the Southwest has been determined by men like Brother Nichol. His debates and his clear preaching and his life have been stabilizing influences that have enabled the churches of Christ to make progress.

This book gives the background of a most interesting half century. A number of younger men have written concerning Brother Nichol. These writings are given in the book. These younger men give a view of his life from many different viewpoints. Young men have followed him with great devotion. His influence upon the church has been great. I value this book as a source book. History that is close to us is sometimes misunderstood.

Another interesting feature of this book is the diary. This diary covers quite a span in the life of Brother Nichol. We are told in the book that this came about as a request from his father. This type of literature is most interesting. Historians tell us if it were not for this kind of material the life of John Wesley would not be near so great. Wesley kept a diary and it is not only a source of church history but is a good comment on the every day life of the period. This diary of C. R. Nichol is an insight not only into his activities but gives a background for the economic and social history of the day. We have learned just recently that there may be in existence a diary kept by Alexander Campbell, up until now it has not been found. There is some hint that his family may have destroyed it. If so there may be a page liking in the story of Alexander Campbell.

Mrs. Underwood has rightfully pointed out that C. R. Nichol is a preacher of righteousness. Anyone who wants first hand information concerning one of the most amazing chapters in human history will want to read this book. This amazing chapter is the progress of a group of people who at the turn of the century were without leadership, were without houses to worship in and were spoken against everywhere. These amazing facts will be noted by anyone who will take a journey across our country and see the influence and program of the churches of Christ.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Helpful Adversity

All adversity is not helpful, but some of it is. Very few people are able to see the benefits of adversity at the time it is happening. An inspired writer declares, "Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless, afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby" (Heb. 12:11).

I think the truth of this passage of Scripture has been experienced by the majority of people who try to live right. Men are blind to the profitableness of affliction while they are under its lash, but in years to come its peaceable fruit of righteousness becomes apparent—it is usually called "a blessing in disguise." When Joseph was in prison on a false charge that was disgraceful, the future blessing of this adversity was not visible. He probably could not see the hand of God in his affliction. It looked more like a misfortune than a blessing. But all Bible readers know that Joseph's grievous experience turned out to be a great event in the history of God's people. And the imprisonment of Paul and Silas at Philippi looked like a misfortune, but it gave Paul a great opportunity to preach the gospel in a new field.

Jesus said, "Simon, Simon, behold Satan hath desired to have thee, that he might sift you as wheat" (Luke 22:31). Evidently this was an extremely bitter hour in the life of Peter. Peter thought he was right in his supreme confidence in his own ability to meet a bad situation. He told the Savior that he was ready to go with him to prison and to death, but in fact he was not ready to go with him anywhere. In a few hours Peter denied that he knew Christ. For this he afterward "went out and wept bitterly." Like a great many people now, Peter gave himself credit for having more courage and stability than he actually possessed. On this point Paul gives a timely warning—"Wherefore, let him that thinketh he standeth take heed, lest he fall" (1 Cor. 10:12). Peter thought he knew his own ability to resist temptation, but he did not know all the tricks of the devil.

Source of Strength

A common weakness of men is to fail to recognize the true source of their strength. When the Israelites approached the borders of Canaan, their hearts were filled with fear. They ascertained the strength of their enemies, and compared it with their own weakness. Their blunder was to leave the Lord out of their calculations. It caused them to turn back, and wander in the wilderness.

Paul says, "Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might" (Eph. 6:10). Every time a group of people figure on doing the Lord's work by their own wisdom, they make a failure. When the children of Israel made an alliance with Egypt to fight against the Assyrians, they failed; because the Lord was their only strength in such an undertaking.

Paul says, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" (Phil. 4:13). Paul was constantly ready to fight the battles of life, but he looked to the Lord for victory. He waged his warfare in the name of Christ. He used only the weapons the Lord put in his hands. At no time did he depend on his own wisdom and strength. John writes, "And this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith" (1 John 5:4). This is the victory we all need. The strength of the Lord is available to men in his inspired word.

"A Dangerous 'Ism' "

Claude A. Guild

We have a few brethren promulgating an ideology which does not sound good to this eldership at Riverside, Fort Worth, Texas. It is being advanced by a few that the only sin the sinner commits is to reject Jesus Christ. They do not believe the sinner is held accountable for his attitude toward the gospel or testament of Jesus Christ (I plan in the conclusion of this article to state the motive back of this "ism").

It is a pleasure for me to affirm the scriptures teach that when the sinner rejects Christ, he also rejects the law of Christ. I believe the two are inseparable.

First, this affirmation is sustained with the language of John 1:1-2, 14, 17: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God—And the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us (and we beheld his glory as of the only begotten from the Father), full of grace and truth—For the law was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ." The word "Word" is capitalized in the text, indicating divinity. This Word became flesh and was full of grace and truth. Grace and truth came through Jesus Christ, hence Jesus Christ was the one John had in mind who became flesh and was the Word with God in the beginning. They are inseparable. "He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my sayings, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I spake, the same shall judge him in the last day" (John 12:48).

Brother David Lipscomb in commenting on this passage, said, "Christ and his doctrine are inseparable; to receive his doctrine is to receive him and to reject his doctrine is to reject him—one who was not saved by the word of God made known through Christ would be condemned by that word. These words will be the standard by which in the last day all shall be judged—The word is now the rule of living and it shall be hereafter the rule of judging" (Commentary on John, Pages 202, 203). One who would try to separate Christ from his testament or the law from the lawgiver could very ably separate the eye from its color or the blue from the firmament.

Second, this "ism" ill defines faith. "So belief cometh of hearing, and hearing by the word of Christ" (Romans 10:17). To believe that the sinner rejects Christ but is not obligated to submit to the testament of Christ is a Baptist definition of faith—giving mental consent to the existence of Jesus Christ. On the other hand, the sinner must be taught that to accept Jesus Christ, is to accept him as a person and everything he taught; even Mark 16:16 and Matthew 19:9. Cain was not a man of faith, however, it does not mean that he rejected the Omnipotent Jehovah. The truth about it is, he believed in God but did not believe what God said. "And in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto Jehovah" (Genesis 4:3). Adam and Eve were driven from the garden; not because they didn't believe in Jehovah, but because they didn't believe in what God had said (Genesis 2:15-17).

Third, this "ism" betrays the coming of Christ. These heretics make Christ responsible for sin. If the only sin the sinner commits is to reject him, God did the world injury by sending him to us so that he could be rejected. Too, they fail to realize sin was here four thousand years before Christ came. I have been taught to believe "Every one that doeth sin doeth also lawlessness; and sin is lawlessness" (1 John 3:4). The King James Version says, "For sin is the transgression of the law." This would be a transgression of John 8:24 (rejecting Christ), a transgression of Acts 2:38, or any other principle in the law of the lawgiver.

Fourth, things that are equal to the same thing are equal to each other. This is an hypothesis; although simple in its application, yet very true in geometry. Christ and his word are both called Light (Psalms 119:105; John 8:12). Christ and his word are equal to each other. Christ and his word are both called Truth (John 14:6; 17:17). Christ and his word are both called Life (John 14:6; 2 Peter 1:3; 1 Peter 1:23). Again I say, things that are equal to the same things, are equal to each other.

Fifth, the advocates of this "ism" are unable to reckon with this question: What made individuals sinners in Bible times? The illustrations are in profusion and they are unimpeachable. What made Paul a sinner? Hear his testimony: "For I had not known coveting, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet" (Romans 7:7). Understand, I believe it is a sin to reject Jesus Christ, but I will very vehemently deny this is the only sin the sinner commits. Paul said his difficulties arose over covetousness.

The apostle Paul established the church in Corinth (Acts 18:8). Now, Paul, what made these citizens of Corinth sinners? Hear him in his first epistle to them, "Or know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with men, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God. And such were some of you: but ye were washed, but ye were sanctified, but ye were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and in the Spirit of our God" (1 Cor. 6:9-11). There is no doubt about it, these Corinthians were held accountable for more than rejecting Christ and had made serious transgressions. They were fornicators, idolaters, adulterers, covetous, drunkards, etc. (Some of the champions of this "ism" would dare say the sinner could violate some civil statutes, but not the law of God! May I ask where is the civil statute that forbids covetousness or reviling)? This thing becomes irrefutable with Paul's inspired statement, "And such were some of you."

Paul wrote the brethren in Colosse and described well their condition before they became children of God. "Put to death therefore your members which are upon the earth: fornication, uncleanness, passion, evil desire, and covetousness, which is idolatry; for which things' sake cometh the wrath of God upon the sons of disobedience: wherein ye also once walked, when ye lived in these things; but now do ye also put them all away: anger, wrath, malice, railing, shameful speaking out of your mouth: lie not one to another; seeing that ye have put off the old man with his doings, and have put on the new man, that is being renewed unto knowledge after the image of him that created him" (Colossians 3:5-10). He said these Colossian brethren once walked in fornication, uncleanness, passion, evil desire, covetousness, which is idolatry, and then says, "But now do you also put them all away; anger, wrath, malice, railing, shameful speaking out of your mouth." He exhorts them that "Though they lived in these things," when they became Christian, they "Put off the old man." He also states that the new man is renewed by a knowledge of the will of God.

This is a good time to insert the motive for this doctrine. It could not be stated any clearer than in a recent letter to me from Brother G. C. Brewer, "This interpretation that some are putting on God's word in order to excuse adulterous marriages, is one of the worst perversions of God's word that I have ever come in contact with in my experience of a half century. It is inexcusable and dangerous. I condemn it unsparingly." There's the answer: A few brethren who have too many wives or who have friends who have entered into unholy marriage relations, are trying to excuse themselves or others from the law of marriage ordained by God in the very beginning and would destroy the meaning of repentance to the alien sinner by saying the sinner cannot reject Christ's law but only reject Christ.

This "ism" is under the description of the apostle Paul, "For the time will come when they will not endure the sound doctrine; but, having itching ears, will heap to themselves teachers after their own lusts; and will turn away their ears from the truth, and turn aside unto fables" (2 Timothy 4:3-4). This "ism" heretofore has only appeared on the horizon in Riverside, but this eldership henceforth will consider this a heresy.

Remember these words, "He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my saying, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I spake, the same shall judge him in the last day" (John 12:48).

"The Way of Salvation"

L. R. Wilson

"If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God" (1 Peter 4:11). This is a scripture that all of us have flaunted in the teeth of the sectarians many times, yet few of us heed it. Most of us violate it every day, and in nearly every sermon we preach.

We deride, belittle, and ridicule the denominations for talking about "joining the church," "getting religion," and "opening the doors of the church." Then we talk about "the plan of salvation," "responses to the invitation," and the number of "restorations" we had. We "skin the sects" for their use of such terms as, "Methodist preachers," "Baptist members," and "the Presbyterian manse." Yet we talk freely about "church of Christ members," "church of Christ preachers," "church of Christ picnics," and the "church of Christ parsonage." What's the difference?

What right have we to belittle others for the use of terms which they cannot find in the word of God, while we use a lot of other terms that are not found in the word of God? The reply may be that the idea is there. The idea of some of the denominational terms are just about as close to the word of God as some of the terms we use. It is true that many individual Christians have come to use terms such as "church of Christ members" in a sense that most of us preachers would not approve. But what are we doing to teach them better? Furthermore, we use a number of terms ourselves which are just about as foreign to the word of God as some of the terms that denominational preachers use. A good illustration of this is our use of the term, "The plan of salvation."

There are very few preachers among us who have not preached on this subject. In fact, most of us have written tracts and articles on it. I have before me Young's Analytical Concordance to the Bible, and I am unable to find the word "plan" in it anywhere. I may be told that the idea is there anyway. I am a little doubtful if the idea is there, in the sense we usually think of it. I fear too many of us think of the "plan of salvation" as a mere series of steps to be taken in one, two, three, four order only. Salvation is not a mathematical formula. It is not the product of a set of rules, to be observed in a mechanical fashion. This is not said to discourage the emphasis ordinarily placed on "faith, repentance, confession, and baptism." It is rather said in the hope that we may place greater emphasis upon these living principles which undergird our entire way of life.

The New Testament often uses such terms as, "I am the WAY, the truth, and the life" (Jno. 14:6), "Thou made known unto me the WAYS of life" (Acts 2:28), "Wilt thou not cease to pervert the right WAYS of the Lord?" (Acts 13:10), "These men are the servants of the most high God, who show unto us the WAY of salvation" (Acts 16:17), "This man was instructed in the WAY of the Lord . . . whom when Aquila and Priscilla had heard, they took him unto them, and expounded unto him the WAY of God more perfectly" (Acts 18:25, 26), "And about that time there arose no small stir concerning the WAY" (Acts 19:23), and "I persecuted this WAY unto the death" (Acts 22:4). In view of these and numerous other terms which emphasized the "WAY," would it not be more proper to talk about "the way of salvation," "the way of life," or the "way of the Lord"? If we are going to speak as "the oracles of God" we shall be compelled to change our wording.

Salvation is not a "formula" to be adopted, but a complete change of thinking and living. Indeed, it is "a new and living way" (Heb. 10:20). Once we get this idea clearly in our minds, Christianity means much more to us than it does when we look upon it in a mechanical or mathematical-like fashion.

With regard to the many other terms we use which are not found in the word of God, surely we can improve upon both the verbiage and the thought as well. For example, would it not be much better to talk about "members of the body of Christ" than the denominational idea of "church of Christ members"? In many instances we might use such terms as "Christians," "members of the church," "the followers of Christ," "the disciples," or numerous other terms that have a far less sectarian connotation than the trite, sectarian terms which we have gotten in the habit of using.

Nearly all of our preaching brethren agree to these facts, but what are we doing to teach our people to "speak as the oracles of God"?

The Church's Part in Building Citizenship

B. G. Yount

Citizenship is a relation which each person holds to his society, both by nature and by training. Citizenship is a status conferred by birth, but it is also a function created by education. For there are citizens, and there are good citizens. One must be prepared for the requirements of his citizenship in order to be a good citizen.

This recognizes the responsibility as well as the privilege of a person's citizenship. Society confers blessings and demands—if it is a good society. The demands of society upon its members are determined by the nature of that society. A society is like a person in that it is a living organism and it has a character. What it wishes to be and strives to become fixes the responsibility of its members. Thus, when we know what is a good society, we shall then know also what is good citizenship. Good citizenship will be the individual's effort to make his society what it ought to be.

In the first place, a good society is a self-sustaining society. It has the power to maintain its life, its existence. It is a strong society. Now, since a society partakes of the character of its citizens, a strong society is composed of strong, independent, self-reliant citizens. They bear their own burdens, pay their own way, stand on their own feet. To this end the church has always made a worthwhile contribution. Christianity dignifies honest work, and refuses to condone slackers. "If any will not work, neither let him eat." Work is good for the individual, for in his work a man is using his energies constructively. Work is man's way of maintaining his life, and it shares the dignity and worth of the life it serves to maintain. The work itself may range from the menial to the great professions, from physical toil to artistic creation, but it can nonetheless be significant. To servants, Christianity says, "Whatever ye do, work heartily as unto the Lord." And the masters are warned: "Ye have a Master in heaven." Thus, the status of individuals at the opposite poles of society is dignified and given meaning. There is a special appropriateness in this teaching of the church to the conditions of today. For society is being weakened by a parasitic growth that saps its vitality and in the long-run is fatal to its life. Certain ones have come to expect their society to be responsible for them, rather than to think of themselves as responsible for their society. They want hand-outs, or they want special economic privileges, or they want subsidies. This "give me" complex is a far cry from the sturdy, proud, economic hardihood of our forefathers. And there is a tell-tale strain that is evident on the face of our society.

In the second place, a strong society is a cooperative society. There is an admitted tension between the competitive aspect of society, necessarily involved in the economic independence of its citizens as just described, and the cooperative aspect. But a strong, dynamic society is always able to blend these conflicting elements into a higher harmony. The Christian tradition of citizenship training goes back to the beginning to God's first questions to man—sharp, searching questions that fastened forever on mankind his primary responsibilities. "Where art thou?" and "What is this thou hast done?" God asked Adam and Eve when they were attempting to dodge their personal responsibility. "Where is thy brother?" God demanded of Cain, who was trying to edge out of his social responsibility. And these questions are still pressed upon us in that order. We are responsible, each for his own life, but also for the lives of others. The strong are always obligated to help the weak. So that, rather than leaving the weak to pull society down to their own level of weakness, we are concerned to lift them up to share the strength of the whole. In our society, therefore, we regard the weak as unfortunate, but still worthy of help to achieve their true dignity of personal independence and self-reliance. "Bear ye one another's burdens" is the teaching of the word. Since a society cannot claim to be stronger than its weakest citizens are strong, then it is of tremendous importance that society sees to it that its weaker members are provided with the opportunities to become stronger. The spirit of the community is to be seen in the spirit of mutual concern and helpfulness that is exhibited by the members of the community. None lives to himself nor for himself if he is a good citizen.

Another side to this communal spirit is its interest in supporting community programs that are designed for the general benefit. The P. T. A. is a community builder of recognized worth. There are other programs that start with the youngsters and include the oldsters, all depending upon the interested support and participation of the members of society for their effectiveness. A good citizen recognizes that his time and energy belong in part to community projects.

Finally, a strong society is a healthy society morally. Its citizens must be reliable, honest, trustworthy. Where they are not there is confusion, suspicion, fear, and disorder of every kind. Immorality is a disease that must be isolated, doctored, and overcome. When infections are rampant, society is sick. It can die. Our society today needs desperately to find healing for the ills contracted from the unscrupulous, the irresponsible, and the corrupt. Their putrescence is appalling. As Dr. Willard L. Sperry, in the Virginia Quarterly Review, has said, "The most sobering fact in the world is the general decline of conscience." We are suffering the ills of perverted consciences now. This is evident in that many follow "the best policy", rather than asking and answering honestly the basic question of all: "What is right?" The church insists on this high moral principle. It is the teaching of the Christ that no man is moral until he professes his allegiance to what is right and holds inflexibly to what is true. The Christian man goes beyond the question of what is legal to what is moral. He does not ask what can he do, but rather what should he do. He knows that truth and right cannot be bent to devious ways of dealing. His moral roots extend backward through history to Moses, who, upon denouncing Pharaoh's oppression of the Israelites and rounding up the oppressed for "history's first labor walk out," received a set of ten commandments which made high and pressing demands, socially and personally, upon the people. The Christian remembers how Amos, the Prophet, hurled rebukes at the easy evils of his day, and how Elijah, Nehemiah, Jeremiah, Hosea, and Micah were scourgers of social and political sin. He is inspired by John, called the Baptist, who issued a rousing summons to repentance, not only to individuals, but so pointedly aimed at high placed sinners that they had to chop off his head to silence his tongue. From the Lord he hears the words: "Ye are the salt of the earth; but if the salt hath lost its savor, wherewith shall it be salted? . . . Ye are the light of the world." And he never forgets that his Lord is "the way, the truth, and the life." He knows that the springs of his morality are hidden in the Lord himself. In this fact is the power of the church's teaching and life. When men forget Jesus Christ, they forget the constraints that hold them true to right and faithful to truth. Modern times have shown us, as ancient times have not, that "where there is no God, there is no man." Human values go hand in hand with the divine. When one is lost, the other is forfeited. What we need today is a consciousness of God, that we may also be conscious of the values, the needs, the dignity of man.

The Pacific Christian

J. Emmett Wainwright

"Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them. For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple" (Rom. 16: 17, 18).

Identity. The above scripture has been subjected to much abuse by extreme partisans; it has been avoided by many, and made void by others. Who is qualified to do the marking? Whom disqualified to be marked? Whose marking meets the scriptural standard of divine recognition? Those who cause "divisions" and "offenses" contrary to the teaching of Christ as handed down (tradition) by the inspired apostles. Not divisions among factions; nor offended offenders of partisan patronage. Those who use subtle means, by direction and indirection, of reaching the gullible with suave (sweet) whisperings—talebearing; brazen or subdued speech which is designed to smear the non-partisan in the mind of the innocent—simple. Many would-be markers have wound up badly marked by clear thinking Christians who are acquainted with the word of God and humanity—including the brethren.

Honored! Humble and worthy servants of the Lord have been highly honored by three groups of partisan bigots; honored by indirection and exclusion, that is: (1) The speculators who wrest the Scriptures to their own destruction. (2) The Amalgamists—those endeavoring to merge divergent religious groups, for or against some human theory, while compromising on many other errors. (3) The Exclusivites who delight in parading their self-righteousness as regards means, methods and expedients—rendering unlawful that which is lawful. Sadly, the ancient sects of the Israelites—Pharisees, Sadducees, Herodians, Zealots, and Essenes have been excavated and personified; archaeology at its worst. Alas! Some of us have been seriously marked with many operations on our bodies; scarred lungs and hearts. Our minds have been scarred with human blunders because of inefficiency and poor judgment in matters incidental—reminders which helped us improve along the rugged pathway. We contemplate righteous judgment by him who justifies and condemns (Rom. 14:1-12).

Dedication. "Let your conversation be without covetousness; and be content with such things as ye have: for he hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee. So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me" (Heb. 13:5, 6).

Studies In Galatians (No. 4)

R. C. Bell

Even when Paul writes about himself, his self-effacement before God in both nature and religion is apparent. In nature: "God, who separated me, even from my mother's womb"; in religion: "And called me through his grace, to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the Gentiles" (1:15, 16). In writing about himself, his purpose is ever to glorify God, never himself. Paul felt that God had set him apart, at the very beginning of his life, from all other men as his particular apostle to the Gentiles. He saw no more place for human merit in his religious than in his fleshly life. Both were gifts entrusted from God. "When God gets ready to do something great for fallen man, he begins with a baby." Cosmopolitan Paul surely was a divinely prepared and appointed man unto the apostleship for Gentile nations. How many such appointed servants God now has scattered over the earth is something to think about. "Is anything too hard (or too good) for Jehovah?" (Gen. 18:14).

In the closing verses of chapter one, Paul proves that he needs neither instruction nor authentication from other apostles: first, before he saw an apostle, he preached successfully in Damascus (Acts 9:29-35); second, when he first went to Jerusalem three years after his conversion, he saw none of "the twelve" except Peter; and third, after this short, inconsequential visit with Peter he independently executed an extended, fruitful ministry in Syria and Cilicia. He might have told the Galatians that he also brought the gospel to them, without further contact with the apostles.

During all these years the churches of Judæa, though they had not met Paul, knew the story of his life, "and glorified God in" him. In Paul's writing the Galatians that Judæan brethren, who had never seen him, thanked God for him, I think I see gentle rebuke and tender pleading for the alienated Galatians, who had known him in closest, personal intimacy, and who had until so recently loved and trusted him fully. Paul was shocked and deeply hurt by their capricious desertion of him and the gospel. Not this human hurt, however, but the fact that "the truth of the gospel" was endangered, accounts for his determination not to compromise the independence of his apostleship.

Paul's object in the first two chapters of Galatians is to show that he, individually and independently, received his apostolic commission from Christ after he ascended to his Father, just as the original apostles, collectively, received theirs from him before he ascended. In the first chapter, he boldly affirms that upon this prime fact he stakes his authority as an apostle, gives historical evidence that his work was approved by God, and takes oath ("before God, I lie not") that his affirmation and collateral proof are true. How earnest, positive and final he is about the apostleship being twofold. Now, he is ready in the second chapter to make his second argument, namely, that the church in Jerusalem formally endorsed him as an independent apostle, with a new work from God.

Paul Vindicated in Jerusalem

(Gal. 2:1-10)

The unity and fellowship of the church in Antioch, composed largely of Gentile Christians, was soon disrupted by the coming of legalists, "deceitful men," from Judæa, who taught the necessity of circumcision for Gentile disciples. Inasmuch as this heresy perverted Christianity so as to destroy its very foundation principle, "Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and questioning with them" (Acts 15:2). But it was the wisdom and will of God that this constitutional question pertaining to the all-sufficiency of his grace in Christ should be taken to Jerusalem, where the church began, that "the apostles and the elders, with the whole church" there, guided by the Holy Spirit, should go into the matter thoroughly, and with deliberation and finality hand down a decision once for all. Consequently, under God's overruling providence, "The brethren (at Antioch) appointed that Paul and Barnabas . . . should go to Jerusalem . . . about this question" (Acts 15:2). (These passages in Galatia and Acts refer to the same occasion, supplement each other, and should therefore be studied together).

Let us now consider the use Paul makes of this divinely prearranged, pivotal meeting in his second argument to establish his independent apostleship. He says that he "went up by revelation" to Jerusalem, taking with him Titus. Titus, being Paul's Gentile fellow-worker who had never been circumcised, would be a test case in the atmosphere to bring out the Christian truth.

Some in the meeting who did not understand how differently grace and law work in the human soul, probably thought that much ado was being made over a small matter, but to Paul, who saw into the heart of things, greatest issues were involved. With him it was a matter of life or death, for if the decision should be circumcision for Titus, "the truth of the gospel," Christian liberty, and his years of work among the Gentiles would all be lost. But he so skillfully presented the whole truth and so boldly stood his ground against the troublemakers "privily brought in, who came in privily to spy out our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage," that the church decided Titus, having access to all Christian privileges and blessings already, could "press on unto perfection" without being circumcised. Therefore, Christianity, free from restrictions of rite and race, is a universal religion.

Moreover, Paul tells the Galatians that the other apostles imparted nothing to him. Rather, when they saw that God had entrusted him with the apostleship to the Gentiles as he had Peter with the apostleship to the Jews, and when they saw the grace that was given to him, Peter, James, and John, "They who were reputed to be pillars," gave him and Barnabas "the right hands of fellowship." Doubtless the Judaizers in Galatia had said that the leaders in Jerusalem stood with them, but Paul by showing instead that they were with him, turned the tables on them. Paul's vindication and triumph were incomplete. The perverters of the gospel suffered a crushing defeat. When the church in Antioch, where the question came to a head, heard of the divinely ordained division of the apostleship between Paul and Peter, and other results of the meeting, "they rejoiced for the consolation." Neither Antioch nor Galatia nor any other place of any time or country should have never been troubled again by the mixture of the systems of law and grace.

What Does The Bible Say?

A Business-Woman Converted to Christ!

Does this title sound familiar? You might think we were talking about some respected business woman of today. But we are talking about a business woman, a saleswoman for expensive purple cloth, who was three hundred miles away from her home on a business trip. She is Lydia, and you will read of her conversion to Christ in Acts 16:14-15.

You remember that last week we noticed that Paul saw a man in a vision saying: "Come over into Macedonia and help us." He came to Macedonia (northern Greece) and to the Roman colony-city of Philippi. He went out to find Jewish worshippers on Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath. But instead of a man he found a group of women worshipping God according to the old Law of Moses. Paul preached Christ to her and the Lord opened her heart to receive the gospel that was preached and she and her "household" or companions with her were baptized.

In this simple account of these women obeying the gospel we have the first story of the church of Christ spreading to the continent of Europe. Small beginnings are not to be despised. This small beginning grew on the continent of Europe until millions became simple New Testament Christians. This beginning resulted in more impact upon the life of Europe than the marches of Caesar, Charlemagne, Napoleon, or Hitler. Who can tell what will be the impact of the planting of this same seed of the Kingdom, the Word of God, in the hearts of sincere people in Japan, China, Germany and France, Italy, and Africa today?

Let us notice one or two questions that may be asked about this case-history of conversion. First, some have wondered why these moral, religious women needed to obey the gospel. They were living in good conscience before God according to the law of Moses. Why did they need to change? It matters not how moral one may be, he or she needs to hear the gospel of Jesus Christ, to believe in him as the Son of God, and trusting him, repent and put him on in baptism (Gal. 3:27). So we plead with all good, moral citizens not to depend upon their own morality for salvation, but to throw themselves upon the mercy of God through Jesus Christ. If morality alone is enough to save us, then Jesus died in vain on the cross.

Secondly, some wonder how the Lord opened Lydia's heart? Nothing in the text indicates a miracle. The Lord knew of her sincerity as he did of Cornelius' and guided Paul to her to preach the gospel which "is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth . . ." (Rom. 1:16). Paul explains this further by saying that it pleased God by the "foolishness of preaching to save them that believe" (1 Cor. 1:21). If you will sincerely read the gospel or hear it preached today God will grant you an open heart to believe and obey it as Lydia did.

Thirdly, some have wondered if the household of Lydia included infants and if this passage authorized infant baptism? There is no reference to infants. It seems from verse 13 that her household consisted of "women," who probably helped her in her business. Meyer states that of the baptism of infants "no trace is found in the New Testament." Neither the New Testament nor secular history bears witness that infants were ever baptized in the first century. Jesus said: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved . . ." (Mark 16:16). Children do not need to be saved because they are not yet guilty of sin. Baptism for infants grew out of the later human doctrine that children are born in sin and damned. The Bible doesn't so teach. New Testament baptism is only for penitent believers. Children are innocent of sin and are not old enough to believe. They should be brought to maturity by devoted Christian parents who teach them the way of the Lord.

"When I Was A Child"

John W. Hedge

In the Firm Foundation, issue of November 25, there appeared an article by Brother Robert P. Stewart under the above heading. The article has to do with the attitude of certain brethren toward others whom they regard as teachers of error in the churches of Christ. Brother Stewart tells us that there have been "whispering campaigns" and "printed reverberations" carried on and that such has resulted in "some fine preachers and other brethren being 'black-balled' in the brotherhood," and adds that "such is nothing short of emanations from the pit." Continuing he says, "The most effective way at present to turn a sizable portion of the brotherhood against a man is to call him a name: 'Premillennialist,' 'modernist,' 'softie,' etc. To call one a 'premillennialist' is probably the most popular way to damage a man's influence in the church. The reason for this is that in recent years much has been done to make known the error of this pseudo-theory, and yet there are many among us who know little or nothing about it."

To the above I would add that it is certainly wrong to falsely accuse anyone whether in "whispering campaigns," "printed reverberations" or otherwise. But if there be those in the churches of Christ who are actually guilty of teaching premillennialism and modernism, is it wrong to "mark them" by calling them what they are? Do we not need to safeguard the churches against the inroads of error? If one is not guilty of teaching these and other errors in the churches it would be an easy matter for that one to defend himself against all false charges by "reproving and rebuking" those who are actually guilty of such. I am persuaded that the apologetic attitude of certain "fine preachers and other brethren" for those who actually teach these errors is the thing which has led to the charges referred to in Brother Stewart's article. When those who teach the "pseudo-theory" of premillennialism are held up as "martyrs" and "persecuted" such strengthens the hands of the wicked and he will not turn from his way. I'd rather have my lot cast with those who are reproving and rebuking such teachers than to be aligned with those who are apologizing for their disastrous work in the churches. Church discipline of false teachers can never be effective so long as we have those who apologize for it. We need to remember the admonition, "If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him Godspeed. For he that biddeth him Godspeed is a partaker of his evil deeds" (2 John 10, 11).

WORLD WIDE EVANGELIZATION

The world today sorely needs the glorious gospel of the Christ. It needs his law, his teaching, his promise of life and hope. The gospel of the first century was carried to all the world. This was the order of the Savior in the great commission, and the apostles faithfully carried out their Lord's instruction. They went everywhere preaching the word with a confidence, diligence, and persistence that became the amazement of all the peoples in all lands. They were fully persuaded that their message was from heaven, and that it was world-wide and age-lasting, and they faced the most obstinate, determined and persistent opposition with a calm, resolute determination and an unconquerable courage that led them through the most violent persecution and even to death in defense of the gospel they preached. Never were men more consistent and united in what they taught and more courageous in its proclamation.

And today it is the same gospel that the world needs.

The apostles of our Lord in the first century of the Christian era were sent forth to herald the glad tidings to the whole creation. The people of that day and age are all gone; they slumber in the dust to await the resurrection. And all the generations succeeding one another during the centuries since that time were entitled to the precious message of hope in the gospel of Christ. What is our attitude toward our obligations and duties in view of the fact that through God's good and gracious providence, we have heard the gospel, and share heaven's benevolent promises in the pardon of our sins and the salvation of the soul? Most assuredly as faithful men in Christ we are under obligation to the extent of our ability and opportunity to preach the gospel to all the world. At the present time much is being done to tell the glad story in many parts of the world and thousands are being saved. In this we rejoice and our hearts go out in gratitude to all of those who are engaged in a service at once so important, so benevolent, so grand and glorious. They should have our cooperation, our prayers and fellowship.

ST. JOHNS, NEWFOUNDLAND

Alvin O. Stevens

I have corresponded with a small group of service personnel in St. John's, Newfoundland, recently who have done what I did not do while I was there. They have begun the Lord's work in that country. I feel the Lord himself had a hand in it since all has worked out so timely. (Their work begun and our preparation being complete in June).

The few Christians meeting in St. John's (15) have informed me that $300 per month would cover the "bare necessities" of an "economizing couple." The few that meet there (15) feel they can support one couple to the extent of $150 per month. Think of it! If 15 people love the Lord enough to sacrifice and enable his church to be planted in Newfoundland, surely of the one and one-half million (roughly) that claim they love the Lord, we should be able to raise $450 a month to enable those who really desire to work with these people an opportunity to fulfil the responsibility we all have to the Lord.

In short, two couples are ready and desirous to go to Newfoundland in June of 1953 to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. They are anxious that some zealous and experienced preacher and his wife go with them to lead them in the work. One of the young men has spent a year among the people and knows many of their ways and habits. Finances will run $300 per month per couple ($150 already promised by the 15 service personnel and families.) Oversight of the work is something which must be accepted by some strong, interested eldership.

We pray that all will earnestly consider our plea and let us hear from you. We are willing to furnish you with all the information we have and will obtain in the future. Pray for us whether you can support us or not.

FROM UVALDE, TEXAS

The churches in Southwest Texas are growing, but there is still much to be done. There are many small, weak congregations and then, vast areas without a member of the church. I recall with pleasure at many times, going out with faithful gospel preachers where there were few or no members at all, pitching our tent, going among the people, calling their attention to our work and mission and bringing together large crowds to hear us preach and sing the gospel. Fifty-two men were baptized in one such meeting. Plain, sound preaching, coupled with good gospel singing made the occasion of many people dedicating their lives to the service of Christ. I am destitute of words to express my esteem and appreciation of such preachers. They seemed to have a love for the souls of men, and were imbued with a sort of godly jealousy—not willing for the devil to take such a heavy toll of precious souls. They did not seek the smooth, even places, but rather chose the hard, difficult places. May the Lord reward them for their devotion to him. There are millions of young people, and perhaps as many adults, ready to hear the story of the cross right here in our reach. The work of leading people to Christ affords much joy, happiness and comfort. A preparation of heart, as well as an ability to teach and preach, is involved in such work. Christ would say, "Why stand you here all the day idle. Go out into the highways and hedges and constrain them to come in" (Luke 14:23).

How many vacant lots and shady spots on the banks of the rivers are there where people should be gathered and taught the way of salvation this spring and summer?

REPORT FROM CAMP KOKURA

The work at Camp Kokura, Japan, was started in August, 1952, with services being held each Sunday at the Camp Kokura chapel, and mid-week Bible study being held in one of the homes. Our crowds vary from about eight to a high of about sixteen. We are favored on occasions with men from Korea who are visiting in Japan on leave. It is believed that we would have more visitors if members of the church in the states who have relatives in Korea would tell them of the work in Kokura. Kokura has one of the three rest centers for Korean fighting men, so if you have a friend or relative in Korea, please notify him of the work here so if he does come to Camp Kokura he can contact us.

In December, 1952, we baptized a soldier (Pfc. Robert Kennerman from Alabama) and on February 11, 1953, we baptized a Japanese student who has been attending our services regularly for several months. We were very happy at his obedience, and pray that he may be a source of reaching other Japanese. We plan to put him in touch with some of the regular missionaries in Japan, in order that they may lend encouragement to him, and possibly result in his attending the Christian school at Ibaraki, Japan.

As the situation now stands, all of the members who attend regularly and take an active part in the work will be returning to the states during 1953. We are praying that others may move into this area to carry on the work.

Brother Doyle White, a Warrant Officer, stationed at the U. S. Army Hospital in Fukuoka (APO 1105, c/o P.M., San Francisco, California) has started a work at Itazuke Air Base, about ten miles from Fukuoka, and about 50 miles from Kokura. If you know any members of the church in that vicinity, please have them contact Brother White at the hospital or at his home at Itazuke Air Base.—ROLAND JOHNSON, 1st Lt., Hq. 441st CIC Det., APO 3, c/o P.M., San Francisco, California; O. ANOTHER "OAK RIDGE" BEING BUILT IN SOUTHERN OHIO

E. L. Flannery

The federal government has already begun construction on the one billion two hundred and nineteen million dollar atomic plant in Pike County, Ohio. Workers will be pouring into this area in increasing numbers, reaching an estimated peak of nearly 30,000 in about two years. When completed the plant will need at least 4000 operators. Many members of the church of Christ have worked on all previous A.E.C. projects, at Oak Ridge, Tennessee; Augusta, Georgia; Richland, Washington, and Paducah, Kentucky. The church has been greatly strengthened in all places where these atomic projects have been built by the government. We hope such will be true in Southern Ohio, where digression swept so clean some decades ago. To enable Christians to easily find a place of worship we list below all churches within close range of the atomic project. Brother Walter Nichols, who is working with the congregations of Scioto County, has been designated to contact Christians moving into the Piketon area. His address is: 709 Adams Street, Portsmouth, Ohio. He is able to supply information concerning the churches herein listed, as well as any other congregation even in a wider circle than mentioned here. Let me strongly urge all parents to write Brother Nichols if you have Christian children moving to this project, giving him their names and addresses. They need not miss a single Lord's day assembly.

Following is the list of towns, addresses, and people to be contacted:

Portsmouth, Ohio, Grant and Summit Streets, Bill Fain, minister, Ed Bachman, elder; Sciotoville, Ohio, Harding Avenue, Alvin C. Bullington, minister, Roger Brady, elder; Friendship, Ohio, one-half block off U.S. Route 52, Drew Book, Buena Vista, Ohio; Lily Chapel, 12 miles east of Portsmouth on State Route 140, Everett Lemon, Wheelerburg,

Ohio; Sunshine, 2 miles south of Minford on State Route 335, D. L. Coriell, Rt. 2, Sciotoville, Ohio; Chillicothe, Ohio, 190 South Hickory Street, one block off U.S. Route 35, E. H. FROM JOHN F. WOLFE

My last two meetings with churches in Mexico resulted in ten baptisms. The six who obeyed the gospel at Jimenez included a man who will have much influence for good, and two splendid young men.

On arriving in Jimenez, the first thing I noticed was a printed "Open Letter" plastered prominently on a wall. It was signed by the leader of a Catholic organization and denounced Brother Rodriguez, our preacher there, as a heretic and false teacher. It appealed to almost every prejudice, and concluded with the assertion that the people would never give up their religion or be de-Mexicanized through the influence of dollars sent from the United States of America. Notwithstanding such tactics, Brother Rodriguez has gained the respect of a majority of the people, including town officials and businessmen. The church there is growing.

Sabinas, where my next meeting was held, is a thriving town in Northern Coahuila. Brother Lazaro Cisneros preaches for this congregation of about 30 members, though without any regular support. The last Sunday of the meeting we held our Bible school on the banks of the river, followed by the baptismal service for the four who had confessed their faith.

This church, though small, is active in service. Two of the sisters have regular days for visiting, and one of the men, Brother Romulo Cantu, has begun a mission work in the near-by town of Agujita where he has had as many as 36 present to hear the gospel. I promised to return to this field in May.

I shall continue to devote much of my time to these mission meetings among our churches in Mexico. Next week I will be in Matamoros, then two weeks in Torreon. Churches interested in spreading the gospel in Mexico are invited to have fellowship. Special need at present is for support for a few of our Mexican preachers who are preaching with no promise of help whatsoever, and at great sacrifice. Write me if you are interested.

Malcom P. Hinckley, 3634 E. Gage, Huntington Park, California, February 16: Yesterday three more were added to the congregation. A young couple were baptized, and a lady placed membership. The Lord is prospering us, indeed.

Silas Triplett, 812 Clark, Marlin, Texas, February 19: Two placed membership and one was baptized here recently. We have visitors from many places who come here for the mineral baths. Buy you a home in this friendly town of 7,000 population. The climate in this part of Texas is grand.

Paul T. Dumm, 35 Piedmont Avenue, Charleston, South Carolina, February 16: We are happy to report one restoration and four to place membership in the past two weeks. Ground is being broken today for a building for the colored congregation in Charleston. Truly the Lord is blessing our efforts.

James W. Huggins, Box 72, Gunter, Texas, February 16: Four have placed membership with the College Hill church since the first of the year. One of the four came from the Christian Church, two from the anti-class church and one moved to the Home. When near here, come and worship with us and visit the Home for the Aged.

A. E. Findley, Refugio, Texas, February 16: The church here has asked us to remain another year and gave us a raise in salary. Brother C. R. Nichol will hold our spring meeting April 1-12. We are fortunate in securing the services of this great man of God. We have ordered more seats to accommodate our increased attendance.

Oliver Murray, 421 Oaklawn, Lafayette, Louisiana, February 19: Please note the change of dates of our singing school and gospel meeting. We had announced them to be March 23-28 and May 4-15. The corrected dates are: Singing school with T. A. Nicks, March 15-22; gospel meeting with Gus Nichols, March 23-April 2.

Houston P. Hollis, Metropolis, Illinois, February 16: Two were baptized yesterday, husband and wife. The work continues here in a very fine way. Floyd Decker will be with us in a meeting beginning first Sunday in April.

Martin Kamstra, Box 143, McCamey, Texas, February 16: One was baptized and one restored in McCamey during January. One was baptized and one restored during recent six night mission meeting in Texon. Five were baptized in mission meeting last fall at Rankin, Texas.

M. E. Waldrum, Box 446, Santa Rosa, New Mexico, February 18: There have been four baptisms recently. Attendance has held up well through the winter. Tourists planning to come through Santa Rosa should stop over for worship. Three of the leading highways, 66, 84, 54, come through here. Brother Grandol Forehand of Las Vegas holds our meeting April 5-12.

Nyal D. Royse, Normandie Avenue at 64th Street, Los Angeles 44, California, January 6: Many inquiries have come in and according to plans we are to leave New York June 15 and arrive back here July 3. Space is very scarce and we are making every effort to materialize the trip this month. That will insure our reservations. I will keep you posted about the trip from time to time.

A. R. Holton, 145 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville 3, Tennessee, February 16: Central Church of Christ, Nashville, Tennessee, spent $7,380.35 for benevolent purposes in the city of Nashville outside of the United Charities. This was the largest contribution of any church in Nashville for this purpose. This work is carried out by Mrs. J. B. Isom under the direction of the elders of the church.

Sam Medford, Route 1, Box 456, Creswell, Oregon, February 16: The London Church of Christ, twelve miles south of Cottage Grove, and 35 miles from Eugene in the Willamette Valley, wants a preacher who will support himself partially and preach. They will pay twenty dollars a week and have a furnished house close to the church. For further information, write E. M. McEwen, Black Butte Route, Cottage Grove, Oregon.

W. F. Showers, Box 104, Pleasanton, Texas, February 16: Robert C. Welch, former minister here and now of Louisville, Kentucky, will preach in our spring meeting which begins on Sunday, March 22, and closes on Wednesday, April 1. Nine have responded to the Lord's invitation since the first of the year with four of these for baptism. I shall be with the church in Fritch, Texas April 13-23. John Brosech is the minister there.

Earl E. McCord, Corning, Arkansas, February 19: We had two restorations February 8. Brother Edgar Knaeble, a German boy, who is studying at Harding College, was with us and preached at the eleven o'clock and evening services. Brother Marshall Corner will be with us in July for our meeting. I have some time not taken yet I could help you in your meeting leading the singing or teaching the congregation to sing better.

J. D. Pinkerton, 7036 Marcell Street, Austin, Texas, February 17: Both services last Sunday showed an increase in attendance. Four were restored to their first love at the morning service, two men and their wives. One young man confessed wrongs at the evening service. Our place of worship is at 81 San Marcos Street, which is two blocks south of East First and one block east of East Avenue.

Herb Swinney, Box 7, Coleman, Texas, February 7: Please notice my change of address. I am now working with the church in Coleman, Texas. Brother Dan Fogerty left the church in splendid order. The Coleman church has five qualified elders and twelve active deacons. We are enjoying a mid-week attendance of over 300 with over 600 in Lord's day morning services. One has been baptized and two have been restored to their first love since last week.

Walter W. Leamons, Junction, Texas, February 8: Here at Tenth Street church we are busy in preparation for the meeting to be conducted by Brother Marshall Davis, minister of the Fairgrounds Road church in San Angelo. In addition to 48 hours a week spent in secular work, the good Lord gives me strength and opportunity to visit the sick, bury the dead, and proclaim the unsearchable riches of Christ. What more could one want of life?

Lee Starnes, 1233 E. Bennett, Springfield, Missouri, February 16: On January 9, I underwent surgery in Willis-Knighton Memorial Hospital in Shreveport, Louisiana. Recovery has been speedy, and I am now ready to get into the work again. I am anxious to be busy preferably in evangelistic work. I have some very choice time open for meetings. If you need a meeting, please contact me at above address. I will go wherever needed. I would especially like to have some meetings in Texas.

Robert A. Hawkins, 2129 Madeira Drive, N.E., Albuquerque, New Mexico, February 19: The seven months old Netherwood Park congregation here in Albuquerque moves along nicely with new records set in some department nearly every Lord's day. The membership has already reached 125, and the contribution is near $2.00 per member. Recently four have been baptized and several restored and identified with us. The spirit of the work is the finest which is certainly an inspiration to all.

John H. Banister, 3014 Skillman Avenue, Dallas, Texas, February 18: During January twelve were added to this congregation; eleven being identified and one baptized. Three have been baptized the last week with about six or eight placing membership. Interest and attendance are good. The annual city wide Teacher Training Courses of the Dallas churches of Christ will be held here at Skillman Avenue church March 2-6. All churches in this area are invited to attend. Batsell Barrett Baxter holds our spring meeting March 15-22.

R. C. Copeland, Clarendon, Texas, February 15: The Firm Foundation is getting better and better as time goes along. The special issue was wonderful. Brother Young and all who helped with that edition are to be commended. Some of the subscribers here asked me to write and tell you how much they enjoy the Firm Foundation. Keep up your good work. We are well into our third year with this congregation. Good prospects for the future growth of this congregation, and the desire to grow spiritually gives us encouragement.

Paul S. Gray, P. O. Box 573, Bowie, Texas, February 9: Attendance and contributions are holding up well in spite of sickness. One as been baptized this year. March 1 Weslie Mickey of Fort Worth begins our spring meeting. March 15-25 I will be in a meeting at Nocona. April 12 I begin at Beckley, West Virginia, and April 26 at Seventh Avenue in Columbus, Ohio.

J. T. Marlin, 1503 McCaulley, Sweetwater, Texas, February 16: Two were baptized, one placed membership and three were restored from the Christian Church here yesterday. Those repudiating the errors of the Christian Church were an elder of the First Christian Church here, his wife, and mother. Our Sunday evening services are now being broadcast over KXOX each Sunday evening from 6 to 7 o'clock.

W. L. Fritts, 1707 W. 8th, Texarkana, Texas: The interest at Rose Hill Church of Christ continues to be very good. We are now working in the sixth year with this fine group of Christian people. Since the first of this year, we have baptized thirteen, and had five to confess wrongs, and two to unite with this happy and growing congregation. Our new auditorium was filled to almost overflowing last Lord's day. We are having a well filled house at every service. We would be glad to have you visit us.

Dale Sexson, Box 474, Andrews, Texas: Since moving here six months ago, we closed out the year with sixty additions in our work. Preston Cotham just recently closed a meeting here in which fifteen were added; eight by baptism. Among those baptized one had been a skeptic and two were formerly Baptists. Since the meeting one has been baptized, one restored, and new attendance records set for Bible Study and worship. Palmer Wheeler of Memphis, Texas, will be with us in a singing school the latter part of March. Interest and attendance are at an all time high in Andrews.

Wyndal H. Hudson, Box 130, New Deal, Texas, February 12: I am planning on a return trip to Italy come June of this year. Any congregations interested in this mission program might contact me at the above address. References are Joe R. Chisholm, Box 786, Brownfield, elder of that church; Harrison Mathews, Harris and Irving, San Angelo, Sponsors of Carl Mitchell; New Deal Church of Christ, above address; and M. Norvel Young, Broadway, Lubbock. Our support has not all been promised as of today, but I feel sure there are many who would contribute if they were informed. It was my privilege to labor in Catholic Italy for 32 months, and I am indeed anxious to return there with my wife, and take up my labors once again.

E. W. Stovall, Edmonton Road, Glasgow, Kentucky, February 16: Since my last report there have been two baptisms, two restorations, and five to place membership with the church here. There are many others who are almost ready to obey who are sectarians. We have had over forty additions to our local congregation since I came here the first of May. The church is enjoying its greatest progress at this present time. We are doing more work than ever before. Our contributions are the highest in the history of the church. We are conducting a daily radio broadcast, and the results are gratifying. We are being felt over the coverage. When passing through our section plan to worship with us. You will find a welcome.

E. C. McKenzie, Box 1164, Montgomery, Alabama, February 16: Our work at Catoma Street continues to make steady progress. Last Wednesday night I baptized a Baptist husband and father. Yesterday a man and his wife placed membership with us. The future seems bright and we are happy in his service.

John G. Bills, 4133 Middlesex Drive, San Diego 16, California, February 16: We had a very profitable day with the Linda Vista congregation yesterday. Nine responded to heaven's invitation. Three of the number were baptized into Christ. They all came from the sect world. One was a Catholic and one a Baptist. The first Sunday of March, the Linda Vista congregation will be five years old. We have had 928 responses in all, with 225 being baptized into Christ. More than 100 came from the Catholics, and all but fifteen came from the sect world. Glory to God!!

Leon Savage, McKinney, Texas, February 21: The work with the Davis Street church in McKinney is becoming a great challenge. The work is certainly on the upward move. We have a daily radio program (Monday-Friday). This program is over our local station KMAE and can be heard for a 100 mile radius. Much interest is being manifested by the radio work, and we are looking forward to a great work this year. One has been baptized in direct results of the radio work, and others are about ready. Truly when Jesus said, "Teach them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo I am with you always." In connection with our radio work we offer the audience the free correspondence course. Many are enrolled. When in McKinney, worship with us.

D. H. Perkins, 2005 South Lincoln Street, Denver, Colorado, February 18: The church at this place is encouraged with the highest average attendance for regular services in the history of this congregation. Recently both the morning and evening services on Lord's day surpassed all previous attendance records for regular services. On February 8, a fine man who is now up in years was baptized, and a woman formerly of Texas came to us by transfer of membership. The Lord willing, I will be engaged in meetings soon as follows: Muleshoe, Texas, March 1-11; Melrose, New Mexico, March 12-22; Alamo, Tennessee, April 10-19; and at Fuller Avenue, Dyersburg, Tennessee, April 19-29. The Denver area lectures will be conducted from March 30 to April 3.

A. C. Huff, 1222 S. 49th, Temple, Texas, February 9: Yesterday, February 8, was my birthday, and it was a glorious day. I had the pleasure of preaching last night to a large audience at the Central church. They told me that I spoke forty-five minutes but I am feeling fine today. I asked for a letter shower, but I received a flood. But it did not wash me away. The members of the Central Church wrote me about forty cards and each had from five cents to $1.00 in it—$11.50 in all—to apply on books for me to give to the unsaved, which I appreciate more than anything that I have received. I am enjoying my Talking Bible very much. It enables me to sit and listen to the reading of Scriptures all I want to. I am now 89 and in the prime of life. I am enjoying the fellowship of the Central church. Brother Max R. Crumley is the preacher and a good one too. The church pounded Brother and Sister F. L. Paisley last Thursday night and it was the largest

I ever saw. They could hardly get the groceries in the kitchen, and they received seventy-five dollars in money. He has recovered from his operation and is preaching twice a month at Nolanville. He should be where he could preach and labor with some congregation all the time. He and his wife are faithful servants of the church—pay or no pay. If you have a friend or relative whom you wish to convert, send me the name and I will send a copy of my book. The church here has paid for it.

Dale Sexson, Box 474, Andrews, Texas: The church here sponsored me in a meeting at Okeene, Oklahoma. The church there is getting started but doing well. Six were baptized during the meeting. In Andrews eleven have placed membership, one restored and seven have been baptized the past month. This makes thirty-four additions since the first of the year. Attendance and contribution records have been broken since the first of the year. Our building is full every Sunday.

T. B. Crews, 105 Hardy Avenue, Corsicana, Texas, February 10: Sunday night a young husband, father of two children, was baptized into Christ. When I moved here in October of 1951 I conducted a short eight day meeting. In that meeting the wife of this young husband and father was baptized along with another grown young lady. All three of these baptisms were the result of personal work done by one of our very fine families here at the North Beaton Street church. Other families here have likewise done personal work which has resulted in baptisms during the time I have labored here. Pulpit preaching must be done but I sincerely believe that individual evangelism is the most effective and lasting.

Elton D. Dilbeck, 1335 Granada Drive, New Orleans 22, Louisiana, February 18: Please notice my new address. It has been changed because of some re-zoning in our part of the city. We began our work with the Carrollton Avenue church in New Orleans the last week in January and are persuaded there is every reason to expect an interesting and profitable work during our labors with this group. So far this month three have placed membership, two have confessed faults, and one has been baptized. Howard A. White, Nashville, Tennessee, served this congregation for more than eleven years. For his labors we are grateful. John Davis is also serving this church as local minister. Should you have relatives or friends in our city who should be contacted, write us at the above address.

Arthur U. Johnson, 1414 Briggs Avenue, Parsons, Kansas, February 18: Hundreds, yes, thousands, are passing into eternity unprepared to meet the Lord. What can we do about it? We can, first of all, set a good example so our efforts will bring good results. We can hand out tracts, leaflets and good religious papers like the Firm Foundation and others. We can show a Christ-like attitude when strangers meet with us. We can urge all people we talk with to tune in our radio broadcasts, explaining that they will receive the truth and no harm by so doing. Everybody can pass out cards, leaflets, etc. I am trying to do this kind of work by printing cards and small tracts at a low cost. I well remember an elder who, in our social meetings, used to say, "Brethren, time is passing." So it is, and our opportunities will soon be gone. Pray for more self-sacrificing workers.

Clarence A. Price, Bryson, Texas, February 11: I am now in my fourth year of very profitable work with this good church, but I believe I would like to make a change. I am forty years old, have a faithful wife, and three sons, all Christians. Churches in Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas may contact me here at Box 347. The elders and I would appreciate it if preachers who are looking for a place would not inquire into this place until I announce my leaving later.

W. G. Klingman, 401 North Springfield Avenue, Anthony, Kansas, February 12: Since last November I have been preaching with the small band of faithful in Kiowa, Kansas, only on Lord's day mornings. Some former leaders moved away, others passed to their reward until there are only three men left to do anything publicly. They need a full-time man to live and work with them. My present circumstances and age prevent me from doing the round-the-clock work that any consecrated, conscientious preacher of the New Testament gospel must do these challenging days. Often, these days I all but convulse in tears of joy as I hear and read of the many fine, stalwart young men and women in the Lord who are spreading the kingdom of our Lord throughout the world. Thank God!

Joseph W. Baker, 4147 Loma Alta, San Diego 5, California, February 1: Since our last report the church at Imperial Beach has had nineteen baptisms, sixteen of them in the past six weeks. These results are from the work of the members of the church who make personal contacts from door to door. To God goes all the glory as he has greatly blessed our labors. Our work at Coronado is progressing nicely and some of those baptized were from this place. Two were formerly Catholics. In the not too distant future we are planning to establish another church in San Diego leaving this work in the hands of a competent, sound and faithful minister. We are also looking forward to a meeting which we hope will edify the church and help in the saving of the souls of the lost. Pray for us and this work.

C. D. Smith, 411 S. Main Street, Kermit, Texas, February 13: I am now working with the Westside church in Kermit. This is a small group of working Christians, now meeting in a remodeled barracks building which is much too small for our present needs. We have begun construction on a 40x70 foot building and plan to use the old building for class rooms. This is going to be quite a job for this small group, but with God's help I believe we can make it.

The work of this congregation goes forward under the capable oversight of Brethren Raymond Smith, Alpheus Roberts and Jim Tuggle. Brother Joe R. Hunter has supported himself and preached for this group for a number of years. The good work of both Brother and Sister Hunter is evidenced by the knowledge and zeal of both young and old in this congregation. Brother Hunter is now getting a much needed rest from work in the pulpit. When, and if, the circumstances permit his resuming the work of an evangelist, I heartily recommend him for the work.

L. Arnold Watson, 7350 Chase Road, Dearborn, Michigan, February 19: On February 1, two were baptized (former Catholic and Lutheran) and two restored. Other prospects are building up. So far our weekly contributions are above our 1953 budget, the highest in this congregation's history. Our spring meeting begins March 15 with Hugo McCord of Bartlesville, Oklahoma. My first meeting will be with the Northside church in Wichita, Kansas, in April, then to Twin City congregation, Kansas City, Kansas, immediately following. Next week I shall attend the Abilene Lectures, Abilene, Texas.

Melvin J. Wise, 4216 Stanhope Avenue, Dallas, Texas, February 22: "During February we enjoyed splendid progress at the Preston Road Church. Fifteen people responded to the invitation; five were baptized, five were restored, and five placed membership. With 460 members our average Bible School attendance was 403 per Sunday for the month. Brother Bill Patterson is a fine co-worker. He gives his full time to our Bible school work and teaching program of the church. The Lord willing, I shall be with the church in Tipton, Oklahoma, in a gospel meeting from March 22nd through April 1st.

Tice Elkins, Alamogordo, New Mexico, February 15: The church here is doing fine with our new preacher, R. B. Rankin. He is very good and well liked. Brother Rankin began January 1 doing all the evangelistic work because I became totally unable to help him. I was laid up January 4th with pneumonia, which activated an old heart ailment, and this makes seven weeks since I have walked a step. Three good doctors, one a specialist in heart and lung ailments, declare I can never so much as walk safely again in this altitude. So, when you read this, "Ma" Elkins and I will be in San Diego at sea level, hoping to recover. We shall travel by train. A son living there will provide room for us, and we will hope for the prayers of hundreds of kindred souls who also know what it means to grow old and sick and forced to leave home. All our mail, papers, etc., should be addressed to 4428 Gresham Street, San Diego 9, California, after you read this. May we meet some day in a home where no partings will come. Love to every one.

Jesse F. Wiseman, Box 436, Salem, Illinois, February 17: I have been working with the church here since the first of November. The work here is pleasant and has improved in many ways. The Lord willing, I will do the preaching in a gospel meeting at Mt. Vernon, Illinois, March 1-11. Brother Grover C. Ross of Portales, New Mexico, will do the preaching in a meeting at Salem April 17-26. We invite brethren who are in driving distance to attend these special services.

M. C. Cuthbertson, 2208 N. Richey, Tucson, Arizona, February 16: The work with the Country Club Road church continues with excellent attendance and interest. One young man was baptized and several otherwise recently. A number of week-day or evening Bible classes are being conducted by members of the church. I go to Marana for a Thursday evening class each week. Brethren John Whitehead, Homer Wolfe, and C. C. Gobbel are preaching for the other churches in Tucson.

Ira B. Sandusky, 3395 Highland Avenue, February 10: Work of the church in Beaumont at all the congregations going forward with fine harmony and peace with additions as we go on. South Park broke all records last year with total offerings averaging for each Sunday $468.92 and for six months after we came, $483.50 average. We have set the budget for 1953 at an all time high of $600 per week. We plan more outside work for 1953 than has been done in the past, and at the same time keep up the debt retirement as in the past. Bible class attendance is on the increase with us as the average for January was 201 and last Sunday we had a new record of 220. We press on with faith and prayers to the future. I can hold two meetings this summer or fall if anyone wants me for their work.

F. B. Shepherd, Sweetwater, Texas, February 11: I had the privilege of doing the preaching in twenty-nine meetings last year. I travelled approximately 25,000 miles. At the urge of the saints here, the elders of Central in Los Angeles and a few intimate friends, I consented to come to Honolulu for one year, perhaps more. This seems to be a splendid group with which to be associated. Approximately eighty-five percent of the members are service people. This means a transient group. A few months, one year, at the most five. We lose a dozen members within the next few weeks. Before July 31 there will be another dozen or more to leave. It is greatly refreshing to be associated with these young men and women. They are eager to do anything they are capable of doing or can

Then we will do our best to get them to be faithful here under difficult circumstances as perhaps they were at home where it was easy. Please send names and addresses to me at 1732 Keeau-moku, Honolulu, T. H.

H. E. Seidmeyer, Gainesville, Texas, February 6: The work at Broadway continues to grow. Since the first of the year two have been baptized, three have made confessions of sins, and two have been added by transfer of membership. I just concluded a series of lectures at the Spring Grove church on "The Church at Work." One was baptized. The Spring Grove church is about eight miles east of Gainesville. When coming through Gainesville, worship with us.

Bill Martin, Devine, Texas, February 11: Last Sunday evening I was invited to speak at the evening service at the Grove Avenue Church of Christ in San Antonio. A large audience was in attendance and three came forward for baptism. The church in Devine is growing steadily and we are planning a meeting in March to be held from the 16th through the 22nd. Brother Rainey of Houston will do the preaching. Brother Loss Caddell and Brother Virgil Harrell will lead the singing. We are printing a weekly bulletin which we feel will be of interest to the congregation. I shall attend the Lectureship in Abilene.

Rollie B. Rankin, Box 465, Alamogordo, New Mexico, February 10: I began working with the congregation that meets at 9th and Texas Avenue on the first Sunday in January of this year. The attendance has been gradually increasing each Sunday even though we had quite an epidemic of flu. Last Lord's day our morning crowd was a record for this place. Three were baptized last week, with three more coming to us by transfer of membership. Other members of the church, who are in the service are being transferred to the airbase here and are worshipping with us. We welcome them and want to extend this welcome to others who may be sent here, to come and worship with us. Brother Tice Elkins, who has labored long and diligently with this congregation, has been ordered by the doctor, to leave this climate for a lower one. He will be leaving us soon to go to his son's home in San Diego, California. I am sure that all his many friends will join with us in our prayers for him. When passing through Alamogordo, stop and worship with us.

Glen Pace, P. O. Box 319, Malvern, Arkansas, February 6: Brother W. Curtis Porter will meet Hoyt Chastain, Missionary Baptist, in Malvern, Arkansas, April 14-17 for night discussions. The Baptist people are advertising this discussion as one of the great debates of this era. Little need be said of Brother Porter's ability to defend the truth, for he perhaps, is without a peer. A great number of Baptists think highly of Mr. Chastain. It was he of whom the late Mr. Ben Bogard said, "He knows more than I know, for I have taught him all I know, and he has gained much knowledge besides." The discussion will be in the Second Baptist church, where Mr. Chastain has preached and taught the doctrines he will try to defend, for the past eight years. Brethren here will open their homes to visiting brethren. Questions to be discussed are the usual Baptism and Apostasy issues.

R. D. Simmons, Corpus Christi, Texas, February 11: The elders of the Furman Avenue congregation in Corpus Christi make this report of the "Way of Truth" program that goes out to regular listeners in twenty-four states over KWBU, 1030 on the dial, at 6:30 A.M. We are now in the ninth month of this program, and our mail indicates that we have a great number of listeners in many places. The greatest amount of mail has come from Texas, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Oklahoma. We are preparing poster advertising at the present, which can be delivered to congregations within two weeks. These posters are designed to give some facts about the program. It is our hope that congregations will write us for the posters and place it on the bulletin board in the church building. We will be glad to furnish any information to anyone about the program. Address all correspondence to "The Way of Truth," P. O. Box 3531, Corpus Christi, Texas.—Elders, Church of Christ, Furman & Staples.

FIFTY YEARS OF HOUSTON PROGRESS

Clyde P. Findlay

Fifty years after Brother J. D. Tant held his tent meeting here in 1903, fifty churches of Christ can be counted today in Greater Houston. This fact is to be observed with a special Herald of Truth program originating on March 22, from Houston. Houston Music Hall has been secured for 3 p.m. on that day and a tremendous crowd is expected to attend and to participate in congregational singing. A special chorus of seventy-five voices is to be directed by Brother R. J. Stevens, evangelist of the church of Christ in Lindale.

Brother James W. Nichols who is to begin a meeting that day at Pierce and Baldwin Streets church is to be the speaker. The program is to be recorded by a special crew of technicians coming to Houston for that purpose, and then broadcast at the usual hours. Brother Hoyt B. Smith of Pierce and Baldwin is chairman of general arrangements.

Homecoming day is to be observed at Pierce and Baldwin on the closing day of the meeting, March 29th. Pierce and Baldwin, formerly known as old "First Church," the oldest church in Houston, is inviting former members to be present for services on that day, with a special service at 3 p.m.

DEBATE ON CLASS QUESTION AND WOMEN TEACHERS

NIGHT LETTER—Midland, Texas, February 16, G. H. P. Showalter: There will be a debate held at the South Side Church of Christ at Midland, Texas, beginning March 3rd, continuing through the 6th, between J. Erving Waters and F. R. Stanley. Each evening at 7:30 p.m. The proposition to be discussed will be the class question and women teachers. There was a discussion held here last November on the cup question between these two speakers. We were well pleased with the conduct of both men and the job done by Brother Stanley. We are looking forward to a good debate and one that will be both profitable and enjoyable. Respectively yours in Christ—The elders of the South Side Church of Christ, Midland, Texas, M. R. Sharp, Bill Bradshaw, W. R. Pringle, L. L. Nicholls.

Erven Harris, 18478 Fleetwood Avenue, Castro Valley, California: The work in Hayward was started by the brethren in San Leandro, California. The following men were appointed to serve as elders: R. B. Williams, John W. James and R. K. Todd. A hall was rented and the first service held December 24, 1950. Brother James did the preaching part time for the first few months. The work grew and prospered under his efforts. The writer held a meeting for them in July of 1951 and was invited to locate with them and devote full time to the work. They have purchased a preacher's home, located at 18478 Fleetwood Avenue, Castro Valley. In January of 1952 they bought a meeting house from the Grace Lutheran people at 307 Soto Streets in Hayward. Since our coming here over one hundred have been added to the congregation. We found it necessary to start another work in Centerville. Brother Roy Steele was selected to do the preaching there, and is doing a good work. I just concluded a twelve night meeting with them. Three obeyed the gospel, one was restored, and one placed membership. Their attendance at the present time is in the sixties. They are purchasing a lot and will start plans for building in the near future. We are in the process of enlarging the auditorium here in Hayward. When this is completed we will be able to take care of the crowds for some time. I have never worked with a more enthusiastic eldership. Four more deacons have recently been appointed. Since starting here we have had three gospel meetings. I held the first one; Lloyd Meyer the second; and Will M. Thompson the last. The future looks bright.

10 BOOKSFOR ALL BIBLE CLASSES
AND HOME STUDY . . .*$3.00*LESSONS PREPARED IN VIEW OF THE NEEDS OF YOUR BIBLE CLASS

These books have proved helpful to both teacher and student and are gaining an ever-increasing circulation. Thousands have been used successfully in Sunday classes, vacation Bible schools, young people's meetings, ladies' Bible classes, mid-week prayer meetings, and home study, by churches large and small.

BIBLE TOPIC STUDIES: Lessons on twenty-eight of the most vital subjects. Guides the student into a knowledge of what the Bible actually says, rather than what men have said about these subjects. Albert C. Trent says, "I have used your book, BIBLE TOPIC STUDIES, in young people's class work. I think it is the best I have seen." Lawrence B. Hood says, "BIBLE TOPIC STUDIES is outstanding."

CHURCH STUDIES: Twenty-six lessons on the name, origin, doctrine, organization, work, and worship of the church of Christ. Joe D. Scarborough says, "This book has created more interest and enthusiasm in our ladies class here in Pecos, than any book of lessons that we have studied." Leslie G. Thomas says, "I can truthfully say your recent book, CHURCH STUDIES, is one of the best of its kind that I have ever seen." F. F. Conley says, "Your outline on CHURCH STUDIES is being used here with marked success. It is the best I have examined." Franklin Latham says, "We have been using CHURCH STUDIES for ten weeks and think they cannot be beaten."

OLD TESTAMENT STUDIES: Twenty-six lessons in Old Testament history, from Creation to the Restoration of the Jews. Makes the Old Testament easier to understand and to remember. A short historical background is given at the beginning of each lesson, followed by a series of questions with scripture references for the answers. Fred B. Walker says, "Our class is really enjoying your OLD TESTAMENT STUDIES. It is exactly what I have needed for my Sunday morning classes."

NEW TESTAMENT STUDIES: Twenty-six lessons in the life of Christ and the history of the early church. This is the first in a series of six books covering the entire New Testament. This book covers Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, and Acts. Willie H. Johnson says, "We have used your book, NEW TESTAMENT STUDIES, and have found it to be of the best. The elders feel that they are the type of study that many members of the church need."

LESSONS IN ROMANS: Twenty-six lessons of this book, covering the entire Roman Letter, will help the student to understand and appreciate Paul's great theme: "The gospel is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." Alonzo Williams says, "This is a contribution to both the Bible class and the pulpit. The lessons grab attention, inspire a study of the text and hold the mind to the central point of Paul's most profound epistle."

LESSONS IN FIRST AND SECOND CORINTHIANS AND GALATIANS: Twenty-six lessons, covering every chapter in these three letters of Paul, and dealing largely with the troubled conditions in the churches at Corinth and in Galatia. Diligent study and application of the principles emphasized in these lessons will settle many disturbances in the church today.

LESSONS IN EPHESIANS THROUGH TITUS: Twenty-six lessons, covering every chapter in Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, First and Second Thessalonians, First and Second Timothy, and Titus. These lessons are designed to help the student acquire a knowledge of the everlasting principles of Christian living as set forth in these eight letters.

LESSONS IN PHILEMON THROUGH JUDE: Twenty-six lessons covering Philemon, Hebrews, James, First and Second Peter, First, Second and Third John, and Jude. A study of these lessons is strictly a study of the Bible. The answers to the questions are found in these letters.

REVELATION STUDIES: Twenty-six lessons covering the entire book of REVELATION. B. C. Goodpasture says, "It is sound and instructive; well adapted to class use and home study." George DeVoll says, "I have never seen a better study of REVELATION." Harry Pickup, Sr., says, "Its value as a treatment of the entire text of this difficult book is inestimable." J. A. McNutt says, "The author lets the book speak for itself. There is no comfort here for the speculator. It should be widely used in class work in teaching this difficult book."

BIBLE LESSONS FOR CHILDREN IN PRIMARY GRADES: Twenty-six lessons. The three most effective and fruitful methods of teaching little children—stories, memory work, questions and answers—are combined in every lesson. I. R. Wilson says, "I want to commend you for the good work you did in putting out this work book for the primary children. I consider it one of my best books and recommend it to everyone that comes in." Mrs. D. H. McDonald says, "I would like to tell you that I am using this little book in my children's Bible class. I think it is the best of its kind that I have ever seen or tried yet."

Elders, preachers and teachers who have used these books recommend them highly. Guy N. Woods says, "This excellent series of Bible lessons was prepared by one of the ablest preachers in the brotherhood, and has been tested in actual use not only by him, but by many others over a period of several years. The lessons are simple in structure and are designed to send one to the original source, the Bible, for the answers."

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Freedom From Fear

"Four Freedoms" has been a frequent subject of politicians and statesmen the last few years. One of these is "Freedom From Fear." The best thinkers have been working on this project for ten years or more, but fear is more prevalent and persistent now than when they started. This is just another instance of man's wisdom. The human method has failed to get the answer.

Those who ignore the word of God never find freedom from fear. John says, "Perfect love casteth out fear." Only a man inspired of God would write that—how can love cast out fear? The majority of people will not believe a thing, unless they can see how it works. Many people think they have tried this and found it to be a failure. But their failure was due to the absence of perfect love. They tried it the Christian Science way and it did not work. Perfect love is not easy to get. A shallow, selfish love will not attain this end. If we have perfect love we will serve God with the deepest devotion; we will be honest with all men. We will return good for evil, love our enemies, and pray for those who despitely use us. If we do this, there will be no reason to have fear.

The writer of the Hebrew letter says, "Let your conversation be without covetousness; and be content with such things as ye have; for he hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee; so that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me" (Heb. 13:5, 6). Men try to banish fear and anxiety by neutralizing the power of adverse circumstances, but that conception only leads us to trust in our own wisdom.

In trying to make themselves secure men often tear down the bulwarks of their defense. When we face a hostile situation, our first impulse is to take a sword and cut off the ears of our enemies. But Jesus told Peter that was a sure way to fail. The strength we need for bad situations is not to be found in any human contrivance, but in the word of the Lord. Very often men crave power over their enemies, when they need power over themselves.

Complainers

Maybe there are some things we are justified in complaining about, but we usually complain to the wrong person, or about the wrong thing. The Israelites always suffered when they chided with the Lord. They tried to find fault with the Lord when the trouble was in themselves. In all my years as a Christian and minister of the gospel I have come in contact with people who prophesied that the church is headed for the rocks. They thought this way because the church did not go the way they thought it ought to go. There is a lot of complaint about worldly church members and imperfect elders. I had a good friend in a congregation where I preached for several years—a great complainer, he was. In his own estimation he was sound to the core. But he would not bear close inspection. He gave the young people "down the country" for their worldliness. On the other hand he was well-to-do—had made a success financially. People inside the church and outside said this man would do anything to get a dollar. He had a reputation in the church for stinginess, and in the world for dishonesty and trickery. He was a loud complainer against worldliness, but at the same time he was very worldly—a covetousness man—an idolater. "Let him that is without sin first cast a stone."

Jesus Answers His Critics

Hoyt Bailey

From a study of the twenty-second chapter of Matthew, we note that both the religious and political cults sought to entangle Jesus. Among those involved in this effort were the Pharisees, Herodians, Sadducees, and a scribe of the law.

The Pharisees had heard the parables of Jesus, and they were for the time silenced. However, they could not overcome the desire to entangle Jesus. It was seldom that the Pharisees and Herodians were allied together sufficiently to work together. This political group was usually at enmity with that religious group. On this occasion, we learn that they agreed together to plot against Jesus. The Pharisees sent some of the Herodians with their own disciples to try to entangle Jesus by flattery and a question.

The scripture says: "Then went the Pharisees, and took counsel how they might entangle him in his talk. And they sent out unto him their disciples with the Herodians, saying, Master, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, neither carest thou for any man: for thou regardest not the person of men. Tell us therefore, what thinkest thou? Is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar, or not? But Jesus perceived their wickedness, and said, Why tempt ye me, ye hypocrites? Show me the tribute money. And they brought unto him a penny. And he said unto them, Whose is this image and superscription? They say unto him, Caesar's. Then saith he unto them, Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's. When they had heard these words, they marveled, and left him, and went their way" (Matt. 22:15-22).

Those coming to Jesus on that occasion sought to encourage Jesus to give either a yes or no answer to their question. A yes or no answer would have brought Jesus into disfavor with one or the other of the groups. Their suggestion that Jesus regards not the person of men was apparently meant to emphasize that Jesus is impartial. He has no consideration of rank, station, or power; neither is Jesus biased in judgment, words, or actions. That group would give a little credit to Jesus with the hope that such would help to entangle him. They praised him with the view of encouraging him to answer without fear of offending the Roman authorities. They said: "Tell us therefore"; "Because you are so truthful and impartial, give us your unprejudiced opinion about this much-disputed question." Those people assumed to be simple-minded inquirers, who came to Jesus to have a perplexity resolved. Luke describes their real character: "They sent forth spies, which should fain themselves just men, that they might take hold of his words." By asking concerning the lawfulness of the payment, they do not inquire whether it was expedient or advisable to make it, but whether it was morally and religiously right to make such payment. This question was much debated between these opposite parties. The Pharisees were strongly opposed to foreign domination, and thought it derogatory and sacrilegious for the people of Jehovah to pay taxes to a foreign and heathen authority. The Herodians, on the other hand submitted without reserve to the supremacy of Rome, and, for political reasons, silenced all nationalist and ultra-patriotic feeling. By putting this question, the disputants thought to force Christ into a dilemma, where he must answer directly, "yes" or "no," and where, which ever reply he made, he would equally offend one or the other of the parties into which the state was divided. If he affirmed the lawfulness of the tax, he would lose his popularity with the mass of the people. If he gave a negative reply, he would be deemed an enemy of Rome and a promoter of seditious views, and be liable to be handed over to the civil power for the punishment of treason.

Those cults did not entangle Jesus with their wicked plot. He perceived their wicked intent at once. Those wicked individuals had not thought of Jesus detecting their plot, nor had the Pharisees and Herodians expected an answer to their question except by "yes" or "no." Of course, Jesus gave them an answer to their question, but he asked them a question, saying: "Why tempt ye me, ye hypocrites?" Jesus asked about the tribute money, and he asked them concerning the "image and superscription" on the coin. When Jesus was told that the "image and superscription" was Caesar's: "Then saith he unto them, Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's."

Being subjects of Caesar, it was their duty to submit to his demands, and to pay the taxes which he had a right to levy. This was his answer to their insidious question. Jesus did not take either side in the controversy; he uses facts as they are, and points to habitual practice as a sufficient solution to their difficulty. His reply was a wise and simple one, but it gives a lesson for all time. No plea of religion can hold good against lawful authority. There need be no conflict between religion and politics, no conflict between the church and the state. Let a citizen do his duty to God, and he will find his obligations to the civil power are in harmony with the will of God. Let the state respect the rights of God and of conscience, and there will be no collision between itself and the church, but both will peaceably cooperate for the good of the community.

The answer Jesus gave them caused them to marvel, because he utterly frustrated their plot. It was the practice of the state to compel obedience to its laws, but the church places obedience upon a voluntary basis. There was nothing in the words of Jesus which indicated treason, or nothing of an unpatriotic nature, therefore, his questioners withdrew.

The Pharisees and Herodians having withdrawn, we note the Sadducees making plans to ensnare Jesus. They make no delay coming to Jesus, and they have what is in their own mind an unanswerable question. Scripture says: "The same day came to him the Sadducees, which say that there is no resurrection, and asked him, Saying, Master, Moses said, If a man die, having no children, his brother shall marry his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother. Now there were with us seven brethren: and the first when he had married a wife, deceased, and, having no issue, left his wife unto his brother: Likewise the second also, and the third, unto the seventh. And last of all the woman died also. Therefore in the resurrection whose wife shall she be of the seven? for they all had her. Jesus answered and said unto them, Ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God. For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven" (Matt. 22:23-30).

Jesus gives an answer to these Sadducees which was different from the one they expected. Jesus went to the root of their misunderstanding. He saw two main reasons why they did not know the answer to their own question. His explanation was, "Ye do err not knowing the Scriptures, neither the power of God." Jesus went on to explain, "For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven."

Jesus gave those individuals an answer which caused them to be astonished. This shows us that Jesus had the answer for the Sadducees as well as the Pharisees and Herodians. The time of questioning had not ceased though the former questions had been answered without in any way entangling Jesus.

"But when the Pharisees had heard that he had put the Sadducees to silence, they were gathered together. Then one of them, which was a lawyer, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying, Master, which is the great commandment in the law? Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets" (Matt. 22:34-40). Though there were more than six hundred precepts or requirements in the Old Covenant, Jesus knew the command that the lawyer needed at the time. Every individual should learn to love the Lord our God with all the heart, soul, and mind, and to love one's neighbor as himself. After those questions were propounded and successfully answered, Jesus asked some questions: "Saying, What think ye of Christ? Whose Son is he? They said unto him, The son of David. He saith unto them, How then doth David in the spirit call him Lord, saying, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool? If David then call him Lord how is he his son? And no man was able to answer him a word, neither durst any man from that day forth ask him any more questions" (Matt. 22:42-46).

Those individuals looked only at Jesus as an earthly being rather than think of him as the Messiah of prophecy. Though Christ was the seed of David, he is also the Son of God. When Jesus asked them, "How David could call him Lord?" such a question could not be answered by them. "No man was able to answer him a word." They could not refute Christ's arguments; they would not receive and ponder them; so they held their peace. Had they had a real desire to be instructed, they would have profited by the present occasion; coming to the light with honest and good hearts, they would have been enlightened. But this was far from their wish, so they went away empty. They perceived that they could gain no advantage over Christ by such methods of attack. Pharisees, Sadducees, and Herodians had all suffered defeat, and they dared tempt him no longer by questioning.

Christians should profit by Bible questions and scriptural answers. The apostle said to Christians: "But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear" (1 Peter 3:15). Let us examine carefully a few questions which pertain to our being Christians and living the Christian life. The question is frequently asked: "Why are you a member of the church of Christ?" Those who really want a Bible answer can find from Matthew 16:18 that Christ built his church, and from Romans 16:16 that local congregations are spoken of as "churches of Christ." We can see from Acts 20:28 that Christ purchased the church with his own blood, but it is the blood of Christ which cleanses from sin (1 Jno. 1:7). Therefore, in order to have our sins cleansed by the blood of Christ, it is necessary to be in the church built by Christ. The saved are added to the church (Acts 2:47), and Christ is Savior of the body which is the church (Eph. 5:23). Why shouldn't you become a member of the church of Christ? You can read of it in the New Testament. You do not read of denominational churches being approved by Christ. It is Jesus who warns that every plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up (Matt. 15:13).

We are frequently asked: "Why do you have the Lord's Supper every Lord's day? Every first day of the week?" This is because we seek to follow the example left us in the New Testament. Acts 20:7 points out plainly that this was a weekly observance during the days of the apostles. Therefore, if children of God are to do the will of God acceptably now, we must follow the pattern left us by the early Christians. Some claim that having the Lord's Supper every Lord's day tends to make it too common, but the same New Testament teaches that we are to lay by in store upon the first day of the week according to 1 Cor. 16:1, 2. You can very easily learn that those who claim it too common to take the Lord's Supper every week, do not make the same claim that it makes it too common to take a collection every week, or even twice every week. Why not let us respect and follow the example left us in the New Testament?

You may be one who wishes to ask why we do not use some form of mechanical instrumental music in worship. We are taught to do things by the authority of Christ (Matt. 28:18), and to do all things in the name of Christ (Col. 3:17). If you will get your New Testament and begin searching, you will find that Christ neither commanded the use of mechanical instruments in worship, nor do we have an approved example for the use of mechanical instruments in Christian worship, neither is there a necessary inference for their use now.

Our Little Mountain School Hoskinson, Kentucky

S. H. Hall

The most of our readers, I am sure, have heard of this school. It was in March, 1945, through the influence of the lamented H. Leo Boles and at the urgent invitation of Brother Bill Browning, Neon, Kentucky, that I went to Hoskinson to look the field over and see if we could get the trustees of that little school to turn it over to me, and those who would be associated with me, to change it from the faith and practice of the Christian Church to a school governed by New Testament teaching. This I succeeded in accomplishing, and the articles of agreement have been published in this paper shortly after taking it over. The history of the work from then till now I can not cover more than to say I have never, in all of my life, made greater sacrifices and taxed my physical and mental strength more than I did in getting this school going as it should. In the effort I did a thing that I had often done before, viz., assumed financial responsibilities that but few would have assumed. At one time, I had my name on notes amounting to $4,000.00 with not one thing to secure me except my Lord. But we won out. Having nothing but kerosene lamps for lighting purposes, I set about to get the electric current extended from Hyden, the county seat of Leslie County, eight miles away, to the school. This was accomplished in just a few months. Then to install running water, so that hot and cold water could be had in all the rooms. It took money! When we started we thought $5,000.00 would do the job, but it multiplied this amount. Suffice it to say, we soon had a school as well lighted and with modern conveniences equal to our city schools. Tell me not that this was not the steepest hill I have ever climbed. But, thank God, it was done, and to my Lord it is all attributed. But enough of this.

Its Present Status

Since leaving Nashville and coming to California, about three years ago, this school has been on my heart, but I was forced to turn it over into the hands of another. Just recently, I wrote Brother Bill Browning, the man who is responsible for the school falling into my hands, and also wrote his brother, Orie, who now lives at the school and is responsible for such teaching as the New Testament gives us being taught there. I here give Brother Bill Browning's report dated January 29, 1953:

Dear Brother Hall—As to the school, it seems to me it is in the best condition ever, at least in some respects.

1. We are getting $900.00 more a year from the county than we did before, and I see no reason why this

This new book must be seen to be fully appreciated. Every chapter is filled with the richest gems of thought on spiritual things. It is a veritable treasure house of inspirational matter on the great themes of the Bible. Every subject considered is presented in simplicity, clearness and power. should stop when we take back over in full swing next August.

2. The new county Superintendent is for us 100%.

3. Orie has run the school this year and has reduced the debt $2,000, and if the donations come in as they have been the last part of 1952, we will be out of debt when the school closes in May.

4. We have some mountains yet to climb—

(1) Find a preacher and his wife who will come here and let his wife superintend the girls' dormitory and he be the principal and govern the Bible Department. And along with this, a preacher who is capable of teaching and superintending the boys' dormitory. He can be married or single. This is a must—help us find the men.

(2) We must have a gym. The boys' dormitory needs to be improved. This will cost around $1,000. Now this is possible, and it is a must, if we run this school as it should be run. There is no need of our playing in this school business.

(3) Within four or five years we will have an outlet of twenty-five miles more territory to cover with our bus. This will give us one hundred more community children. It would be a shame and disgrace for those who love New Testament Christianity to let such an opportunity slip through our fingers. We just cannot afford to let this happen. The thing we saw five years ago is but two years away if we work now as we should.

Now, Brother Hall, use your own judgment about what I am about to say. Write an article for the papers, preferably the Gospel Advocate and the Firm Foundation. My appeal that was published in the Firm Foundation brought us $1,100.00.

Write me. I like to hear from you and Sister Hall. Let me know when you will be at David Lipscomb College."

I give this excerpt from Brother Orie's letter—"Bill and I got back from Nashville attending the lecture series at D.L.C. We went to see if we could find a qualified man for this job here but failed. Of course, you know what we need. Do your best for us."

Only a few words in reference to it all. First, the Lord willing, I will be at David Lipscomb College the last of May and first of June. I shall do my best to be in a board meeting of our Little Mountain School while there, and I, with others, are on the hunt for the teachers we need. Willard Collins, Vice President of David Lipscomb College, is on the board with me and I hope he can go with me. I am sure I have found our man.

Now, to you who have helped us before, and others who have not become rope holders for this sorely needed school in the mountains of Kentucky, take it to God in prayer and get a check to Bill Browning, Neon, Kentucky, P. O. Box 486. Make your check as large as possible. Those who have been helping and all who see this, not only send a check, but solicit checks from others. May God stir the hearts of those who love such work, to have on hand, when I visit the school, money for all needed purposes. Some who may be qualified to meet the needs as principal and superintending the boys' and girls' dormitories, may see this and be interested. If so, write Brother Browning at once and send a copy of your letter to me here at Arcadia, California, P. O. Box 863. But remember we want your record as to soundness and godly living, hence, send references.

I close by asking our friends, everywhere, to join us in your prayers in behalf of this school. I wanted to give a picture of the grounds and buildings, along with the last graduation class that I had the privilege of seeing in 1949—sixteen of them, and Brother Batsell Baxter delivered the class address. We are thankful to know that graduates from this school are out doing a great work as teachers, home keepers and in the business world. Remember to send all donations to Bill Browning, P. O. Box 486, Neon, Kentucky.

We believe Brother Hall has a call that merits consideration from our liberal-minded readers.—G.H.P.S.

The Catholic Church Strikes Again

This Time to Stop a German Broadcast on Radio Saarbrücken

Otis Gatewood

We all have been hearing of the difficulties the Catholic Church has been making for our brethren in Italy. This week their efforts to stop the truth affected us here in Germany. They stopped the broadcasting of the gospel in Germany on Radio Saarbrücken.

Several months ago we learned through the Pan American Broadcasting Company in New York that we could buy time on Radio Saarbrücken. On March 4, 1952, they wrote as follows:

"Radio Saarbrücken, operating commercially since November 1949 . . . has decided to accommodate a limited number of religious programs. With costs surprising low, you will undoubtedly wish to bring your message to the people throughout Germany, German-speaking Switzerland, the Saar, Alsace-Lorraine in their native tongue . . . to a people who have suffered through a long war and a difficult post-war existence. Many churches that were destroyed in the war have never been rebuilt, and your inspirational messages can do much to restore and renew the faith of people who have known real misery."

We contacted the Pan American Broadcasting Co. immediately and asked for the times that were available. On April 9, 1952, Radio Saarbrücken wrote us as follows:

"From the Pan American Broadcasting Co. we received a letter dated April 1, 1952. . . With this letter I should like to offer you our services and to tell you that we are ready to give you all details on behalf of our station. . ."

A contract was signed to begin broadcasting September 1, 1952; and the church in Vernon, Texas, agreed to pay for the broadcast. Scripts for the first broadcast were sent Radio Saarbrücken June 27th and for programs 2, 3, and 4 August 28, 1952. However, the broadcast did not begin on September 1st. Because of different excuses from the station, our program did not begin until the first Friday in January, 1953. The delays were attributed to political changes in the Saarland, but in talking to one of the officials of the station he told me the real reason. He said that an old Catholic priest was on the board of directors and had opposed the beginning of our program. But the man said, "He is now dead, so you can begin."

One letter said: "We apologize once more for needing so much time to get things through but you certainly know that the Saar problems are rather complicated, and that not only on behalf of politics."

Another letter said: "For your private information, the chief difficulty with starting the program lay in the power of the local Catholic Church which is not interested in any rival religious teachings in South Germany."

But in spite of this opposition, through the efforts of some young men who suffered much in intolerance during the last war, our program was started. Brother Dieter Alten of Mannheim and Brother Fred Casmir of Heppenheim did the preaching and we cut our songs and announcements in our own studios here in Frankfurt. No attack of any kind was made on other religions, we were extremely cautious to be kind and inoffensive for we knew the conditions of the land where we were broadcasting. Our messages were positive. The first sermon was "Back to the Old Paths," the second, "The Authority of God's Word," the third, "Rightly Dividing the Word of Truth."

Radio Saarbrücken is a small station of only 20,000 watts, but the reception was good and we were greatly pleased that we received over fifty letters from the first two broadcasts. Some of the letters read as follows:

I take the liberty, dear Sir, to write you that I have listened to your radio program also today. We do need the word of God and a strong faith in the present turbulent time, and all week long I am happily waiting for this half hour, and would not want to miss it any more, and will endeavour to spread the news of your program wherever I have a chance. Last week I also listened to your broadcast, and I am sorry I missed the first two programs, however, I will be listening to you again this coming Friday.

I salute the Church of Christ

I herewith take the liberty to contact your Christian Church for information to what Christian Brethrenhood do you belong?

Have listened to several sermons over the radio already, and I am very much interested in the Bible lessons and the wonderful songs. I have also called the attention of a friend to this broadcast, who is now also listening to your beautiful sermons and songs every Friday over Radio Saarbrücken. I beg friendly to let me have more information. I too belong to a Christian Brotherhood, and every 14 days a visiting preacher is coming here to lead our meeting in a small auditorium.

Are you by any chance the Apostolischen?

With Christian greetings,
Sincerely yours,

SUBJECT: Bible Correspondence Course No. 1.

Your radio broadcast has touched me deeply and is the reason to get in touch with you today. With my soul in distress, allured (attracted) by the sound of youth times, when I was happy and felt safe and secure under the protection of Jesus, and was filled with urgent desire for peace in God, I follow my inner urge and request you for further information. Soon there will be night when nobody can work, therefore attend to things soon, to which your conscience drives you! The grace and forgiveness of God is greater than the sin which is mighty in me. Jesus Christ has come into this world to make free the sinners, this I believe and understand, and I will finally be serious and convert myself and confess, that Jesus Christ is the Lord, to the glory of God, the Father! Amen!

I just had to write you and let you know that the sermons and songs you broadcast via Radio Saarbrücken each Friday, move me deeply. Please let me know whether you already have a congregation in Saarbrücken or whether you intend establishing one there. At what time and where do you hold your worship services?

Frankfurt A.M., Germany, January 30, 1953.

Please send me the first lesson of your Bible Correspondence Course, because it is my wish to become an ardent servant in the work of the Lord.

Thank you very much for your kindness,

Sincerely

So you can see that great interest was manifested in the broadcasting of simple New Testament Christianity from the beginning. The radio station officials tell me that they received no letters of complaints concerning our program. But week before last, one of our friends called me and said that a storm was on among the officials of the radio station and that I should come over. He said he knew that no objections had come from the listening public, for such objections would have been addressed to Radio Saarbrücken and would have come to his office. The objections were coming from someone who knew personally the high officials in the government and the station. One Catholic Priest (Abba-de-Nys) even went so far as to talk to one of our friends who had worked so hard to get our program admitted. Our friend told the priest, "You should not object to the broadcasts of the Church of Christ. The money they pay helps make it possible for us to let you broadcast free!"

The priest seemed to be satisfied, but evidently he was not. Last Monday, we received the following letter:

"I am so sorry that I have to tell you that a decision of Government came through telling us that we are no longer allowed to broadcast the Church of Christ feature. I am hastening to tell you that yesterday, Friday, January 23, 1953 is your last time on the air. It would be useful if you could come to see the gentlemen in question who are responsible for this decision in order to talk to them and to try to convince them."

Brethren Bennett, Mingle, Casmir, and I went over last Wednesday and talked to these officials, and urged them to allow our broadcasts to continue. We called the Pan American Broadcasting Co. and urged them to send a cable urging the officials to allow us to continue. In conversation with the man in N. Y., he said, "I am not a bit surprised that your broadcast is canceled. You know why and so do I."

Yes, brethren, we know why. The great disturbance arose from Brother Alten's second sermon on "The Authority of the Word of God." The Catholic Church does not recognize the Word of God as authority. To them the Catholic Church is authority and God's Word is true only because and when the Catholic Church says so. Such a simple message caused a storm and resulted in our being forbidden to preach on the radio even though we were paying for our time.

The radio announced Friday that because of technical difficulties our program would no longer be heard at that time. That's the same excuse Stalin gave for the Berlin blockade.

The Catholic Church cries long and loud about freedom of religion in America where she is in the minority, but in lands where she holds the power, she denies religious liberty to all. The Catholic Church complains much about mistreatment of her priests and cardinals behind the iron curtain but she does not hesitate to treat those, where she has the power to do so, the same way.

Brethren, every morning at 7:30 here in Frankfurt, over the American Forces Network, a station supported by taxpayers' money, the Catholic Church preaches her doctrine boldly and with no apology, and this free of charge. Taxpayers in America who do not believe the Catholic doctrine are thus forced to support the preaching of Catholic doctrine. I went to the chaplains' office here to ask for some free time on the station, with equal privileges. He was a Catholic and ordered me out of his office and said, "If there is any available time on A. F. N., I'll take it."

Yes, the Catholic Church forces us to support the preaching of Catholic doctrine by taking our tax supported radio station that isn't supposed to be used to propagate any denominational doctrines, and when she has the power she throws us out of her offices and forces us from radio stations where we are willing to pay and are supposed to have religious freedom.

The Saarland is looking to America for financial help, and her constitution guarantees religious freedom, but such clauses are in European constitutions now only to court the help of America.

What Does The Bible Say?

PREACHERS HEARD SINGING IN JAIL!

Just as Jesus was persecuted for doing the will of God so his disciples should not be surprised to be persecuted for righteousness sake. Jesus taught us in the sermon on the mount that we should rejoice and be glad when men persecute us "for his sake" for great is our reward in heaven. So Paul and Silas were able to sing praises to God after they had been beaten with many stripes and locked in stocks in the inner prison at Philippi. Such faith should inspire all who follow Christ to have courage in this day of open opposition to the Bible and the church in many lands!

Reading the last half of the sixteenth chapter of Acts we find a marvelous miracle occurring. God was not unmindful of his two servants who had the faith to pray and sing even in jail. A great earthquake shook the prison and opened all the doors and loosed the bands of the prisoners. The warden of the prison had been asleep. He awakened to see the prison doors open and thought that the prisoners had all escaped. According to Roman law he would be killed for allowing this to happen, so he drew his sword to commit suicide. Paul sensed the situation and cried out saying, "Do thyself no harm, for we are all here."

Although the jailor was presumably a pagan he knew that Paul had been preaching some kind of salvation. The miracle had convinced him that God was with Paul so he fell down and cried: "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" Paul answered in these wonderful words: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house."

Of course the jailor had to learn about Jesus and Jesus' will for him before he could trust in Jesus as the Son of God and begin walking in the Way of life. So "they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house" (Acts 16:32). This means that Paul preached to him the same gospel Peter preached on the day of Pentecost. He told him that Jesus is the Christ, that he died for our sins, and was raised from the dead and is now at the right hand of God. Of course, Paul told the jailor to repent, although repentance is not specifically mentioned. Peter told those on Pentecost to "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for (unto) the remission of sins . . ." (Acts 2:38). We know that Paul told him to be baptized because "he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his, straightway" (Acts 16:33). We don't know where he took them. It may have been to the river where Lydia had been praying or to one of the pools the Roman houses contained. But we can see how important Paul considered baptism in that he baptized the ones he had taught "the same hour of the night." In no instance in the New Testament do we find penitent believers postponing baptism for a single hour.

This account throws light on the comprehensive meaning of "believing on the Lord Jesus Christ." It does not mean merely "faith" in the sense of an intellectual assent. It means faith or trust which leads one to obey Christ's commands. Faith is a continuous attitude. Repentance is faith changing our will. Confession of Christ is faith speaking. Baptism into Christ is faith acting. Prayer is faith communing with God. Living the daily Christian life is faith serving.

May we plead with you to follow the example of this Roman jailor. Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ with all your heart. Confess your faith before men. Repent of your sins and be buried with your Lord in the likeness of his death, burial, and resurrection (Romans 6:4). Then you can rejoice as the jailor did. Then you can let Jesus lead you every day walking in the light as Jesus is in the light "and the blood of Jesus Christ" will continually cleanse you from all sin (1 John 1:7). We stand ready to assist you at any hour of the day or night.

JACK MEYER IN SPECIAL LECTURES AT CENTRAL CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

From February 2nd through the 6th, Brother Jack Meyer, now located with the Homewood church in Birmingham, Alabama, gave a special series of instructions to the young men who are preparing to preach.

Brother Meyer had these young men under him for approximately four hours a day for five days. During this time he covered a wide range of subjects such as the place of a preacher in a congregation, his relationship to the overseers, and to the membership in general; he talked about the preacher's library, how to build and use it; he emphasized the importance of studying the Bible, having a set time for studying it, and for doing everything else that the preacher has to do; he also discussed the need of recreation, physical exercise which the preacher should take, his time with his own family, and how to meet his own personal problems. In another series of talks, Brother Meyer pointed out numerous pitfalls against which every preacher must guard. These included such as disappointments, a defeatist attitude, taking sides in personal matters, too much "confidential" talk, allowing one's self to be "used" by other people, over emphasis on some pet subject or project, etc. He then outlined the different types and programs of work a preacher is called upon to do, and gave some excellent suggestions on how to get such jobs done. A short time was allowed at the close of each session for questions and discussions by the class.

At each of the chapel services Brother Meyer talked on the New Testament church, and the distinctive features which differentiate it from all human sects. Both the faculty and student body pronounced his work "good, and very good." He gave to our young men some very "down to earth" advice which should help them materially in preparing for their work. This is but another service that Central Christian College is seeking to render to our young men who come here to school. It is our plan to bring other outstanding men here from year to year to give some special lessons to our young men who are preparing to preach. Those who have served the congregations for a long period of time in the capacity of preaching the gospel know first hand about the problems that preachers face. Men who have met them successfully, and have been able to render the greatest service among our people should certainly be heard by those who expect to follow similar work.

Brother James O. Baird, Dean of Central Christian College, and who taught nothing but Bible at David Lipscomb College for a number of years, will head our Bible work next year. A number of our staff assist in Bible and in Biblical teaching. We are constantly striving to strengthen all departments of our work, but especially in Bible teaching. Since this is the core of any Christian school, we cannot give too much emphasis to it.

Quite a number of students are already making their plans to attend Central Christian College next year. The future of our work looks bright.

EDITORIAL

G. H. P. SHOWALTER, Editor

THE LECTURESHIP AT ACC

The annual lectureship the last week in February, 1953, is now a matter of history. Always largely attended, this year holds the distinction of having the largest attendance in the history of Abilene Christian College Lectureships. The attendance according to registration was approximately 4500 people from about twelve or thirteen different nations besides the United States. At the annual fellowship meeting of visiting preachers and elders, there were nearly 1500 present participating in the social contacts and getting acquainted procedure of that interesting hour. The preachers present had a record of having preached from a very few years each, on up to sixty-one years. Two in the number attained the maximum years of service. Brother J. D. Thomas, master of ceremonies at this meeting, as well as the director of the entire program of the lectureship, should be mentioned favorably for his very unusual activity and work and eminent success in his accomplishments. There were meetings of different kinds in different halls and auditoriums practically all the time during the day and until late in the evening.

These lectureships, which by the way, simply amount to nothing but gospel sermons on the great themes of the Bible, were very highly interesting and instructive. Reports from the various countries of Europe where the gospel is being preached — France, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Germany, England, and perhaps some other states — were of special importance to those in the homeland who are supporting these gospel preachers and teachers in these lands. Quite a number of churches in the United States are able and willing and are happily engaged or interested in these fields of evangelism in a very satisfactory way. Also a number of brethren from among the most faithful and acceptable in the United States are going abroad or have gone and are engaged in this work. Suspicions and implications under such circumstances are always arising in regard to whether the work will be carried on in a scriptural way. This makes these brethren really more careful in their work. And after all, it is creditable to those who are faithful to be on the watch in regard to the matter of the sound doctrine of Christ and church government. The idea that a new organization is being formed among the churches for doing work in any land, whether ours or any other place, has apparently no foundation in fact. Churches are forwarding funds to the work of preaching the gospel; and this has been the case, whether in this country or other countries, during the history of the Restoration Movement. The departures that were made some years ago involved the organizing and operating of home missionary societies, foreign missionary societies, and a large number of other societies on a large scale which, of course, involved the establishment of ecclesiasticisms with organizations and officials unheard of or unknown in the New Testament. But the work that has been more recently done by our brethren abroad has not in any way affected the local autonomy of the churches of Christ, and the methods of forwarding funds have been in ways that seem safe and scriptural. Much of this support is sent direct through the postal service and, while that service was not available in the days of the apostles, its scripturalness is not challenged. For one congregation to forward money by its own members or members of another congregation or elders in another congregation is certainly in keeping with the teaching of the New Testament.

The lectureship from a standpoint of the addresses made was quite acceptable to those interested in Christian Education and was excellent in the cause of our Lord Jesus Christ in a general way. A college is, of course, an institution of men, as such, while it may serve a useful purpose, can very well be imperfect in many ways. Teaching is a business that is necessary and has always been so regarded. Even children have to learn language and have to learn everything else that they need and do not know. Paul went to school; and his father seemed to have picked out the best institution of learning in his day in the school of the great educational leader, Gamaliel, at Jerusalem. The leading lectures will be published immediately by the Firm Foundation Publishing House, and a sufficient number will be printed to accommodate all orders that are sent in at an early date.

Sister Showalter and I had the privilege and blessing of attending a portion of these lectures, which were very enjoyable, interesting, and instructive. I was extended the courtesy of an invitation to sit in with the Board of Regents of ACC and was much pleased with the deliberation on important matters under consideration by the college. I extended my congratulations to the board for the adoption of a resolution adding a full Graduate Department to the college. This will be quite an accommodation to a large number of graduate students who prefer, and can now take their work at ACC instead of having to go to other schools to complete their graduate work. President Don Morris and his associates in the large faculty, have a great opportunity and a great responsibility in the administration and operation of the large program now laid out before the school for the future. Our prayer for them is, that they may, in all things be guided by the wisdom that is from above.

AN APPEAL FOR ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND

J. Harold Thomas

*From Greenland's icy mountains,
From India's coral strand
Where Africa's sunny fountains
Roll down their golden sand,
From many an ancient river,
From many a palmy plain
They call us to deliver Their hands from error's chain.*

Brother C. G. McPhee, of Beamsville, Ontario, and I have just returned from St. John's, Newfoundland. There are approximately fifteen members of the New Testament church meeting faithfully there. All but one of those meeting are in the Air Force and are stationed at Fort Pepperrell, or the wives of such men.

These men and women are truly an inspiration. Their faithfulness is more challenging than sermons and should appeal to the church everywhere. They propose to make their stay in Newfoundland the occasion for the firm establishment of a church there — the first and only church of the churches of Christ. Already two of these men, with the consent of their wives, have asked for extended duty in this land thousands of miles away from their homes and loved ones in order that they may make a larger contribution to this cause. These men and women have not only proposed to make their enforced separation a means for God's glory and the salvation of men — but they have asked for a longer stay so that they may be able to serve more. They are missionaries in as true a sense as any preacher might be who proposed to bear Christ's gospel to a distant land. One man and his wife who will be in a position to return to the states and to their home, which they already own, and draw comfortable retirement pay, are giving thought to staying in Newfoundland until a self-sustaining church is a reality.

These Christians are pledged to give liberally to support this work. With no more than eight salaried members they assure $200.00 monthly out of their own contributions for the support of the work in St. John's.

The group is a studious group. They love God's word. It is a group of willing workers in the public services. Ray Faires preaches good sermons. Charles Caldwell leads the singing well. Kenneth Smith, Jim Reeves and Willard Weidner read the Scriptures publicly, lead public prayers and teach the Bible. Other men and women of the church are active and eager to be more active in teaching and personal work as they have opportunity.

Two eminent needs appear in St. John's. A suitable house of meeting is needed. Property values are so advanced that the best and cheapest solution is to purchase a lot and build a small building — a building which will be a complete unit of a larger and final plant. One result of our trip was the selection of an ideal lot and an application for the purchase of it from the St. John's Housing Corporation. We have every reason to believe that the board of the Corporation will pass favorably on this application, but, if it does, we can expect the building site to cost little if any less than $5000.00 — and it may be more. We hope and pray that the lot will be secured and that a building will be erected on it during 1953.

And — men must go to St. John's to evangelize the city and the island. There should be at least one man of proven ability, of experience and of a thorough knowledge of God's word to go. I do not know of one such man who is willing to go. I know many such men who will not go. I could list their names — an imposing list — men whom I love and who are widely loved and respected — but they will not go to St. John's or to any other such field. They will go only where there are already well established and prosperous congregations — where there is already a good building or the immediate prospect of one. Or they will go only to serve in established schools or other such enterprises that offer a double measure of security and prestige as well as a "greater opportunity." I may misjudge some men on my list — but after my errors are corrected there will still be a long list of the most able and notable preachers who will not go to any place like St. John's, Newfoundland.

Perhaps someone I misjudge will go — or some worthy man whom I do not know. God grant someone to go!

If you are willing to help these wonderful Christians who are so eager and willing and zealous to preach the gospel throughout this Canadian province, write to Captain Kenneth L. Smith, 81 Goodridge Street, St. John's, Newfoundland.

TEXAS NORMAL SINGING SCHOOL

Sabinal, Texas

Texas Normal Singing School at Sabinal, Texas, is dedicated to training song leaders for the churches of Christ. Our 1952 session brought us men and boys from seven states. Our dormitories were filled to capacity with the finest Christian men and boys that could possibly be rallied together.

For 1953 we are expecting an even larger enrollment than we had last year. In order to take care of everyone who wishes to come, we have enlarged our quarters, making the third time we have had to expand. We have had near 400 students to enroll from 17 states in our brief history of seven years. We feel this is a work worthy of your attention.

If you are interested in training as a song leader, song writer, or teacher, do not get our work confused with other singing normals. We welcome your inquiries that we may send you more literature. If you are already acquainted with our program and wish to send in your reservation it is now time to register. We take men and boys from the age of 12 and up. The cost for the entire program, room, meals and instruction is only $65.00 and we request a deposit of $5.00 of this amount to be mailed in with your reservation. School will open June 7th to the 20th of this year. Send all mail to our winter office, P. O. Box 293, Crystal City, Texas.

J. T. Marlin, 1503 McCaulley, Sweetwater, Texas, February 23: One was baptized at 4th & Elm yesterday. This was the 30th baptism in the past three months. I will be with the church at Crawfordsville, Indiana, in a meeting beginning March 23rd.

Monroe E. Hawley, 3413 S. Alabama Ave., Milwaukee 7, Wisconsin, February 27: The church in Milwaukee, which meets at 1457 N. 35th Street, has had four baptisms recently. The colored congregation established last summer is growing splendidly. It meets at 2153 N. 8th.

Tom E. Wallace, P. O. Box 7, Hobbs, New Mexico, February 28: There have been eight baptisms and three restorations the past two Sundays. This makes a total of 133 for 21 months work. The Hobbs church and the Parkview church of Odessa begin construction of a building in Chihuahua City, Mexico, soon.

Claude A. Guild, 2701 E. Belknap Street, Fort Worth 11, Texas, March 2: Fifteen placed membership, seven were restored and two were baptized during the month of February at the church of Christ in Riverside, Fort Worth. Brother L. D. Webb of Portland, Oregon, is with us in our spring meeting at the present time. We had 662 in Bible study classes last Sunday. My next meeting will be in Anson, Texas, with Thomas L. Campbell.

Robert D. Banks, 810 Houston Street, Kilgore, Texas, March 2: In the last two months there have been nine responses here at Houston and Broadway. Two were baptized, six placed membership, and one confessed wrongs. A Lecture Series will be conducted April 13-17 on the theme, "Teaching God's Word Through Bible Classes."

Boyd C. Glover: At the time I write this the church of Christ in Sudan is in need of a preacher to move here some time after March 9. They will have a new two-bedroom home for a preacher to move into if deal goes through as well as one of the nicest church buildings to be found. Anyone interested may contact I. R. Boren or V. G. Wood, Sudan, Texas.

Thomas B. Warren, Galena Park, Texas, March 2: We invite everyone in the vicinity of Houston to be with us in the opening service in the new auditorium of the church in Galena Park, March 29. The building is located at Third and Holland Streets. A series of Bible lectures with a different speaker each evening will begin that day to continue through April 10, with no service on Saturday evening.

R. V. Scott, Tunica, Mississippi, February 24: Reginald Ginn of Meridian, Mississippi, will be with us in a gospel meeting from March 16-25. I will begin the meeting on March 15th. Services will be conducted each evening in the Tunica County Court House beginning at 7:45 p.m. Brethren and friends are urged to be with us as we are a small group in a difficult field and the presence of visitors will be of great encouragement to us. We are still in need of help on our building fund. One of the greatest hindrances to our work here is the lack of a meeting house. If each reader would send a donation, even if only one dollar, it would mean much to us in our efforts to build.

A. C. Williams, Sand Springs, Oklahoma, February 24: We began with the Central Church here February 22. The church shows a fine interest in its work in this city. One placed membership at the morning service. We hope to have a good work with the congregation and community. I begin a meeting at Olton, Texas, March 2, and at Gruver, April 1.

Jno. K. Lanier, Seagoville, Texas, February 26: Brother David Walker of Dallas filled his appointment at Pleasant Grove Church of Christ last Lord's day. Brother Willard Morrow will be in a meeting at Crandall, next week. I am engaging my time for 1953 now as song director. I will go anywhere. Let me hear from you at an early date.

Elbert R. Garretson, 1110 East Santa Fe, Fullerton, California: We have moved back to work with the church here for the second time. Both interest and attendance are good. We anticipate good things. One was baptized a few days ago. Our training classes for men and boys are just starting with good interest and some are coming in from surrounding places. We enjoyed our work with Caruthers and appreciate them highly.

W. A. Holley, Port Arthur, Texas, February 25: I am now in my fourth year with the DeQueen Boulevard Church of Christ. The faith of all of our members continue to grow, and we are expecting to accomplish great things for the Lord during this new year. Recently we have had two baptisms. The Lord has blessed us wonderfully, and we have made much progress. By the grace of God we shall keep on keeping on.

Oliver C. Cunningham, 406 Chestnut St., Cookeville, Tennessee, February 24: Today the moving van leaves Shawnee for Cookeville. On last Thursday, a soldier, home on leave, was baptized. Sunday a husband was baptized and his wife restored. At a special service Monday night, a wife was baptized and her husband restored, another husband and wife restored and a widow restored.

James L. Eubanks, Box 252, Forsan, Texas, February 20: On February 8, we began work with the congregation in Forsan. The members have a mind to work and we are trusting that the Lord will bless our efforts. The elders here are V. L. Bennett, O. W. Fletcher, and Erda Lewis. We are looking forward to a profitable work for the Lord in the coming months. When in this part of the state come and worship with us.

Bill McCown, 176 Ohio Street, New Braunfels, February 24: The local congregation, numbering less than 100, is releasing its minister from local responsibilities and supporting him in three-Sunday meetings. I am to be with the church at Natick, Massachusetts, April 12-26; Nixon, Texas, May 10-24 and at Gonzales, Texas, July 5-19. This work is all with small congregations needing assistance. In addition, the local group is making possible work among the colored in New Braunfels in June. This is truly a missionary-minded congregation.

J. P. Williams, Rt. 11, Box 198, Ft. Worth, Texas, February 23: During the month of February nine answered the invitation call here at Lake Worth. Three were baptized, five identified, and one confessed fault. For these we give God the glory, and press on to greater things for his cause. The annual Fort Worth lectures will be held March 16-20. Three lectures will be given daily. We invite you to come and enjoy this feast with us here in Fort Worth.

Bill McCown, 176 Ohio Street, New Braunfels, Texas, February 25: Our work in New Braunfels continues to show progress. I am now in my fourth year with the church at this place. My book of eight radio sermons exposing the fallacy of the Oneness Holiness, and Pentecostal people on the Holy Spirit, One God, Divine Healing, and Miracles is now being distributed. Price: 50c per copy, postpaid. Order from me at above address.

J. F. Doggett, 1001 Meadow Lane Street, Tyler, Texas, February 27: Since last report one has been baptized here at the Crescent Heights congregation. We are looking forward with pleasure to our spring meeting with Brother Ray Chester of Vernon, Texas, who is to be with us in April. It is good to be associated with P. D. Wilmeth and L. L. Gieger in the work in Tyler. The peace, cooperation and fellowship between the three congregations seems to be of the very best. Worship with us when in Tyler.

W. D. Black, Box 152, Evant, Texas, February 23: Through the month of February I have preached at San Saba each Sunday, supplying for them till their preacher could get there on March 1. Brother A. C. Knight from Mason is to begin his labors with them. San Saba is a good church to work with. Some of the "salt of the earth" are there. It was indeed a pleasure to labor with them. I am available for appointments anywhere in reach of Evant in the coming months. I am to be with the church at Leander the fifth Sunday in March. All-day services. All in reach are invited.

John G. Bills, 4133 Middlesex Drive, San Diego, California, February 23: We had a very profitable day at Linda Vista today. Two responded to the invitation. One was baptized into Christ, and one restored to her first love. Next Lord's day, Linda Vista shall have dinner together and singing in the afternoon. This is in memory of the fifth year of her existence. Nine hundred twenty-nine responses for the five years, about one-third of them baptisms. I am to be in Tennessee the first half of August in a meeting. I would like another meeting before and after. If interested, write me at above address.

Gordon Teel, Box 1029, Pasadena, Texas: The new congregation which was started in south Pasadena, Texas, some five months ago, is steadily growing. They have had over two hundred in Bible classes already. Brother Carl McCullough, formerly of Groesbeck, Texas, is preaching for the new congregation. The Shaw Street congregation is again filling the building to capacity. Very soon, we must return to two services on Sunday morning. We have purchased some lots adjoining our present property and plan to erect an eight hundred seat auditorium by the latter part of this year. We sent the John Hadleys to Stuttgart, Germany, this year and are supporting them with the help of the Broadway congregation in Houston. We are also providing half of the support for Pedro Davila in Zacatecas, Mexico. We are also having fellowship in the Herald of Truth Broadcast. We plan to continue all of these works while erecting our larger building. We had some two hundred to respond to the invitation this past year of which sixty-nine were baptisms.

Burford Holt, 1621 Mitchell Street, Humboldt, Tennessee, February 23: The work in Humboldt begins with good interest. Five have been baptized since we arrived the latter part of January. With the people recovering from flu our attendance has increased. The church appreciates the good work done by Brother Paul Hall who labored with these good brethren for four years. When passing through Humboldt, worship with us at 1613 Mitchell Street. My meeting (mission) in Kentucky in January resulted in three coming out of the Christian Church, one member restored, and one baptized. The great mission field of South-eastern Kentucky is showing great growth with Corbin as the center for radio preaching and contacting the listeners.

C. L. Maxwell, Gonzales, Texas, February 24: The work here is thriving. Two restorations, one baptism, and four by membership the past three weeks. The church here is trying to establish a colored congregation but hasn't reached the point where we can assume all expenses attached in such an effort. If we could secure a good colored preacher right now, I believe the colored people of this city would respond to such a meeting in a great way. If some well established congregation would shoulder this responsibility the church here would cooperate in every way possible. If any individual wishes to assist, and wants to make an offering to help us get in position to have this meeting, they may mail their offering to W. W. Kennedy, 1430 N. Hamilton, Gonzales, Texas.

J. Emmett Wainwright, 1330 South 3rd Street, Las Vegas, Nevada, February 28: Two meetings in California, Oildale and Exeter. Three were baptized; excellent fellowship of congregations and preaching. Efficient elders at both places, and two capable gospel preachers—C. E. Franklin and William Price. Plans for new building in Highland section of Oildale under way; and the need of enlarged quarters in Exeter receiving active attention. Brother B. L. Bedwell of Barstow, California, did a good work here during my absence. Some more have been joyfully readjusted. Peace and progress, in paths of righteousness, are attracting and drawing honest observers. We are very grateful for words of encouragement from a multitude by letter and word—visitors!

Charles A. Holt, Jr., Box 607, Mt. Pleasant, Texas, February 24: I am to engage Mr. A. J. Wall, Pastor of the First Baptist Church in Turley, Oklahoma, in a four-night debate, March 23-26. The debate will be conducted in Turley. The first two nights will be held in the Baptist building and we will discuss total depravity and the operation of the Holy Spirit. The last two nights will be conducted in the building of the church of Christ and we will discuss the plan of salvation. This should prove to be a very interesting discussion. We urge everyone in the vicinity of Turley to attend. Turley is six miles north of downtown Tulsa, on North Peoria Avenue. Brother Earl J. Cotton, 426 E. Pine, Tulsa, is the preacher for the church in Turley. Write him for any further information. Plan to attend the debate.

Frank Trayler, Chaplain (Major), U.S.A.F., P. O. Box 207, Boerne, Texas, March 2: I concluded twenty-eight months of duty at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas, yesterday. During February, nine men were baptized, and one was restored. Looking back over the past tour of duty, I notice that I have held 130 services for our brethren, with a total attendance of 17,506, making an average weekly attendance of 134. During that time, 80 men have been baptized and 60 have been restored. I am leaving for the Far East the first part of April, so I would like to have the names and APO addresses of your loved ones over in the Far East. Please send to my Boerne address right away. Since I am in the Air Force, it is likely I can contact airmen with greater ease, but I shall do my best.

Wayne Hargrove, 5317 South Park Boulevard, Houston 21, Texas, February 26: We thank the Lord for the remarkable progress being made here at the MacGregor Park congregation. We have had thirty-nine additions (including seven baptisms) during January and February, bringing our membership to 190. Nine were added last Sunday. Our Bible School attendance the past four Sundays has been 211, 319, 234 and 246, respectively, each a record. Our Sunday morning worship attendance is almost 300. Our contributions have been $488, $540, $544 and $1154 during February. Our building is less than four months old, but we are planning to add another large unit immediately. Twelve preachers and teachers from eight congregations in the Houston area will lecture and demonstrate methods and materials in our Teacher Training Course March 9-13. Visit with us when you are in Houston.

W. Ray Votaw, P. O. Box 605, South Houston, Texas, February 26: We have been blessed in our first year with the church here in South Houston. There have been well over one hundred responses this past year with increases on all fronts. In the past year we have been able to extend our resources to the Japanese work in Ibaraki, the Mexican work in McAllen, and the colored work in Louisiana. Also, with the backing of this and other congregations in Louisiana, I was able to conduct a three-week meeting in Leesville, Louisiana, which resulted in a loyal congregation of about 30 members being organized and the complete disbanding of the pre-millennial group and the disposal of their property. We have recently agreed to buy three adjacent lots here in South Houston for the construction of a preacher's home and more parking space. If you know of members of the church stationed at Ellington Field, please contact us.

Garvin M. Toms, 419 South Jackson Street, Lima, Ohio, February 11: With the grounding of the Lima church in the fundamentals of the gospel and the completion of its building this congregation is entering what may be called a second stage of growth. The patient and hard-working disciples here, assisted by the Seventh Avenue church in Columbus, Ohio, have come a long way in planting the cause of Christ in this north-western Ohio mission field. Now that the congregation has been permanently established, September 1 will bring to a close almost three years of labor here for this writer. Although some locations are under consideration, my new field of labor has not been determined.

T. J. Finley, Lubbock Road at Oak Street, Brownfield, Texas, February 27: The work here moves along nicely. There have been five restored, five identified, and two baptized since the first of the year. Our meeting is the week of March 8-15, with Dean Brookshire from Plainview, Texas, doing the preaching. In addition to helping with a daily radio program over station KTFY, work is being done outside of our own local territory. This congregation helps support Brother Cecil Allen, minister of the church in Plains, Texas. Included in our 1953 budget is $150.00 per month to his support. The church in Plains is new but is making steady and substantial growth. Lots have been purchased for a building and this seems to be their immediate need. They now meet in the old courthouse in Plains. Luther Roberts from Corsicana, Texas, is to be there in a meeting in March. He is being supported in this meeting by the church in Spur, Texas. We have planned to build a building for the colored people of our city this year. For some time this church has been supporting the superintendent of the Frascati Orphans Home, Frascati, Italy. Brother Carl G. Hecker, of Winters, Texas, is in his first year as superintendent, and is doing an excellent job. The Home is under the oversight of the elders of this congregation.

Norman H. Beaman, 14906 Winthrop, Detroit 27, Michigan, February 16: "The Strathmoor congregation contributed over $24,600 during 1952. Of this total, $6,000 was spent for missionary and benevolent work. Supporting the Hugh Mingles in Germany is the leading missionary project of the congregation at present. The J. C. Shewmakers in Africa, the Potter Orphan Home, the "Herald of Truth" program, and Michigan missions are other projects included in our 1953 budget. The church is also making an extra effort to wipe out a $22,000 indebtedness on her property. Since the first of the year there have been nine additions, four by baptism and five by transfer of membership. Our vacation Bible school is scheduled for June 22 through July 3.

Jack Meyer, 1525 Sutherland Place, Birmingham, Alabama, February 23: Central Christian College, Bartlesville, Oklahoma, invited me to give a series of lectures, February 2-6, to the young preachers. After the first class on Monday night, there were three classes daily, totalling thirteen lectures. We dealt principally with the everyday mechanics of doing the work of a gospel preacher who spends the major part of his time working through a congregation. Detailed outlines of the speeches were distributed to the classes. Preacher students were excused from classes in most cases, assuring us of a large attendance. I spoke also to the chapel audiences for four days on "The New Testament Church." The entire course totalled twenty hours of lectures. I have never spent a 5-day period which appeared to me as profitable as this one. The associations and work combined to make this a "refresher course" for me. The college, under the presidency of L. R. Wilson, has made almost unbelievable progress in physical equipment, faculty, and student body. At the foundation is an unusually good board of directors, under the chairmanship of L. B. Clayton of Oklahoma City. Individuals far and wide should be making regular contributions, no matter how small—or large."

Roy Burgess, Maysville, Alabama, February 26: The meeting in Elkhart, Indiana, was well attended by outsiders and interest was very good from the start to the finish. The new building is completed and the small congregation is happy and expects considerable growth in the future. Two were baptized and two restored who had been mixed up with the Christian Church. Brethren from many places helped with attendance. Our work in Maysville goes well.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

We, the undersigned elders, are asking that you print this letter so that the brotherhood may know fully the condition of Brother Tice Elkins. Brother Elkins has served this congregation long and faithfully, as well as many other congregations of the church in many parts of the country, and his more than fifty years in the Lord's service has been very fruitful. But the doctor says now that his work is over, that he will never be able to preach again. In fact, that he must leave this place and this climate, or he will never so much as walk across the room again. He has ordered Brother Elkins to the coast in order to ever leave his bed. He will be leaving just as soon as he is able to travel, and will stay with his son in California for an indefinite period. Our prayers go with him as we are sure the prayers of many of his friends will, that the Lord will bless him and restore him to his health, if it be his will. (Signed)

TWENTY CONVERSIONS IN ONE WEEK

E. Hector Zamorano

A great meeting was just held in Post, Texas, from the sixteenth to the twentieth of February in which 12 persons were baptized and three were to be baptized the following Sunday. This is another Mexican congregation in our field. Brother H. R. Zamorano, who labors for the Lord in Lubbock, Texas, among the Mexicans, valiantly preached the glorious gospel night after night. Brother Emeterio Rubio, a former Baptist preacher, recently converted into the church of Christ, was left in charge of the work, which would be sponsored by the American church of Christ in Post, Texas. Brother Zamorano has preached much in mission fields, helping to establish new congregations in several places. He is the editor of EL CAMINO, a monthly publication in Spanish.

In Lubbock on February 22, eight persons were baptized into Christ by Brother Zamorano. The work has started the new year in a very pleasing manner. The members of the Spanish-speaking church unite in thanking God and the American churches of Christ in Lubbock for their part in this work. May the Lord keep blessing the work and we pray that more souls may be won for Christ. Pray for us.

Garvin M. Toms, 419 South Jackson Street, Lima, Ohio, February 11: L. H. Andrews of Athens, Alabama, will preach in a meeting at Lima March 2-12. The attendance had been small until last Lord's day, owing to some influenza in the area. On a recent trip to Florida, it was my privilege to speak at Covington, Kentucky, where Jack P. Lewis preaches; at Dade City, Florida; at Green Cove Springs, where Paul Breakfield labors; Arlington, where C. Lester Gear works; and Willow Branch, where J. C. Townsend has recently gone to work; in the Jacksonville area. All of these churches seem to be "on the march."

James W. Reynolds, 135 Vernon Place, Pueblo, Colorado, February 16: I was with the church in La Junta, Colorado, for four nights, and large crowds attended the services there. The brethren in La Junta show great interest in developing the cause in that town, and nearby communities. A preacher has been selected for that work. I was with the church in Laramie, Wyoming, February 2-8 where John Franklin is the preacher. This school town has some very fine brethren working. Of course, they are in need of improvements on their building but they do have a determination for the saving of souls. It was good to see their work in progress.

Timothy B. Crews, 105 Hardy Avenue, Corsicana, Texas, February 18: From henceforth when I make a report or write an article I will use the above name instead of just my initials as I have been doing. Since my initials are T. B., I am oftentimes mistaken for two other preachers. My uncle, Brother Thornton Crews, is in Cushing, Oklahoma, but will soon be in Pensacola, Florida. Having the initial "T." in my name has caused me at times to get letters which were meant for him. Brother Bill Crews, son of Thornton, and a double first cousin of mine, is just completing his first local work at Lake Charles, Louisiana, and will soon move to Opelousas, Louisiana, supported by Houston and Pease church of Vernon, Texas. Since the second initial in my name is "B", I am oftentimes confused with Bill who reports under that name. Several years ago Brother Thornton Crews wrote an article to the paper from Houston when he and I both lived there, regarding this same matter. At that time his son was still in high school. I could probably profit by taking advantage of this likeness in initials but it might not be of much help to Thornton or Bill. The work here at North Beaton Street is looking up with the most encouraging attendance we have had all winter.

Luther G. Roberts, 2110 W. 2nd Avenue, Corsicana, Texas, February 18: One was baptized here at West Side the past Sunday night. The work continues to be very pleasant here. Beginning March 9, I am scheduled to do the preaching in a meeting with the church in Plains, Texas, the place where the recent explosion occurred in which one was killed and several others injured. The meeting is to be conducted in the court house. Brethren within driving distance of Plains are urged to attend the meeting and otherwise to help us preach the gospel in this community.

Thornton Crews, Box 411, Cushing, Oklahoma, February 19: The first of November 1951, I moved to this splendid little oil city to see if I could help the church with its program and plans. They had erected a real attractive brick building a little over a year before that date. They had made some real progress during the last three years in comparison with what they had done in the past. I think we have made considerable progress during the months that I have been here. During 1952 we had two excellent meetings with G. K. Wallace and Roy Foutz. Many out of town visitors were in attendance every night of these meetings. A good many visitors from the city of Cushing also attended. I think we are having more visitors now than at any time in the history of the congregation. We baptized thirteen in 1952 and restored ten and had twenty-six to identify themselves with the church here. Two have been baptized in 1953 and four have been restored and one identified. One of the restorations was a man who has done much work in this section in the last twenty years. He and one of the elders here had had a difference since before I came here. With this matter properly settled, it should be a great help to the cause. We have worked out the largest budget in the history of the church for 1953 and so far have exceeded it by a good margin. Too, we have raised in money, groceries, and clothing well over $200.00 worth of stuff for two families that we wanted to help. We have started a weekly Radio Program over the local Broadcast Station KWHP. It has just been erected and is a 1,000 watt station. It can be heard for more than one hundred miles. Too, they plan to erect a nice preacher's home in 1953. For more than twenty years I have wanted to buy a small acreage near some of our children and settle down. I have had hay fever ever since I left the gulf area. So, in June 1953, I am to begin work with the new Bellview congregation, in Pensacola, Florida. They have just finished a meeting house with a number of class rooms and an auditorium that will seat more than three hundred people. I baptized many of the leaders of this fine little church when I lived in Pensacola a number of years ago. I have bought five acres of land and will erect a nice house on it just as soon as I get moved down there. I anticipate a profitable and pleasant work there. We have two daughters living in Pensacola. The folks here have contacted three or four preachers, but so far as I know have not employed either of them. If you should desire correspondence relative to the work, write me and I will let you know about the matter.

William C. Morton, % The Tipton Home, Tipton, Oklahoma, February 23: For several months I have been working with two fine country congregations, one at Lake Creek, north of Granite, Oklahoma, where I preach every other week. At Lake Creek, Brother L. J. Norman has started a very successful young people's study class that meets every Wednesday night at the church. The good people at Lake Creek are among the most cooperative I have ever had the pleasure of working with. Brother Church of Sentinel, Oklahoma, fills in the other Sundays, and together we feel that some progress is being made. The other two Sundays in the month, I preach at Hess, Oklahoma, a crossroads town nine miles west and south of Tipton. Since preaching there, I have started their first Wednesday night prayer services where we are studying the Book of Acts, verse by verse. The first meeting, we had 28, the next 38, the next 45, the next 46, then 50, and our goal next time is 55. The people at both of these good churches have a mind to work and everyone seems optimistic about the work. If in either of these places on the Lord's day, worship with us.

John W. Franklin, 1730 Custer Avenue, Laramie, Wyoming, February 23: The church here recently conducted a very fine meeting with James W. Reynolds of Pueblo, Colorado, doing the preaching. We feel that Brother Reynolds did a splendid job in strengthening the church and teaching a number of outsiders who were in attendance.

G. Tillman Prince, 307 Evans Avenue, Vallejo, California, February 23: I made a report a few days ago and have had letters from old friends whom we had not met in several years. We are grateful for all of our friends and for all the nice letters and cards we have received since Mrs. Prince has been ill. You can never know how much comfort came to me through your letters and cards. Mrs. Prince is home now and seems so much improved. Continue to pray for her recovery. In the near future we plan to give up the work in Stockton, where we have been preaching the past three years. With Mrs. Prince's condition as it is we can't make a long move nor can we afford to get somewhere where we would not have access to Kaiser Foundation or Permanente Hospital. As we are members of Permanente, they know Mrs. Prince's case and have a record of her illness for the past four years. May the Lord bless Christians in every place.

Our gospel meeting with Brother George Stephenson of Wichita Falls in November was a great help to us. In it, we had two baptisms, one restoration, and two placed membership. We now have our new pews of gum in blond finish, with matching rostrum furniture, a gift from Brother and Sister S. P. Bennett of the other congregation here. Good interest and attendance here. we are making steady progress. Last year we made many improvements in the building, inside and outside. Our summer revival in the City Park will be July 19-29 with Foster L. Ramsey of Tipton. Do you hear our radio programs Thursday at 11:45 a.m. over KTAT, Frederick, 1570 on the dial, and also Sunday at 8:15 a.m. when we have a program with the other congregation here? When you pass this way, stop and worship with us at 15th and Balsam. Watch for the big sign just before you cross the railroad track, as you come into Frederick from the south.

B. G. Dobson, Box 529, Vivian, Louisiana: The first service was held in our new building yesterday. It has a seating capacity of 260. Of course, it is possible to seat 300 or more with the use of chairs in isles. Sunday morning it was raining. However, there were 99 in classes with 150 to 175 for worship service. Our contribution was $338.00. This building fills a long time need of the brethren here, not so much because of numbers, but rather because of the pressing need of a better place in which to worship. When passing this way stop and worship with us. The location is on highway 8 in the north section of town.

Urban Cox, 322 West Wilson Street, Tyler, Texas, March 1: Last Lord's day evening I had the pleasure of again attending a singing at the church of Christ building in Troup, Texas, which is had once a month each third Sunday from place to place. Christians, friends, song leaders, and probably others were present from Jacksonville, Frankston, Bullard, Zion Hill, Kilgore, Chandler, West Erwin Street and Crescent Heights congregations of Tyler. Surely we can see the need of more singings like this everywhere in the church. Of course, each congregation is separate, yet we can do much good by meeting and singing praises to our Lord together more often. I sell song books and rudiments. May we learn to love beautiful gospel singing more each day. The next singing will be at Chandler the third Sunday in April.

LUSAKA, NORTHERN RHODESIA

H. E. Pierce

I left Lusaka by train on the third of January for Capetown where I was to receive our new Willys station wagon for which we had been working, hoping, praying, and patiently waiting for fifteen months. I arrived in Capetown at noon on January 6 to find that the ship carrying the station wagon had docked that morning at six. While waiting for the customs agents and the Willys dealer to get the station wagon cleared through customs and serviced for the road, I went to Grassy Park and visited with the George M. Scotts, aged missionaries to Africa. Although physically feeble the Scotts are of good cheer and are continuing to hold the banner of the Lord high in Capetown. God bless these noble souls, they have done a great work in Africa. I preached each of the three nights I was there and the congregation gave about $34 to the building fund for our new church in Lusaka. The Scotts had already made a personal gift of about $140 to this fund.

At 1:30, January 9, I drove onto the Great North Road leaving Capetown. I drove on and night and until late Saturday afternoon. I reached Pretoria with almost half of my drive behind me. I located the Martel Pettys and spent the week end with them. I was privileged to visit the church there on the eleventh and to preach for them that night. The Don Gardners and the Pettys have done a wonderfully fine work in this capital city of the Union of South Africa. The brethren at Peak and East Side, Dallas, and the others who are supporting this work have a right to feel very proud that they have such a fine group of workers on the job over here. The church in Pretoria is in great need of good property and a building of their own so the work there will not be hindered in its fine march forward. Anyone contemplating this very outstanding work may feel assured that it is quite worthy of all the support that can be given. May the Lord move you to do all you can for it.

When I got into Southern Rhodesia on the thirteenth, I found flooded rivers everywhere. I drove through a lot of water all that day and was finally stopped by the Gwaai River which I couldn't drive through or go around. I camped on the bank of the river, with many other travelers, from Tuesday night until Friday morning. I arrived back home Friday night at dark. We are very happy that the Lord has prospered our work here with this fine new station wagon. We are truly grateful to all our good brethren who have had a part in making it possible.

My urgent appeal for help was most graciously responded to. We received a total of $451 from congregations and individuals in many parts of the U. S. for which we are most humbly and truly grateful. Our financial situation is greatly improved even with the extra expense of bringing the station wagon from Capetown.

The Lord has blessed the Lusaka work with four baptisms in January.

M. Sewell, M.D.

"...I Was Sick
And Ye Visited Me..."

Matt. 25:36

Dr. Marjorie Sewell, the only medical missionary among members of Christ's church, has just returned from Africa to study tropical medicines for a year in Tulane University. She will return to Africa after the year of graduate work.

Sister Sewell was converted from sectarianism while a freshman in Abilene High School and immediately after graduation entered nurse's training. After graduating from school of nursing she came to A. C. C. to serve as school nurse. She is the sort of person who has the energy and ability to do two full-time jobs at once. After two years as school nurse and pre-med student she entered medical college in 1946 where she attended classes by day and nursed by night to pay expenses.

In June, 1950, she received an M.D. degree and departed the same month for Africa. She joined the staff of Nhome mission as doctor of the human body and of the eternal soul. She is the health guardian not only for 350 boys and girls in the mission but also for a large surrounding area. In addition to her medical services and Bible teaching in the mission, she has oversight of the girls' dormitories, sports and the work program. Their training in work consists of gardening, building, sewing, cooking, laundering, etc. As a doctor, her chief concern is with Malaria, Bilharia, and maternity cases. In her absence, patients of the mission and surrounding area must be carried 36 to 48 miles to the nearest government clinic. Relative to her work she says: "It is most gratifying to help these physically ailing people and to teach so many girls who soon will be marrying and making homes. From a class of 35, just concluded, they went home to many parts of Southern Rhodesia to influence others for Christianity. Only two of the class left without obeying the Gospel. To assist people in getting and staying well in soul and body is satisfying and I thank God for the privilege." This happy life of service and the hope of an eternal reward account for the sacrifice she is making. Her material support is a modest subsistence wage. As a doctor in her native country she could earn many times her present pay.

The Cause of Humanity, not to mention the Cause of Christ, needs immediately many more medical missionaries of Dr. Sewell's competence and spiritual stature.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Borrowed Trouble

"Who shall roll us away the stone from the door?" This question was asked by the women who went to the tomb of Jesus to anoint his body. But the stone was already rolled away, and their difficulty was only imaginary. In their work for the Lord men sometimes imagine the door has been closed and a stone against it. So they do nothing about it. When we contemplate the duties of life, we may see many stones that need to be rolled away, but none so formidable as to paralyze hope.

When people are not in a frame of mind to do the Lord's will, they hunt for excuses—they look for a stone against a closed door. They magnify disadvantages—make mountains out of mole hills. God does not require a man to do something he can't do. When the Lord commands a thing to be done, it is a sure thing that we are able to do it.

Some people keep themselves in perpetual misery by thinking of the trouble they had yesterday, those they are having today, and those they expect to have tomorrow. Borrowed trouble never brings a person anything worth having. It is the product of a distorted imagination. That was the trouble with the Israelites when they said they could not conquer the inhabitants of the land of Canaan. All their enemies were giants—big stones—that they could not roll away. So they chose to wander in the wilderness. When church members spend their time looking for easy ways to live the Christian life—looking for detours around apparent obstacles—they make a failure. The path of least resistance is not the road to heaven.

Encouraging Words

Jesus said to his disciples, "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me." Thomas and others were borrowing trouble. They could not see how the Lord could achieve his purposes by dying on the cross. They had the wrong idea about the kingdom he had promised to establish. They would believe in Christ only if he would ask them to believe what they already believed. And when people study the Scriptures to find what they already believe, they usually miss the truth.

The Pharisees professed to believe in the resurrection of the dead, but when it came to a test concerning Christ, they rejected what they claimed to believe. The disciples were troubled in heart because they had a weak faith concerning the resurrection of Jesus. They were astonished when they learned that he had risen from the dead.

The most encouraging object of hope is the resurrection of the dead. If this idea is destroyed, men will live in despair.

"For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ risen. And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept" (1 Cor. 15:16-20). The resurrection of Christ is the greatest fact in history. It gives more comfort to troubled hearts than anything else.

Jesus Condemns False Leadership

Hoyt Bailey

Some of the strongest words of condemnation are found in the twenty-third chapter of Matthew. Let us note here the first twelve verses of this chapter. "Then spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples, Saying, The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses' seat: All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do; but not after their work: for they say, and do not. For they bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers. But all their works they do for to be seen of men: they make their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garments, And love the uppermost rooms at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues, And greetings in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi. But be not ye called Rabbi: for one is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren. And call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, which is in heaven. Neither be ye called masters: for one is your Master, even Christ. But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant. And whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself shall be exalted."

We learn from the reading that Jesus spake to the multitude and to his disciples. In his discourse, he warns against the pretended religious zeal of the scribes and Pharisees. These are the ones who were supposed to keep the law as delivered by Moses. The scribes had guarded carefully the writing of the law, but there was a great need for more than the written law. Jesus saw the need of putting into practice what was written. It is right and scriptural to keep that which is written, to guard carefully what the Lord has commanded, but the Lord demands more, Jesus demands that Christians do his will according as it is written

The ones who guarded the law of Moses are spoken of as "The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses' seat." Such were the authorized expounders and teachers of the law. The scribes were the party chiefly denoted; they were of the Pharisaical sect; hence the addition, "and the Pharisees." It is because of their authority as appointed teachers of the law that Christ gives the command: "All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do; but do not after their works: for they say, and do not." All that they taught according to the laws was to be observed and obeyed. However, their evasions were not to be regarded. Jesus warned his disciples and the multitude not to do after their works, "They say, and do not." The Lord warned his followers to distinguish between their preaching and their practice. Though the scribes scrupulously guarded, kept pure and unaltered the text, it was their failure to live up to the law which Jesus censured. Jesus shows their evil example in two particulars—their principle was "words, not deeds", and ostentation in religion—"They say, and do not." They enjoined obedience to the law in the minutest particulars, and yet they themselves neglected or evaded it.

Jesus pointed out that they would "Bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not move one of them with their fingers." They imposed such regulations with all their crushing weight and severity upon others, demanding obedience to unreasonable regulations, thus putting "a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear." Such is a great fault in our modern day, because so called religious people, sometimes religious leaders, are willing for burdens to be borne, but such religious people wait for the other person to bear such burdens. Burdens are to be borne, but they are to be borne by one another. "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ. For if a man think himself to be something, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself. But let every man prove his own work, and then shall he have rejoicing in himself alone, and not in another. For every man shall bear his own burden" (Gal. 6:2-5).

Those people of whom Jesus speaks in this twenty-third chapter of Matthew wanted to be seen of men. For Jesus said: "But all their works they do for to be seen of men: they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garments, And love the uppermost rooms at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues, And greetings in the market, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi." The heathen religions have captured the attention of the press, movies, radio, and television. This spirit which existed during the days of Christ upon earth continues to exist during the twentieth century. Whatever it takes to attract the attention of men, religions of heathen origin will find those attractions. Such will do things of one nature or another in order to be seen of men. Whatever it takes for them to keep in the news, to keep themselves before the people, they will do those things. A bad principle in the religion of the scribes was that of ostentation and vanity. Doing things on the basis of out-doing someone else, doing something which will attract the attention of more men, is not doing things necessarily in harmony with the teaching of Christ. The preaching of the gospel is not to be on the basis of popularity, but to please God while leading men to submit to the will of God.

Jesus offers proof of those religious people wanting to be seen of men. He says: "They make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garments, And love the uppermost rooms at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues, And greetings in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi." It is said that the phylacteries were either strips of parchment or small cubes covered with leather, on or in which were written four sections of the law. They were worn fastened either to the forehead, or inside the left arm, so as to be near the heart. Their dimensions were defined by rabbinical rules, but the extra pious formalists of the day set these at naught, and increased the breadth of the strips of the bands by which they were fastened, in order to draw attention to their religiousness and their strict attention to the least observance of the law.

The enlargement of the borders of their garments is spoken of as the fringes or tassels which were fastened to the corners of the garments, and were composed of white and blue threads. It was claimed that this enlargement was designed to remind the wearers of the commandments of the Lord, and were regarded as peculiarly sacred. This enlargement of the fringes was supposed to be a badge of extraordinary piety and obedience, but such ostentation is condemned by Christ.

Jesus goes on to point out that those individuals loved "The uppermost rooms at feasts." The place of honor is said to have been at the upper end of the right side, the president being placed, not in the centre of that end of the table which faced the opening, but at the side. Therefore, the most honored guest would be at his right hand. The vain ones squabbled over how they might obtain this place of honor. Jesus describes the ones under discussion as loving "The chief seats in the synagogues." Dr. Edersheim describes the synagogue as being built of stone, with an entrance generally on the south, and so arranged that the worshippers might direct their prayers toward Jerusalem. In the centre was placed the lectern of the reader; the women's gallery was at the north end. "The inside plan is generally that of two double colonnades, which seem to have formed the body of the synagogue, the aisles east and west being probably used as passages. At the south end, facing north, is a movable ark, containing the sacred rolls of the law and the prophets. Right before the ark, and facing the people, are the seats of honor, for the rulers of the synagogue and the honorable." Of course, the Pharisees were more anxious to obtain those seats of honor than they were concerned about worshipping God acceptably. Those who worship during the twentieth century should check on their motive for worship.

John pointed out that during Christ's personal ministry some "loved the praise of men more than the praise of God" (John 12:42). When praise is being offered, one should consider the background of such praise. He should consider the character of the one making the praise, and he should think also of the motive involved in connection with the praise. Does the praise come from a Christian heart? Is the praise designed to do one good spiritually? Or is such done for the sake of material advantage? Will such praise meet God's approval?

Those scribes and Pharisees desired special attention in the market places. They wanted superiors to give them honorable salutations in public places. They wished to be called of men "Rabbi, Rabbi", or by the term addressed by scholars to their teacher, and repeated for ostentation's sake, of course such was to imply superiority for those called by such title. Greetings of this character are said to have been imposed on scholars and inferiors, under the pain of ecclesiastical censure and loss of salvation.

Jesus emphasized that his followers are not to seek the distinctive title of Rabbi through inordinate grasping or greedy ambition. Our Lord does not forbid respect for teachers, but true teachers recognize that there is but one great teacher—"One is your Master, even Christ". The Lord recognized no great distinctions among the teachers in respect to placing one over or above another. The followers of Christ were to follow no earthly Rabbi. Jesus pointed to the inspiration of the Holy Spirit as the agency through which those people were taught. Of course, the Spirit did his speaking through human agency. However, this did not give one man special distinction over another man in the kingdom of God. The Lord said to his followers: "All ye are brethren."

It is Jesus Christ who says: "And call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, who is in heaven." Why do professing religious people not respect this command of Jesus Christ? The God of the universe, our Heavenly Father is the Christian's spiritual father. The individual who calls someone upon earth his spiritual father does not believe Jesus Christ, or such have more respect for the words of men than they have for the words of Christ. Jesus positively commands: "Call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, whose is in heaven."

Jesus also forbade their being called masters, a thing the Pharisees claimed to be, and he pointed out again that "One is your master, even Christ." Jesus was their Teacher, Messiah, Ruler, and Guide, but Jesus is also our Teacher, Messiah, Ruler, and Guide. Though this is true, there is religious division as evidenced by innumerable sects and parties, ranging under various leaders, and generally bearing their founder's name. How mournful to think that Christ's prayer for unity in John 17 is still unfulfilled, frustrated or delayed by man's self-will.

While those people were concerned about attracting men, having the uppermost rooms at feast, occupying the chief seats in the synagogues, expecting greetings in the markets, and to be called of men "Rabbi, Rabbi", Jesus pointed out the road to true greatness. He says: "But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant. And whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself shall be exalted." This first clause is a prophecy of how the haughty Pharisees are to be overthrown, and the second can well be applied to the death, burial, and exaltation of Christ.

The fact that Jesus pronounced eight woes upon the Pharisees for their conduct and teaching is evidence that he condemns corrupt leadership. Jesus said: "Woe unto you Scribes and Pharisees, and hypocrites". In this twenty-third chapter of Matthew, we doubtless find the longest list of woes pronounced against false teachers, and especially false practice that is found in the New Testament.

Some More on Income Tax

Hugh S. Thomas, CPA

It has been called to my attention that a misunderstanding of my last article on income tax is possible in regard to statements made concerning the manner of making gifts. After studying this part of my article again, I must admit it has somewhat the appearance of trying to make what is essentially an illegal act a legal one merely by changing the form of making the gift. However, the exact opposite is what I intended to show, that is, an act that is legal in all other respects must also be legal in form to be acceptable under the income tax laws.

We teach, as members of the Lord's body, and rightly so, that regardless of our good intentions one must obey from the heart that "form of doctrine" of the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ in order to be saved. The income tax laws are similar in the sense that the "form" must be right. An individual to get a tax deduction should not give a check directly to the missionary himself to aid in that missionary's evangelistic effort. However, he can give to the church and let it be known he would appreciate that gift being forwarded to the missionary to be used by him in his teaching and preaching. My statement "for his personal use" in regard to the preacher or missionary is regrettable and I am sorry I used it. The meaning I had in mind was for him personally to use in his evangelistic efforts, and not to use for his own selfish interests. It has even been ruled in one court case in which a gift was made to an individual, a member of a religious organization, that the money was used for the benefit of the organization and that therefore the deduction was allowable (7 TCM 476). However, it is to avoid this burden of proof, or in words of scripture, "shun the very appearance of evil", that my suggestion was made that any gifts be made to the church and to leave with the elders the final decision as to propriety of using said gift in accordance with one's wishes, it being expected they would use said gift only to advance the cause of the Lord and his church. As long as the elders have the final decision as to when and where the gift is to be used, then it is my understanding the gift is legal and allowable in all respects. Certainly any attempt to camouflage a basically illegal act by dressing it up so as to merely disguise it would be abhorrent to all and sinful in the sight of God.

I feel it worthwhile to repeat that it is wrong to give for any other motive than to honor Christ and aid his Church, but a careful study of the tax laws and their application can aid us to give more and at the same time "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's."

A word might be in order concerning gifts made to churches outside the continental United States. A gift that is given to a church outside the United States is not deductible for income tax purposes as the contribution must be made to a "domestic" (within the United States) organization. It is perfectly acceptable, however, from a tax standpoint to give to the local church in the United States which is sponsoring or aiding in the work outside the United States. For example, if you wish to aid the German work or the Italian work you are in no danger of having the contribution disallowed if you send your gift to the Broadway church in Lubbock, Texas, or the Crescent Hill church in Brownfield, or some other church that is forwarding contributions for these respective mission fields.

As a result of the former article I have been asked some questions about tax savings for preachers and missionaries. One of my friends in Italy asked if his income were taxable. The answer may be of interest to others in foreign mission fields. The "earned" income of a missionary is not taxable if he is a "bona fide resident". To be a "bona fide resident" does not mean a citizen of a foreign country but is a technical term that means that one must be in the foreign country for at least a full-taxable year and must have the intention of making his home there during an "extended stay". Business trips or vacations back to the United States do not disqualify one from being a resident within the meaning of this term. As an alternative to the intention to take up residence, actual physical presence in the country for 510 days out of 18 months also qualifies the missionary not to have to pay tax on his earned income.

As for preachers here at home they can best save money by keeping an accurate account of all expenses incurred in their ministerial duties such as car expense, the cost of entertainment of church groups in their home or elsewhere (as distinguished from mere social relaxation), meals and lodging paid while away holding meetings (if not reimbursed), etc. An actual receipt should be kept if possible and definitely a written record as an aid to one's memory for many little expenses are often forgotten which can add up to a sizeable total. On the other side it might be well to mention that a preacher's marriage fees are taxable income and he should also keep a record of them.

Some churches that do not own residences for their preacher to live in can sometimes help the preacher when they hire him by renting a house for him and paying the rent direct to the owner. This keeps the preacher from having to pay income tax on the rent money as "the rental value of a house furnished a minister of the gospel is not taxable income" to said minister. This again is a case where the form must be right, for if the minister receives the check and then pays his own rent he must pay tax on all his income including the money used to pay his rent.

Sometimes the preacher can be helped, in instances where he is paid a salary and in addition is paid a certain amount to cover his car expense, for this car expense to be set out separately. This permits the actual car expense to be deducted from the reimbursement rather than being disallowed by the "standard deduction" in those cases where the "standard deduction" applies.

Three Great Voices

(Psalms 19)

By Frank L. Cox

Between the first verse of the Gospel of Matthew and the last of the book of Revelation, there are 283 quotations from the Old Testament. Significant is the fact that 116 of these quotations are from the Psalms. This is a definite indication of the value of the Psalms. Originally the Psalms was the hymn-book of the Jewish church. In our struggle toward the light and deliverance, we should remember that our Lord, during the days of his flesh, often quoted from the Psalms. It was the first book which the early church placed in the hands of the young convert and it was used as a guide in the praise service during the days of the apostles. It is the only one of the Old Testament books which is bound up with the New Testament as if it belongs there. Some people think of David as the author of the Psalms; as a matter of fact he wrote less than half of them. The book "includes the production of many different writers, widely separated one from another, not only in time, but also in style." We think of the collection as a book; in fact, it includes five books, distinctly separated, each containing the production of different authors and periods of Jewish history.

- I—Psalms 1-41.
- II—Psalms 42-72.
- III—Psalms 73-89.
- IV—Psalms 90-106.
- V—Psalms 107-150.

The authorship of Psalms 19 is ascribed to David. In profoundness of thought and comprehensiveness of expression, it is indeed one of the greatest of all the Psalms. When we read it, three great voices are heard. In verses 1-6, we hear the voice of nature; in verses 7-11, the voice of the law; in verses 12-14, the voice of prayer.

I. The Voice of Nature (vs. 1-6)

The heavens declare the glory of God;
And the firmament showeth his handiwork.
Day unto day uttereth speech,
And night unto night showeth knowledge.
There is no speech nor language;
Their voice is not heard.
Their line is gone out through all the earth,
And their words to the end of the world.
In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun,
Which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber,
And rejoiceth as a strong man to run his course.
His going forth is from the end of the heavens,
And his circuit unto the ends of it;
And there is nothing hid from the heat thereof.

The heavens (the sun, the moon and the stars innumerable) declare, or make known, the glory of God. Just as a building declares the reality of a builder, so the heavens declare the reality or the existence of God. (See Hebrews 3:4). The stars are "Forever singing, as they shine,

The hand that made us is Divine."

Not only is this true, but the heavens also declare the glory or character of God. Said Emmanuel Kant: "Two things fill my soul with wonder: the starry heavens above, and the moral law within." The natural world about us proclaims the power and the wisdom and the love of the Eternal. And the firmament (the sky, or expanse above) showeth his handiwork, or hand-work. "He who looks up to the firmament and then writes himself down an atheist brands himself at the same time as an idiot or a liar."—Spurgeon. Day unto day uttereth (pours forth) speech. It speaks in fulness, streaming forth a perpetual fountain, giving evidence of God's power and glory. And night unto night showeth knowledge. "The heavens by day are so marvelously unlike the heavens by night that the Psalmist's imagination conjures up two long processions, each member of which passes on the word entrusted to him to his successor—the blazing days with heaven naked but for one great light, and the still nights with all their stars."—A. Maclaren. There is no speech nor language; their voice is not heard. The heavens teach in majestic silence. They do not speak to the ear, but to the understanding heart. Their line (the sphere of their influence) is gone out through all the earth, and their words, or lessons of truth, to the end, or the extremity, of the world. The sun declares God's glory over the face of the earth. Every eager eye can see; every open heart can learn. In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun. The Creator made of the heavens a dwelling place for the sun. Which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a strong man to run his course. His going forth is from the end of the heavens, and his circuit unto the end of it; and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof. The Psalmist singles out the sun as the chief witness to God's glory and majesty and personifies it as though it were a hero or ruler for whose abode the Creator has fixed a tent in the heavens. "Thence he comes forth morning by morning like a bridegroom in all the splendor of his bridal attire, in all the freshness of youthful vigor and buoyant happiness (Isa. 61:10; 62:5). The beneficent influence of light and heat are universally felt."

II. The Voice of the Law (vs. 7-11)

The law of Jehovah is perfect, restoring the soul:
The testimony of Jehovah is sure, making wise the simple.
The precepts of Jehovah are right, rejoicing the heart:
The commandment of Jehovah is pure, enlightening the eyes.
The fear of Jehovah is clean, enduring for ever:
The ordinances of Jehovah are true, and righteous altogether.
More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold;
Sweeter also than honey and the droppings of the honeycomb.
Moreover by them is thy servant warned:
In keeping them there is great reward.

The law of Jehovah is perfect (free from defect or blemish), restoring the soul. The word of God revives the soul. By the power it radiates, it brings the soul back to God. The testimony (revealed will) of Jehovah is sure, i. e., raised above all doubt in its declarations, making wise the simple. God's word is the great enlightening influence, our one and only safe guide in our moral and religious life. It is "a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." The precepts (instructions in moral conduct) of Jehovah are right, rejoicing the heart. No joy is comparable to that which results from knowing and doing the will of God. (See Psalms 40:8). The commandment (law) of Jehovah is pure, i. e., free from error or human tradition, enlightening the eyes, "with brightness beyond that of the created light which rules the day." (See Psalms 119:130). "The spotless law imparts to us its Divine quality, and thus fills the soul with vision and joy."—Watkinson. The fear of Jehovah. Here an effect of the word takes the place of an attribute. The word, when read by an honest man, produces reverence for God. Is clean, pure, holy, requiring moral purity in the worshippers. Enduring forever. The Old Testament was relatively incomplete and destined to be done away, but the moral code of it abides. Jesus came not to destroy, but to fulfill. All that was good and holy about the law has been preserved and given a spiritual significance. (See Matt. 24:35). The ordinances (relative duties of man and man) of Jehovah are true, and righteous altogether. They are founded upon eternal principles of truth and, for this reason, they are true and righteous, constituting the only safe rule of conduct. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold; sweeter also than honey and the droppings of the honeycomb. Moreover by them is thy servant warned: In keeping them there is great reward. The delights of the word are in these two verses enumerated, which are these: It is more valuable than gold, more delightful than honey, it warns the wayward, it rewards the obedient. The law is a great possession, an abiding pleasure, a sure protection.

III. The Voice of Prayer (vs. 12-14)

While looking into the law, the Psalmist found reflected his own imperfections. Hence, the praise which he had for the law is quickly turned unto humble prayer. "The contemplation of the law," says an eminent scholar, "cannot but lead to self-examination, and that to petition. His shortcomings appall, for by the law is the knowledge of sin."

Who can discern his errors?
Clear thou me from hidden faults.
Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins;
Let them not have dominion over me:
Then shall I be upright,
And I shall be clear from great transgression.
Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart
Be acceptable in thy sight,
O Jehovah, my rock, and my redeemer.

Who can discern his errors? Though we try diligently to find our faults, some of them will be overlooked. Clear thou me from hidden faults, i. e., the faults we cannot see in ourselves. Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous (habitual, deliberate) sins; let them not have dominion over me. It is comparatively easy to eliminate faults while they are incipient and occasional; but once they have developed into open, habitual sins, they are tyrants whose yoke it is well nigh impossible to break. Then shall I be upright, and I shall be clear from great transgressions, the climax of "presumptuous sins," the final falling away from God. Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Jehovah, my rock, and my redeemer. "He best loves the law of Jehovah who lets it teach him his sins, and sends him to his knees; he best appreciates the glories of the silent heaven who knows that their witness to God is but the prelude of the deeper music of the Scripture's declaration of the heart and will of Jehovah, who grasps him as his strength and his redeemer from all evil, whether of sin or evil or sorrow."—The Expositor's Bible.

Let Us Learn:

1. That "the heavens declare the glory of God." Not only does a building declare the existence of a builder, but also his glory or character. When we survey the wonderful works of God in the material universe, we conclude that he is wise, powerful, and benevolent.
2. That, with all of its beauty and grandeur, the voice of nature—the declaration of the heavenly bodies—is not a moral guide. It does not teach us our duty toward God or toward our fellowman. Here the voice of revelation comes in and does for us what the voice of nature cannot do.
3. That the Bible, God's great book, is the one and only all-sufficient guide in the realm of morals and pure religion. In the incomparable work of converting or restoring the soul, of guiding man in the path of safety, of leading him to heaven, it is "perfect."
4. That the word of the Lord is endowed with wonderful attributes. It is "perfect," "sure," "right," "clean," and "true and righteous altogether."
5. That the word of the Lord produces marvelous results. It restores the soul, makes wise the simple, rejoices the heart, enlightens the eyes, and gives an enduring foundation. Man needs to read, to believe, to obey.
6. That when the sons of men look into the word of the Lord, they find reflected therein their own imperfections. This changes the praise they have for the law into humble prayer.

Studies In Galatians (No. 5)

R. C. Bell

Inasmuch as "the truth of the gospel" hangs thereby, Paul lays a broad, deep foundation for his independent apostleship. This foundation consists of three pillars: first, he received his apostolic commission directly from heaven; second, the original apostles understood that his apostleship was different from theirs, and gave him full endorsement and fellowship; third, when Peter made a mistake at Antioch, he corrected him. Previous essays have dealt with the first two pillars. This essay treats the third pillar (2: 11-18).

Peter's Mistake

Peter's experience in connection with Cornelius, the first heathen Gentile to become a Christian, convinced him that Christ was for all races and cultures of men. When the church in Jerusalem contended with him for eating with "men uncircumcised," he championed the cause of the Gentiles so effectively that the Jews began to accept uncircumcised Christians into the church.

A little later, Antioch became the cradle, and still later the citadel and missionary center, of Gentile Christianity. When Peter visited this great church, he engaged freely in social intercourse with its Gentile members, as was his right and custom, until some rigid legalists, who would impose circumcision on baptized Gentiles, came from Jerusalem. Then, "He drew back and separated himself, fearing them that were of the circumcision. And the rest of the Jews dissembled likewise with him; insomuch that even Barnabas was carried away with their dissimulation." But when Paul "saw that they walked not uprightly according to the truth of the gospel," he resisted Peter, the leader, "to the face because he stood condemned" (2:12-14). Remarkably strange that Gentile Christians suddenly became unfit associates for Peter! Is there to be one church for Jews and another for Gentiles?

The difference between Paul and Peter was not in doctrine, for both spoke "as the Spirit gave them utterance." They agreed that Christianity without additions from Moses would make full-grown Christians. But Peter, under pressure of the Judaizers, ceased in Antioch to fellowship Gentiles as he had been doing since Cornelius several years before. He had not changed his faith, however; he only acted as if he had. In doctrine, he stood firm; in conduct, overawed by men, he failed. This was "dissimulation," or hypocrisy.

Here are some things to warn and fortify us all. The fact that all the Jewish brethren in Antioch, including Paul's old and tried friend, Barnabas, (how much sleep did Paul lose over this?) were carried away, shows the mighty power of bad example. And if bold Peter and good Barnabas became hypocrites, for whom is hypocrisy impossible? The base motive, "seeking the favor of men," led these two men of good intentions to disguise their attitude toward the law and to pervert the gospel of grace. "The fear of man bringeth a snare" (Prov. 29:25). Probably, they did not realize either that they were hypocrites. And hypocrisy of which its victim is unconscious is the worst form of hypocrisy. For Christians to curry favor of men, from whom their calling certainly and definitely separates them, is, any time and anywhere, perilous.

Peter Corrected

Even after Cornelius, Peter knew that God made no distinction between Jew and Gentile, but that he freed both religiously from the unbearable yoke of the law, cleansed both by faith in Christ, gave both the Holy Spirit, reconciled "both in one body unto God through the cross having slain the enmity thereby," made "in himself of the two one new man, so making peace," and that both equally had through Christ "access in one Spirit unto the Father." Peter knew too much to be guilty of his conduct, and his slowness to see the implication of his retraction is astonishing. Oh, the weakness and fallibility of even good men!

To Peter, who had possessed this vast wealth of unforgettable knowledge (can men forget what they learned by experience?), and had lived accordingly for years, Paul said something like this: "Your ignoring Jewish scruples respecting circumcision, meats, days, and such like, at first, that you might fit smoothly into the life of this Gentile church was your Christian liberty and duty. But your reversing yourself when Judaizers came has involvements of extremely disastrous consequences. Remember, Peter, that you and I in becoming Christians discarded as a means of salvation all our unavailing legal advantages over lawless sinners of the Gentiles, took our place beside them as condemned sinners all, and, since no man can be justified by law, were justified even as they by God's grace through our faith in Christ. Your going back to Moses implies that you are correcting the mistake you made in giving him up for Christ. Do you not see that your conduct will be interpreted as inability of faith in Christ to satisfy human need, and as inadequacy of Christ himself to fulfil the deeper and higher longings and aspirations of the soul? Dear brother, remember your speech in the meeting at Jerusalem. How can you be such a great transgressor as to pervert the gospel and to make Christ a minister of sin?" (See 2:14-18).

Who, knowing Paul of the Acts and of his epistles can doubt that he reasoned and pleaded wisely, tearfully, and successfully? Who, knowing Peter of the gospels can doubt that he, in bitter weeping and true repentance, was restored to become a better and stronger man than ever? Two big men met in this incident face to face and heart to heart. Peter was good and great enough to acknowledge his mistakes when it was made known to him, and to respect and love Paul evermore for the rebuke and correction (See 2 Peter 3:15). Had not the truth of God and the souls of men been at stake, would Paul have written the Galatians about his having corrected Peter? When they read about it, could they still doubt Paul's apostolic knowledge and authority?

Peter was so human—impulsive, energetic, basically honest; an ambitious man of action and magnetic leader of men; a man given to rashness and shrinking from ridicule. His faults were but shadows of his virtues. He always needed a wise friend of deliberate mind and sound judgment for restraint and balance—an eye for his hand. For a few years he had such a friend in Jesus. At Antioch he is in character. Had not Paul saved the situation, would not the caste system have entered the church to rob her of her gospel of pure grace and liberty?

What Does the Bible Say?

A COMPLIMENT COMES FROM AN ENEMY

Recently a shipment of Bibles was stopped at the border of East Germany. The Bibles were examined by the authorities and declared contraband. The Russian officials said that these books contained dangerous propaganda. What a compliment for the living Word of God. Yes, it is the most dangerous propaganda in the world against godless communism, against tyranny, against paganism, against slavery, against lying and stealing, murder, adultery, drunkenness, and all evil.

Sometimes those who are enemies of the truth unwittingly pay Christians great compliments. This happened to Paul and Silas in Thessalonica in ancient Greece. After they had been released from prison in Philippi they travelled about a hundred miles to Thessalonica, which is today known as Salonica. There they preached the crucified Christ as the risen Lord. A great multitude of the devout Greeks believed this gospel. Some of the Jews also believed, but the others stirred up a mob against the Christians. Then it was that they paid the Christians a great compliment, even though they meant it to be otherwise. They said to the rulers of the city, "These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also . . ." (Acts 17:6).

Probably these enemies of the truth meant to imply that wherever gospel preachers went there arose disturbances and mob violence against them. But actually they spoke a greater truth than they realized. The gospel is literally "dynamite" as Paul calls it in Romans 1:16. It is the power or dynamite of God unto salvation to those who accept it. Paul and Silas were doing more to turn the old sinful, pagan, Roman world upside down than even their enemies dreamed. The simple Christianity which they were preaching was converting men, transforming their lives from selfish, hateful, lustful ways to the way of Christ. Within a few decades the dynamic force of this new faith would revolutionize the thinking and daily living of millions. The faith they preached was turning the Roman and Greek and Hebrew world upside down!

Real New Testament Christianity will always turn the world upside down wherever the world is dominated by paganism, materialism, and evil. One reason today why many people ignore Christianity is because many professed disciples have lost the dynamic, crusading spirit of New Testament Christianity. Let me challenge you to study your New Testament again, and catch the glorious spark of a faith that is bold, daring, adventurous.

The struggle between good and evil, light and darkness goes on in every land, in every community. Christ calls us to "fight the good fight of faith!" He challenges us to deny ourselves, and take up our cross daily and follow him. Pray that millions will take up that challenge in the coming year, and that the enemies of the gospel may be constrained again to say: "These Christians are turning this pagan, materialistic, sick world upside down."

Only the power of the gospel can change men into the image of Christ. Only changed men can make a changed world. The hope of this world is the gospel of Jesus Christ! Have you surrendered to it? Have you acknowledged his claim on your life, trusted in him as the Son of God, repented of your sins, confessed your faith in him before men, been buried with him in the likeness of his resurrection? Are you working with him to turn the world right side up?

THE FIRST GERMAN LECTURESHIP A GREAT SUCCESS

We have had several European lectureships here in Frankfurt which have been conducted in English, but last Sunday night the first lectureship held in the German language was closed. We felt at the end of the week that it was a great success. Brethren came from Munich, Stuttgart, Karlsruhe, Mannheim, Heidelberg, Heppenheim, Wiesbaden and Hanau. It was a great source of encouragement to all and especially to the West End congregation here in Frankfurt. Many of the brethren here in Frankfurt said they were astonished to see there were so many German brethren who could preach the word of the Lord in such a wonderful way.

One of the outstanding aspects of the lectureship were the debates that were held each day. Subjects debated were: "Original Sin," "Salvation by Faith Only," "Peter was First Pope," and "Instrumental Music." It was indeed a great inspiration to see these young men defending the faith as they did. After the debates were over, an hour was spent in discussion. During these discussions, those who had been assigned the wrong side of the question helped answer their own arguments. Some of the brethren were skeptical of these debates when the lectureship started because this was something new here in Germany, but at the end almost everyone said that it was one of the best parts of our lectureship.

The lectures were climaxed Sunday afternoon when congregations in the Frankfurt area assembled for a singing. Each congregation sang a special song and each preacher from that congregation gave a report of the work that was being done. This gave the different congregations a chance to see what was being accomplished in the different places. Approximately five hundred people were present for the singing.

We hope to continue these German lectureships each year and try thereby to build up a closer unity and fellowship among all who are preaching the gospel in Germany—OTIS GATEWOOD, Frankfurt, Germany.

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

The church of the Lord Jesus Christ differs materially, widely, fundamentally, from every other religious institution in the world. Modern denominations and ancient denominations, sects, parties, heresies and factions bear no resemblance whatever to the church founded by the Lord Jesus Christ. When the Savior said, "On this rock I will build my church," he had reference to the divine, spiritual institution to be composed of those who would renounce the world and all sinful practices and adopt for practice in their life the precepts of himself.

All denominational and sectarian bodies are narrow and intolerant. They impose limitations for their membership that precludes the possibility of many excellent people entering them. Everybody who wants to obey God rather than man has equal opportunity in the church of the Lord Jesus Christ. Its simplicity in the matter of its organization and work permits of everyone a field of his highest usefulness and secures to every member equality before God, and in the sight of men. Every other institution in the world, including all religious institutions that are not of divine origin, makes provision for personal preferment and distinction. They make provision for having certain great ones among them; they arrange places for officers of rank and prominence, for grandees and celebrities.

The church that Christ founded is far different. He who would be greatest must be the least of all. It is not a matter of distinction in place and rank; it is not a matter of respect of persons. In the church of the Lord Jesus Christ, he is greatest who serves most. It matters not how inconspicuous one may be among his fellow men, he has the opportunity to measure up to the highest standard in Christ if he performs the largest service. Even the poor not only have the gospel preached to them, but its power, influence, effects, results, in the character becomes as potent among them as among those in the more favored circles of social, commercial or political life; and one in the humbler ways and walks of life may as certainly exercise an influence for good and many times as great an influence for good and even greater than that exerted by men and women in the more eminent and desirable circles of life. Take the example of one poor man converted to Christ; one who has fully and thoroughly, completely, turned to the Lord. He lacks education as men use this word. He lacks culture and refinement of society, but he moves among the thousands of people upon whom such attainments count for even less than nothing. What is culture, anyhow? What is it to the man or the woman in poverty's realm, struggling for the necessities of life? Education, culture, refinement? All these are only relative terms. One may be accounted highly refined, highly cultured, highly educated, in a certain strata of the social compact and be reputed as nothing in these attainments when measured by the unit of measurement employed in another social or educational circle.

The Christ of God inculcated among men, certain grand, great fundamental principles relating to life and conduct. These, when once adopted and applied in the social, industrial and civil life of man, wherever he is, will make man the most useful possible in the realm in which he is moving. Christ meant an opportunity for every man to make the most of power and possibility that lies easily within his grasp. To follow Christ means to employ in its most efficient manner the powers and utilize the possibilities that lie within our reach. The gospel makes men and women better. The teaching of Christ, accepted, believed and obeyed, institutes a certain dependable, even if sometimes slow and inapparent, transformation of character. No other great leader ever acted upon the same psychology in establishing his cause and claims among men. Christ magnified service. Christ magnified the simpler, stronger, greater elements that go to make the most out of all men and that contribute the highest values for the good of others.

PROSPECTS AT NHOWE MISSION—MACHEKE, SOUTHERN RHODESIA

A. R. Holton

It seems a long time since Brother Sheriff converted a man at Bulawayo and sent him out to preach to his people. This man enabled the brethren to begin Nhowe Mission. Since 1938 Central Church of Christ has spent $100,000 at this Mission.

We have just had a first-hand report from Miss Marjorie Sewell and Miss Ann Burns. These young women have spent about two years on the mission. Miss Sewell has been supported by the Vine Street Church of Christ in Abilene, Texas. Miss Burns has been supported by the Trinity Heights Church of Christ in Dallas, Texas. They have worked in the clinic on the mission. They have not only ministered to the needs of the mission itself but have gone out into the native villages to aid public health and nursing.

They report that there are 350 students under the direction of Boyd Reese, Superintendent. These young people study the Bible daily. The church meets each Lord's day on the mission.

Brother Ulrich Steiniger was baptized at Nhowe Mission and was recalled to Germany after the war. He has now returned to Johannesburg and would like very much to come back to Nhowe Mission and give his life to the work there. Brother Steiniger would be a great help on the mission. He is a good farmer and would make an excellent man for the upkeep of the mission in general. All who know him say he is a good Christian, that he understands the gospel and that he tries to live it daily. His German brethren are supplying him with a meager salary. This needs to be supplemented. We feel that if the brethren knew of this opportunity there would be liberal support of this man. More information can be given if requested.

Report On Mena, Arkansas, Work

B. B. Harding

The Northside Church of Christ, 12th and Maple, Mena, Arkansas, moved from a rented store and into this splendid boulder-stone building July 18, 1952, and began with a meeting by Brother Perry B. Cotham, supported by the Lamar Avenue congregation of Paris, Texas. There were four baptisms and one restoration, and there had been nine baptisms in previous few weeks. Many non-members visited during open house and the meeting.

Northside Church of Christ, Mena, Arkansas

The building is 40 feet by 70 feet with a two-story 30 feet by 60 feet rear. It contains two restrooms, study, nursery, and vestibule in the front with a balcony to seat 100 above these; auditorium to seat 260 and finished in maple-stained knotty pine wainscoting, willow green celotex panel walls and white ceiling, 2 ft. rise in sloping oak floors, oak pews from L. L. Sams & Sons; concrete baptistry entered from second floor, two dressing rooms, and two rest rooms; and fifteen classrooms, nine of which are completed and in various colors. It was built without special architect and contractor, and financed by the Broadway Plan of Houston on a $25,000 loan. $5,000 was given by the members and by other members or churches of the brotherhood. B. B. Harding, the local preacher, worked five days a week for several months and most of the 85 two-hour night shifts when from two to twenty other men and boys gave their time.

The membership has grown 50% in the one and one-half years Brother Harding has preached there. The present membership is 75—18 couples, 19 single youths, and 20 women. The collections from these laboring members averaged $112 weekly in 1952, but below $100 so far in 1953 because of illnesses and business cut. Since they're paying $50 a week on the loan and $5.00 a week on a heating system. They are still getting monthly support from Nashville, Arkansas, and Overton Road in Dallas and Walnut Street in Texarkana of $25.00 each; $20.00 from Pecos, and $10.00 from Spur. The radio work—$5.00 for fifteen minutes each Sunday—has been supported since October from gifts and $5.00 monthly from each of the following: DeQueen, Arkansas, church, Brethren J. W. Hall and A. L. Rhodes of Andrews, Texas, and Sister Lonnie Kirkland of Boise, Idaho.

Since the same elders of Vinita, Oklahoma, church, where Brother Harding preached nine years ago, have invited him back, he is returning to Vinita after February 15. No one has been chosen to preach at Mena, and anyone interested should write the Northside church immediately, giving all needed information in the first letter.

LITTLE ROCK, ARKANSAS, REPORT

Cleon Lyles

Little Rock is soon to have its ninth congregation. This will be the sixth congregation that has had a beginning in the past seven years. Before that there were only three churches of Christ in the city, two in Little Rock and one in North Little Rock. About seven years ago the South Highland church began meeting in a new building that was erected on South Lewis Street. Before this a few had met in a store building on Asher Avenue. About two years ago they sold their property to the Safeway Company, and erected a much better building within a block of their old location. This is one of our most thriving congregations. The Pulaski Heights church began in 1947. Their building was erected by the Downtown church, which was then meeting at 4th & State (Now Sixth at Izard), and the membership went from this church. They had an auspicious beginning. They began with nearly two hundred members and a small debt. They have a very nice building and have had a local preacher from their beginning. The next congregation was begun in the Sylvan Hills section of North Little Rock. They met for two years in the YMCA building but recently moved into their own new building, which is conveniently located. They have a local preacher. About a year ago a congregation was started on West 12th Street in Little Rock. They have been meeting in a store building, but are now erecting their own edifice. They have had a regular preacher from the beginning. About six months ago a congregation was started in the Levy section of North Little Rock. They are meeting in the Legion building, but have plans for erecting a building of their own.

They have a regular preacher. Members from several congregations have made up these new congregations. We have given members to each of them. None of them started because of difficulty in any congregation, but with the blessings of all other churches of Christ in the city.

The new church will be located on the east side of Little Rock. They have purchased property, on which is a large frame building, at 16th and Commerce. They will have their beginning about the first of March and Lewis Sharp, who is a member at Sixth and Izard, and the son of one of our elders, will preach for them.

Thus the kingdom is spreading in Little Rock, and we believe there are big days ahead. All the churches are doing good work and will soon be strong churches.

We are now in our eighth year with the Downtown church and are enjoying our best year. Contributions for January averaged more than $1400 per week, and we are having about 200 additions a year. The Lord has been good to us and we are thankful.

One was baptized, four came by transfer of membership, and thirteen were restored with eleven of this number being new additions to our membership.

Alan Bryan, Lubbock, Texas, March 6: Total responses during 1952 at the Broadway church in Lubbock amounted to 426 of which 156 were baptisms, 88 were restorations, and 187 were identified as Christians. Total contributions amounted to $185,000. The budget for 1953 totals $200,000 of which one-half is to be spent for work away from home. Attendance in Bible School so far this year has averaged slightly below 1100.

Paul McClung, 607 North First, Lamesa, Texas: C. E. McGaughey did the preaching in a meeting which closed here February 22. Nineteen were baptized and thirteen restored. Four have been baptized since the meeting. The church here has never been in better condition spiritually, financially, or otherwise. We have just recently completed a $7,500 annex which gives us the best in office space.

Malcom P. Hineckley, 3034 E. Gage, Huntington Park, California, March 2: One more has been baptized here and one more placed membership. In the past half week we have broken three different attendance records. We have gone over the 40 mark for our ladies' Bible class, over the 100 mark for our mid-week service, and in Sunday school we reached 171 yesterday. Every phase of the work here is progressing in an inspiring way.

Tice Elkins, 4428 Gresham Street, San Diego 9, California, March 4: Please send all orders for "Sounding of Seven Trumpets" to the Firm Foundation. I am at address above and still bedfast, cannot walk a step alone. I would enjoy letters and cards from all dear friends. I will be here for a long time if I live at all.

John T. Smithson, Wingo, Kentucky, March 2: Since last report, I have preached at the following places: Seventh Avenue congregation, Miami, Florida; West Flaglar Street church, Miami, Florida, and the Homestead church, Homestead, Florida. The audiences were good and very appreciative. No additions at any of these congregations. However, we hope much good was done and will be seen after a while.

James O. Wilburn, Box 11, Gruver, Texas, March 1: A. C. Williams and O. T. Shewmaker will assist the church at Gruver in a meeting April 1-12. Classes in singing will precede each night assembly. Congregating will occur at 10:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. daily. An afternoon song service is to be held Lord's day, April 5th, at 3:00 p.m. This finds me at the beginning of a meeting at Tulare, California.

W. S. Willis, 2811 Avenue E, Fort Worth, Texas: I am now in position to take local work or conduct a number of meetings. I will go anywhere for meetings, and will consider local work within one hundred and fifty miles of Fort Worth. If any congregation can use me I will appreciate your calling me. I can give as reference any of the ministers or elders of the congregations here in the city. "Here am I, send me."

Will W. Slater, Hydro, Oklahoma, March 3: The work in Hydro is making some progress. Two baptisms last week. Congregation is small in number, 50 members, including several young folks who are still in school. Our Lord's day attendance averages 85. Our contributions from $65.00 to $95.04. We are planning a Lectureship March 22-27. Different speaker each evening. We also plan for two meetings this year. Congregation small in number but rich in faith and zeal.

Olustee Church of Christ, Olustee, Oklahoma, March 4: The church here desires the services of a gospel preacher. The church owns a preacher's home and will pay a good salary. The church is active and growing. Wallace Layton has held a number of meetings here the past five years. Joe L. Banks will conduct a gospel meeting March 8th through the 15th. Robert Boyd of Fairbanks, Alaska, and Clyde C. Sloan of Washington, D.C., were the two last local preachers.

From Dickens, Texas: One baptized and one restored.

Jess H. Hall, P. O. Box 401, Paducah, Kentucky, March 4: Joe Malone of Fort Worth, Texas, will preach and Foy Hall, also of Fort Worth, will direct the singing in our meeting here at Broadway during the first two Sundays of April. Those in reach of Paducah are invited to attend the services of this meeting. During February, six were identified with us and one was baptized.

Bryan S. Brown, 115 Thorn Street, San Diego 3, California, March 3: We are happy to report that we have broken all previous Bible school attendance records here at Hillcrest; twice within the month. Three were added to our number by membership last Sunday. These included a man and wife who had been serving as deacon and teacher with their former home congregation. Paul Harper of Glendale will be the preacher in our spring meeting which begins March 29.

V. A. Vick, Box 452, Delhi, Louisiana, March 3: I have resigned the work here, effective April 1. While we have been here there have been 13 responses to the invitation, 11 of these being baptisms. The church here has authorized me to inform the brotherhood that they will be in need of a gospel preacher. The church here is working in harmony and they are a very fine group of Christians. They have most certainly been good to us. If you are interested, write to the church of Christ, Delhi, Louisiana.

Clyde V. Moore, 544 Western Avenue, Toledo 9, Ohio, Telephone FAirfax 1637, March 5: I am glad to report two baptisms here March 1. This makes four since the beginning of the year. Also, my work with the Western Avenue congregation will come to a close on or before the first of July, 1953. Any preacher who is interested in this work should contact W. O. Smith, 2477 Franklin Avenue, Toledo, Ohio. The Western Avenue congregation is one of the larger congregations in Northwestern Ohio, and is under good oversight. It also sponsors several missions in this area.

M. C. Cuthbertson, 2208 N. Richey, March 5: Brother E. L. Page, 1130 S. McDonnell Avenue, Los Angeles, California, is available for local work. Brother Page obeyed the gospel about three years ago, after preaching for the Baptists for twenty years. He has done excellent work at Culver City, and East Los Angeles, California. I consider that he is an able preacher of the gospel. I have known him since he left the Baptists, and know that he is sound in the faith. Brother L. L. Stout, of East Long Beach, and Wm. S. Irvine, Belleflower, California, also know him well. If you need a preacher, contact him for the work.

Raymond L. Copening, Duke, Oklahoma, February 22: I am located again with the congregation in Duke. I worked here fourteenth months during 1946 and 1947. I am happy to be associated with the good brethren here again. The congregation in Duke is a very fine small town congregation. They have had some very fine men to work with them, somewhat strange, but I was their first regular preacher. Indications are favorable for a pleasant work. To preachers that are interested in this work, and have written, please be assured that the elders here appreciate your interest, but I will be here for awhile yet. Progress to the church everywhere.

Chester A. Studer, Leander, Texas, February 12: W. D. Black will preach at both services March 29th and we will have singing that afternoon at 2:30. Everybody who can, is invited to be with us.

Robert W. Hildebrand, Casper, Wyoming, March 1: A few weeks ago a request was made in an effort to obtain funds to build a church building at Glenrock, Wyoming, for the few brethren in Christ who are worshipping there. I wish to report now that two lots and two old buildings have been purchased and partially paid for. Any financial help would surely speed up the getting of these buildings in shape to hold meetings in. God's blessings are on those who minister to his needs. Send all donations to Chester M. Lampmon, Glenrock, Wyoming, P. O. Box 296.

W. M. Grooms, Keller, Texas, March 4: Plans are being completed for me to preach in a meeting in Boise, Idaho, the last of June or first of July. Through Brother Guild's influence this meeting has been arranged, since I am a total stranger to these brethren. I look forward to a good meeting, however, as reports indicate the work there is going forward in a fine way. I have time for two more meetings this year, and would like to arrange another for the West Coast after the Boise meeting. If I can be of service, I would appreciate hearing from any congregation desiring a meeting.

John G. Bills, 4133 Middlesex Drive, San Diego 16, California, March 1: We enjoyed very good services at Linda Vista today. The house was filled for the morning services, and the house overflowed at the singing in the afternoon. The evening service was well attended. We all had dinner together. Four responded last Wednesday evening, and one today: two baptized, one restored, and two confessed wrongs. I should like to hear from congregations wanting meetings the last part of July or August, as I am to be in a meeting in Tennessee the first part of August. Write me at the above address.

Seth E. Rehkop, 235 Okanogan Avenue, Wenatchee, Washington, March 2: Interest and attendance are on the increase. Several additions since last report. Another fine middle-aged couple were baptized at the morning service yesterday. The great Northwest is growing with many people locating in and around the Columbia Basin area. Why not plan your vacation this way this summer and see this wonderful country with all its wonderful opportunities. The church is growing and many more workers are needed. The Wenatchee churches enjoyed a grand fellowship in singing, yesterday at the Cascade congregation at 2:30 p.m.

James A. Johnson, 124 Circle Drive, Cleburne, Texas, February 26: Thanks for your advertisement of the 50th anniversary on February 15 of the congregation in Midlothian, Texas. After the regular morning Bible classes and worship service, lunch was served picnic style in the school lunch room. The afternoon program began at 2:00 o'clock, and featured the Bel Canto Chorus of Boles Home, a well-trained group of forty young people directed by Paul Robert Oler. Short talks were made by J. R. Irvin of Midlothian, Tex Williams of Boles Home, L. A. Hollar of Vernon, Ruel Lemmons of Cleburne, Gus A. Dunn of Dallas, Basil Doran of Ferris, and Albert Morris of Midlothian. Approx-mately 350 visitors were present, coming from Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Waco, Cleburne, Quinlan, Abilene, Vernon, Waxahachie, Lancaster, Maypearl, Irving, Italy, Kress, Glen Rose, Alvarado, Cedar Hill, Venus, Ferris, Itasca, Mansfield, Ovilla, and Midlothian. Fifty years previously the late Jim Dunn preached the first gospel sermon in Midlothian with only thirteen present because of the exceedingly inclement weather and impassable roads. Four of the original group of thirteen were present for the anniversary. They were Mrs. Ed Cooper and Mrs. Anna Holland Lewis of Midlothian, Mrs. Jim Dunn and Mrs. Louise Dunn Stephens of Houston. Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Martin who now live in Lubbock and Jimmy Holland of Oregon were unable to be present. Of the original group the following are deceased: the late Mr. and Mrs. Sam Martin, the late Mr. Jim Dunn who was the first regular minister, the late Mr. Ed Cooper, the late Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Holland. The work at Midlothian continues to go forward. Last night a fine young man was baptized at our prayer meeting service.

Joe H. Morris, 2707 Kentucky Avenue, Paducah, Kentucky, March 3: The Clements Street church continues in its rapid stride of accomplishing things for the Lord's kingdom. During the first two months of this year we averaged one added each Lord's day, five of whom were baptized. Too, on Monday, March 9, we launched a five-day-a-week broadcast over Station WPAD, Paducah, to be heard Monday through Friday at 11:15 a.m. Then on March 15th our evening service will be changed from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. so that a class for the young people of the church might meet at 6 p.m. Contribution, interest, and attendance continue at a high level. The elders of the Clements Street church are to be commended for their great vision.

Floyd Embree, 1203 Merchant, Artesia, New Mexico, March 4: Two have been baptized and two restored here in recent weeks. I closed a seven-day meeting with the church in Freeport, Texas, last Sunday evening. There was one baptized and one restored. Brother Ernest H. Witt is the efficient minister there and is doing an excellent work. The brethren there were working for the meeting and brought out many friends and acquaintances to hear the gospel. We will shortly be on a new radio frequency of 990 with a power of 1,000 watts on radio station KSVP here. Our regular Monday, Wednesday, and Friday broadcast will continue at 7:15-7:30 a.m., as they have heretofore. Brother A. H. Kennamer of Midland, Texas, will be with us in the spring meeting, March 25-April 5.

Howard Casada, Great Bend, Kansas, March 7: To my friends and brethren everywhere, greeting! This is not an official announcement, as I have no authority to make such. But I do want to say that my sister in the flesh, Bertha, is to be married in the not too distant future. Only those of you who know Bertha, can realize what a shock this is to me. She is to be married to a fine Christian, and we rejoice with her. My second announcement is that after a number of years, following many delays and long postponements, I finally put that much talked of diet into execution. As a result, I am minus about sixty-three pounds of my former self. So, brethren Ira Douthitt and Doyle Banta, please take note. Thus far, no one has yet addressed me as "The Thin Man." But, with Bertha getting married, and other shocking events coming to pass, who knows what to expect? Brethren, these are trying times!

Mrs. Ernest C. Wilson, 18 Nimitz, Apt. 3, Astoria, Oregon, March 5: Brother Arley E. Moore, and family came the last of January to work with the new congregation of the church of Christ in Astoria, Oregon. We had our beginning in July of last year and our chances for growth are good. We can count seventeen members, but Navy people are being moved from time to time. Brother Moore who came to us from Coos Bay, Oregon, did mission work there and worked at the real estate business which gave him a chance to work for the Lord at the same time. But the real estate business is not good in Astoria and the Moores' start has been a hard one due to illness as well as the work mentioned. This is such a difficult field; it is unfortunate that our minister has to work to finish his support. Sister Moore was to start to work but became ill along with the rest of the family and was in the hospital about ten days. Astoria's weekly radio program is already receiving favorable comments. With that expense and payment on a house for the Moores, we are beginning to wonder from where the money will come, also, we need a building of our own. This is a great field, your Northwest, with few preachers. Who would like to help us and to help the Moores to stay and to be full time workers for the Lord? An adjoining community to Astoria has no church of any kind. What an opportunity if the church here were large enough to send someone out for a Sunday School class for young people. We hear they take them in a bus somewhere for those services.

Is your congregation doing what it can for home missions? Just a few dollars regularly would help us keep the local radio program going. Our fifteen minutes has a most desirable location between the Mutual Network News and the Lutheran Hour. Many people in this locality don't go to church, and some have no religious belief of any kind. Write for details to Arley E. Moore, Box 984, Astoria, Oregon, or to me.

Cecil E. Hill, 1111 West Mulberry, San Antonio, Texas: My son, Alan Ray Hill, is a capable and experienced song leader and would like to spend the summer singing for gospel meetings. He is a student in Abilene Christian College and won the Freshman Scholarship in Voice. Only one Voice Scholarship is given to Freshmen each year and it is on a competitive basis. Alan has had splendid training for this work and is capable of directing a chorus, teaching music and conducting the singing program for Vacation Bible Schools. The elders of the Beacon Hill congregation where Alan has spent the past seven years will be glad to speak regarding his preparation and ability for this work. He can be contacted at the above address or at Station A, Box 444, Abilene, Texas. He will be glad to go wherever he is needed.

Clyde P. Findlay, 304 Pierce Avenue, Houston 3, Texas: Fifty churches of Christ in Houston testify to progress made during the fifty years since Brother J. D. Tant spoke at the first Houston services in a tent meeting in 1903. In recognition of this progress a special Herald of Truth program will take place at Houston Music Hall at 3 p.m., Sunday, March 22. Evangelist James W. Nichol who begins a meeting that day with the church at Pierce and Baldwin is to speak as usual on the Herald of Truth program. A chorus of 100 voices from Houston's churches is being prepared by Brother R. J. Stevens, minister at Lindale congregation. All brethren and interested persons within driving distance of Houston are invited to attend. Brother Nichols is to speak each week-day evening at 8 p.m. and at the usual Lord's day hours at Pierce and Baldwin, the oldest and nearest downtown church in Houston. Special Homecoming day is to be observed at Pierce and Baldwin at 3 p.m., March 29th, the closing day of the meeting, with Brother Nichols speaking. Former members of Pierce and Baldwin are urged to attend.

V. E. Howard, Greenville, Texas: The congregational singing of some 2,000 Christians, who attended the 1953 Lectureship of Abilene Christian College, will be heard on The Gospel Hour radio broadcast from Monterrey, Mexico, over the 150,000 watt "Voice of North America", XEG, 1050 on your dial, Sunday night, 9:30 to 10:00 (Central Standard Time), March 22nd. This broadcast, conducted by me, under the direction of the elders of the Walnut Street church in Greenville, Texas, with the fellowship of other congregations, is being heard in some forty States, parts of Canada, and Mexico. More than 2,000 copies of a recent sermon on "Miracles and Healings" have been mailed to listeners in almost every state in the United States and parts of Canada and Mexico. The 30-minute broadcast is heard each Sunday night.

LeRoy Davis, Box 288, Jay, Oklahoma: The monthly singing of the churches of Christ of this area was held at the church building here Thursday night, February 26. The building was filled to capacity. Extra chairs were added until all available space was occupied. Congregations from most towns within a radius of 75 miles were represented: Grove, Pryor, Vinita, Chelsea, Locust Grove, Little Kansas, Oklahoma, and Southwest City, Mo., all added their numbers to swell the crowd. Brother D. Younger, elder from the church at Chelsea, led the first song. Following this, Brother B. B. Harding, who preaches for the church at Vinita, led the minds of the audience in prayer. For an hour and thirty minutes the building rang with gospel hymns in praise of him from whom all blessings flow. Brother Raleigh Pickett, elder from Grove, dismissed the audience. The singing next month will be at Grove, Oklahoma, Thursday night, March 26, 8:00 o'clock. All are cordially invited to attend.

DOES WATER WASH AWAY SINS?

A. C. Huff

(A faithful preacher 89 years young)

Jesus washed us in his own blood (Rev. 1:5). Some "washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb" (Rev. 7:14). "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his ways? By taking heed unto thy word" (Psa. 19:9). "Now ye are clean through the words which I have spoken unto you" (John 15:3). "If we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin" (1 Jno. 1:7). "Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we were buried with him through baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Rom. 6:3, 4).

And so it is made clear that the blood of the Lord was shed for our sins. He shed his blood in his death, and we are "baptized into his death" when we are baptized in water at his command—that is, we enter into the benefits of his death in obeying that command. It is then that his blood does cleanse us from our sins. This truth is re-stated by Paul in Rom. 6:16, 17. After describing the burial into the death of Christ by our being baptized into him, Paul says, "Being then made free from sin we become the servants of righteousness." That is what Ananias meant when he commanded Saul to "arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins calling on the name of the Lord" (Acts 22:16).

GERMAN WORSHIP SERVICES

Bill McCown

The church of Christ in New Braunfels, Texas, has for several months been devoting one 30-minute broadcast period each month, the first Sunday morning at eight on KGND, 1420, to a sermon in the German language. Preaching has been Brother Sachsenmeyer. Plans are in the making for a German service, GOTTESDIENST, to be conducted by the local congregation, with Brother Sachsenmeyer as the "prediger." These services are to be conducted in the German language entirely each Sunday morning at 9 a.m. at the building of the church of Christ, Faust and Castell Streets in New Braunfels.

In addition to this work among the German-speaking people, the congregation is sponsoring work among the colored people of New Braunfels in June, and will send and support the local minister in three mission meetings during the summer, at Natick, Massachusetts, Nixon and Gonzales, both in Texas.

PREACHER AVAILABLE

W. B. Cox

I have resigned the work here due to the heavy burden it is working on the church due to the drought conditions of this section. I am 28 years of age, married, and have no children. My preaching experience is six years, entering soon my seventh. I am a graduate of Abilene Christian College. A recommendation is given by the brethren here in this paper. References can be furnished, as many as a congregation deems necessary. I would like to locate in Texas or Oklahoma. My address is Box 25, Megargel, Texas, phone 17. These brethren are fine people and especially blessed with real Christian workers. Had weather conditions been favorable, we would have stayed another year, and we truly wish it could have been so.

WALNUT SPRINGS LECTURES

The congregation at Walnut Springs, Texas, is to have a lectureship program March 16 through the 20. The theme is "Christian Responsibility." The speakers and subjects are as follows:

March 16—"The Use of the Tongue," Reuel Lemmons, Cleburne, Texas.

March 17—"Working in Unity," Foy Smith, Cleburne, Texas.

March 18—"Christian Liberty," M. L. Daniels, Cleburne, Texas.

March 19—"The Christian Home," Westie Mickey, Ft. Worth, Texas.

March 20—"Personal and Church Work," Robert Farrer, Granbury, Texas.

Services begin each evening at 7:45 P.M.

Special singing March 15, at 2:30 to 4 P.M.

T. E. Baxter is the local minister

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Brother W. B. Cox has preached for the Megargel church for over a year. He has resigned the work here due to the drought conditions that have existed in this area for the past year and one-half. We wish to commend him to the brotherhood as one who has no hobbies, preaching the gospel as it is. He is a good worker, worthy in every way, and loved by all the church.

We are sure he will do a good work for any congregation desiring his services.

His wife is a wonderful help to him in his work. The church here will be glad to answer any questions of any church desiring his services. Write either Mr. Irl Branch or Mr. O. C. Sherley, Megargel, Texas.—Signed: Clyde Priddy, Harold Ward, Houston Branch, J. I. Branch, S. S. Jenkins.

Willard J. Price, 2458 Grape Street, Abilene, Texas March 6: I am now available for a few meetings this summer. I have been preaching the gospel eight years. I helped to establish the church in South Houston, Texas. I moved to Tennessee, to attend the college at Freed-Hardeman. While in Tennessee, I had monthly appointments at Milledgeville and Dyers Chapel. After two years there I then went to the mission field in Louisiana, and labored two years with three small congregations. I worked with the South Side congregation in Albuquerque, New Mexico, as their local evangelist. My most recent work in New Mexico was with the North Side congregation in Farmington. I am now going to school at Abilene Christian College. I am available to preach some place on Sundays that is within driving distance of Abilene. If I can be of service to you in summer meetings or weekly appointments, please contact me at the above address.

HARRIS—On the afternoon of January 25, my father-in-law, Dr. A. T. Harris passed from this life into that which is eternal. The funeral was conducted in the Pearl and Bryan church on the afternoon of January 27. Boyd D. Fanning was the speaker and Brother Kenneth Davis, Jr., directed the group of singers. Burial was beside his good wife, Laura M. Harris, who preceded him in death four years ago. Interment was in Restland Memorial Park.

Had Dr. Harris lived until the 14th of February, he would have been eighty-two years of age. He taught school in his early manhood in the state of Kansas and was united in marriage to Laura Haworth in the year of 1895. To this union were born two children: Dr. R. P. Harris and Dr. Nina M. Crawford, who survive, and seven grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Dr. Harris was a Baptist at the time of his marriage. His good wife converted him soon after their marriage and he remained faithful to the church throughout the years. Serving as elder of the Denver Heights congregation of San Antonio for a number of years and on moving to Dallas in 1918, he was made elder at Pearl and Bryan, where he served for about twelve years. He taught a Bible class most of the time, was superintendent of the Bible School for a number of years and for the past fifteen years he had taught a class of elderly people until two weeks before his passing.

Few men lived a cleaner life than he. He and I worked together in the same office for twenty-one years. I never heard him use language that would make the most timid woman blush during that time or lose control of his temper. He hated error and few men had a better knowledge of the Scriptures than he.

He was highly respected as a chiropractor by his profession and his patients. At one time, he was president of the State Chiropractic Association and at time of retirement five years ago was made a life honorary member of the Dallas County Society of which he was a charter member.

Since the passing of Sister Harris, four years ago, he made his home with my wife and me.

TUCKER—Minnie Lovina Tucker departed this life in a Batesville, Arkansas, hospital at 7:50 A.M., January 25, 1953. She was born Minnie Lovine Billingsley, August 4, 1878, in Mississippi. The family moved to Arkansas when she was seven years of age. She was baptized into Christ at the age of twelve by her uncle, M. J. B. Billingsley, who was a gospel preacher, and lived the beautiful exemplary life of a Christian until God called her home. She was married to George W. Tucker, February 6, 1898, and would to God more marriages were like theirs! Their love was true and their care and reverence for each other was unsurpassed. Three children were born to them. One daughter, the writer, Mrs. J. F. Jenkins of Fresno, California; Noel Tucker of Monterrey, California, and Luther Tucker, of Agnos, Arkansas. We children and our father are left to sorrow. She also leaves one sister, Mrs. Ida Estes of Choctaw, Oklahoma, eight grandchildren, and seventeen great grandchildren, besides many nephews and nieces. We do not mourn as those who have no hope. God's precious promises are to those who love him and obey his commandments, and we know well she did the things taught by her Master. Her tender ministrations were extended to many besides her own family. Her earnest wish for her children was, always, that they would live Christian lives and rear their children in the ways of righteousness. We can never again feel the touch of her gentle hand; never hear her cheerful, encouraging words during the trials of life, nor receive the wise counsel she was so able to give. But we can live the rest of our lives, knowing that in that better land she is waiting to greet us, and knowing her life to be the great example of faithfulness it was, we are urged to press onward to the attainment of the goal she has possessed. May God help our dear broken-hearted father to travel the lonely road that is his, and which none of us can know until we are bereft of a companion. But he trusts in God in whom they both trusted through their long life together. We laid her to rest in the Church House Cemetery at Agnos, Arkansas, where a large group of relatives and friends paid a last tribute of respect to the sweet life of one of God's own. Brother Joe H. Blue of Morriston, Arkansas, and Brother Walter Billingsley of West Plains, Missouri, spoke words of comfort and encouragement. We miss her and our hearts are heavy with grief, but it is so sweet to know she is with the redeemed.

Her daughter,

MYRTLE WATKINS

KLINGMAN—Sister George A. Klingman, 83, passed away on Friday, January 16, at her home in San Angelo. Services were conducted the following Monday at Harris and Irving church by Harrison Matthews, local minister. Her honored husband was buried in San Angelo following his death there on December 9, 1939. This woman was highly cultured, adorned by all Christian graces, and the mother of a large family, five daughters and three sons surviving. The twenty grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren can look back to her as a "worthy woman" whose "price is far above rubies." Like her husband, Sister Klingman was a constant and profound student of the Holy Bible. Both lived the ideals of the Christian religion so that all who observed saw in them what it means to be a Christian. Brother George A. Klingman was for his day a leader in his field, an educator as well as a gospel minister. He was often criticised, especially for his attitude of tolerance toward the opposition, but through it all he ever manifested the loving and lovable spirit of John the apostle. The same faithfulness is seen in his brother, John Klingman, who for many years has served as chaplain evangelist in a hospital at Atlanta, Georgia. William G. Klingman, younger brother has for a generation served as one of the greatest leaders in vocal music and as local minister in various congregations. Charles C., another brother (now minister of First Christian Church, Honey Grove), was among the early missionaries to Japan, where they suffered privations and his wife contracted tuberculosis of which she died shortly. The Klingmans are a great family. George A. Klingman lived in Louisville, Kentucky, where he and John led most of the family from Luther to Christ. George went to College of the Bible, Lexington, where he met and married Lula Mae Grubbs, whose father was an able Bible scholar and teacher there. George next took over work with Portland Avenue mission in Louisville, which had been fostered by Galt Miller, minister and elder at the old Chestnut Street church, the congregation that split over innovations and gave way to separate congregations—Broadway Christian, served by the Brineys, and Campbell Street served by Azbill and Kurfees. Later work of the Klingmans is known to all well informed disciples. Fruitful be their memories!

OUR BIBLE. Edited by Frank Pack. Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas. pp. 192. 1953.

On my book shelf there is a volume entitled, HOW WE GOT OUR BIBLE, by George L. Robinson. This is a prized possession of mine, because given me by the author, one of his last volumes. There is material in it not to be found anywhere else in one single volume.

Now Frank Pack comes forth with one comparable to it, and on its pages are to be found materials not found anywhere else in a single volume. In this day of growing disrespect for the word of God, it is refreshing to have a volume like this one dedicated to those six retiring members of the faculty of Abilene Christian College, who served so faithfully. Tribute and honor is paid a generation that has preceded, and gives to the great brotherhood an insight to a new generation of teachers and preachers to whom they have committed "the torch."

Such topics as: "The Inspiration of the Scriptures," "The Formation of the Canon," "The Hebrew Bible and the Septuagint," "The Greek New Testament," "The Ancient Versions of the Bible," "Early English Versions," "The King James, the American Standard, and Modern Speech Versions," are all treated by a different author. M. Norvel Young closes the volume with the topic, "The Word of a Thousand Tongues."

Some of the authors are: Robert M. Alexander who writes the introduction. Lemoine Lewis, J. D. Thomas, J. W. Roberts, Paul Southern, Carl Spain, John P. Lewis all write.

SERMONS ON THE PARABLES OF JESUS. By Charles M. Crowe. Abingdon Cokesbury Press, Nashville, Tennessee. pp. 186. 1953. $2.50.

The parables of Jesus were universal in application and timeless. Here is a volume of sermons which relate the parables to our generation with insight and help. These fifteen sermons are carefully thought out, and clearly outlined. The sermons are illustrated abundantly with illustrations from life, which adds zest and color to the sermon material. For those teaching or preaching from the parables, here is a volume that will be of real merit.

Here are a few suggestive topics developed around the parables. For example the first is: Does God Care? (parable of the lost sheep). Why Go to Church? (parable of the four soils). How Can We Overcome Evil? (parable of the empty house).

You may order either of these books from the Firm Foundation Publishing House, Box 77, Austin 61, Texas.

"COME OVER INTO AUSTRIA AND HELP US"

Dr. Paul E. Noffsinger

I am leaving this summer to take graduate work in advanced surgery at Allgemeines Krankenhaus in Linz, Austria. This is an industrial city with untold possibilities for mission work. At present there is no church closer than Salsburg.

I have corresponded with Brother Gatewood and he has men who speak German and are thoroughly acquainted with the customs of their own people, also having been trained as gospel preachers for this work.

My wife will be there also to help with the work.

We appeal to churches in America, in the name of our Lord, who gave the Great Commission—to take this opportunity to support these workers in Austria.

I will leave some time this summer. For further information write me at 104 Broadway, Denver 9, Colorado.

Duward Boggs, Dallas, Texas, March 10: The Pleasant Grove Church of Christ continues to grow in numbers and we are trying to help some to grow in spiritual strength also. During February, we had five baptisms and five to place membership with us. However, we lost two so we made a net gain of only eight. This puts our membership at the 200 mark. Peace and harmony prevail and a spirit to work. We are now in a meeting with Morris Moore doing the preaching. The lessons so far have been fine and the audience a good sized one.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Instrumental Music Again

Over a period of years I have written numerous articles on the subject of instrumental music in the worship, but I have never written one that provoked so much reaction, as the one of two weeks ago. I do not usually give attention to letters I receive with reference to my articles, but in this instance a second article seems to be called for. The writers are evidently seeking to know the truth.

I observe one thing in all the letters—that the division caused by instrumental music is a sin. Otherwise the writers seem to think it is harmless. Of course those well informed in the Scriptures know that this is not the only argument in the case. But suppose the division is the only thing about it that is a sin, who are the sinners? Where does the responsibility for the division lie, with those who favor or those who oppose the use of instruments in the worship?

Those who advocate the use of instruments in the worship also concede that Christians can worship God without it. Then why have it if it causes strife and division? The wedge that causes the division is the instrument, and the ones who drive it are the sinners. So if Christians can worship God acceptably without instrumental music, why drive the wedge and split the church?

Alexander Campbell said that instrumental music in worship sounds as well as a cow bell does in an orchestra. I have heard many complimentary remarks from denominational people of the fine singing on the "Herald of Truth" program. An instrument of music in this chorus would sound no better than a cow bell in an orchestra.

Other Reasons

The division that is caused by the introduction of instrumental music into the worship is only one reason why it should not be used. There have been several objections to my contention that any religious practice that has no authority in the New Testament is a sin. I am asked where the authority is for a song leader, a pitch pipe, a song book, a church building, and several other things of a similar nature.

We should learn to distinguish between things that differ. If there has ever been any division over using a song leader, I have not heard of it. We are commanded to sing, but how could a group of worshippers sing, if no one had authority to start a song? And how could they sing if they had no songs to sing? The command to sing is sufficient authority for a song leader and a song book, because without them there could be no singing.

But if the song leader should insist on blowing his pitch pipe all the way through the song, there would be objections. In that case it would be somewhat comparable to the use of instrumental music.

And then one writer says that instrumental music was right under the old law, what makes it wrong under the new law? To this inquirer I will repeat one point in my first article. Nothing is justified under the gospel just because it was used under the law of Moses. That would permit the use of a lot of things that would be objectionable. I think burning incense is beautiful, but it would be unscriptural. It was required under the old law, but not authorized in the New Testament. "Let us walk by the same rule; let us mind the same things."

California Christians

Malcolm P. Hinckley

The Home of Superlatives

What do you think of the church in California? There are undoubtedly those who see it in the light of a spiritual utopia. I suspect that they are apt to be Californians who have imbibed deeply from the fountain of the chamber of commerce. With equal ease they can set forth wonders of climate and scenery, or of the church and spiritual conditions as they are found here. If they have any rivals as to being certain what state has all the advantages, they would no doubt be Texans!

On the other hand it is my impression that elsewhere the average estimation of the church in California tends toward the unfavorable. Some make continuous capital of attacking it in scathing and denunciatory terms. Others have heard enough such tirades as to be made either suspicious or cautious concerning it. This prevailing attitude was reflected by the group of well meaning brethren who strongly counseled a young brother who had been converted in Europe not to go to California. He had spent some time in one of our best known colleges located in surroundings where the New Testament church possessed the advantage of great numbers. He came to California anyway. After having tasted of Christianity in both places, he has no hesitancy in saying that what he found here was closer to Christ than what he had found there. What, then, are the real facts concerning the church in California?

Qualifications for Writing

If I may be pardoned for making these personal references,

I hope that they may demonstrate that I should be able to look at the matter in an impartial light. Like most "true" Californians, I was born elsewhere. I was reared here, and saw the church in its early days of struggle when it was almost non-existent. From the old congregation of Sichel Street in Los Angeles, which was very nearly the only congregation in Southern California, I have seen the church multiply amazingly. From the days when nearly every congregation met in the local woman's club building, I have seen the majority come into possession of their own building. I think, then, I know something first-hand about California.

But not all my experiences have been restricted to this area; and that fact, I believe, lends balance to my viewpoint. I attended one of our colleges in the deep South. I obtained additional schooling in the South in what has sometimes been called facetiously, the "New Jerusalem." From this and preaching experience in the same areas it will be seen that much of my spiritual training was received in an environment far removed from California. Later I was to spend some seven years preaching in the heart of the Mid-West, once again far removed from California influence, both geographically and spiritually. These experiences, I believe, enable me to have some degree of objectivity in speaking of things as they exist here.

An Aid to Understanding

From the different places I have gone, I have learned that most Christians have at least some superficial characteristics reflecting the area in which they live. No one, then, would be well equipped to understand much about California Christians if he did not take into consideration some of the things which have their influences on all Californians, including Christians.

Where Does He Come From?

Your "typical" Californian is a man who has come from any other state than California! The influx here of Christians from any and everywhere else creates its own problems. If there are varying local characteristics and customs elsewhere, they are all translated here. The result, as one might expect, sometimes creates difficulties of understanding. To some extent this problem is being felt in larger metropolitan areas all over the nation. However, it is intensified here by the fact that due to astounding immigration, California is first among all states in growth of population.

Under these circumstances "growing pains" become a very important reality. Anywhere such terrific growth is encountered, accompanying problems will be inevitable. Such problems as adjustment and assimilation can scarcely be imagined by those far removed from the scene, and they are even difficult to comprehend by those living in the midst of these convulsions. Because so large a part of our population lives in Los Angeles, or a similar big-city area, I shall speak chiefly of conditions as they are found here.

Lost in the Big City

Most of those coming here who are members of the church come from the South. In nearly every case they are coming from an area of lesser population (small communities) to an area vastly larger in population. Everyone knows, or at least those entering soon find out, that as the population of a city increases, individual friendliness decreases. The newcomer finds himself lost in the anonymity of the big city. Back home everyone knew him, and evidences were always at hand reminding him that others not only knew what he did, but cared as well. Here, he soon discovers that "no one knows what you do" and he may readily conclude that no one cares. He wouldn't be far from right, either, if it weren't for the Lord's church. Even some of its members may be more typically Californians than Christians, and so share the same selfish attitude that the world about manifests. These introductory experiences alone may guarantee that the newly arrived church member will never attend a single service of the church nor become identified with it in any way.

Getting While the Getting's Good

It is helpful in understanding the California situation to remember the kind of atmosphere created by this continuous influx. Hosts of newcomers have been motivated by one great influence, the "get-rich-quick" spirit. They have heard there is money out here in California. They have come after all they can get. To an extent probably true nowhere else in the country, everybody works. This poses its own problem in trying to help these people. Many is the day the preacher piles mile upon mile on his car just trying to find anyone at home to be able to visit. Nights are limited in number, but even if all one's calling could be done then, it would still be found difficult to make contact. Work in many factories goes on around the clock. While the husband is away working, perhaps the wife sleeps. While he sleeps, she works. If you have ever tried calling under such circumstances, you will know the impossibility of the situation. Those who come to "clean up" financially are obviously not activated by the highest motives. Many who are raking in the ready flow of money here were failures back home—that's why they had to strike out to new territory. Obviously there are difficulties to be encountered in successfully building on a foundation of such people.

Attractions and Distractions

Few outsiders are well able to understand the overwhelming competition which is offered for the time and interests of local residents. There are places to go, sights to see, and things to do—and good weather in which to do them. No one is as equipped to respond to this lure as your true Angeleno. Your Los Angeles resident has more mobility than anyone else on earth. Not only are there more automobiles here by far than anywhere else in the world, but they are used! Every entertainment conceivable to the mind of man exists in profusion. If all this were not enough to lure the newcomer who is anxious to take everything in, he will be gotten in his home. The latest invasion there is television. Yes, this is also the television capital of the world. Everyone has one. It may be an unpainted shack on the wrong side of the tracks, but it has a TV inside as the aerial on the roof testifies. People who aren't out burning up the oxygen in their cars somewhere, can be found glued to these contraptions. Glued is the word. They could hardly afford to go to church, when in doing so, they'd miss their favorite program. Besides, they're tired from having slaved around the clock all week and need a bit of relaxing at home. It's little use trying to visit them, either. If you can find them in, the TV is on. Do you think they'd turn it off just because a visitor has come? Not on your life. Did you ever try to talk to a man about his soul while the TV blares its sound and the unceasing motion demands and gets the attention of the eye? I am willing to state from experience that it is an impossible situation.

What It Adds Up To

The atmosphere of irreligion here surpasses that of any other geographical area in this country. While in some areas church attendance will be engaged in by as high as 80 percent of the people, on the Pacific Coast the figures run down to 22 percent—the lowest in the nation. For a specific example of just how unconcerned the bulk are, we observe that three out of the latest four young people baptized where I preach, have parents who were not interested enough in religion or even in their own children to come and share the sacred moment of their baptism into the Lord—or at least to witness it. Worse still, some have even been put out (to express it mildly) with their children who have done so much better than they.

Little Help

The problems of ministering to spiritual needs are exceedingly difficult to solve. But the very magnitude of these problems makes it all the more imperative that everything possible be done to meet them. When we consider the handicaps under which many newcomers face the local scene, it is disheartening to know how little is being done by some to help them. I have been simply amazed in calling on many who have been members of the church and in attendance for years to discover that it is the very first time any person from the church has ever called upon them. No elder, no deacon, no preacher, not one single member has visited them! With this kind of lack of follow-up for those who are newly arrived, it is little wonder that hosts of them become discouraged and give up. Others, after trying, are discouraged by first attending some congregations where the atmosphere is distinctly cool. This, coupled with absolutely no visitation, is enough to shake the faith of so many.

The New Dispersal

We have other problems intensively peculiar to our metropolitan area. One of them is that of a dispersed membership. Your non-Californian would find the reality in this situation difficult to believe. Members don't live somewhere grouped around the church building. Not even remotely. Perhaps we can use the Huntington Park church where I preach as an example.

If you can find the latest population figures for Huntington Park, you would take it to be a place of about 30,000 inhabitants. So it is, in a book—but in all save technicality it is a tiny part of a huge sprawling city of two or three million. There are easily more "Los Angeles" congregations outside Los Angeles than in it. In our own case, by actual count, our members are from 15 different towns as indicated by their post office addresses. At least 50 percent of our membership does not even live in Huntington Park. I can assure you this congregation is no different from others of this area in that respect.

So imbued is our Californian with driving that car of his, that he literally thinks nothing of passing by one congregation after another closer to where he lives, to attend elsewhere—if he goes to church at all. I have never seen anything like it elsewhere, chiefly because nothing approximating it could exist elsewhere. This scattering of membership poses almost insoluble problems. Obviously it is almost impossible to create within a congregation a real feeling of "being at home" since everyone's home is somewhere else. And they are too, except when they're in a church service. Used to driving phenomenal distances to work or play, the same habit carries over even to church going. What handicaps this imposes on church work you can well imagine.

It Isn't Easy

These are just some of the impossible situations with which we have to contend. Simple observation will demonstrate that one "big" back East preacher after another has had his try at working here and just can't take it. He may have a greater reputation back home and have had far above average success—but after a bit out here he throws up his hand in resignation and heads for greener pastures—down south.

Such a heaping up of combined circumstances at least explains some of the complex problems Christians here have to deal with. Little wonder, then, that it is not difficult to find fault with churches here. But, brethren, there are teeming hosts of lost souls out here that desperately need saving. Someone must minister to their overwhelming needs. Not everyone can stay in the fertile pastures.

Real Progress

In spite of every hindrance and compounded obstacles, the growth of the church in California has been phenomenal. From the one congregation I can remember in 1920 there have grown scores upon scores of congregations. With continuing influxes, it is inconceivable that the church should not continue to grow. California is destined not only to outstrip one state after another in population—but the church here will be keeping some kind of pace with that advancement.

The Old Story—Two Extremes

It is my personal belief that the California scene has lent itself to the creation of two radical extremes. The one is strongly liberalistic and extremely loose in tence. The other, in the oft seen extremity of reaction, has gone to an opposite and no less dangerous extreme. I am firmly convinced that there is a rightful balance that must be maintained. It seems to me that Brother John Allan Hudson, who in a first-hand sort of way understands these problems, is trying to reflect this kind of balance in his new periodical for the brotherhood, the Bible Advocate.

Since the majority of church members here came from elsewhere, it would not be unfair in placing blame, for a good share of it to fall on those churches where the material originated. That might give pause to some who are most vocal in their condemnation. One wonders how it is that many who were "pillars in the church" back home never even darken the doors of a church here the first time, or else swiftly slip away. Surely something fundamental and vital was lacking in their faith even while they were still at home. Put to anything like a real test, it at once failed. But fixing blame is not a constructive goal.

We need men who have strength in Christian living and the capability of teaching members how to overcome the tidal wave of worldliness that strives to engulf us. A liberalistic of the ever changing tide. It can therefore offer nothing fundamental or divine to which one may anchor his soul. Neither will the type of preaching which has little content but negation and stressing of theoretical doctrinal concepts help in this situation. Sound doctrine is indispensable, but if it is not accompanied by equally as heavy an emphasis on what a person does with his life twenty-four hours a day in the complex affairs of this great turbulent tide of life, the soul will be lost. Salvation is not promised to those who have the right doctrine—but to those who use it.

The Church in India

H. I. Taylor

Through the kindness of the College church in Abilene, Brother Prenshon Kharlukhi from Assam, India, is in the United States. He spoke at the Abilene Lectures and is now speaking in different parts of the United States before returning to India in April. During the past fortnight he has been in Austin and vicinity speaking at various places. He is then to go to Kansas and Tennessee before he leaves this country.

He tells the story of how his people broke the shackles of Presbyterianism without any help from any source except the Bible and not knowing whether there was anyone else in the world who followed the uncorrupted New Testament faith. One by one they laid aside the peculiar doctrines of Presbyterianism and picked up the pure doctrine of Jesus Christ. They are now identical with us. It is one of the most inspirational stories one has ever heard outside the Bible.

About two years ago, Digressive preachers (Christian Church) came into their midst and by fair and smooth words captured seven of the twelve congregations of New Testament Christians. They even took the building and forced the faithful into the streets. They now meet in the open and from house to house. Brethren, that is a very familiar story. It happened to us here. It is a tragedy. They are not complaining nor even asking for help. They are preaching the gospel without outside help. However, full-time natives would accomplish even more in this great work. We have been told that for $4,000 they can purchase land and erect a building to fit their needs. Why can't all of us respond and enable our brethren to meet this need? They are poor in this world's goods but exceedingly rich in faith. If you care to help, send your contributions to the College Church of Christ, Abilene, Texas. Or, you may send to the church in India. Send it to the church of Christ, c/o Prenshon Kharlukhi, Mawlai, Shillong, Assam, India. Brethren E. W. McMillan and Charles Tinius have personally visited Assam and know this to be true. There have been other reports in connection with this work in the papers. However, just now the suggestion is being made that we help our brethren there to acquire the property and build a meeting house. Also, if you would like to have a part in defraying his traveling expenses you send that to the College church.

"He Is A Troublemaker"

F. L. Paisley

These are not my words about anybody, especially about a gospel preacher, one of a class of men who often have unjust things said of them. A good friend of mine—both of us being good friends of the subject—made the above statement to me of a third man who is an excellent gospel preacher, as is the one making the remark. There was no spirit of gossip on the part of either of us, but I had given a very high estimate of the other man's ability, when my quoted heading was uttered.

This little article is my present contribution in an effort to diminish to some degree the all too-wide tendency to smear another's work and good name, if he has been so unfortunate as to have church trouble at some place, regardless of the source and underlying causes of that trouble. So to injure another's work might border on what the Lord forbade in Old Testament times—"justify the guilty and condemn the just." In Prov. 17:15 it is said that such is an "abomination to the Lord."

All who have made wide observations, especially all preachers, know that church disturbances can get so complicated, and reports of them so twisted, that what seems to be an honest, and even an accurate report turns out to be wholly unreliable and incorrect. The office of the eldership is too holy to be unjustly charged and blamed, but this does not mean that all elders, and some who assume eldership authority where no elders are recognized, never give a preacher any such worries as later blight his name.

Likewise, the work of a preacher is too sacred a calling to be misrepresented by the loose thinker and talker. There are preachers who should be plowing corn instead of (dis)gracing the pulpit, but this does not justify our supposing that any preacher who has had trouble is necessarily a disturber of peace in the church. The one who is quoted in my heading has had serious grief. He, as another preacher I could name, has "wept amid the fires of pain" over things and conditions he could not control at all. He should remember those griefs, and that another might have suffered as unjustly to whom he applies the stigmatizing heading of this article. Let us do unto others as we would have them do to us.

When he made the statement to me as quoted, I said, "I happen to have known the man with whom he had such a serious difference, and that he would give any preacher grief. I know good men who suffered his opposition." Then my informant changed his statement to, "I'll say that he was a troublemaker." But so long as the reference is made to the same occasion of disturbance, it is unjust unless the true happenings were known. I remarked that the accused preacher had admitted to me that he, under the strain, had said some things he regretted in his reproof of the situation. This is not too abnormal to be forgiven. Then the critic admitted the fact.

Sober thinking will assure us that a preacher has more personal interests at stake to demand that he cause no trouble than has any other member of the congregation, elder or others. He has the same Lord to whom he must account for being wrong. He will usually lose more friends locally, and suffer much more in distant places. He suffers financially, while the man who remains prospers. The preacher's work is blighted, while the elder continues without hindrance. In every way, whether guilty or innocent, the preacher has much more to suffer and lose in a church disturbance than any other person. Unless I know the facts, I do not say of any gospel preacher that "he is a troublemaker."

"By thy words thou shalt be justified and by thy words thou shalt be condemned," the Lord said.

Preachers: Let's not berate the "eldership" just because some are not what they should be. Elders: Let us not force trouble upon a preacher, and accuse him, just because some preachers have disturbed some churches.

One Like Moses

Homer Putnam Reeves

"God made his grave, to men unknown . . . and laid the ages seer alone to slumber while the world grows old."

The Promise

Moses declared, "Jehovah thy God will raise up unto thee a prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me; unto him ye shall hearken . . . and I will put my words in his mouth, and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him" (Deut. 18:15, 18, 19).

Consider these facts: Moses was the present prophet; another prophet (future) would be raised up; he would be of "thy brethren," (Jewish) and like unto Moses. The message of the new prophet would be heaven's message; condemnation would rest upon those who refused to heed the new prophet's message.

Christ, the New Prophet

Jesus Christ is the new prophet, of Jewish lineage, like unto Moses. His message is heaven's message. The transcendent glory of the voice of Christ was proclaimed by the authoritative voice of Moses. "I will put my words in his mouth" refers to the most excellent message of grace. "God, having of old time spoken unto the fathers in the prophets . . . hath at the end of these days spoken unto us in his Son" (Heb. 1:1, 2).

The superlative excellence of the new prophet is seen in the transfiguration. Moses, Elijah, and Christ appeared in a glorified state. Peter suggested that three tabernacles be constructed. Moses and Elijah were removed from the scene and the voice of heaven declared, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased, hear ye him" (Matt. 17:1-5).

The superiority of Christ over Moses is graphically presented by Paul. "For he (Christ) hath been counted worthy of more glory than Moses, by so much as he that built the house hath more honor than the house" (Heb. 3:3).

Of Jewish Lineage

Both Christ and Moses were Jews. They possessed a common father in the person of Jacob. Moses sprang from the tribe of Levi; Christ was of Judah.

Babyhood

In infancy, the lives of both Moses and Christ were threatened. Extraordinary efforts were made to preserve Moses from the general destruction of the male children of Israel. The parents of Christ found sanctuary in Egypt to escape the slaughter of the innocents ordered by Herod.

Leadership

Christ is, like Moses, the leader of the people of God. Moses led physical Israel; Jesus leads spiritual Israel.

Moses was a great general. He delivered the Jews from the most powerful nation on earth; he maintained them, by God's providence, amid the perils of the desert for forty years. Christ is like Moses in that he too is a general—the captain of the Christian army (Heb. 2:10).

Whereas Moses delivered the Jews from Egyptian bondage, Christ delivers from the bondage of sin (Rom. 6:17, 18).

Whereas Moses led the Jews to be baptized in the waters of the Red Sea, Christ leads men and women, with believing, penitential hearts, to be baptized into the name of the Father and Son and Holy Spirit (Matt. 28:19, 20).

Whereas the Jews were saved, having passed through the baptismal waters, under Moses' leadership, people who now pass through the baptismal waters, by the authority of Christ, are saved (1 Cor. 10:1, 2; Mark 16:15, 16).

Lawgivers

Both Moses and Christ were lawgivers. Both presented God's law to the people. Moses received the law of Jehovah (ten commandments) from Mt. Sinai; Christ presented his new law as the gospel of grace. Paul presents a beautiful allegory, contrasting the two laws: the law of Moses was like Hagar, the bondwoman; the law of Christ is like Sarah, the free woman (Gal. 4:21f).

John says, "The law was given by Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ" (John 1:17).

Church Builders

Both Moses and Christ built churches. Moses built the tabernacle, called the "church in the wilderness" (Acts 7:38). Jesus declared, "Upon this rock (Peter's confession) I will build my church" (Matt. 16:18).

God gave Moses a pattern for the tabernacle when he was in Mount Sinai. There he received the ten commandment covenant.

The church of Moses was supported by the ten commandments. The church of Christ is supported by the law of Christ (1 Tim. 3:15). The law of Moses is defunct. It was blotted out (Col. 2:14; Heb. 8:13). Accordingly Moses' church is extinct. Christ's law remains and Christ's church.

Reward

Moses could hold out no greater inducement to the Jews than the land that "flowed with milk and honey"—the land of Canaan.

Christ offers an eternal habitation—a house not made with hands, in the heavenly Canaan (John 14:1-3).

THE CAMP MEETING AT NOLANVILLE

F. L. Paisley

Each year, for many years past, the church at Nolanville, Texas, has conducted a ten-day meeting at the Nolanville camp grounds. Many preachers and singers have had part in the work, and many Christians have come from far and near to camp and attend the meeting. Great feasts of good things are always enjoyed.

The meeting always begins Friday night before the first Lord's day in August, and runs over two Lord's days. This means that the 1953 meeting will begin July 31 and close August 9. There are always several services a day, including some classes in singing and in Bible.

* Brother Max R. Crumley, of Central church in Temple, Texas, has been chosen for the preaching this year. Brother Palmer Wheeler is to direct the singing again and teach classes in song. Children singing is a great feature in these drills. This writer has been asked to do some Bible class work, and possibly be a general lucky boy for the meeting. He doubts his being big enough for this sort of work, but will do his best.

If my word is worth anything in evaluating preaching, let me assure the public which plans to come that the preaching will be the very best in every way. Brother Crumley loves the church and the gospel, and is neither afraid nor ashamed to proclaim the full truth on any Bible theme. Brother Wheeler has been at Nolanville and many other places and needs no commendation from me to those who plan to come.

We shall anticipate a good meeting and the usual fine fellowship.

Studies In Galatians (No. 6)

R. C. Bell

In Galatians 2:19-21, Paul glides out of his personal rebuke of Peter into a compressed exposition of the fundamentals of Christianity. If these verses, as some think, were not spoken to Peter, nonetheless they explain why Paul was so much concerned about Peter's ceasing to associate with Gentile brethren. They show why he thought Peter's deflection under the circumstances forfeited constitutional principles of Christianity and perverted the gospel even unto changing its very heart and pulse beat. This scripture focuses Paul's interpretation of Christianity and furnishes the key to his teaching and life.

Dead to the Law

God's written law through Moses was "holy . . . righteous . . . good . . . spiritual" (Rom. 7:12-14), but it was addressed to the flesh, not to the spirit of men. It served its purpose in God's unfolding economy for fifteen centuries, until men were ready for a religion addressed to the spirit. To the obedient, this law promised life; to those who broke it, death. Inasmuch as every Jew without exception broke it, it became to Jews "the ministration of death." Simultaneously, Gentiles without exception, and with the same fatal result, broke God's unwritten moral law. Consequently, Paul's unqualified statement: "By the works of law shall no flesh be justified." Justification by law, good works, character, and merit is utterly impossible. Under the reign of law, through no default of law however, both Judaism and Heathenism failed to justify, and universal condemnation hung over men. Could they justify men, the grace of God and the cross of Christ would be useless (See Gal. 2:21).

The gracious Father of mankind, knowing that his human children would not render the perfect obedience that legal justification requires, never intended the covenant of law to be final. Rather, he was giving men an opportunity to learn by their unvarying failure in obedience that under law they were hopeless, doomed sinners. In this manner, men might be led in despair to abandon God's provisional, educative system of law for his perfected system of grace when it became accessible to them.

"I, through the law, died unto the law, that I might live unto God," says Paul. He had to give up all hope of being justified by law before he could be justified by grace. The covenant of law and the covenant of grace, therefore, cannot run concurrently. God cannot save sinners until they cease trying to save themselves by law and their own merit. There is no need of a man's thinking he can live unto God before he is dead to law as a means of salvation. He must, so to speak, attend his own funeral, "for the old man was crucified with him." A clean break must be made with legality and self-righteousness. The two systems are so different that either annuls the other. The law demands unattainable righteousness while the gospel bestows righteousness upon all who will take it. Though Peter did not realize it, to use legal rites as if they were needed to supply deficiencies of the gospel is to go back to law and self-effort, which inevitably means death. This is to fall "away from grace" and stab Christianity through its heart. That Paul saw the subtle poison of Judaism and the danger to the whole structure of Christianity accounts for his rebuking Peter and writing this warning letter to Galatia. The two systems simply will not mix. "They shall not cleave . . . even as iron doth not mingle with clay."

What does Paul's saying, that he "through the law died to the law," mean? He was a breaker of law, subject to God's inexorable decree, "The wages of sin is death." But in amazing grace, Christ took his place as condemned sinner to die for him. Paul felt most poignantly that his sins nailed Christ to the cross and that he himself, not Christ, should have died there. Hence, he means that because God's judgment against his sins was executed upon Christ, he himself died, representatively, on the cross with Christ. Law could not execute him again. (See John 5:24).

Note that not law, but Paul, died. When at Damascus he realized how inhuman, steely, and bloody his years of devotion to the law had left him, he, despairing of ever getting any good from it, fled to the gracious "Jesus of Nazareth," who was unbelievably kind and ready to forgive and forget his terrible past. The law still speaks as sternly and fatally to men in the flesh as ever. Only men who forsake law as the means of salvation (die to it), thus making it possible for them gratefully to accept Christ's vicarious death in lieu of their own, deserved death, can ever escape God's eternal death penalty for breakers of his law.

Alive Unto God

In further explaining the practical workings of Christianity, Paul writes: "It is no longer I (the old man born of the flesh) that lives, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I (the new man born of the Spirit) now live in the flesh (bodily frame) I live in faith, the faith which is in the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself up for me" (2:20). Later, from his Roman prison, Paul distilled this into, "For me to live is Christ" (Phil. 1:20).

With respect to his flesh and the world, Paul was born into Christ crucified; with respect to his spirit, he lived a risen, Christ-absorbed life. Before he became a Christian, religion was to Paul a grim, hopeless struggle to please God and improve himself by living up to God's moral code. Upon becoming a Christian he exchanged this ineffectual striving to toe a legal chalk line for a grateful, joyous response of his whole personality to the indwelling Christ, and found "a well of water springing up unto eternal life." Instead of Christ being a dead man that belonged to the past, he was a living, personal companion, living and working in him. Christianity was to Paul a beautiful, warm, fragrant friendship—a personal experience ("Operation Experience"), "a divine-human encounter," whereas his religion had been impersonal and traditional. All this sent Paul over land and sea attending to Christ's business as other men were attending to their own business. He lost his life to find it. A Christian is dead to law, sin, flesh, world, and alive to God, to the measure that he really desires to be, but no more. There can be no outer compulsion and no inner reluctance; all must be personal and spontaneous. "Christ in you, the hope of glory" (Col. 1:27).

What Does the Bible Say?

Search the Scriptures Daily

In our study of Acts of the Apostles we have come to the seventeenth chapter where Paul left Thessalonica and came to Berea, another Grecian city near-by. Luke, the writer of Acts, pays a wonderful compliment to these Bereans. He writes: "These were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so" (Acts 17:11).

How wonderful it would be if the citizens of every community in our land, and in the entire world, would search the Scriptures daily! What a marvelous safeguard it would be against error and all false teaching if every man would check the things he reads and the messages he hears by the word of God to see "whether those things were so."

I am thankful to God that more Bibles are being published today than ever before. Governor Adlai Stevenson said: "Religious faith remains, in my opinion, our greatest national resource." President Eisenhower said: "If each of us in his own mind would dwell more upon the simple virtues—integrity, courage, self-confidence, an unshakable belief in the Bible—would not some of our problems tend to simplify themselves?"

More men of science, more educators, more statesmen are calling our attention to faith in God and the values of Christianity than ever before in modern times. Why not determine to learn more about the Book of books. Here is how you can read it through in a year.

Read three chapters each day and five chapters each Sunday. This will carry you through both the Old and New Testaments in a year. If you are not very familiar with the Bible let me suggest that you begin in the New Testament with the book of Matthew. The New Testament is the Old Testament revealed. After you read it you are better prepared to understand the Old. Underline those passages that are most meaningful to you and re-read them from time to time. The Old Testament tells of God's creation of the world, and his dealings with men in past dispensations. Today we are under Christ, and not under the old law of Moses. We study the Old to profit by its principles and examples, but we read the New to know what we are to do to be saved, and to live the Christian life.

If you will do this you will be richly rewarded by the Lord. If you decide to follow this plan please drop us a postcard and we will enroll you with other daily Bible readers. From month to month we will send you material which will help you understand the Bible. We will send you a 38-page pamphlet, "Understanding the Bible." Do your better self this favor. Expose your soul to God's holy word each day during 1953!

THE PROPER USE OF MONEY

B. C. Goodpasture

All resources should be obtained honestly. Those who have come into the possession of money dishonestly sooner or later will pay for their dishonesty. Judas betrayed his Lord for thirty pieces of money, but his heart was so tortured with the fires of remorse that he returned the price of his treachery, with the awful confession, "I have betrayed innocent blood." The rich men of James 5 had filled their coffers from the toil of their underpaid, or unpaid laborers, and the consequence of their crimes were upon them. But it is not enough to obtain money in the right manner.

The rich men about whom and to whom Jesus spoke, so far as the record indicates, came into possession of their wealth by no fraudulent means. The rich young ruler is not charged with dishonesty. The rich farmer of Luke 12 and the rich man of Luke 16 are above reproach so far as the manner of obtaining their wealth is concerned. Whether they inherited it, married it, or by toil and industry made it, we do not know. The manner of their obtaining their money is not the point under consideration. It is not enough to obtain money honestly. Having obtained resources rightly, there is the obligation to use them properly.

The three rich men in question made their grave mistake—not in the manner they obtained their wealth—but in the way they used it. There are three factors which contribute to the making of money. The person who immediately possesses the wealth contributes his part. Society contributes its part. A man, with no contact with society, is incapable of making money in the usual sense of the term. And, in the third place, God contributes his part. Now, if all three parties are involved in the making of money, should they not all be considered in the use and distribution of it? Here is where the rich men in question failed. One said that he would pull down his barns and build greater; and there bestow all his grain and goods and say to his soul that it had much goods laid up for many days. In his plan, neither society nor God was considered. Another was clothed in purple and fine linen and fared sumptuously every day. He was not interested in his fellowman or God in the use of his resources. Seemingly, the humble desire of Lazarus to be fed of the crumbs of this rich man's table was not granted. It was nothing to him if Lazarus, sore-covered and dog-licked, died of hunger and exposure at his gate. And for God and his cause he had no thought nor gift. And the rich young ruler kept, for a brief time, his wealth while the cry of the needy was unheard and the voice of the Lord was disobeyed. Significant it is that all these made their fatal mistake in their use of their money. What a lesson for us—what a warning to us! Brother, what are you doing to help the poor and preach the gospel? Will the Lord be pleased with the use you are making of his blessings?

Note: This article is one of 11 articles on the subject of God, Man, and Money which will appear in a special issue of the 20th Century Christian on this theme April 1, 1953. Churches will find this 38-page pamphlet on the theme of Stewardship valuable for teaching members their duty in giving and in earning and spending money. Some churches plan on using them in bundles so that each family can have a copy. Copies can be ordered through the Firm Foundation at 10 cents each.

GOING TO SCOTLAND—THEY ARE WORTHY

It is very peculiarly interesting that so many brethren are going abroad, and in so many different places, and supported by so many congregations of Christians, preaching the gospel of Christ. Four hundred years ago, missionaries came from Europe to tell the savages of North America of the Bible and of salvation through Christ. This wave of people impelled by religious zeal flowed unceasingly westward culminating in the unparalleled movement in the 19th century for the complete restoration of the New Testament order of things both in the matter of preaching the gospel after the manner of the early Christians, but as well for the faith and practice of those who were led to Christ through obedience to the gospel. That was a wonderful period in the history of the church and in the history of the world.

And now the trend has been reversed; thousands of zealous teachers of the Bible are making their way, not west but east, to the Near East and the Far East—to Europe, Asia and Africa and to many of the islands of the sea as evangelists of mercy, hope and life in the preaching of the gospel to the lost, but to great groups of peoples as well, who having once known the truth that saves have turned aside from the "sound doctrine" that Paul preached to the rudiments of the world and not after Christ—to "Higher Criticism," "Modernism," and the manifold speculations in human philosophy and unbelief. The thoughtful consideration of some of our brethren, specially those who know our worthy brother Clyde P. Findlay, is requested to the following report:

Gospel preaching in virgin territory is more fruitful in numbers and more thrilling than in burned-over areas but there is often a pressing need for encouragement, restoration and rebuilding in the latter type of fields. Scotland, with almost 600 members in about 20 loyal churches needs gospel preachers. Two full-time preachers are carrying this load. Brother David Allan and I have promised to assist these churches this summer. They are worthy brethren. Scotland's staunch defenders of the faith have proven their worthiness. They welcome our help. We feel compelled to help.

But here is the problem: We are willing to make personal sacrifices but will need additional help. Although we are under the direction of the congregations where we minister, these churches are not fully supporting us. Only ten weeks remain until we leave. We are far short of our needs. Churches and individuals caring to have a part in this work need not send their entire support at once. Monthly support will be needed during June, July and August. During April and May we can apply monthly payments to our travel fund.

Our evangelistic and financial programs are separate. Brother David Allan, long familiar with this field plans to preach in northern Scotland and his support should be sent to him in care of Austin Avenue church of Christ, Brownwood, Texas. My work is to be confined to the small churches around Glasgow and Edinburgh which are threatened by continued digression in the country. Tracts will have to be provided, especially bearing on those problems that are now disturbing over there. My support should be sent to Dick Mawby, Treasurer, 304 Pierce Street, Houston, Texas.

It may be that Brother Allan and I can visit congregations where invited and speak on the needs of this great field. We would welcome such invitations. —CLYDE P. FINDLAY, 304 Pierce Street, Houston, Texas.

SOME CHURCH BUDGETS FOR 1953

Mont Whitson

The following table of statistics furnishes some very encouraging information concerning the liberality of Christians throughout the nation. The kingdom is spreading and the New Testament example of giving is becoming more and more a reality among the churches of Christ. The churches listed below have been selected from information at our disposal, thus some equally good examples, no doubt, have been omitted. (The writer is more familiar with Texas churches, and that explains the predominance of listings from that state). Possibly hundreds of other churches could have been included; however, those listed should be representative of liberality in the brotherhood.

Church	(Approx.)
	Budget	Members
Central—Cleburne, Tex.	$50,000	800
Central—Houston, Tex.	98,780	1175
Church of Christ—Hereford, Tex. ..	22,931	350
Church of Christ—Wyandotte, Mich. ..	18,000	130
College Avenue—Lubbock, Tex.	52,000	400
Eastside—Lubbock, Tex.	26,000	325
Hillsboro—Nashville, Tenn.	100,000	800
Harris & Irving—San Angelo, Tex. ..	47,000	850
Lamar Avenue—Paris, Tex.	27,000	530
Pioneer Park—Lubbock, Tex.	35,000	400
Preston Road—Dallas, Tex.	78,000	466
Skillman Avenue—Dallas, Tex.	130,000	1000
Tenth & Broad—Wichita Falls, Tex. ..	67,000	1000
20th & East Birch—Colored, Lubbock, Tex.	5,720	75
Union Avenue—Memphis, Tenn.	78,000	1000
Broadway—Lubbock, Tex.	200,200	1500

A good number of these churches are spending 30 to 40 percent in mission work and at least two are spending fifty percent or more in the mission field. None of these congregations is averaging less than $1.00 per Sunday per member; a third is averaging over two dollars; and one congregation is averaging more than three dollars per member.

These churches should serve as examples of liberality just as the Thessalonian church, because of its work, faith, love and patience, became "ensamples to all that believed in Macedonia and Achaia." It is probable that the congregations mentioned have only touched the hem of the garment; notwithstanding, their continued growth in liberality during the past few years is very refreshing, and is a manifestation of what can be done when Christians are united together in a "work of faith, and a labor of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ." The restoration of New Testament Christianity will not be complete until Christians give according to the pattern laid down in the gospel of Christ.

O Happy Day

Georgia Carver

"O sel 'iger Tag! O happy day" is still sounding in my ears and indeed it is a day with a happy ending.

This morning seemed no different in the beginning than any other Monday—the day after Sunday, few personnel in and out of Gemeinde Christi, no school, late breakfast, few phone calls, the postman with a few more letters than usual, three or four passing the time in the office. When Brother Gatewood came in he was immediately drawn aside by Helen.

"I want to be baptized tonight," she said in her quiet, sweet voice.

I, and possibly others, overheard this but their conversation was uninterrupted until Brother Gatewood announced it to the room. No one spoke. Perhaps all felt as I, they couldn't for joy in their hearts.

You see, Helen Neuber had been at the Bemeinde Christi since the beginning of the fall term of school in October and here it was the last week of the term in February and she had not yet become a Christian. Of course, everything had been said that could be except deliberately asking her to render obedience. Everyone was so anxious.

"Do you know Chaplain Fisher?" she asked me later.

"No, I don't. Who is he?" I asked.

"Oh, he's the Army Chaplain at Wiesbaden. He was the one who suggested that I come to this school."

Seven-thirty came and we assembled for the usual Monday night prayer meeting. The singing was excellent with Brother Hugh Mingle calling particular attention to the thoughts in some of our best-loved songs. Our study was taken from Matthew 13, reviewing the parable of the Sower and taking up the parable of Tares and the Wheat. Brother Gatewood gave excellent explanations on both with Chaplain Fisher adding to the discussion. At closing, the guests and newcomers were introduced and the announcement made that both Helen and her sister, Valdi, were to be baptized. Valdi had visited quite often but I doubt if anyone thought of her making the confession. We then went to the auditorium for the baptism. Another young girl, whose name is Ursula was the third person to be baptized.

A short service of song, prayer, scripture reading, and discourse was given. At the end of the talk, a comparison of the conversion of the eunuch and that of Ursula who had a little more than 24 hours earlier entered a church of Christ building for the first time in her life. She heard one sermon, saw the Lord's Supper served, and attended one Bible study. It all came about by the church opening its doors to by-passers to and from the "Messe" (fair grounds). Sunday afternoon Ursula visited the fair and on her way home she noticed the church building. As it was open to visitors, she came in to look around. Her interest was keen and Brother Gatewood invited her back to the evening service. Brother Don Finto spoke on, "Be Prepared to Stand before God." A timely subject indeed for her and she was impressed with its simplicity. She was invited to attend a student social after the evening service at the Gatewoods, which she thoroughly enjoyed.

She resolved that night that she wanted to become one of us and further study with Klaus and Analiese Monday strengthened her resolution. Obedience of the three was completed with Brother Gatewood baptizing. So three babes in Christ went on their way rejoicing and angels and men were made happy.

Lusaka, Northern Rhodesia

"The Gospel Wagon," the name given to our new Willys station wagon, has certainly won the admiration of all the workers, both black and white, in the Lusaka area. Its name comes from the fact that it takes the gospel to somebody every day of the week, always once, often twice and sometimes three times in a day. We have five meetings per week at the Cement Compound, Chilanga, four a week at Chilenje, Lusaka, one at week at the Game and Tse-tse Control Compound, Chilanga, and one at Kapopo Village. Two of these are by my wife and the rest by myself and my interpreter. Then Brother and Sister Frank Murphy have at least seven a week in Chilenje and some of the schools in Lusaka. These efforts through February have resulted in thirteen baptisms for the month. One each at Chilenje and Kapopo and eleven at Chilanga. The new work in Chilanga has made definite growth both in numbers and in the strength of the new members. At least three of the 11 baptisms have been the results of the efforts of the new members, none of them over two months old. They have taught them enough while at work to get them interested and have brought them to the meetings where they almost immediately made their confessions and were baptized. Two of the most recent additions have been from the Catholics.

We are also feeling the pressure of denominational opposition. The Jehovah's Witnesses have re-doubled their efforts to keep their members away from Chilanga. One day they decided to try a different method, so 12 to 15 of their men came to our meeting to try to out talk us and to break up our work, but theirs was a dismal failure in this ruse. The Catholics have opened a school at Kapopo and placed a teacher there to work against us. One day early in the month, I failed to go to the village because of heavy rain and this teacher ordered the Christians not to meet any more. The Chief of the village had given us permission to meet at a place just outside the village. We were meeting there and not bothering anybody when this teacher came and ordered these Christians not to meet any more, threatening them. When I returned the following Sunday, the brethren were upset and were planning to meet at one of the homes, but I told them to return to their regular place of worship. I went to the village for an interview with the Chief and made him stand good on his permission for the use of this place for worship. I also had this teacher to understand that he was not to molest them any more under the penalty of prosecution. We do have freedom of religion in this country and we will not tolerate any such interference.

The building season is nigh upon us and the Chilenje church must be built this dry season. Materials must be bought immediately before the rush season takes everything up. At least $3000 is still needed for this work. We have raised about all we can on this side. This is most urgent. Please send checks air mail to the following address for this building fund.—H. E. PIERCE, P. O. Box 1016, Lusaka, Northern Rhodesia.

If you have not secured your copy of the new edition of the Revised Standard Version of the Bible, we are now in position to fill all orders.—Buckram binding, $6.00; Leather binding, $10.00.

Frank L. Cox, Box 104, Mineola, Texas, March 16: Four have placed membership and two have been baptized here in recent days. Average Lord's day Bible school attendance is the highest in the history of this eighty year old congregation. I am to speak in the Fort Worth lectureship Thursday of this week and in a gospel meeting with the Highland Park congregation of the same city April 19-29.

A. C. Williams, Box 757, Sand Springs, Oklahoma, March 15: Last Wednesday night brought to a close our meeting with the church at Olton, Texas. Brother S. A. Freeman is local evangelist. I need more work. Who needs my help?

Malcom P. Hinckley, 3034 E. Gage, Huntington Park, California, March 9: Yesterday another was baptized and one placed membership. This brings our total of responses since the turn of the year to 20. 10 have been baptized, nine have placed membership, and one has been restored. For the second successive Sunday we have set a new record in attendance for our Bible school. We had 180 present for it yesterday.

John H. Gerrard, P. O. Box 735, Aurora, Illinois, March 12: The work here continues to progress. Especially is this noticed in our contributions and attendance at our Sunday evening service. The new baptistry is about ready for use. We are looking forward to a busy and fruitful year. Stop and worship with us at 529 Clark when passing our way.

M. E. (Mickey) Blake, 110 S. Lake Street, Carlsbad, New Mexico, March 10: The work here at Fok and Lake in Carlsbad, New Mexico, is fine. We are enjoying record crowds, especially in Bible school. We are now averaging more each Sunday in Bible school than our record attendance was 18 months ago. Our spring lectureship begins April 19 and closes April 26. Robert C. Jones of Fort Worth, Texas, is to be with us in August for our summer meeting. When in Carlsbad, worship with us.

Bill McCown, 176 Ohio Street, New Braunfels, Texas, March 14: It was my pleasure to be in attendance the past four nights, March 9-12, at the debate held in Cleveland, Texas, between H. A. Dobbs of the church of Christ, and David L. Welch, of Pensacola, Florida, representing the Pentecostal faith. Brother Dobbs ably defended the faith against the one God and direct operation of the Holy Spirit sect of the holinists. Welch is reported to be the best the Pentecostals have. Our work here continues in good fashion. Newspaper advertising, preaching on the radio in German, are new phases of our work here. Both are being well received. I will be with the church at Natick, Massachusetts, April 12-26 in a meeting sponsored by the church at New Braunfels.

Ernest McCoy, Borger, Texas, March 13: In the past week two have identified themselves with the congregation and six have made confession of faults. Our building which seats near six hundred is filled for the evening service.

L. L. Gieger, Tyler, Texas, March 9: Since our last report there have been six baptized, six restored, and 11 to move into our section of the city and express a desire to work under the oversight of the elders of the West Erwin congregation. I am scheduled to be with the Broadway church in Houston, April 5-12. Brother James Scott is the capable evangelist there. The Lord willing, Brother Harvey Porter, one of the evangelists here, will preach in my absence.

Jno. H. Lanier, Seagoville, Texas, March 9: Brother David Walker filled his appointment at the Pleasant Grove Church of Christ, to a good audience. Brother Willard Mossom of Fort Worth, has been in a series of meetings at the Crandall Church of Christ. Brother Mossom delivered some very good sermons. I have some choice time in '53, for meetings, as song director. I will go anywhere. Write me at once and we will get the time arranged.

Grover C. Ross, 613 W. 4th, Portales, New Mexico, March 10: I know a very capable young man who is receiving his M.A. degree this spring, and who will be available for local and meeting work by June, 1953. He is an outstanding young gospel preacher with several years' experience, and has unusual talent and ability to preach the gospel. I know of very few young men with his ability. If you should be interested in this young man, write me or the elders of the 4th Street Church of Christ in Portales. The man also has a very fine wife.

A. Chester Grimes, Heights Church of Christ, Houston, Texas: Nine were baptized in our meeting which Brother Anthony E. Emmons, Jr., conducted for one week. It was a wonderful meeting in every way. He formerly labored with this congregation in 1948 and 1949. The work here is most encouraging at this time. Our Bible school attendance has reached an all time high of 406 and the balcony is occupied every Lord's day. We have had forty-five additions already this year. We are happy indeed when the Lord's work succeeds.

Tildon McFerrin, Whitewright, Texas, March 16: Since my last report there have been five responses: two baptisms and three restorations. The church in Whitewright continues to grow and that should be encouraging to all the membership in and around our community. We extend to all a special invitation when coming our way to make it a point to come by and visit with us. I will be in San Angelo, Texas, at the Fair Grounds Road Church for a meeting beginning April 24, and extending through May 2. We covet your prayers for a profitable meeting there.

W. T. Garnett, 402 E. Gilbert, Henrietta, Texas, March 13: I was with the East Side church in Portales, New Mexico, in a four day meeting March 5-8. At the close I agreed to begin local work with them. We have been here in Henrietta for three and one-half years. It has been as pleasant as anyone could expect. We now have firm elders and deacons, and the church work as a whole is in fine condition. Whoever follows me, I believe, will have a pleasant and enjoyable work. If you would be interested in working with these brethren, contact us.

Ben West, Lampasas, Texas, March 11: Four identified in fine services here on the Lord's day. The young men's training class leads the service one Wednesday night each month. They deliver a complete sermon that is heart warming to over two hundred people who attend. 205 were present last Wednesday.

John G. Bills, 4133 Middlesex Drive, San Diego 16, California, March 8: We enjoyed fine services at Linda Vista today. Seven responses since last Lord's day: three were baptized and four confessed wrongs. One of those baptized came from the Catholics and one from the Lutherans. I am to be in a meeting in Tennessee the first part of August. Any congregation wanting me for meetings the last of July or August may contact me. I prefer meetings between California and Tennessee. We thank God for being able to use us in his service.

Robert B. Farrar, Granbury, Texas, March 9: After what was far more than just a pleasant association with the church in Mexia, we ceased our labors with them and began working with the church in Granbury February 8. We are enjoying immensely the work here under the leadership of most capable elders. Since we have been here, three have placed membership, one restored, and one baptized. The new and commodious church building is located on the main highway. When in this vicinity be sure and stop and worship with us. You will be more than welcome.

Wendell Winkler, Box 133, Rayville, Louisiana, March 10: Since last report, over twenty have responded to the invitation, seven of whom responded in our recent meeting with Brother V. E. Howard of Greenville, Texas. In the last ten months there have been seventy-five responses. We are having the largest crowds for Bible study in the history of the church, with two hundred thirty present March 1, which is an increase of over one hundred in the last five months. I began a meeting last night at the Good Road congregation, north of Hollyridge, Louisiana, and begin at Good-springs, Alabama, April 6.

Jimmy Wood, 1803 N. Wash., Odessa, Texas, March 11: Brother W. T. Hamilton of Gainesville, Texas, has just concluded a most successful meeting with this congregation. During the meeting there were twelve responses to the gospel invitation. Six of these were baptized and six confessed sins. The entire congregation appreciated the fine preaching that Brother Hamilton did and good audiences were present at all the services. Since the first of the year we have had ten baptisms here at Northside, and during 1952 there were forty-five baptized into Christ. The work of the church moves forward in Odessa with four congregations doing the Lord's work at this place.

L. R. Lovelady, Box 144, Honey Grove, Texas, March 11: I am now beginning to book my summer evangelistic work for meetings, singing schools, and singing for meetings. At this time I have some very good time not taken. I would be glad to assist any place that would be in need of my service in any of the above work mentioned. I would also accept local work with some congregation that is in need of a minister. May the Lord continue to bless the church everywhere that many souls will come to the knowledge of the truth in 1953. May the Lord continue his blessings on Brother Showalter and spare him many more years in his service.

A. H. Bryant, 1445 Nogales, Del Paso Heights, California, March 11: We are happy to report another baptism here at Del Paso Heights last Lord's day—a fine young lady with a promising future. We rejoice that the church seems to be making some progress. There is a great and growing need of more workers in this area. Just yesterday we drove forty miles to conduct funeral services for a brother eighty-two years of age, who had been a member of the church sixty-three years. The family reported they had some difficulty in locating a preacher to conduct the funeral service.

Raymond DeSpain, Blanco, Texas, March 10: Our work here in Blanco seems to continue to show increased interest. We have had one baptism since last report. We had a good day yesterday; the singing in the afternoon was well attended. Twelve different congregations were represented. The church here plans a meeting to begin March 29th to continue through April 5th. Brother Quentin Dunn of Eldorado, Texas, will do the preaching. We are looking forward with much interest to this meeting. This is an invitation to all who can come and be with us in this special effort to preach the gospel.

R. V. Wood, Box 673, Crane, Texas, March 9: Guy N. Woods closed a very fine meeting with us last night. It was a remarkable meeting because of the type of preaching. Most every service was along the line of Christian living and Christian responsibility. That is the type of evangelism that the church needs everywhere today. It has been rightfully said that to convert the church will convert the world. There were only six responses, but we feel like the church has been greatly strengthened. All records for attendance and contribution were broken during the meeting. We press forward with renewed zeal and determination, giving the Lord all the glory.

Ben West, Lampasas, Texas, March 16: Yesterday people stood and some turned away. Two hundred fifty in Bible school, two hundred six at prayer Wednesday night to hear the young men speak on "Youth and the Church." These are the members of our young men's training class. Next month they will speak on "Requisites of a Prosperous Church." Our new rock church building is going up. It will seat near six hundred when finished. The congregation last week bought the home of eight rooms just north of the church building and the quarter block of land to use as auto parking lot. This is the third residence joining the church property we have secured. We now have a three quarter block of land—sufficient for our present needs.

James F. Fowler, 403 Church St., College Station, Texas, March 10: One addition last Sunday by baptism. The opening of our new building is scheduled for May 10. Sunday night, May 10, Brother Carl Spain will begin a four night meeting in our new auditorium. He will bring the Central Church of Christ Chorus with him and they will sing at special 6:00 p.m. service, preceding the evening worship hour. Brother Spain was recently brought to the A&M College campus by the college to serve as one of the dormitory counsellors during the college's religious emphasis week. He did an excellent job. About 150 boys were out each evening to his forums—many staying until the midnight hours to discuss moral and spiritual questions. The college plans to have him back next year to serve in a similar way.

Charles M. Adams, Box 285, Cleveland, Oklahoma, March 13: We are much encouraged by the many letters that have come to us regarding our articles in our local paper, also from those who are interested in getting this type of work started in their own cities and communities. It is a proven fact that this type of writing is one of the most effective means of teaching that is known. It will produce results in any community. When people say they never heard of the church of Christ, that is no reflection on them, but it is on us. It is simply presented evidence that we have fallen down on the job. We have not obeyed Jesus, rather we have disobeyed, as he gave the commission in Matt. 28:18-20 and Mark 16:15, 16, until we use all the means that we know to use, and the newspaper is one of those means. In my home city, St. Louis, Missouri, which has a population of 856,796 souls, almost a million people, they have two daily newspapers that as far as I know, are read by most of that vast population, yet (unless it is a comparatively late thing) there is not one line in those papers that tell those people of the Christ who died for them. In Tulsa, Oklahoma, the same situation exists. Tulsa has a population of 182,740 people, it also has two daily newspapers, and not one line appears in them regarding the true church other than free space that is given all churches for sermon topics. This is not mentioned as criticism, but to point to the fact that many times we overlook the very means by which we could do a better work. I am of the opinion that this condition exists all across this great untaught nation of ours. In our small city, we have a newspaper and it possibly goes to some six or seven states, and the war fronts. We spend about fifteen dollars per month for this advertisement, the mail that we receive attests to the fact that our articles are being read and appreciated, also, resented by some. I have tried to arouse interest among churches relative to this great opportunity, and in the main the response has been overwhelming. It is our sincere prayer that we may join hand with God's children in every hamlet, village, community, and city, and make use of this great, heretofore, neglected medium, that we may all take this means of teaching this vast audience that Jesus died for them, too.

FROM ELMONT, L. I., NEW YORK

Ed Bayliss and Clark Hanna, Elders

There is one small congregation of the Church of Christ serving the entire section of Long Island outside of New York City. About one million people live in this area.

This congregation is the Elmont Church of Christ, made up of about forty-five members, some of whom drive as far as thirty-seven miles each way to worship. Of the forty-five there are only about twelve families where both husband and wife are members. Morning attendance including children has averaged about seventy for this year. There are several military personnel stationed at Mitchell Field who attend regularly.

Brother Robert L. Johnson, a graduate of Abilene Christian College, who formerly served the Northwest Congregation in Detroit, commenced work with us the first Sunday in January.

Begun in Hempstead in 1945 the congregation purchased a minister's home in Elmont four years ago, the basement of which was also to serve as the place of worship. One Sunday school class meets in the living room and two classes in the attic, the basement still serving as the place of worship. We are paying $47.00 per month on the minister's home. Adjoining lots were purchased where we had hoped to erect a building. In dire need of larger quarters we have been investigating all buildings in the area that might conceivably be used. A new building seems beyond our financial ability.

Just recently we discovered that a former Lutheran church building in Malverne, about four miles from Elmont, is for sale. It is mainly red brick with some stucco detail work and is situated on a 140 foot by 100 foot lot. It seats about 150. The building is about 26 feet by 60 feet and is in good repair. In the upstairs area there are five good Sunday School rooms designed for this specific purpose. The price of the building is $21,000.00. It probably could not be duplicated for twice that figure. The architect whom we were going to engage to design a new building has advised us to buy this one and even pay more if necessary to get it.

We are assured of a $15,000.00 mortgage on the building. We must raise $6,000.00 by the middle of April. Out of our limited number of families we feel that we can raise about half of that amount in that time and still carry on our other obligations. Some monthly assistance is received from Manhattan but we do need considerable outside help at this time. We will have to install a baptistry, purchase furniture, and decorate the building.

It is hoped that a number of congregations and individuals who receive this information will be able to contribute $10.00 to $25.00, more or less, to help us acquire this property which will be such a great asset to the Lord's work in this area. Individuals are encouraged to send their contributions through their local congregation but it may be sent direct if preferred. Checks should be made out to the Church of Christ of Elmont, and mailed to 274 Dutch Broadway, Elmont, L. I., N.Y.

Burford Holt, 1621 Mitchell Street, Humboldt, Tennessee, March 10: Two were baptized and one restored March 8 and another baptized March 9. Sunday night attendance shows increase and it is good to see more of the members doing personal work among the people of the world. Franklyn T. Puckett will do the preaching in the spring meeting. We will be glad to have those passing through Humboldt to worship with us at 1613 Mitchell Street.

THE WORK OF THE LORD IN MILES CITY, MONTANA

Clyde W. Sheppard

Located in the eastern part of Montana, Miles City, with a population of more than eleven thousand people, presents an unusual opportunity for preaching Jesus. Being centrally situated in the heart of a rich, fourteen acre oil field, a continual pouring into its present population is assured. A thriving business, trade, diversified agriculture, and industry, all combine to make Miles City the hub of commerce in eastern Montana. Airlines, railroads, and highways fanning out in every direction, serve the transportation needs of this rapidly growing city. Can we afford to pass up the opportunity of preaching Jesus to these people?

If God wills, Brother W. L. Garrett and I shall move our families to Miles City March 17. Two of them, and our family of three, added to the ten saints now there, will make a total of fifteen. "As workers together with God" (1 Cor. 3:9), we shall concentrate our efforts on a plan of work designed to develop every single child of God (Eph. 2:10, 4:14-16; Gal. 6:4). We believe that he will work through us, and use us to his great glory in leading the lost to the Christ. The work at present is drastically hampered because of a lack of a meeting house, and sufficient funds with which to buy essential supplies. Our brethren are assembling in a rented place in the Eagles Lodge Hall. This leaves the impression that they are just another "fly-by-night" sect common to that part of the country.

While our needs for the Lord's work there are numerous, being a raw field, we are at present concerned with raising the balance of funds needed for our support. I could work at a secular job to earn a livelihood for my family, but it is the consensus of the Montana brethren that the services of a full time evangelist is indispensable to the progress of the work. Brother Garrett will support himself, except that the church in Miles City will supply his house. Is there not some church able to assist in this effort to the glory of Jehovah? A church of a hundred saints could fast one meal a week, allowing one $1.00 per meal, and support a preacher full time. If this challenge falls on the ears of some Macedonian brethren (2 Cor. 8:1-5), we know they will seize the opportunity to give "out of their poverty," that Jesus may be preached to those who "sit in darkness." If each one who reads this would follow this simple plan of fasting one meal a week, all of us together could do the job. Send your contributions to Sister Harry J. Bensley, Route 1, Box 269, Miles City, Montana. And "pray that God will open a door" for preaching the good news of his only begotten Son. Until March 17, my address will be Box 718, Perryton, Texas.

FROM LUBBOCK, TEXAS

Vaughn D. Shofner

Splendid crowds attended the first two services conducted Sunday in the new building of the church in Vandellia Village.

We gratefully acknowledge and deeply appreciate the help received in making the initial services so successful. You have a place with us as a visitor, and there is a place for you as a co-laborer in this new work.

A total of 252 were in Bible school, Sunday morning. Too, we had 135 who expressed a desire to be co-laborers in the Vandellia work by placing membership. We believe this to be the result of faith and zeal and the blessings of God! We covet your prayers in this new work.

Our next service will be at 7:30 Wednesday evening, March 11, 1953. Our ladies Bible class will meet Thursday morning at 9:30.

Sunday services are: Teachers training class, 9:00 a.m.; Bible school for all ages, 9:30 a.m., also 6:30 p.m.; Lord's Supper and sermon at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

PREACHER AVAILABLE

Clarence A. Price

I am in my fourth year with this good church, and I would like to make a change. I am 40 years of age, have a faithful wife and three sons. Any church needing a preacher, who has no hobbies and loves personal work, write me, Box 347, Bryson, Texas. The elders and myself will appreciate other preachers interested in this work, not to inquire until I announce my leaving later.

L. L. Thornton, Dill City, Oklahoma, March 13: I began work with the Dill City congregation the first of January. We had a record attendance last Lord's day, March 8th. We have had three baptisms since the first of the year. We had a very profitable lecture program in February stressing the "Teaching Program of the Church."

COFFEYVILLE BUILDING NEARS COMPLETIONGeorge E. Darling

A very zealous group of Christians in Coffeyville, Kansas, are anxiously awaiting the completion of the new building there. The building should be ready for service within thirty to forty-five days. The new building is located across the street from the High School—Junior High School and the McFarland Trade School building. It is on the main street of town and the principal highway through the city. The present plans are to start the work in the new building with a "continued gospel meeting." A number of congregations in Texas have promised to support their preachers in this effort.

I began work with the small congregation here February 16, one month ahead of the proposed date in March. My support is from the congregations in Hale Center, Lockney, Wolfforth and Earth, Texas, and Bartlesville, Oklahoma. Congregations in Wichita, Kansas and Tulsa, Oklahoma, have been helping in the construction of the building. The above mentioned support and help is deeply appreciated by every member here and we have pledged ourselves to do our best to see that the money they have expended will pay great dividends in the harvest of souls. The work here offers a tremendous challenge—one that we are ready to accept.

The great need in the work here is for a radio broadcast over the local station KGGF, a 10,000 watt station that reaches out into three states. Sectarian error has been preached for years over the air in these regions and has gone unopposed long enough. People are listening to religious broadcasts and we have an unsurpassed opportunity to reach many with the unaltered truth. The cost of a 15 minute program is $9.75. Surely there are congregations who will help to see this work done. Is there a congregation willing to support this work for a year? Can we find an individual willing to support one broadcast or more each month? Brethren, if you were here to hear the error taught over the air you could readily see why I am so anxious to see this work accomplished. I have had enough experience at radio preaching to know that we have an opportunity to do good here. We must let the people of Coffeyville know that there is a church after the New Testament order in town. Will you help us do it? Send your check to the church of Christ, Box 451, Coffeyville, Kansas. It will pay dividends in souls saved.

Under the direction of Brother Al Wilborn we have started a "Round Up Of Strays Campaign." This work will result in much good. Many who were "strong members" in Texas and Tennessee have moved here in times past but have forgotten God and some have drifted into denominational error. We have a list of some thirty "strays" that we are contacting every week. Perhaps some who read this article know of someone in Coffeyville who should be attending church but are not. Will you send us their names? Maybe we can reclaim them for the Lord. Help us if you can.

If you should be near Coffeyville, come by to visit us. Our home address is 1503 W. First. Phone 1545-M.

OWENS—February 20, 1953, marked the end of Jo Anna Owens' ninety years. T. E. Milholland baptized her many years ago. She was a woman of faith and stamina. Forty-one years she lived with Joe and Inez Williamson in Madill, Oklahoma. Sister Williamson's care for her mother was impressive. Brethren William O. Hall and Roy E. Howell read from the Scriptures and led the prayer in the funeral service.

JNO. W. PIGG

MEMOIRS OF A GREAT WOMAN

Mittie Lena was born to Jim Horn and Retta Scott Horn January 26, 1889, near Bloomdale in Collin County, Texas. After going to school in her home community, she attended Gunter Bible College. She became Albert Dow Martin's June bride in 1908. A. D., Jr., Milton Foy, and Alvin Maraie were born to them.

Brother Martin taught in three Christian Colleges. For twenty-one years he was professor of mathematics in Texas A. and M. The Martins were instrumental in the establishment of five congregations in and near Bryan including the church at A. and M. He passed away in 1939. A. D., Jr., followed ten years later.

After Brother Martin's death and the graduation of their sons, Lena returned to McKinney where her mother, who departed this life in December, 1943, lived.

The marriage of Sister Martin and Brother Beasley occurred in October of 1945. They were very happy together and served faithfully in McKinney's Davis Street congregation in which he is an esteemed elder.

Sister Beasley often said James 1:27 was her religion. She gave liberally to the support of Home For Aged at Gunter, the orphan homes, and missions in the states and foreign fields. She clothed a little girl in one of the orphan homes for several years. Her desire was to do good in a meek and quiet spirit according to the Bible. She did not seek earthly praise but a heavenly reward.

HILL—A memorial service for Wilmer G. Hill was conducted at 2:30 p.m., February 1, 1953, from the auditorium of the church of Christ, Kemp, Texas. Brother Wilson Coon, the speaker, prefaced his remarks by pointing out that this service was an unusual one, since satisfactory funeral services were held for Brother Hill by Brother James Medford and Brother G. A. Dunn, Sr., on January 8, 1953. Brother Hill had expressed a desire to have Brother Coon conduct his funeral, but he was not available at the time, and for that reason, Sister Hill arranged a memorial service. Brother Coon used one of Brother Hill's Bibles, fingered and worn from constant use. After his baptism in 1922 by Bro. A. R. Holton, Bro. Hill had studied the Bible unceasingly. He was interested in knowing all that God said. One of his first converts was his wife. Brother Hill was a carpenter and contractor and had lived all but nine months of his nearly sixty-eight years in Kemp. A faithful servant of the Lord, active in the work of the church, his influence is far reaching. The auditorium for this occasion was filled with Christians and non-Christians, friends and neighbors from surrounding communities, who listened attentively to a gospel message, made more impressive by the solemnity of the occasion. Besides his wife, Brother Hill is survived by one brother, John Hill, Kemp, Texas; three sisters: Mrs. J. T. Rice and Mrs. Sallie Rogers of Kemp; and Mrs. Carl Neel, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

GRAY—Mrs. Mattie Jane Gray was born November 26, 1872, in Denton, Texas, where she lived as a child. She came to Stephens County in 1895, and had lived in the Necessity and Ivan community before moving to Breckenridge 25 years ago. Mrs. Gray passed away at the home of a daughter on January 30 at the age of 80 year, two months, and four days. She had been declining in health for several months. She had been a member of the church of Christ for 58 years. Mr. Gray died February 27, 1939. Surviving are four daughters: Mrs. O. W. Wood, Breckenridge, Texas; Mrs. T. W. Carter, Longview, Texas; Mrs. Ella Yose, Overton, Texas, and Mrs. J. V. Cothern, Portales, New Mexico. Two sons: George H. Gray, Breckenridge, Texas, and Roy Gray of San Angelo, Texas. There are 16 grandchildren and 16 great grandchildren. She will be laid to rest beside her husband in the Necessity Cemetery. Funeral services were conducted at the Breckenridge Church of Christ by John Weatherford, assisted by Hugh Boydston, local minister, on February 1, 1953.

HUGH BOYDSTON

PEACOCK—Funeral services for Minister Joe S. Peacock, 91, were held Thursday, February 26, at the Briggs-Gamel Funeral Home with Minister Silas Howell of Llano, Texas, officiating. Burial was in the Oak Hill Cemetery, Lampasas, Texas with members of Saratoga Lodge AF&AM officiating. A minister of the church of Christ, Brother Peacock had preached many years in Burnet county. Surviving are four daughters: Mrs. Ivie Baker of Austin, Mrs. Viola Watson of Bertram, Mrs. John Holland of Mullen, and Mrs. Ross Holland of Mercury; and three sons, Lincoln Peacock of Bertram, Joe Peacock of Brownwood, and Charles Peacock of Lampasas.

SHAFFER—George Clark Shaffer was born September 2, 1899 and passed away on December 14, 1952. He was buried on December 15, 1952. I knew him to be a fine boy while I was serving as teacher and secretary and treasurer of the board of regents at Texas State College. He obeyed the gospel while young and never left his first love. He was a diligent worker to care for the Homecoming at Thorp Springs. His last years were spent as a chiropractor. He is survived by his wife of Thorp Springs, a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Rowe, and a sister, Mrs. Daisy Hall, both of Fort Worth. His body was laid to rest at Thorp Springs. I made the funeral talk.

PATTERSON—Earl C. Patterson was born August 10, 1884, at Junction, Texas; died January 30, 1953, at Fredericksburg, Texas. He came from a large and influential pioneer family. Two daughters, one sister and three brothers survive him. W. G. Birkner and the writer conducted funeral services for him from Hodges Funeral Home, Junction, January 31.

Book Review

P. D Wilmeth

"God's Picture Gallery." By Fred W. McClung. Privately published, Box 84, Fayetteville, Ark. 172 pp. $2.50.

My good friend, Fred McClung, has brought out a workable, usable, and practical book of sermon outlines. These are full enough to be used by those who may wish to get real suggestions. This is the cream of a twenty-seven year ministry on the part of Brother McClung. He is preparing another volume, and this one will give a splendid introduction to the second. The second is to be longer in treatment, fuller, and in more detailed treatment. Younger preachers will find special help in this volume and the writer commends it to a wider reading public.

"Sermons for Special Days." By Charles M. Crow. Abingdon-Cokesbury Press. Nashville, Tenn. 171 pp. 1951. $2.00.

Preachers who do not observe "days, weeks, moons, etc." are nonetheless called upon to address audiences on some special occasion as a graduation exercise, a Thanksgiving service, or some other special meeting. This is a volume full of help and suggestions for just such occasions.

The sermon on Student Day, entitled, "One Solitary Life", is in this writer's judgment, worth the price of this little volume. The New Year's Day Sermon on "The Long Look" is packed full of suggestions for a New Year's sermon. And how many preachers are not on the search for a good spring-board on the first of the year. The psychological approach here is excellent indeed. If one is called on to speak before the Alcoholics Anonymous, or a special discourse on the Liquor Question, the sermon entitled, "Men of Distinction" is captivating.

"Encyclopedia of 2585 Illustrations." By Henry Ward Beecher. Zondervan Press, Grand Rapids, Michigan. 675 pp. $5.95.

Here is a veritable 'treasure house' of material for a busy preacher. Henry Ward Beecher, well known preacher for another generation, presents some of his outstanding illustrations. Here are more than 2500 of his very best. These illustrations are as up to date as when first used. These illustrations are designed to point out and to emphasize certain Bible truths. Jesus was very apt in the use of illustrations (parables), and the common people heard, grasped, and remembered them.

Some of the illustrations are based on nature, some on well-known literature, but all are Bible centered. For those who use such volumes, this is rich and rewarding. It is completely indexed by subject and title; illustrations for use in sermons of every kind.

When contemplating ordering a volume of illustrations, our readers might consider this one and order from the Firm Foundation Publishing House, Box 77, Austin, Tex.

"The Art of Effective Teaching." By C. B. Eavey. Zondervan Press, Grand Rapids, Mich. 295 pp. 1953. $3.75.

Are you looking for a good book to add to your Teacher's Library? Here it is. Here is a volume to challenge, inspire and instruct. This book is up-to-date, and up-to the minute. Dr. Eavey raises the question: "What do you teach? pupils or subjects?" From this premise he proceeds to point out the difference between "ordinary teaching" and effective teaching.

Some of the chapter headings are: Effective Teaching, The Art of Effective Teaching, The Teacher's Evaluation of His Teaching, Arranging Conditions for Effective Teaching, Living and Learning with Pupils.

Dr. Eavey has also included a splendid set of references for each chapter used in the book. This is well worth the price of the book for those wishing to do more and more research in this great field.

Dr. Eavey has come up to his usual standard of writing in this, his last volume.

NEW WONDERFUL SONGS

Positively largest best selection
for the price

It contains an excellent selection of the sweetest invitation songs and funeral hymns, songs for the work and worship—in fact, songs for all occasions.

Many of the very fine old songs have been re-arranged, re-edited, and re-written; also a fine list of late and some new songs.

This book is edited with the greatest possible care so that the words in the hymns are all Scriptural. Many singers have contributed their efforts in making this the choicest possible collection of songs.

"The New Wonderful Songs" is our answer to thousands of requests to bring out a large hymn and song book free from the "jingle convention" and "jazz" type of songs.

Positively more and better invitation songs than are found in most books. A large number of those familiar, sweet, old hymns that we all love to sing.

We deeply appreciate the splendid response that is being given to this book and the hundreds of orders that we are receiving. Hundreds of congregations are now using this book in their regular services and we are regularly receiving repeat orders.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Timid Souls

Have you heard church members say that they hesitate to hand their religious papers to denominational people to read, because the papers are so full of controversy and harsh criticism of those in error? They say they are afraid the papers would do more harm than good. I suspect such remarks have been made about every gospel paper that is published. These critics of the critics concede that the papers they find fault with teach nothing but the truth.

Do they object to the papers because they teach the truth? Maybe not, but they do not like the way the truth is told. They esteem soft words a better medium of conveying the truth to the minds of men than the hard words used in reproving and rebuking, which Paul told Timothy to do. When men will not endure sound doctrine, what is the proper approach to them? Should we stand in an attitude of timidity and embarrassment, almost afraid to speak, lest, we hurt their feelings? Such an attitude impresses them that we do not more than half way believe what we teach.

Here I am reminded of the preacher who went to a tragedian after one of his impressive performances. "This preacher wanted to know why the truth he preached did not have the powerful effect that the tragedian's lie had. The actor said, "I tell a lie as if it were the truth, while you tell the truth as if it were a lie." The best teachers I ever had were the ones who told me plainly and emphatically what I needed to know. Those who used soft words and handsome phrases did me no good—I did not know what they were talking about.

Ashamed of the Gospel

If I hesitate to give my neighbor a gospel paper to read, lest it hurt his feelings, then I am ashamed of the gospel. Concerning men in error Paul told Timothy to "rebuke them sharply." Some people might refrain from giving the New Testament to their religious friends to read, for the same reason that they refrain from giving them a gospel paper, if they were familiar with New Testament language.

For the benefit of the soft-spoken, sweet-spirited church members, I give a lengthy quotation from Jesus to show how he dealt with those in error. "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees hypocrites, for ye devour widow's houses, and for a pretence make long prayers: therefore ye shall receive the greater damnation. Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte; and when he is made, ye make him twofold more the child of hell than yourselves. Woe unto you ye blind guides, which say, whosoever shall swear by the temple, it is nothing; but whosoever shall swear by the gold of the temple, he is a debtor. Ye fools and blind, for whether is greater, the gold, or the temple that sanctifieth the gold?" (Matt. 23:14-17).

Such were the words of Jesus to his religious neighbors. Has any writer in our gospel papers ever used such scathing rebukes to men and women in error? Will any one say that such words as Jesus used will do more harm than good? Is any one ashamed of the New Testament because these hard sayings are in it? Jesus says, "Whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words, in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels" (Mark 8:38).

The Consequences of Rejecting Christ

Hoyt Bailey

John says: "He came unto his own, and they that were his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he the right to become children of God, even to them that believe on his name" (John 1:11, 12). To Jerusalem, Jesus said: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, that killeth the prophets, and stoneth them that are sent unto her! how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathered her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate" (Matt. 23:37, 38).

The multitudes looked for an earthly king, and they would have taken Jesus by force and made him king, but "he departed again into a mountain himself alone." The earthly view of the Messiah's kingdom was a universal one though Jesus had taught again and again that his kingdom is not of this world. The time was at hand when Jesus was to be rejected of men, crucified, buried, raised, and exalted to God's own right hand. Prior to his rejection, he comes to Bethphage, and from there he sent for a colt on which he could ride into Jerusalem. The prophecy announced the coming of Christ as King. God brought it to pass, for that coming to Jerusalem as Messiah was the beginning of the great series of events by which the redemption of the world was wrought. Jesus entered the holy city in the royalty of meekness. The animal which had never borne the yoke was employed to bear Jesus into Jerusalem. His coming was therefore the triumph of pure joy, the multitude expressing such by acclamation and by spreading their garments and palm branches. The hosannas of earth did in such an instance serve as a prelude to the hallelujahs of heaven. In calling Jesus the "Son of David", the people recognized him as the long promised Messiah; and, without clear apprehensions of what his work was, they rejoiced in the realization of the national hope. Their joy made it clear to the Jerusalem officials that Jesus claimed to be the Messiah. There could be no mistake, and they must either accept or reject the claim.

Jesus went to the temple and found that men had profaned it. He said: "My house shall be called a house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves." Selling oxen, sheep, and doves, and changing foreign money into temple shekels, was right in its place, but all this was being done in the wrong place. Trade is not wrong, if it be honest trade, and buyer and seller pass fair equivalents. Our Lord never interfered with tradesfolk or money changers in their proper place; he taught principles which would ensure fair bargaining. The Lord's indignation was roused by the offense these corrupters gave to his sense of the fitting, of the becoming. The true consecration of a building is no mere ceremony, it is the feeling of consecration that is in all reverent souls in relation to it. Had the money changers been consecrated, they would never have brought in the things which displeased the Lord. Jesus was specially jealous, with a sanctified Jewish jealousy, of the temple where God was worshipped. He felt that the things fitting to it were—stillness, quiet, prayer, reverent attitudes. Things unfitting for the temple were noise, dirt, quarrellings over bargains, shouts of drivers, and the greed and over-reaching of covetous men.

But the temple stands forth as a type of Christ's church (1 Cor. 3:16; Eph. 2:21, 22), so the subject has its lesson for us. We should ask, then—What sort of persons does Jesus find in his church? The secularist is thought to be in his place only in the world, because his calling desecrates the 'house of prayer.' The temple of God is defiled by merchandise, that scandalous traffic in ill-timed and ill-placed things. That worldly, covetous, money-getting spirit introduces into religious circles things designed for the special purpose of raising money. In our day, so called religious people have dramatic activities, rummage sales, pie suppers, baby contests, tacky parties, cake auctions, and many other similar things for the purpose of raising money. Since those individuals rejected God's plan in defiling the temple by their sales in the temple, isn't it rejecting God and Christ to try to do things contrary to what he has authorized? The New Testament teaches Christians to lay by in store on the first day of the week, but the Bible nowhere authorizes Christians to raise money by an unscriptural means.

Though the Christian is in the world he is not of it, but he is at home in the church. The child of God meets Christ in his church. The worldly man in the church can expect to be violently rejected by Christ. The fact that the seats and tables of the money changers were overthrown shows that Jesus places a different estimate on money's value to that which is cherished by men of the world. Jesus exposed their characters—pointing out that they were extortioners, cheats, and robbers in their business dealings, and such took place in the temple—"the house of prayer".

Jesus teaches in a parable how he is to be rejected by men. "Hear another parable: There was a certain householder, which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country: And when the time of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it. And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another. Again, he sent other servants more than the first: and they did unto them likewise. But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son. But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance. And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him. When the Lord, therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen? They say unto him, he will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons. Jesus saith unto them, Did ye never read in the scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner: this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes? Therefore say I unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" (Matt. 21:33-43).

We note that the hedge, winepress, tower, and everything needful had been provided, but the husbandmen were rebellious; they beat and murdered the servants who were sent to receive the fruits of the vineyard, and at last they cast out and slew their lord's only son. Those servants were the prophets, sent again and again, to warn both priests and people of their sins, to call both priests and people to repentance. "I sent unto you," God said, by the mouth of Jeremiah, "all my servants the prophets, rising early and sending them, saying, Oh, do not this abominable thing that I hate!" Some of these were persecuted, some were slain. "They cast thy law behind their backs, and slew thy prophets which testified against them to turn them unto thee" (Neh. 9:26). The Lord of the vineyard had yet one son, his well-beloved; he sent him last, saying, "They will reverence my son."

This parable veils the mysteries concerning the foreknowledge of God and the free will of man. Human thought cannot grapple with these mysteries; human words cannot express them. God gave his only begotten Son; the Son of God came to give his life a ransom for many. The foreknowledge of God did not destroy the free agency of man, or remove the guilt of those who crucified the Lord of glory. The priests had taken counsel already to put Jesus to death. Caiaphas had already "prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation" (John 11:47-53). They had said already: "This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance." Christ is the heir of all things; he is the priest forever after the order of Melchizedek. He knew what was coming; knew that he was to be cast out (Heb. 13:12), and that they would kill him. He calmly prophesied his own death, and asserts his own divine character simply; yet in words which his enemies did not comprehend. Jesus is the Son, the one and only Son, the well beloved, of the Lord of the vineyard. Jesus puts a question to those guilty men, and they in turn are forced to pronounce their own condemnation. He said unto them: "When the lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?" They said: "He will miserably destroy those miserable men." They prophesied not only their own doom, but they prophesied also the loss of those exclusive privileges which they guarded so jealously. They said: "He will let out his vineyard to other husbandmen." The Gentiles were to succeed to the privileges which the Jews possessed; the Gentiles had been strangers and foreigners, but soon they would become fellow-citizens with the saints, and of the household of God. The Gentiles were soon to tend the church of God, and they were to render the fruit in due season to the Lord of the vineyard.

After the husbandmen had killed the heir to the estate, no more patience could be shown to them. They had filled up their cup of guilt to the brim. They had rejected the last and greatest message from their Master. To be cast forth and destroyed is their rightful doom, and this doom came upon the leaders of Israel in the overthrow of Jerusalem by Titus. God's doom for the ungodly awaits false and traitorous leaders of the church who repeat the sin of the Hebrew hierarchy. That doom awaits all who work in the midst of the privileges of Christianity without rendering any fruit to the glory of God.

Keep in mind that the leaders of Israel reaped what they had sown. The leaders had persecuted and stoned God's prophets, murdered his Son, and then sought with all their might to destroy his church. It was not as if individuals here and there had committed murders; in these matters the nation through its authorities had committed the crimes. Death was the penalty—death to the nation. Those leaders of Israel were supposed to guide the destinies of the nation, but had been miserable criminals. On this same issue Stephen pointedly said: "Ye stiffnecked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, ye do always resist the Holy Spirit: as your fathers did, so do ye. Which of the prophets did not your fathers persecute? and they killed them that showed before of the coming of the Righteous One; of whom ye have now become betrayers and murderers; ye who received the law as it was ordained by angels, and kept it not" (Acts 7:51-53).

"In the figure of the rejected cornerstone, the chief priests and Pharisees are represented as trying to build the walls of a house, but unable to fit the stones at the corner because they rejected the only stone that was cut for that place. They were guilty of this folly in rejecting Jesus while trying to construct a conception of the kingdom of God." They could not fit Jesus into their ideas of the kingdom, and this shows that they had the wrong idea as to what the kingdom would be. Christ is not the cornerstone of the Old Testament structure, but he is the cornerstone of the New Covenant, of all that pertains to it, particularly of the New Testament church.

Jesus Christ not only rejected those who crucified him, but he rejected their tradition, disregarded their religious and social distinctions, and he brought doom to the leaders and to the nation of Israel. Those of us now either accept Christ or reject him, we are either with him or without him; we are for Christ or we are against Christ. To reject Christ is to be doomed forever, for there is no other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved.

"Hiring a Preacher"

"Hiring A Preacher" is another term all too common today. The only scripture of which I can think that might justifiably be used to support such an idea is found in Luke 10:7. When Jesus sent the disciples out under the limited commission, he declared that "the labourer is worthy of his hire." But this passage certainly has a very limited meaning; it does not carry the same idea that we have in mind when we now talk about "hiring a preacher."

When we think of a "hired preacher" it is so difficult for us to separate the idea from what Jesus had in mind when he said, the "hireling" fleeth, "because he is a hireling" (Jno. 10:13). Actually this idea is often carried over into practice. Not only do the elders, and the members of the congregation, frequently look upon the preacher as a "hireling", but the preacher sometimes acts in the same manner. He puts his services purely on a competitive basis.

Please do not misunderstand me. This is not always true. We have many excellent preachers among us, as good I believe as we have ever had, in ability and in manner of life. We also have many good elders, and many good congregations. I certainly do not want to leave the impression that I believe all preachers, elders and church members are going to the devil.

On the other hand, I do want to warn against some dangerous tendencies among us. There are some congregations who think only of the preacher as a "hired hand", and who should be a "lackey" to his employers; and who may be "fired" at will—just as he is hired. When the preacher places his services purely on a competitive basis—so much work for so much pay—and then when the congregation looks upon his services in the same way, the church work can never succeed as it should. There will be continued misunderstandings, strife and politicking in the congregation.

To get rid of this sort of an idea, we need to start out with the use of the right kind of terms. First of all, it would be better to talk about securing the services, or the ministry, of someone in our work. The emphasis should be placed upon the work of the individual, rather than upon the pay. This is not said to discourage congregations in supporting preachers in their work. Neither is it said to discourage preachers from expecting enough support to live and care for their families in a respectable manner. On the other hand, we certainly should place the emphasis where it belongs. In choosing a preacher, we need to think in terms of service, co-operation and mutual helpfulness.

A congregation cannot "hire" a preacher to do its work. A preacher should not be regarded as a "hireling." He should not think of himself as being "over" a congregation; neither should he think of himself as being "under the thumb" of a congregation, or its elders. Working together for the salvation of souls, the edifying of the body of Christ, and the glory of God is a partnership. We need to think in terms of how we can all work together for the greatest possible good.

When all of us manifest this sort of spirit, there will be less moving by the preachers. They and the congregations will strive to work out all their problems, to advance the cause of the Lord Jesus Christ and to accomplish the greatest possible good together. Let us get out of the habit of talking about "hiring" and "firing" a preacher. Let us also get out of the habit of thinking of the preacher as a "hireling." This idea indicates that some of us are drifting far from shore. Let us make an honest, conscientious effort to labor together for the greatest possible good of all.

The Church—An Army

Clarence C. Gobbel

Many figures of speech are employed by inspired writers to bring out the many and varied aspects of the function of the church in the world. We find that the church is spoken of as a "Letter of Christ," emphasizing the viewpoint of its being a divine message addressed to the world, and showing that we have a duty to see to it that this message must be delivered to the ones to whom addressed, those in sin, and darkness. Also Christians are spoken of as having their citizenship in heaven, or the church being a colony of heaven (Phil. 3:20). Also Paul writes to the Corinthians concerning their being "laborers together with God: ye are God's husbandry (tillage) ye are God's building" (1 Cor. 3:9).

Also the same writers emphasize that we have enemies to fight, battles to be waged, and thus are soldiers in the great army of the Lord. Timothy is urged to "endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ" (2 Tim. 2:3). We know that we are to fight in the great spiritual army of the Lord, and that our warfare is not carnal, but is for the express purpose of: "Casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ" (2 Cor. 10:5).

1. The captain calls for volunteers. Our captain is he who suffered, and was made perfect, as our captain, through the sufferings he underwent for us. We are told that, "For it became him (God), for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings" (Heb. 2:10). In order to perfect a captain for us, he went through sufferings, sacrificing for man, and came forth therefrom proven to be worthy to lead us in all our sufferings, temptations as well as our developments in his service here below.

This great Captain, the Lord Jesus Christ, calls for volunteers for his army. The generals of the armies of our land, conscript our young men to fill up the ranks not taken by volunteers, but we can be assured that our Lord will never conscript us into his army. But he does call in tender and pleading tones, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Matt. 11:28). He promises us eternal rewards, and benefits beyond computation in this present life, if we volunteer to fight for him and his cause. But he will not force anyone to do it. However, we can be assured that when this life is over, he will force us to take the consequences of a life lived in disregard to his pleading invitation to accept him according to his word. But that is the only time he will ever force anyone. Isn't it so much better to accept him now, rather than to wait for him to force us to take the consequences of not having done so? Those who are conscripted to our country's army, are used for a few years, at the most, and then are discharged. But our Lord expects us to remain in his army during our entire lifetime. We are expected to be willing to remain faithful to his cause, fight for him through life's little day, and the crown of life will be ours to receive (Rev. 2:10; Jas. 1:12).

2. Our Captain expects us to fight. Timothy was exhorted to, "Fight the good fight of faith. Lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called" (1 Tim. 6:12). And Paul says that he was ready to go, because, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith" (2 Tim. 4:7). A soldier has the right to expect to fight, and such is nonetheless true in the army of the Lord. Of course, this fighting is not with carnal weapons, but with that which is "mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds" of sin. This fighting is for the purpose of "casting down imaginations and every high thing that ex-alteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ." Every high thing that is exalted above the knowledge of God; that is, every teaching that fails to be according to the knowledge revealed concerning what we are to teach and practice, must be cast down in our every effort to serve our God. Also the very thoughts we think, must constantly be in obedience to the Christ. This takes valiant effort constantly, and those who are afraid, or lazy cannot be faithful soldiers in this great army. No wonder so many that claim to be soldiers of Christ, are affirming that we need to preach an affirmative gospel only, never be on the negative; that is, never condemn sin in any form among the brethren, or of the world. If the soldiers in our armies never broke up any of the weapons, or fortifications of the enemy, would they, could they, make the proper advancement in the prosecution of war? Certainly not, as we all very well know.

It seems to me that we have a fine thought presented us in this very respect, when we read from Paul: "And having in a readiness to revenge all disobedience, when your obedience is fulfilled" (2 Cor. 10:6). Are we, as public soldiers, gospel preachers, always prepared to defend the truth, "revenge all disobedience"? Not only is this true of gospel preachers, but others should also be prepared, and more determined to stand against the false doctrines of men, valiantly able to combat error wherever it is found.

We are to be equipped with the various parts of the Christian armor that Paul suggests in Eph. 6. After he exhorts to "take unto you the whole armor of God," he then says, "Stand therefore." It takes some courage, and determination, and a lot of faith to stand. He mentions about five weapons, which are all defensive; that is, these are needed in order for one to be prepared to thwart the darts of the wicked. But is it enough to merely stand against the "fiery darts of the wicked"? I think not, or no other weapon would have been mentioned. But he goes ahead to say: "And the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God." In order to make inroads into the ranks of the enemy, to conquer the hosts of error, to make light the paths of darkness, the sword of the Spirit must be wielded. This means to be prepared to give those in error, a "thus saith the Lord," when they ask a "reason of the hope that is in you" (1 Peter 3:15).

Yes, friends, to be a soldier in this Christian army, to be a valiant part of the church of our Lord, means more to have our names enrolled on the church register. It means we are wearing the Christian armor, every part of it, daily, and thus continuously ready to uphold the principles of righteousness against all the hosts of error. If, and when every Christian, in every community will thus be an integral, and valiant part of this great Christian army, the hosts of error, denominationalism in all its ramparts, will begin to crumble, and soon every thought will be made subservient to Christ. God speed the day!

HUDSON TO ITALY

Herb Swinney

The church of Christ in Coleman, Texas, has consented to sponsor Wyndal H. Hudson in the mission field of Italy. Wyndal and his wife, Wilma, are to leave for Italy as soon as possible since his visa expires on August 31st of this year. Brother Hudson was one of the original seven preachers who landed in Italy on January 14, 1949, and for 32 months was co-laborer with Cline Paden. He was there during the Castel Gandolfo stoning and in Monte Compatri escaped injury of a crude bomb accidentally set off by a small Italian boy who lost his hand in the explosion. Brother Hudson's work in Italy yielded 131 baptisms; 97 of which were previously Catholics and 34 were Baptists. He baptized three native Italians who are today fulltime gospel preachers. They are Aurelio Nori, who is sponsored by the church in Winters, Texas; Sam Corazza, who is sponsored by the church in Sherman, Texas; and Buta Antonio, who is also sponsored by an American congregation.

The elders of the Coleman church are planning for Wyndal to work with the Padova church in the absence of Brother Howard Bybee for one month, after which, he is to begin work in Leghorn, Italy. This city has a population of 125,000 people with an American Fort within its premises. In this city, Brother Hudson has been promised the Lutheran church building or a dining hall for religious services. An American Colonel has assured him of an American audience for religious services.

Leghorn is a northern city of Italy and an industrial center. The people there are a more educated class than in the southern section of the country. At present, there are no Christians in Leghorn. The work in evangelizing this city is begun through the Bible correspondence course; contacting prospects from house to house.

Brother Hudson, along with Herb Swinney, the local evangelist, are to tour the neighboring churches for additional help in this endeavor. When Wyndal spoke to the church in Coleman in its midweek service, there were 339 people present. They were overjoyed to know that they could have a part in helping to convert souls of another land. If any congregation wishes to hear Brother Hudson, please write or call the church in Coleman, Texas.

The progress of the church in Italy has reached beyond our expectations. There are now twenty-three congregations composed of over 400 members who are faithful to the cause of Christ. Realizing the experience and ability of Brother Hudson in the Italian work, the church is expecting great accomplishments in Leghorn. We solicit your prayers and help as together we lift up our eyes and look upon the fields that are white unto harvest.

Cleansing The Temple

Waymon D. Miller

"And the Jews' passover was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem, and found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changes of money sitting: and when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables; and said to them that sold doves, 'Take these things hence; make not my Father's house an house of merchandise' " (John 2:13-15).

It is most remarkable that the Lord's public ministry was inaugurated in so tempestuous a manner. The first public act of his ministry was one of astounding violence. He burst forth from a wilderness of obscurity with the ferocity of "the Lion of the tribe of Judah," striking terror to those who defiled the holy temple of God with their greed and commercialism. Thunderbolts of his wrath were hurled at those who desecrated and debased things high and holy.

The Lord was thus filled with furious contempt with what he discovered in the temple of his day. It is wondered if this striking example does not have an appropriate application for our day. What do we suppose is his attitude toward conditions he views in his temple now? If the same or similar spirits are prevalent now as then, do we imagine that he views them with less contempt and disgust? If he was so enraged and driven to such caustic action against those who debased the true mission of the temple, what of his attitude toward conditions that in our day have diverted and obscured the true mission of his church? Are there existent in his present temple situations that would also arouse his wrath?

Institutionalism

The primitive purity of the church was once destroyed by ecclesiasticism, or the formation of the church into an institutional hierarchy. The church is today confronted with a grave danger of the same nature. One of the greatest menaces today to preserving the pristine simplicity of the Lord's religion is again the emergence of an institutional spirit. This form of human heresy would pull down heavenly things to an earthly level, secularize spiritual principles, and carnalize and institutionalize every aspect of the spiritual temple of God. The heavenly temple is renovated and reconstructed, its living stones shaped in a materialistic mold, and this divine temple is constructed along institutional lines.

The sale of oxen, sheep, doves, and money-changing in our text was not forbidden in the temple. It was a service of great convenience to those visiting from afar, and it was only the abuse of this service that filled the Lord with contempt. Just so in our day some harmless and permissible services may be exposed to dangerous abuse. Our colleges, orphan homes, missionary endeavors, journals, and the like, can also burst the bounds of their orderly spheres. The impression seems to be that some of these are now desperately striving for the mastery, for prominence, for authority, for control.

We are in no manner opposed to any of these works when they are mindful of their spheres of service, but when they violate their provinces and seek to tower above the church itself, then they become dangerous and even enemy institutions to the Lord's work. For example, the promulgation of the gospel is a prime function of the church. This is undisputed, and the church generally is not fully discharging this responsibility. But when mission efforts are so organized that the organization itself dominates the church; if it is operated to accrue glory to the organization itself, to popularize a preacher who may be prominent in the organization, to bestow carnal prestige upon the congregation "sponsoring" or promoting the program, then at these points this mission of the church is sectarianized and profaned.

There are despicable intimations common among us today that this college, this paper, this missionary organization, this orphan home, or this program is simply indispensable to the church itself! Human schemes are always great in the eyes of those who contrive them. Surely it is not extreme to state that we today face the danger of institutions fastening themselves like leeches upon the church and sucking out its real life's blood. May God remove the scales forming on our eyes, and help us to see the church itself as the grandest, most sublime institution on earth. It is the church itself—not colleges, papers, organizations, adjuncts, programs, annexes—for which the Savior shed his precious blood. May he help us in our concepts of things not to allow the offspring to rock the cradle, nor the tail to wag the dog! We are gradually allowing ourselves to be drugged with human schemes, which render us the more insensible to superlative, divine spiritual principles. If I know the true tenor of the gospel message, I firmly believe that if the Lord visited his temple today personally he would drive out in fervent contempt all who would turn the church of God into a bevy of secular institutions.

Materialism

These sensual, money-mad Jews of the temple were summarily expelled because their hearts were saturated with a materialistic spirit. They cared but little in reality for the high spiritual end of their commerce. They were interested primarily in the excessive revenue produced by their merchandising.

How far are we today, we who constitute the holy temple of God, removed from this materialistic spirit? At times it seems that the true, resonant ring of spiritual tones is fading away, while we are accenting with clanging crescendo a discordant materialistic strain. All about us we see the church assessing its worth and progress with a material measure. We are, it seems, fastly becoming unbalanced in our evaluation of mortar, mud, stone and steel. While we have entered a great race to enhance our material resources, have we left our souls behind? Do we "look on things after the outward appearance?" (2 Cor. 10:7).

How sensual it is when we seek to tabulate the progress of the church in terms of palatial buildings, earthly holdings, and worldly appearances. Are we erring in polishing the vessel without? How is it within? How carnal it is to size up our values by this business of nose-counting, and with pretentious advertisements of our numerical, monetary and physical strength. Real spiritual strength and progress cannot be measured in a bucket, or computed upon a comptometer! How many of our reports advertise the fact that the church has grown deeply in piety, consecration, sanctification, holiness of heart and life, and devotion to the principles of Christ? And what other growth, apart from these, is really worth noting? Yes, we are filling our church buildings, and breaking former records. Have we stopped to ask, "What with?" Are our buildings filled with real converts, are the hearts of our people vibrant with real love for Christ and one another, are our pews packed with those truly pious, and are these external signs symptomatic of fervent spiritual progress? If not, our numbers are misleading, our true worth misrepresented, and our genuine progress is being appraised superficially. Let us put from us all this gaudy glamor, this emphasis upon externals, this exaggeration of material values which can gnaw the spiritual heart out of the church! Pride, pomp, and pageantry are opposed to the simple, unassuming air breathed by the servants of Christ.

How we have come to judge spiritual things by materialism! Often we hear the progress of a church judged by its impressive house of worship. Or we think of a preacher's success in terms of the clothes he wears, the expensive car he drives, the size of the church for which he preaches, the amount of his salary, or the magnificence of his manse! In such distorted judgment, let us recall the tragic example of Laodicea. She judged herself materially, saying, "I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing." But the Lord looketh beneath her glittering external veneer, examined her heart, and pronounced different judgment. He asked of her, "Knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked?" Laodicea had lavishly adorned the body, but left the soul naked. Is this our present attitude toward material things? God help us not to become inebriated with external, and exult in mundane, material values. When this we do, the Lord will vomit us out of his mouth and ride his temple of our defilement.

Pastors and Preachers

Can our clear-thinking brethren very courageously deny the monstrous abuse of our located-minister system? Do we not assert in theory of church polity that the bishops are peers of the flock, and gospel evangelists are subservient to them? In theory we are unassailably right and scriptural. But what of our practice?

Has there not been a growing tendency to relegate the elders to a figurehead office, and bestow upon them a mere meaningless name and office? Has there not been a sweeping trend to elevate the evangelist above them, and place in his hand in fact and act the scepter of the church? Have we not in reality transferred many of the real pastoral responsibilities from the elders to the minister—such duties as counsel, spiritual care, seeking out lost sheep, visitation, and the like? We require our preachers to be expert politicians, publicity men, diplomats, program-promoters, directors of church affairs, and the real vital cogs of local machinery. It seems in our day preaching the gospel has become a mere sideline for the gospel preacher! If he is a real power in the pulpit, a resourceful and tireless student of the word, a skillful teacher of divine truth—well, these qualifications may be desirable, but we seem to attach only secondary importance to them! They seem to have become only incidental requirements of the job expected of him.

And the tragedy is that unfortunately many of us preachers seem to adore this role! How much clamor for carnal glory, crowding to the center of the stage, basking in the blaring blaze of limelight, striving for pre-eminence, grasping greedily for personal emoluments, political intrigues, and craving for prestige, recognition and plaudits there seems to be among us! Are many of us not perfectly pleased to be pressed into the position of a common sectarian pastor, else why do we receive such positions without protest? Why do we not more frequently raise our voices against such vices? Why do we not decry this distortion of the simple service of a New Testament evangelist? Do we by our silence assent to such abuses of the divine order of things? Are we content to allow the Lord's temple service to become debased by a professional pastorism and clerical control? Will we place ourselves in the background, and return the honor of leading the flock of God to the presbyters, satisfying ourselves to work in simple subjection to them?

Conclusion

Have we in this study indulged in acid exaggerations of existent realities? Have we spoken of fact or fiction? How extremely fortunate for the cause of Christ it would be if these charges were simply fanatical fulminations. We have not deliberately sought to present extreme charges, but to sound a warning against what we believe existing evil tendencies. We harbor no presentiment of a doctrinal departure or apostasy in the church, but is a material one less degenerating? May the Lord's people not become blindfolded by carnality, and plunge headlong into the stagnant, offensive slough of sectarianism, materialism and institutionalism.

What Does the Bible Say?

Is It Not Enough Just To Be Religious?

There is a definite revival of interest in religion! As a symptom of this revival of interest the Norwalk (Connecticut) Hour recently devoted its entire front page to an editorial on the theme, "In the Balance—the Christian World." The gist of the editorial is summed up in this sentence: "We urge each American—you and your friends and neighbors—to give a little more of yourselves to God's purpose for you when he gave you your life!"

I am thankful to see this rising tide of concern about religious values. But it is not enough for us just to be religious. We must seek the truth of God in religion as we do in science and history. We must go to the Bible, the word of God, and use the intelligence God gave us to find out what is true and what is false in religion.

Paul teaches us this principle in his dealings with the citizens of Athens as recorded in Acts 17. Athens was a center of religious and philosophical thought. When Paul began to tell some of the thinkers about Jesus they brought him up to the rocky prominence called "Mar's Hill" and asked him to describe his doctrine. (One of the greatest thrills of visiting Greece is to stand on this site where Paul spoke.)

Paul said: "Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are very religious. For as I passed along, and observed the objects of your worship, I found also an altar with this inscription, To An Unknown God. What therefore ye worship in ignorance, this I set forth unto you" (Acts 17:22).

The Athenians were very religious. They had dozens of gods and goddesses, and had even erected an altar to the unknown God. But they worshipped in ignorance. They needed the revelation of God through Jesus Christ. So Paul preached to them. He disclosed to them that the true and living God did not dwell in temples made with hands. He told them that God made all nations of men of one blood "that they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he is not far from each one of us: for in him we live, and move, and have our being . . ."

Then Paul called upon these religious people to repent because God has appointed a day of judgment and has given proof of that by raising his Son from the dead. When the resurrection of Jesus was boldly proclaimed some scoffed at the idea, but others indicated they want to hear more. A few believed and stayed with Paul.

This wonderful sermon speaks to us today of the importance of knowing the true God and learning how to serve him. Many today are like the Athenians, "very religious", but they have never studied God's book to learn what he wants them to do.

May I challenge you again to check every religious view by the Bible. It is our infallible standard. It will furnish us unto every good work (2 Timothy 3:17).

IS SINGING, WORSHIP?

P. W. Stonestreet

"The Restoration Movement Is Marching On" is the title of a 1951 book by H. A. Stone, 2409 Milvia Street, Berkeley, California. The title implies there is more to restore, which may be true, but it should not be exploited to the point of urging, as the author does, that all possessions be laid at the apostles' feet for distribution, for there are no apostles at whose feet to lay things now. Nor do the apostles have successors. But caring for distressed saints and expediting the spread of the gospel is amply provided for without apostles in the flesh. Among the good observations the book makes is: "A Christian experience before becoming a Christian" is "a bit complicated."

But the author himself makes a statement that is much complicated. After disparaging the idea that either vocal or instrumental music is worship, he adds: "Neither is it suggested once that either vocal or instrumental music might, could, would, or should be used in or as a part of worship at any time nor in any place" (page 40).

Let us see. Interpreting Isaiah, Christ says: "This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me; in vain do they worship me, teaching as doctrine the precepts of men" (Mark 7:6, 7). Inasmuch as "teaching as doctrine the precepts of men" is vain worship, thereby inspiration implies that teaching as doctrine the precepts of Christ is true worship. We may faithfully infer what is so plainly implied by inspiration, just as if it were specified.

Alongside the above text I place this one: "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly; in all wisdom teaching and admonishing one another with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts unto God" (Col. 3:16). From the first text we learn that teaching is worship and from the second we learn that singing is teaching. So it is even syllogistically true that: Teaching is worship. Singing is teaching. Therefore singing is worship. No claim is made that all singing is worship or even meant to be worship.

Unfortunately for the author's claim, instrumental music on the same occasion with the same intent is also worship, but it is vain worship, because it does not have the stamp of divine approval in Christian worship. True, as the author suggests, worship is an individual matter; as much so as obedience, purpose and sincerity. Yet any number of individuals may worship assembled together. There is a fine distinction between service, worship and praise. But since all may be combined on the same occasion, contrary to the author's claim, such an occasion may be properly called a "worship service." Even though we do not find that phrase verbatim in the Scriptures, the idea is there in principle. Neither do we find the phrase "Bible study" verbatim in the Scriptures, but the idea is there in principle.

The two requisites to Christian worship are "in spirit and truth" (John 4:23)—not in spirit or in truth, but in spirit and in truth—referring to divine truth and the worshipper's own spirit. The worshipper is to observe the truth and govern his spirit accordingly. One's own spirit has to do with motives, sincerity, etc. No wonder Solomon pays so high a tribute to the one "that ruleth his spirit." One's spirit is essential to Christian worship and is capable of eternal existence. Pro and con appraisals of other points of the book could be given, but it is wise to boil down what is said in a single article that the average reader may have time and inclination to read it.

BIBLE LECTURESHIP

"The Fourth Annual Lectureship," "Sponsored by Churches of Christ" in Fort Worth, Texas, was brought to a conclusion on Friday, March 20, with an address by the Editor of the Firm Foundation on the subject: "A Plea For Unity." This is now the fourth year of these lectureships, and the one just closed, had the distinction of being largest, so far as attendance goes, of any in the entire series. The manner of directing these meetings is a little unusual. They were held in fifteen different auditoriums, of the thirty churches of Christ now in existence in the city of Fort Worth—three meetings held each day, one at each of three different places. The hours for these different meetings were 10 a.m., 2:30 p.m., and 7:30 p.m. The speakers were carefully selected, and for the most part were undoubtedly loyal, faithful and capable representatives for the churches in support of the common faith, the gospel of Christ, and men who are known as true and tried exponents of the sound doctrine of the Christ and equally as well known and approved as opposers, not only of false doctrines from without but for many and manifest derelictions, faults, failures and inexcusable neglect and misconduct from those that are within the church.

There are many fault finders and self-appointed critics, murmurers and complainers as in the days of the Savior. I study their findings with patience, and analyze them with the greatest care, for I am always anxious lest there should be on the part of any of my brethren a departure from the living God. I find that in most instances these long, drawn-out and doleful deliveries of pessimism have originated where personal and selfish interests are involved, are wholly within the realm of opinion and not in any manner within the range of faith, and, that without exception, those who are most conspicuous in finding fault with what preachers and churches are doing, are doing almost nothing themselves. True it may be better to do nothing than to do the wrong thing, if it really be true that something wrong is being done. But the truth of all things that are hypothetical, must at the first be established, before we declare by implication or otherwise, that a thing has been said or done that has neither been said nor done, and then proceed to take this as a premise from which to reason, and reach conclusions that are unsafe, untrue, illogical and, of course, unscriptural. But to do nothing is about the most unscriptural, unsafe, and dangerous course to which the intelligence of a spiritually-minded man can direct his energies, when the inspired word of the living God has said to such a man: "Be always abounding in the work of the Lord." Brethren, the work of the Lord must be done and your part of it and mine must be done while we live. If it is a terrible thing to do wrong, it is a frightfully awful and terrible thing to do nothing. The fearful maledictions of heaven have been uttered against those who say and do not. To that class of leaders and teachers it was, you will recall, that the Savior said: "How can you escape the damnation of hell?" From the time we start in the Master's service till we shall answer the signal of life's setting sun to enter the eternal rest that awaits the faithful, we are under the most serious obligation to respond to heaven's mandate to seek and to save the lost. To spend one-half of our time in faultfinding and the other half in doing nothing is about the most dangerous piece of ungodly and unscriptural misconduct and about the most disgraceful behavior to the profession of a Christian that was ever reflected in the history of the human race. "To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not to him it is sin."

I heard many comments favorable to the speakers on the program. The addresses were well prepared and were of an order that would help and encourage those who are trying to live as the Lord requires. My time permitted me to hear but one of the addresses other than my own. That was the one delivered by Brother Dean Brookshire at Northside on "Other Dangerous Trends Among Us." I thought that the speech was one of the finest I have ever heard. Brother Brookshire spoke for nearly an hour with the deepest earnestness on the pitfalls along the pathway of the Christian life, and the urgent need of a helping hand of love and sympathy, of brothers and sisters in the Lord with the new members and with the wayward ones; and of the tremendous responsibility of all leaders—teachers, preachers, elders and deacons—in regard to soundness as to the things taught, and the very important matters of instruction in the conduct of Christians in matters of discipline. It was a masterful address. Brother Brookshire is at this time serving as a minister for the church at Plainview, Texas. He goes soon to labor with one of the fine, growing congregations in Lubbock.

Some of the brethren have found fault with lectureships; they don't like them. They even say that they are entirely unscriptural, and that the brethren should not deliver lectures. Well it is true that the word "lecture" is not found in the Bible. Shall we just call these lectures sermons? But we do not find the word "sermon" in the Bible. We find the word "speech" in the Bible; maybe all will agree that this is a safe word. Well, we usually try to fit our vocabulary as best we can to give adequate expression to the thing we are trying to talk about. Personally, I find no objection to the use of either of the words, "sermon," and "lecture." The fifteen lectures given by fifteen men were just simply fifteen carefully prepared gospel sermons delivered by fifteen gospel preachers. The addresses themselves were admonitory, hortatory, and evangelistic, in keeping with the manner of work usually done by gospel preachers from the days of Paul down to this good day of grace 1953 in which we live. Criticisms of preachers' meetings and lectureships among the churches of Christ have all been advanced so far as I have seen, on the assumption or at least the implication that the meetings were legalistic in reference to the affairs of the church. To the contrary, they are simply in the nature of what are generally called gospel meetings, protracted meetings, and sometimes revival meetings.

The complete program was sent us for earlier publication but it is our sincere regret that it was inadvertently omitted from our columns at that time. It is here given in its entirety:

THANKS TO OUR CIRCULATION WORKERS

Since we all know that the greater the circulation of the paper the greater the good that may be done, the efforts of our friends in extending the circulation are very greatly appreciated. In the first place, the more papers we print, the more economical is the printing. And in the second place we have a correspondingly greater opportunity for teaching the truth and saving the lost. We are very thankful for the fine list of subscriptions. Is your name among them? Remember, the subscriber saves $1.00 on each year of subscription, and anyone may subscribe for as many years as he may wish in a club. We are enclosing a club subscription blank for the better convenience of our club workers.

Brother Wilson is doing a fine work with them.

Edward J. Craddock, 1714 Cass Street, Nashville, Tennessee, March 13: I begin the St. Augustine, Florida, meeting where Ralph Lemon is located March 22.

Herbert L. Newman, 559 West Mariposa Drive, San Antonio, Texas, March 19: Three placed membership with the West Avenue church Sunday. Attendance is very fine in all services.

Roy Burgess, Maysville, Alabama, March 19: We are reaching for 200 in Bible study in spite of a break-down in our bus. Two baptized Sunday. A welcome to all who come this way.

Silas Triplett, 812 Clark, Marlin, Texas, March 23: Two have been baptized the last two weeks. Interest increasing in our program over KMLW, 1010 kc., at 8:45 each Sunday morning. It is doing lots of good.

James M. Benson, Box 373, Lepanto, Arkansas, March 16: Two have been restored and one baptized here recently. Construction is well under way on our new three bedroom brick veneer minister's home.

Noah S. Bates, Route 2, Sunnyside, Washington, March 11: Since my last report, one has been baptized and two placed membership. We have just closed a short meeting with W. C. Harrison of Cottage Grove, Oregon, doing the preaching.

Malcom P. Hinckley, 3034 E. Gage, Huntington Park, California, March 18: Sunday one more was baptized here and one was restored. We have a daughter, Kaye Elaine, added to our home, bringing our family to two boys and two girls.

Floyd Embree, 1203 Merchant, Artesia, New Mexico, March 19: Two have been baptized and two restored recently. Our meeting begins next Wednesday night with Brother A. H. Kennamer of Midland doing the preaching.

R. H. Banks, Jr., Box 36, Pottsboro, Texas, March 19: I am to begin work with the East Main Street church in Shawnee, Oklahoma, next month. My address will be 1331 East Eleventh. Our work here has been enjoyable and very fruitful. My successor has not been selected.

Levoy Bivens, P. O. Box 734, Gadsden, Alabama, March 23: Four baptisms and one restoration yesterday. Attendance and interest continue to increase each week. May 17th we shall begin a gospel meeting with Brother G. C. Brewer doing the preaching. On May 19th the chorus of David Lipscomb College will be with us.

William Daines, 819 Main St., Charleston, West Virginia, March 18: The annual lecture program of the churches of Christ of Ohio and West Virginia will be held this year at the Park Avenue and Main Street congregation in Charleston, West Virginia, the Lord willing. The time is August 17-21. Subjects and speakers will be announced later.

Albert Smith, 643 W. 10th St., McMinnville, Oregon, March 19: On the last Sunday of February we began our eleventh year here in Oregon. While the overall growth of the church is encouraging, we need more Christian families who can provide potential leadership. We begin a meeting tomorrow evening with Leonard Woods of Newberg, Oregon, doing the preaching.

Preston Cotham, 2000 Oakland Boulevard, Fort Worth, Texas, March 24: Sunday was a good day for the Meadowbrook congregation, a record Bible school attendance, one baptized, one restored, and one placed membership. I began here at McCamey last evening with a full house. Extra chairs were used. A man and his wife, who had been out of duty for 15 years were restored.

Choice L. Bryant, 165 South 15th Street, Salem, Oregon, March 20: Brother Bud Irvine served us well as visiting evangelist in a protracted meeting which closed March 13. There were two baptisms and four confessions of wrong during the meeting. There have been two baptized since then. We also have baptized three inmates of the Oregon State Penitentiary since last report.

Reeder Oldham, Box 26, Gainesboro, Tennessee, March 17: Six restorations and three baptisms in recent weeks. In the meanwhile I have also preached at Logansport, Indiana, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky, and Providence (Rock Castle County, Kentucky). Visiting preachers here have been A. J. Rollings and Joe Alley. From April 15-26 I will be in a meeting with the East Mountain church, Greggton, Texas.

Melvin J. Wise, 4216 Stanhope Avenue, Dallas, Texas, March 23: During the past three weeks there have been twelve people added to the membership of the Preston Road Church. Four were baptized and eight placed membership with us. I began a meeting with the church in Tipton, Oklahoma, yesterday. Brother Oscar Ellison of Springfield, Missouri, will do the preaching in our spring meeting April 19-26.

C. E. McGaughey, 2407 W. Lincoln, Springfield, Missouri, March 23: At Portales, New Mexico, twenty-five were baptized and fourteen were restored. Grover A. Ross is the efficient local evangelist there. I am now in the beginning of a meeting at Union City Tennessee. I go next to North Houston to be with them in the opening of their new building April 5, then to Pueblo, Colorado, the last two Sundays in April.

Quentin A. Dunn, Box 273, Eldorado, Texas, March 23: We have just closed a very good meeting in which Raymond DeSpain of Blanco, Texas, did the preaching in a very commendable way. Attendance was very good throughout the meeting, and one man was baptized. We believe that the church was greatly strengthened because of this meeting. We press forward with renewed zeal and determination, giving God all the glory.

Jesse Brookshire, Morton, Texas, March 23: We had another good day here yesterday. A man, the head of a family, who had been a Baptist for twenty years was baptized into Christ. Two placed membership and two others were restored and placed membership last night. We have just completely redecorated our building and have everything in readiness for our meeting beginning tonight, with C. M. Moser doing the preaching. When coming this way worship with us.

Joe W. Crumley, 500 So. Roberts, El Reno, Oklahoma, March 20: Four baptized within last three weeks.

E. C. McKenzie, Box 1164, Montgomery, Alabama, March 23: The Catoma Street congregation is moving along steadily. Two were added to our working forces yesterday by membership.

Raymond C. Keley, 2117 N.W. 21st Street, March 21: Since I began work with the Tenth and Francis church in Oklahoma City last November there have been thirteen baptisms, nine restorations, and fifteen to place membership. Our meeting begins tomorrow with Cleon Lyles preaching.

Raymond DeSpain, Blanco, Texas, March 24: I have just returned from a very interesting meeting with the church in Eldorado, Texas. One was baptized. Brother Quentin Dunn is their local preacher, and is doing a good work. The work here continues to grow. Two more were baptized March 15. They came out of Roman Catholicism. Still more people are having their eyes opened and are coming to the light.

Jack Cox, Enid, Oklahoma, March 20: The second Sunday of this month marked our first week with the brethren here in Enid, Oklahoma. It was only after much prayer and thought that we left the work at Haskell, Texas, for we thoroughly enjoyed our association with the brethren there. We feel certain the work there will grow and prosper and we look forward to wonderful opportunities here.

Paul S. Gray, P. O. Box 573, Bowie, Texas, March 13: During our meeting with Weslie Mickey preaching two were baptized and one was restored. The cooperation of surrounding congregations was fine. Brother Mickey shall return in 1955. Next Sunday I begin a meeting at Nocona; April 12th at Beckley, West Virginia; April 26th at Seventh Avenue, Columbus, Ohio; and May 10th at Beallsville, Ohio.

Hood Wilkins, 3210 Howard, Fort Worth, Texas, March 16: Yesterday was a great day for the church in Oaklawn. We had another record-breaking attendance in Bible study, one baptism, and one restored and identified with us. This is the second time we have broken our record in attendance since the first of the year. There are many opportunities here; we pray God that we may have the vision and the courage to use them to the glory of God.

Stoy Pate, 1081 McLemore Avenue, Memphis, Tennessee, March 23: In the past two weeks we have had ten to respond. That makes fifty-two who have been baptized, restored and placed membership since the beginning of our second year in our new meeting house. Brother Melvin J. Wise will begin a meeting with us the second Lord's day in May. Brother J. B. Cox will be with us in a Vacation Bible School the second week in June. We invite all in reach of us to attend these services.

J. O. Jones, 1014 Beech Street, Little Rock, Arkansas, March 16: Our work is off to a fine start with the Pulaski Heights congregation. Our plans and prayers with our works are for Heights Church to climb to higher heights. Every member is to be visited and personally given a special responsibility in doing a certain work. Our purpose first of all is to restore all the unfaithful. This part of the work has been badly neglected everywhere it seems. Remember Galatians 6:1.

Herb Swinney, Coleman, Texas: Two restored and two placed membership here recently. One restoration was from the First Christian Church.

Claude Robertson, Haskell, Oklahoma, March 1: Six have been baptized and two restored since last report. Our Bible school attendance continues to be good. We are to install new pews in the near future.

Barton Davis, 447 West Ross, Farmington, New Mexico, March 17: In order to accommodate the large attendance, the Northside church in Farmington, New Mexico, has started having two Sunday morning services. Last Sunday, the first time two services were held, all previous records were broken in attendance and contribution. During the past six months more than forty have been added to the membership of the congregation and the Bible school attendance has increased by more than fifty per Lord's day.

Oliver C. Cunningham, 406 Chestnut, Cookeville, Tennessee, March 16: Today I received permission from President Everett Derryberry to hold a weekly meeting for the church of Christ students on the campus of Tennessee Polytechnic Institute here in Cookeville. If you have boys or girls attending college at TPI please urge them to attend this meeting, or contact me at the Willow Street church of Christ. If you want information concerning the beginning of such a meeting on the campus of the college in your town I will help if you will write me.

George E. Darling, 1503 W. 1st, Coffeyville, Kansas: Our "Round Up of the Strays Campaign" is beginning to "pay off." We have located another eight members of the church who are not in attendance. Some of the ones we are contacting each week have started attending. A married woman, the mother of two children, was baptized yesterday. Attendance for Bible School was 62. The Herald of Truth broadcast has a large audience in this part of the country. We could use some good tracts in the work here. Will someone who reads this do some mission work and make a donation of tracts?

Guss Eoff, 2354 East Lindsay, Stockton, California, March 18: Since our last report I conducted a meeting in Oakland, California. This was to have been a two weeks meeting, from January 26th to February 8th, but because of illness I was not able to be there the first week. Brother Robert R. Price preached the first week and laid a good foundation. During his part of the meeting, one confessed wrongs. I closed the last part of the meeting with 20 responses; 8 baptisms, and 12 confession of wrongs. My next meeting will be in Watsonville, California, March 29th through April 10th.

Frank Pack, Abilene, Texas, March 5: The third annual training school at the Northside church in Abilene began Tuesday night, March 3 with approximately 400 present. Classes in sight singing, song leader training, teacher training, conducting public worship, public speaking, church leadership, church history, visiting, personal evangelism, modern denominational doctrines, young people's problems, marriage and the Christian home, personality problems, and a Bible class in Galatians are being taught. In addition to the writer the following teachers in the Abilene area are working in this school: E. R. Harper, Paul Southern, Lloyd Ellis, Floyd Dunn, Warden Novak, Frank Rhodes, Don H. Morris, O. B. Proctor, and Mrs. G. L. Belcher. The classes will continue through April 7.

W. T. Hamilton, Gainesville, Texas: The Commerce Street church in Gainesville is growing steadily. We are losing many members who are moving away, however, our attendance and contributions are increasing. The first week in March I was with the Northside church in Odessa, Texas, in a meeting. There were twelve responses in that meeting—six baptisms, five restorations, and one to place membership. That's a fine congregation and Brother Jimmy Wood is doing a good work with them.

James O. Wilburn, Box 11, Gruver, Texas, March 19: Meetings at Tulare, California, resulted in seven added to local active forces two of whom were baptized and two restored. Hartford Smith directed the singing and Frances Herring serves as local preacher. We spent the days teaching in homes. Churches of this area continue to make splendid progress. At Gruver we are completely renovating the building with volunteer labor. A. C. Williams begins meeting with us April 1. We will conduct a week day Bible school with home forces the first of the summer. My next meeting will be at Goodwell, Oklahoma, the first of May.

Will M. Thompson, 227 N. E. 13th Street, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, March 11: I recently visited my old time friend, J. W. Ballard, at Apache, Oklahoma. Brother Ballard is confined to his bed most of the time. He has nervous trouble and arthritis. I first met him in 1913 and from then until now we have been co-workers in the kingdom of our Lord. He is one of the best men I have ever known. It would be a real Christian act if brethren and churches that know him would write him and enclose a nice check to him. His son had to give up his teaching profession to come home and care for him. He suffers very much. He has written his own obituary and has made the request that when he passes away that I speak the last words over his lifeless form. Let us not forget this soldier of the cross in his days of suffering.

Robert H. Bell, 672—19th St., San Diego, California, March 23: Our work here with the Central congregation continues with good interest. In recent weeks an unreported four have been baptized, one restored and one identified. Interest is at a peak, and we continue to have record attendance. Brother Robert Lehmann, my co-worker, is preaching for the El Cajon City church while they are trying to locate a man. He is doing a fine job with them. I am to be with the East Mabel and Santa Rita St. church in Tucson, Arizona, in a meeting the first twelve days in April. Brother Clarence C. Gobbel is the preacher for this congregation. I have one open date for a summer meeting, which I would like to book in Tennessee. I am to be in Tennessee in July and August in meeting work. The open date that I have is from July 19th to August 2nd. If I can serve you during this time, let me hear from you.

E. W. Stovall, Edmonton Rd., Glasgow, Kentucky, March 9: Yesterday was a great day for the church here. One of the largest crowds ever to assemble for the regular work was present. This was a wonderful increase over the attendance as it was the first of May last year, at which time I began work with this fine congregation. Our auditorium will hold 750, and we are beginning to believe that it will be filled in the not too distant future although it was built for twenty-five years of growth. We rejoice at the fine growth and give God the praise. Last month there were five baptisms, two restorations, and four to place membership. One placed membership yesterday. Our contribution is at an all-time high for regular work. We are reaching higher than ever before in aim, and we are doing more work than ever done by this congregation. Our daily radio work is stirring the whole coverage. Debates are in the making.

All members are willing and anxious to labor with whoever comes to help in the great work and a salary awaits you. Good living provisions, excellent climatic conditions, in a 5400 population, and only 54 miles from San Antonio on Highway 81.

R. Ervin Driskill, 2509 Gould St., Columbus, Georgia, March 17: It has been some time since I sent in a report to any of our papers, however, the work at Rose Hill, in Columbus, and the work with the Korean Officers, at Ft. Benning, has made good progress. W. Douglas Harris (who preceded me in the work here) is to hold our spring meeting and Marshall E. Patton (of the North B'ham, congregation) will preach in the fall meeting. One was restored and one baptized (Catholic) last Lord's day. Our budget calls for $385.00 per week and we have gone well over the $400.00 the last three Lord's days. Contributions and co-operation is the best in the history of the Rose Hill church. Brethren have responded in a marvelous way and the Lord has certainly blessed us. Work will begin on a new building (another congregation) within the next month or so. I would like to leave the church here on the move "up" and not "down" so, I am leaving the work when I can locate another and the church here locates a desirable man. I will be glad to correspond with brethren concerning a man. I will be glad to correspond with brethren concerning a move. I am in my fourth year here and can give references.

TARBET—Flossie Hendrix Tarbet, wife of Thomas H. Tarbet, Sr., went to her rest October 27, 1952, and was buried at Ackerly, Texas. She was born at Corinth, Arkansas, September 13, 1891. At the age of fourteen she moved with her parents to Texas, and resided at Merkel, Hamlin, and Rule. She was married to Thomas H. Tarbet, Sr., January 15, 1908, at Rule, Texas. The most of their married life was spent on a farm in Dawson County, near Lamesa, Texas; but they were living at Ackerly at the time of her death. To this union were born two sons: Price K. Tarbet of Ackerly, Texas, and T. H. Tarbet, Jr., of Big Spring, Texas. She lived a faithful Christian life for forty-eight years; and was in attendance at all the services of the Ackerly church on Sunday before passing away early Monday morning. She helped to encourage many young gospel preachers, and otherwise did much good that only eternity will reveal. She left behind many dear friends, and was loved by all who knew her. Her survivors are: her mother, Mrs. J. E. Hendrix of Merkel, Texas; one brother, C. P. Hendrix of Buffalo Gap, Texas; a sister, Mrs. Flora Westenhoefer of Merkel, Texas; and another sister, Mrs. Selma Tucker of San Antonio, Texas; also by her husband and two sons. Brethren Paul McClung and Roy Phemester spoke at her funeral October 28.

F. B. Shepherd, Box 836, Sweetwater, Texas, March 13: I am finding the association with the church here in Honolulu about as pleasant as anything I have experienced in my work as a preacher. Several nationalities are represented in our church but all work together and cooperate with real Christian love and unto mutual edification. There have been six baptized since I came. All were added through the efforts of some of the service men stationed here. Thirteen have moved to Honolulu and cast their lot with us. On the other hand ten of our very finest have left us and returned to the Mainland. Such is normal for the church here. It is extremely difficult to build a stable, properly overseen congregation with so many coming and going constantly. We are planning on spending $12,000.00 dollars before August 1st on a remodeling job on the present house of worship. This is a remodeled residence in a splendid location but needing a lot of repairs on account of the work of termites.

Claude B. Holcomb, 633 W. Collin, Corsicana, Texas, March 9: During the past six weeks one has been baptized, five restored, and two identified at the Fifth Avenue church in Corsicana. I am now in my fourth year of work with this good church. The work in this city is moving along nicely in all the congregations, and I have a very pleasant association with T. B. Crews of North Beaton church, and Luther G. Roberts of Westside church. Bonnie Matthews, graduate of Southwestern Christian College at Terrell, is doing an excellent work with a fine colored congregation here. Our spring meeting is to begin April 26th, with Oscar Ellison of Springfield, Missouri, doing the preaching. Vacation Bible school is scheduled to begin June 8th. Come to see us, when in Corsicana.

Paul McClung, 607 N. First, Lamesa, Texas, March 18: I have accepted an invitation to serve as minister of the Tenth and Broad church in Wichita Falls, Texas, beginning June 1. I have been with the church here during the past five and one-half years. During this time the church has made considerable progress. Two hundred and forty-one have been baptized, one hundred and forty-four restored, and two hundred and forty-one have placed membership. We have lost in several ways but we have had a net gain of between two hundred and fifty and three hundred members. During my stay in Lamesa the church has built a preacher's home valued at $15,000. A $75,000 enlargement of the old building has also been made and just recently a $7,500 annex was built to house the church offices. This church has helped the colored church improve their property by several hundred dollars and has purchased a church building and preacher's home for the Mexican church. All of this property is completely free of debt and a building fund has already been set up for starting another congregation in our own city. This congregation now furnishes the full support for six preachers and is helping with the support of two others. Among those drawing full support from this congregation are: Nick Nagano, who is preaching in Japan; Don Finto, who is preaching in Germany; and Italo Minestrone, who is preaching in Italy. The congregation in Lamesa is in the best condition it has ever been in both spiritually and materially. It is blessed with a strong leadership and some of the most spiritually minded people I have ever known. It has been hard for us to leave this good and most cooperative congregation. Only the urgent invitation and greater challenge of the church in Wichita Falls has led us to do so. I feel confident that whoever follows me in the work here will enjoy a most pleasant and profitable work. Several good men have been contacted by the elders but no one has been selected as yet.

J. T. Marlin, Sweetwater, Texas, March 24: Our meeting with Trine Starnes of Waco, Texas, closed with 14 responses. Of this number two were baptized. We enjoyed our association with Brother Starnes. New records were set in Bible School attendance during the meeting. I am beginning a meeting tonight with the church at Crawfordsville, Indiana.

NEW WONDERFUL SONGS

Positively largest best selection
for the price

It contains an excellent selection of the sweetest invitation songs and funeral hymns, songs for the work and worship—in fact, songs for all occasions.

Many of the very fine old songs have been re-arranged, re-edited, and re-written; also a fine list of late and some new songs.

This book is edited with the greatest possible care so that the words in the hymns are all Scriptural. Many singers have contributed their efforts in making this the choicest possible collection of songs.

"The New Wonderful Songs" is our answer to thousands of requests to bring out a large hymn and song book free from the "jingle convention" and "jazz" type of songs.

Positively more and better invitation songs than are found in most books. A large number of those familiar, sweet, old hymns that we all love to sing.

We deeply appreciate the splendid response that is being given to this book and the hundreds of orders that we are receiving. Hundreds of congregations are now using this book in their regular services and we are regularly receiving repeat orders.

The "best ever," "finest selection we have used," "the best yet for the price," "greatest song book we have ever used," "all are pleased," "we are delighted," these are some of the many expressions from pleased customers who have ordered and are re-ordering this book.

For congregational worship, for the evangelistic meetings, and for all occasions "New Wonderful Songs" is in the lead.

We are offering this book at an almost unbelievably low price.

"New Wonderful Songs" can be obtained in the well bound muslin substantial binding, a popular edition. For elegance and beauty as well as durability, it is published in the neatly bound full black cloth binding with gold side title edition.

Horace W. Busby, 2225 Hawthorne, Fort Worth, Texas, March 16: The Lord gave the command to "go" and preach the gospel to the whole creation. The Holy Spirit through Paul declared that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to all who would believe it. The Lord has also instructed his people to "come together" for teaching and "worship." So when we are engaged in "gospel meetings" in the true spirit of Christ, we are sure he is pleased. It has been a real joy to be thus engaged this far into 1953. After assisting in 29 splendid meetings in 1952. Since the holidays it has been my great pleasure to be with the Lake Victor church in Burnet County, great interest in every service. A wonderful old time church, and fine attendance throughout. Then to Sonora, Texas, another ranch country church in a splendid town. People from many other sections came, lunch for all each Lord's day. A great interest throughout. Vernon, Texas, was next, the last two Lord's days in February. The church or now churches in Vernon are about the best. They have a wonderful past with unusual growth. This was my twelfth meeting there and one of the best. George Jones is the present minister for the Pease and Houston Streets church. It was fine to be with him as this was our first time together. From there, I went to Port Lavaca, a wonderful church, where we had large crowds, fine interest and wonderful results. Six were baptized the last day, several during the eight days. Ira Williams, a young man whom I baptized when he was about twelve years old, is the preacher working with them. At this writing we are again in west Texas at Amherst, where we began yesterday with great interest, good crowds and several have asked for prayers for their neglect of duty the first day. My heart is filled with the wonderful song: "I want to be a Soul Winner for Jesus."

Gordon L. Downing, Eliasville, Texas, March 23: On March 18, 1953, I concluded three and one-half years of most profitable work with the church in Eliasville, Texas. In those years the contribution more than trebled and the attendance at all services approximately 95%, and the Bible Study on Wednesday nights showed a larger attendance than did the preaching service on the Lord's day. The church, because of the unusual interest in Bible study, has begun to attract outsiders in great numbers. Several Wednesday nights some 25 young people from outside the church were present. The attendance on Sunday evenings is generally as large or larger than the morning services, and the Ladies' Bible Class and Men's training class could hardly be improved upon. As a result of this growth the church is now on a full time basis, having secured Brother Carrel Anderson to work with them. Brother Grover C. Ross of Portales, New Mexico, held our meetings the last two years and did a wonderful work. Six people were baptized in those meetings and one restored. I commend this group of Christians to the entire brotherhood for their faithfulness to the Lord. The last night I was there one was baptized and two confessed wrongs. When in the vicinity of Eliasville, stop and worship with them.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Christ, The Savior

The shepherds of Judaea, who were watching their flock by night, were greatly alarmed at the supernatural signs of Christ's birth—"The angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid." The angel said, "Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord" (Luke 2:10, 11).

Jesus means a Savior—that is the meaning of this word. An angel said to Mary, "And thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins" (Matt. 1:21). This name was not only given by the authority of God, but was explained by the same authority. Joshua was a Hebrew word which meant Savior. Joshua became the deliverer and leader of the Lord's people after the death of Moses.

But it is said that the Son of Mary would be called Jesus, because he would save his people from their sins. By this declaration the angel distinguished Christ from all other deliverers. In the light of prophecy the Jews were expecting a Messiah who would be their Savior, but they understood that he would be a hero, a conqueror of their enemies who would save them from the tyranny of Rome. They thought their Messiah would restore them to their lost position in their own land. But Jesus came to restore men, not to an earthly Canaan, but to a heavenly country. He came to deliver, not from civil bondage, but from spiritual slavery.

When Jesus had finished his work on earth and ascended to heaven, he left the governments of the world as he found them. He suggested no improvements in the plans of earthly kingdoms. These were matters to be determined by the wisdom of men.

But who can save men from their sins? This one thing Jesus came to do. Sin is man's greatest enemy and oppressor. He who can save from sin is man's best friend. To judge the value of a remedy, it is necessary to know the malignity of the disease it cures. Sin has caused all the misery of the world. Sin debases the body and destroys the soul. Sin separates man from God and friend from friend. Sin produces unruly passions, tormenting anxieties, a terrified conscience and a wounded spirit. It is the foundation which embitters all the pleasant streams of life. Jesus only can save from sin.

The Greatest Name in History

Jesus Christ is the greatest name in all the annals of time. Men have a crude way of celebrating this name on a day called Christmas. All kinds of unscriptural and sinful practices are engaged in to celebrate the birth of Christ. Men who sell liquor do a bigger business at the time of the Christmas holidays than any other season of the year. Men try to celebrate the birth of the Savior by feasting, getting drunk, dancing and shooting firecrackers.

All of this is just so much revelry, plainly condemned in the New Testament. The only way to honor the name of Christ is to do what he commands us to do. The name of Jesus is above every name because he alone is able to save from the misery of sin. Paul says, "Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name; that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father" (Phil. 2:9-11).

Jesus has procured man's deliverance at a great price. To save men, it was necessary that he suffer. By shedding his blood on the cross, he is able to save men to the uttermost. All men had sinned and come short of the glory of God, and Jesus put himself in the place of sinners to die that they might live. "He hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us."

The Church In Jefferson City, Missouri

R. N. Gardner

Jefferson City has been the capital of Missouri since 1821, one hundred and thirty-two years, yet the church of the Lord there now has only about sixty active members! Two generations have lived and died in Jefferson City without hearing the simple gospel! This is a dreadful tragedy; words cannot describe it! It is not enough to deplore this. Something must be done!

Since I worked with the Jefferson City church last November and December, I think God's displeasure would be upon me should I fail to inform brethren of Jefferson City's prospects, opportunities, and needs. If conditions in Jefferson City had been made known fifty years ago, it is reasonable to conclude that by now hundreds—possibly thousands—of precious souls would have obeyed the gospel, and that several strong churches would have been established there and in that area. We have a choice. We can do nothing, then face the sad consequences, i.e., another generation may pass with no really substantial gains made for our Savior in Jefferson City. On the other hand, we can blend our best efforts with those of the good Christian people of that city who are ready and anxious to undertake great things for God. They want to launch a program to give the gospel to all of the 30,000 people of Jefferson City. But they cannot do that alone. They are not financially able. They need help and a leader, a preacher to do the preaching, one with qualifications to win people, and to develop Christians into a strong church.

An Important Center

A strong church in this city would exert a great influence throughout Missouri. Many thousands of Missourians are employed in Jefferson City: industrial workers, business employees, men and women in various departments of the state government. Schools attract others. "Lincoln University"—a state-supported school for the higher education of Negroes—with an enrollment of a thousand students drawn from 23 states, is located here. The students are courteous, intelligent, and will be leaders of their race. This is one of the leading Negro colleges in the West. These facts point up the necessity of doing something substantial. It should be done now, before another generation dies without the simple gospel.

We Need To Redeem The Time

The people of Jefferson City are very religious. It is said that nearly all of the citizens attend religious services. But those who believe, teach, and practice error have gained the advantage. Briefly, here is the picture: Catholics greatly predominate in number and influence. Popular denominations have large memberships and costly buildings that are imposing. North Central Missouri is a stronghold of the "Christian church." Missouri Baptists are alert to capture for the Baptist church all the students they can. They have erected for Lincoln University students an expensive brick church edifice with a spacious, attractive auditorium and an educational building. Perhaps five hundred or more students from this Negro college attend worship here every Lord's day. They learn Baptist doctrine and love it; they become Baptists, then return to the 23 states from which they came, filled with a burning zeal to teach Baptist doctrine to others of their race and make more Baptists. Such is the advantage that the exponents of error have gained.

Folly inside our own ranks has helped the foes of truth. "Anti" and "hobbyist" preachers have brought disgrace and disrepute on the church as their peculiar ideas took root and grew throughout Northern and Central Missouri, causing strife and factions within many congregations. The Seneful influence of Brother Daniel Sommer still lingers in many localities, while under the diversive leadership of W. Karl Ketcherside, St. Louis, Missouri, some congregations are being disturbed and others are being divided, not only near Jefferson City, but elsewhere in Missouri as well. These evils helped prevent the rapid growth of most congregations in the Central and Northern part of the state. Jefferson City is no exception. Within a radius of 25 miles there are many towns without a church of Christ. In view of the above facts, the Lord's people in Jefferson City are faced with the challenge of conquering new territory for Christ while at once stemming the tide of Catholicism and denominationalism and overcoming the deadening influence of "anti-isms" in that area. An undertaking of such proportions is a task for a church that is strong! The crying need right now in Missouri's capital city is a strong preacher. With his influence and a live church with an effective program the brethren could—no doubt—prevail upon many members of the "Christian" church to leave it, for a large number of people in that organization are dissatisfied with its worldliness, liberalism, and modernism. Some of the many Catholics in Jefferson City can be taught. Good success seems to be crowning the efforts in Italy. We should be interested in the Catholics in near by Jefferson City.

A Good Nucleus

While the Jefferson City church is small, it is active. According to their number and ability, I know of no church that gives more liberally. Most of the sixty active members are women and young people. There is not a man in the church who owns his own business. There is no one, therefore, to give large amounts. The church is at peace; they have no hobbies; they work together in harmony, respect the elders and try to please God in all their labors for good. They are humble and have a spirit of good will toward one another. They are teachable and love the kind of teaching that lifts them up and helps them to see and feel the "breadth and length and height and depth" of the "love of Christ which passeth knowledge." Such teaching makes them want to love and serve Christ, God, and man more. If those who read this article knew these brethren as I do, they would love them as I do, and would want to help them, and would if they could.

The Plan

This plan includes the necessity of having to take the gospel to the people because the present building is a remodeled dwelling, too small, crowded, and unsightly for a permanent place of worship in Jefferson City. When the interest and membership increase after this program is started, the plan is to build a suitable house on the excellent lot that has already been bought. For a year or two, the house now being used may be sufficient, at least it must answer for awhile. The amount of money needed now is not much. The brethren are asking for no more than enough to help them carry out the following essential program to take the gospel to the 30,000 people of Jefferson City: (1) The employment of an outstanding, experienced preacher; (2) A weekly radio program; (3) A short article in the Sunday Jefferson City Tribune; (4) Regular distribution of thousands of tracts; (5) Monthly payment on lot; (6) Payment of incidentals and regular church expenses. The total cost of this program will be about $650.00.

The few members in Jefferson City to contribute cannot give more than half of that amount. They would if they could. Only $325.00 per month more is necessary in order to give the blessings of the gospel to this strategic midwestern capital city in the center of a great and rich state, a field "white unto harvest." I do fervently hope and earnestly pray that the good people who read this will feel keenly an obligation to preach the gospel to these people. They live at our doors; they are our neighbors. Many thousands who lived there for 100 years died almost in sight of us and went to their eternal destiny without ever hearing the simple gospel. They went out into the broad expanse of an unknown world where we cannot reach them now with the gospel, and where they could not hear it any way. With this solemn thought in mind, and with serious consideration of the unusual opportunities in and around Jefferson City, may we all pray that the gospel in its simplicity, beauty, and power to save may be given to the fine neighborly people in Jefferson City NOW.

Many individuals could give $5.00 a month, some could give $10.00 a month, many churches could easily give five, ten, twenty-five or more dollars each month. But if each one

CLAUDE GUILD WITH CENTRAL AT HOUSTON

Claude Guild of the Riverside Church of Christ in Fort Worth, Texas, will be the guest evangelist in a gospel meeting with the Central Church of Christ in Houston, Texas, April 12 through 19. Paul Easley, song director for the Central church, will lead the singing for the meeting.

Claude Guild

There will be two services daily, at 10:00 A.M. and 8:00 P.M. Preceding the night service there will be a period of Bible drill and singing at 7:30 P.M. under the direction of Carl Spain and Paul Easley.

A vigorous campaign of personal evangelism and visitation has been under way for several weeks in preparation for the meeting. This activity is under the direction of H. B. Mason, Jr., who recently joined the forces of the ministry at Central in the capacity of Educational Director.

Enthusiasm is very high in expectation of what promises to be one of the very best gospel meetings in the history of the congregation, according to Carl Spain, who is in his second year as preacher for this church.

The nursery will be open at all services for the benefit of parents who might not otherwise be able to attend the meeting. A well-qualified staff of nurses will be on duty.

The Young Preacher

Paul once gave the following advice to a young gospel preacher named Timothy, "Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an ensample to them that believe, in word, in manner of life, in love, in faith, in purity. Till I come, give heed to reading, to exhortation, to teaching" (1 Tim. 4:12, 13). This briefly comprehends, in terse language, the duties of the evangelist in either local work, or in the traveling evangelist. Paul realized possibly through experience that preaching the gospel was no mean work—for work it is. As the inexperienced young evangelist goes out to do the work that is the greatest in all the world, he must have immeasurable patience, fortitude, and the greatest of all characteristics—love. If he finds himself completely void of these attributes, he should seriously contemplate some other type of work, as we shall see later on. Finding these characteristics in one's self, he naturally will be confronted with other obstacles, not specifically pointed out in the classroom, but which come through the long process of "education" by experience and study.

I should like to point out some of the various pitfalls which will aid or rather prevent the young preacher from becoming overly discouraged in his first work. For most of this material I am indebted to older, more experienced evangelists than I happen to be; a great deal is the direct result of experience.

1. After preaching your trial sermon, (in beginning work this seemingly is the practice), if you are called to meet with the brethren, don't promise to set the world on fire! By this, I simply mean don't promise them that you will do more than any two men could possibly accomplish in a lifetime. Naturally, you will want to keep office hours, do personal work, preach the truth simply, yet plainly, etc. In short, don't promise to do so many things, and then fail to make good your promise. Brethren will appreciate you more if you do more than you actually promised in the beginning.

2. In your discussion, the salary will be one of the considerations which you must surely face. One thing to remember, don't be selfish to the point of extortion. However, there are some things which you must take into consideration regarding the salary. First, it will make a difference if you are married or single, and too, if you are married, you must consider your children and their support. By all means, don't accept a work at such a low salary as to cause you to get in debt to the local citizenry. Brethren will never forgive your unbusinesslike ways, and it is a stigma which will cling to you wherever you chance to go, especially if you leave owing money. Second, it will make a difference if you intend to work part-time and preach part-time, as some may be required to do in mission work. These are considerations; however, don't be blinded to the possibilities of a work by $ signs. Finally, along this line, it will make a difference in salary if you must rent a house, or having a house furnished, if you must pay the utilities, etc. This may sound trite at first thought, but over a period of time it is something to think about along with the amount you will be receiving monthly.

3. In the process of elimination in trial sermons, remember, you may be the one they eliminate! If you like the situation which the work offers, by all means tell the brethren you like it very much; they will appreciate this very much, and too, they will feel your interest in the work there. Sometimes, brethren like to be sure that you will be available should they desire to have you work with them. They will propose that you put off any further offers you may have, until they choose. In so doing, you take all the risk, while they assume none in choosing. While they are choosing, you may pass up several good openings, feeling all the while you have the work in your hand—but you may find, at the end of your restless waiting, they hired someone else. Brethren will appreciate you more if you will make them also assume part of the risk of delay in making a decision. The fair way for all concerned is that each one, the preacher and the brethren, come to this conclusion: "We will contact you, Brother X, if we decide we want you to work with us. In the meanwhile, should you find a work with greater possibilities for good, than our work, by all means take it, unless we should arrive at a decision beforehand." This means equal sharing of the loss of a good work to someone else, or loss of a good preacher to another congregation, as the case may be. This is the only fair way for all concerned.

4. In your first work, don't bite off more than you can chew! All young preachers are desirous of working with a large congregation and having large numbers to answer the invitation; moreover, to establish a reputation as an up-and-coming gospel preacher. Certainly this is an admirable trait if used rightly; however, in every kind of work with which I am acquainted, it is customary to work one's way up from the bottom. I believe preaching is no exception. In your first local work, don't try to land the largest congregation to work with. It might be a greater task than you bargained for! If, as a beginner, you have such an opportunity, take into consideration some very sobering realities. First, remember that local work is a far-cry from the usual week-end preaching appointment. For example, problems will need to be worked out of the very smallest of congregations, but consider how much more complex problems you will need to work with the larger groups, plus the ever increasing number of them and you will have some idea of what you will confront as a beginner. Second, you will likely receive criticism because of your lack of experience and age. Third, it is better to start slow and gain momentum through experience, than to start with momentum and slow down to a walk due to inexperience! By beginning with a smaller group which you can handle, you will soon be fitted for greater works through your first-hand experience.

5. Budget your time! In beginning work, you will find that your task is far greater than your older and more experienced preaching brethren. You won't be able to give as much time to other phases of your labors as those who have gleaned many years of experience in preaching and in sermon outlines. In order for you to do a good job in your work, you will need to budget your time! You will have to spend many laborious hours in making adequate preparation that your lessons will warrant your listener's time and attention. Brother Guy N. Woods once gave me this bit of advice which has stuck with me: "Don't ever go into the pulpit unprepared!" It is well worth your remembering that that you may avoid the all important question, "Where does all my time go?"

In beginning work, young preachers cannot find a better piece of advice than Paul gave to Timothy when he said, "Preach the word; be urgent in season, out of season, reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all longsuffering and teaching. For the time will come when they will not endure the sound doctrine; but, having itching ears, will heap to themselves teachers after their own lusts; and will turn away their ears from the truth, and turn aside unto fables. But be thou sober in all things, suffer hardship, do the work of an evangelist, fulfil thy ministry" (2 Tim. 4:2-1).

It is my earnest hope if this reaches the printed page, that good may come to the younger preachers, who need all the help and encouragement they can possibly have in beginning the greatest work of all! If I have misrepresented any point in my presentation, I shall be eternally grateful if you would write me.

A Liberal Church Will Prosper

Otto Foster

Prosper means to succeed, thrive, to render successful. What is a successful church? A congregation that is carrying on the work that Jesus gave to his disciples to do in an outstanding way is a successful, thriving church. Liberal means "bestowing in a large and noble work." Since a Christian is a child of God, it follows that a group of Christians, a church, must be liberal in the giving of their time, their work, and their money to merit, or to hope to receive, the blessing of our Master—to be a successful—a thriving church. The one outstanding pre-eminent work of the church is to preach the gospel, to preach it everywhere. That requires liberality. Not everyone that sayeth, Lord, Lord, but he that doeth the will of my Father is blessed.

In more than a half century as a member of the church, and having had a chance to observe the workings of many churches in all parts of the U.S.A., and even some in other countries, it is easy to judge that the churches that are liberal in giving are the ones that are thriving, that grow in every good work and in numbers.

The Central church in Cleburne doubled their contribution the year we started to give regularly, as we had been prospered, and as we had determined to do. Very likely as you read this now you will know something of the work in mission fields of this church. We have not done as much, have not been as liberal as we should have been, but when we began to approach God's financial plan for his church as revealed in 2 Cor. 8, 9, we began to grow more rapidly in every way. Our goal was to give 50 percent of contributed funds to mission work. For some years now we have done that. 50 percent for our local work and 50 percent to reach others with the gospel of the Son of God. One year in our somewhat recent history we spent 70 percent of all funds received in working for others.

Our history is the history of many churches. In fact, it is the history of all churches that are thriving. Woe be unto the church that has its light under a bushel and to the elders and deacons of that church—it had been better for them had they not been born. Christians must learn, and elders must teach them, or see that the preacher does it, that God has given them all they possess, and that as stewards they must use it for his honor and glory or hear the edict, "Cast the unprofitable servant into outer darkness." None of us are going to heaven alone. We will build mansions in heaven by working for the salvation of others, or we'll have no mansion there.

It pays as an individual or as a congregation to be liberal in giving. It is definitely commanded: "See that ye abound in this grace also (giving)." Turn to 2 Cor. 9:6, 8, 10 and read it. Do you believe it? Do you practice its teaching? No one ever gave too much to the work of the church. See Psalms 37:25. God plainly tells us that if we give liberally, cheerfully, and as we have been prospered, he will make us able to give more, and that he will supply and multiply our seed for sowing. Are we afraid to try him? He asks us to do so. The Jews, when they were giving to God as he directed, were the most prosperous people on earth. It was only when they robbed him that famine and pestilence destroyed them. Most of us have enough money that we control to damn our souls if we do not learn to properly use it for God's glory. We all like to spend money or keep it, but for ourselves. We save and save, and sometimes pass it on to our children, who very likely would make better citizens if they had had to earn it as did we. There is also the possibility they might marry out of the church and their companion would not be interested in giving, and thereby deprive the church of the benefits it might otherwise receive. Brethren, it would be far better to build mansions in heaven with our money, and our children will come nearer following this worthy example. We must practice what we preach. We have the truth, and we must take it to the lost of the earth if we expect to spend eternity in heaven (Matt. 6:19-21; 7:21; 16:26).

Note: This article and ten others on the theme of Stewardship is being preserved in a 38-page pamphlet to be published in April by the 20th Century Christian. Churches and Christians will want copies to give to others. This is a much neglected subject. Many souls will be lost because they never learned and practiced God's will on this theme. You may order copies through the Firm Foundation at a cost of ten cents each.

A Special Appeal

Johnny Ramsey

The church of the Lord in Neenah, Wisconsin, is in need of some help. In order to be as concise as possible, I'll list the important matters by points. There are many incidents of sacrifice and devotion to the cause that will not appear in this report. Briefly, let me set forth this appeal:

1. The congregation in Neenah is just three years old; that is, it was established in November, 1949.
2. The congregation numbers 24 members.
3. The average contribution, over a six-month span of time, is $80.00 a week. The lowest was $52.00—the highest $123.00. Just last Lord's day the contribution was $113.00. These brethren are liberal!

4. We own two excellent lots on the main street of town in a desirable section. The price of these lots was $3,000.

5. At the present time the congregation here meets in a voting precinct house. It will seat, at the most, 60 people. Because of its usage as a voting place about three or four times a year, it is somewhat of a stigma in the minds of the people when we announce this as our place of meeting—especially in this section where Catholicism runs rampant and the church of Jesus is virtually unknown.

6. The brethren here are desirous of building a very modest meeting place. In fact, one of the men who is a building contractor drew up the plans for the proposed building. They have been submitted to the Industrial Commission of Wisconsin. Just last Friday we received an official O.K. from that office. The plans have been approved.

7. The building is to be 32 by 47 feet. It is to be of concrete block construction. This brother in Christ, who is a builder, has given a bid for $15,000. The congregation is going to do the finish work and we already have some excellent pews to put in the building when it is completed.

8. The congregation here is doing all within its power to make the building a reality. In fact, above and beyond the regular contribution of $80 a week, they have purposed to raise $1,000 by the end of April. This will be done by brethren who are willing to sacrifice for the cause of Christ. There are only seven or eight wage earners in the congregation. This $1,000 will pay for the heating unit for the building.

9. Now, here is the place we need help. Because of the fact that the church of Christ is virtually unknown up here, the banks are not willing to loan us much, if any money. Because of some outside help ($75.00 per month—plus $100 to $150 per month if the building plans materialize), and the liberal giving here, we could pay back at the rate of $250 to $325 per month. But brethren, we are stymied on our efforts because we can't seem to find a bank in these parts to loan it to us.

10. So, this is our appeal—Is there a brother or sister in Christ who would loan us this money on a pure businesslike basis—(5 or 6 percent interest). We would have no trouble at all, Lord willing, to meet the monthly payments. Our problem is getting the initial loan. Or, is there a brother who is in the banking business who could help us on this great undertaking? Or, is there a congregation in the South that could help us in some way? We are not asking for a gift—every penny will be repaid. We just need help in the initial loan.

11. We do not intend to ask for anything that we can supply ourselves; however, this particular need is beyond our capabilities to provide. Also, if these brethren were not doing their very best and were not willing to go "all out" to make it a reality, I would not make this appeal.

This building is a dire need in this area. Neenah is the hub-city in this area (the Fox River Valley) of some 300,000 people. This is a very densely populated section. There is also a small congregation of seven Christians in Green Bay, 40 miles from here; so this makes 30 New Testament Christians in an area of 300,000 people, and only one full-time evangelist. So, brethren, you can see the force of this appeal. We need a building to add stability to the work; we want the people up here to know we have come to stay.

Let us hear from you soon if you are able to help us in this endeavor. It is our prayer to begin by May 1st. If you would like to inquire further please write: Church of Christ, Box 109, Neenah, Wisconsin. We beseech the prayers of all.

NEWFOUNDLAND WORK

The church in Winfield, Kansas, has had an interest in the Lord's work in Newfoundland since its beginning some two years ago. It was two of the members from this congregation who began the work there, Brother and Sister Kenneth Smith. Up to this time our encouragement to them has been in the way of letters and prayers, but now we are ready to assume a greater obligation in the work there.

According to Brother Harold Thomas of Bangor, Maine, and Brother C. G. McPhee of Beamsville, Ontario, who recently made a survey trip there, two things are needed to get the work started on a sound basis among the natives of Newfoundland. One thing, is a man of experience to go and direct the work, the other is a suitable building in which to meet. We have confidence that such a man will be found, who is willing to go, therefore the church in Winfield will assume the responsibility for raising the funds for the building program. Already, suitable lots have been selected, and the sooner we get behind this program the better it will be for those workers who are planning to go there. The church here will see that the proper restrictions are included in the deed, and will hold title to the property until there are Christians in Newfoundland permanent enough to keep the same.

We plan to designate one Lord's day contribution per month to this work, and trust that others may see the need by sending contributions to the same. Since building costs there are about the same as in the states this congregation will not be able to assume all the financial burden, but must receive aid from other places and individuals.

We shall gratefully acknowledge contributions toward this work from everyone interested, and will keep you informed of the progress of the same. We solicit your prayers and fellowship in this work. All contributions should be sent to: H. A. Sipe, 2104 Simpson, Winfield, Kansas, designated for Newfoundland Building Fund.—DAVID V. FULTZ.

Studies In Galatians (No. 7)

R. C. Bell

In these "Studies," we are now leaving, "The apostle of liberty" (Gal. 1, 2), for, "The doctrine of liberty" (Gal. 3, 4).

Paul's Questions

Paul marveled that the Galatians, who had wholeheartedly accepted the gospel when he first went among them, could so quickly embrace "a different gospel"—a gospel so radically and fatally different from the gospel they had received from him that it would not save them. Knowing that they failed to realize the folly and deadliness of the error they were making, he broke out: "O foolish Galatians, who did bewitch you, before whose eyes Jesus Christ was openly set forth crucified? This only would I learn of you, Received ye the Spirit by the works of law, or by the hearing of faith? Are ye so foolish? having begun in the Spirit, are ye now perfected in the flesh?" (Gal. 3:1-3).

By these simple, yet discerning questions, Paul hoped to lead the Galatians into seeing that they were under the witchery of blind teachers, and thus to enable them to recover themselves from the infatuation of legalism. To ask the right question in some cases requires more thorough knowledge of the subject, and displays more skill in teaching and exhorting than to make a speech. These questions are still living and apt, and help us get our religion straight. Some Christians, since they fall into the Galatian heresy of thinking they can be "perfected in the flesh," are in range of these explosive questions which Paul shot at the Galatians. If Peter needed Paul's rebuke, who may not need it?

Inasmuch as the body of every Christian is a temple of the Holy Spirit (1 Cor. 6:19), Paul felt no need of asking even these recent converts from heathenism whether or not they had the Spirit. But in order that they might better understand the difference between the basic working principles of grace and law, and their irreparable loss in going back to law, his inquiry focused on the truth that God gave them the Holy Spirit at the same time, and for the same reason, that he gave them remission of sins (Acts 2:38). "He that supplieth the Spirit to you, and worketh miracles among you, doth he do it by the works of law, or by the hearing of faith?" (3:5). God gives his Spirit to all who obey the gospel (Acts 5:32), but not to men who choose to remain under law, for the death penalty of all breakers of law rests upon them. Upon this grand gospel truth, Paul built an argument to the Galatians, which he expected to convince them of the absurdity, blunder, and sin of thinking they could be "perfected in the flesh."

These provative questions help to an understanding of some things; namely: men become Christians and receive the Holy Spirit, not by law and works, but by grace and faith; God freely gives both "remission of sins" and "the gift of the Holy Spirit" to men when they obey the gospel; for Christians to rely on law and self-effort for justification and sanctification is to give up Christ, the Holy Spirit, and grace altogether. Justification "is of faith that it may be according to grace" (Rom. 4:16). Grace and faith are correlates and imply each other. Grace and works are antipodes and exclude each other. Grace nullifies law, and faith nullifies meritorious works. As light expells darkness, so grace expells "works of law."

Imbedded in this argument pertaining to Christian doctrine is another question: "Did ye suffer so many things in vain? If it be indeed in vain." According to Acts 14, Paul and his Galatian converts were bitterly persecuted by both Jews and Galatians at the beginning of the gospel in Galatia. His readers had experienced much suffering—too much to get no gain, for there should be great moral value in suffering.

"Through many tribulations we must enter into the kingdom of God." "Through tribulation to triumph" is Christian doctrine. On the principle that they already had too much invested to forfeit, Paul exhorted: "Cast not away therefore your boldness which hath great recompense of reward" (Heb. 10:25). After this forceful appeal, he, wistfully pleading, trailed off more winsomely still, "If it be indeed in vain."

Prevalence of Legalism

Legalism and human works hold a strange enchantment over poor man's proud, self-sufficient heart. They have ever inspired the enmity of the flesh and of the world against the gospel of God's graces. It is to be feared that Christendom today is largely legalized rather than Christianized. Man, used to acquiring things by work and accustomed to working for things in proportion to the value which he puts on them, correctly thinks that salvation from sin and peace with God are of superlative worth, and therefore reasons that he must expend correspondingly great effort in order to secure them. How false such reasoning! How empty such labor! "The Lord knoweth the reasonings of the wise, that they are vain." Christianity uniquely gives for the asking these priceless benefits—benefits that men with all their wisdom, asceticism, and strivings can neither earn, merit, nor get elsewhere gratuitously. Men can scarcely believe that so much can be had for nothing. It is contrary to all human thinking and experience; it is too good and too great to be true. "Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed."

Abraham's Religious Experience (3:6-9)

Thus far in the chapter, Paul has reasoned with the Galatians from their own experience. Now, he reasons from the experience of Abraham. Probably the Judaizers in Galatia falsely, though tellingly, taught that to be righteous before God men must, like Abraham and his descendants including Christ, be circumcised. Paul quoting from Gen. 15:6 answers: "Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned unto him for righteousness." Elsewhere, he shows that this took place before Abraham received circumcision as "a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had while he was in uncircumcision" (Rom. 4:11). After thus smashing the false reasoning, Paul continues to the Galatians: "Know therefore that they that are of faith, the same are the sons of Abraham . . . So then they that are of faith are blessed with the faithful Abraham." For Abraham, faith in God was equivalent to righteousness, and faith like Abraham's "who is the father of us all" (Rom. 4:16), is equivalent to righteousness for all his spiritual sons.

What Does the Bible Say?

Three Popular Misconceptions of God

1. The ancient Greeks thought that God lived in "church buildings" or "temples" which men built. This idea is still popular with many people. Paul clearly tells us in his speech on Mar's Hill in Athens that the true and living God does not dwell "in temples made with hands." Let us teach our children that God is a Spirit and "in him we live and move, and have our beings. . . For we are also the off spring" (Acts 17:29).

When followers of Christ build church buildings today they should understand that these buildings are matters of expediency to carry out the command of Christ for us to assemble together to worship, to study the Bible, to have fellowship with one another, to do benevolent work, etc. The building is simply a tool. It is not the "church." The church is composed of living stones, Christians, members of the kingdom. When we believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as the Son of God, repent of our sins, and are buried with him in baptism unto the forgiveness of our sins, the Lord adds us to the church (Acts 2:38-47).

We do not enter the church on Sunday morning, and leave it at noon the same day. We live in the church seven days a week. At certain times the church assembles for worship. At other times it is scattered in daily work. The church is not a building, but the spiritual body of Christ. Paul was talking about our daily life with Christ when he told Timothy, "These things write I unto thee : . . that thou mayest know how thou ought to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth" (1 Tim. 3:15).

2. Another common misconception of God is that we are to worship him "as though he needed anything." Many pagan religions leave sacrifices of food and drink before their idols because they think God needs these gifts. Even in our enlightened age many citizens have the idea that we are pleading with them to obey God primarily because God needs their time or their money. Nothing could be further from the truth. God is the creator. We are his creatures. He gives to us life, breath, and all things (Acts 17:25). He made all men so that they might seek him and find their purpose, their joy in serving him. We are the ones standing in need of God.

God loves us and wants us to serve him, but no man is so rich or so intelligent or so powerful that God needs him. We appeal to you to obey God because you desperately need him. God can give you peace, happiness, spiritual strength now. He can give you a heavenly home after death!

3. The third error of the sophisticated Greeks was to think that God is like "unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device." God is a spirit; and they that worship him in spirit and in truth" (John 4:24). Even in the second commandment God prohibited the making of any graven image for the people to bow down before. Yet in traveling in Europe and in this country I have seen many church buildings with worshippers bowing down before images of gold, or silver, or stone. God does not want us to do this. He knows that these images will become sacred to us, and the love and adoration we should feel for God will be in some measure transferred to wood and stone. Let us avoid these three popular misconceptions of God and worship him "in spirit and in truth."

REMEMBER GOD IN YOUR WILL

Give generously to God during your lifetime, but be sure

not to forget God in making your will. The kingdom is spreading, but it needs funds after you and I have gone on. It needs the energy of money as long as this world last. If you have loved the church and sacrificed to see the gospel preached and the poor cared for while you were living, how much more you want to see it go on after you have gone to meet God!

It is a simple matter to make a will, yet about half the people who die have failed to take care of this important matter. When you do plainly write down your directions for the use of the property God has given you, specify that a certain percentage shall be left to the church to be used by the elders for some cause in which you are interested. If you have no preference, you can leave it to them to be used as they deem best. Or you may wish to remember some home for homeless children or some Christian school or home for the aged.

Consult with the elders about this matter while you are thinking of it. Do not wait until you are ill and think you may die soon. It may be later than you think. Highway accidents and sudden illnesses often prevent the making of proper disposition of your estate at the last moment. Jesus in the parable of the unjust steward taught us to use our money to make friends of God: "So I tell you, make friends by the right use of your money, which so easily tends to wrong-doing, so that when it fails, your friends may welcome you to the eternal dwellings" (Luke 16:7, Williams Translation). You can't take your money with you, but you can send it on ahead and lay up treasures in heaven! Don't wait until you die to give. Give generously now all you can. But also remember God in your will!

HOW TO SETTLE CHURCH TROUBLE

I have lived a half century, lacking a few days, and during that time I have been a member of the church nearly 37 years. In the last quarter of a century I have known much church trouble. I have seen the church split and factions pull off. In every case I have seen the clash of personalities enter in. I have seen stubbornness, selfishness, bitterness, jealousy, and even hatred demonstrated by opposing leaders, and factions. I have seen love crushed, forgiveness forgotten, and the true spirit of Christ denied by those desiring to win for their side. In every case human ideas, opinions, and contentions have taken the place of plain Bible teachings.

These things have troubled me much, but in a recent conversation with some good friends a lady made a statement that gave me the key to all these problems.

In discussing some problems in her own congregation she mentioned the advice of a departing minister, which was:

"If problems arise for which you have no answer, go to the Bible and find out what is written there."

She said, "We started reading our Bibles, and we found love taught more than any other one thing. We concluded that the basic need of our congregation was love."

Sister, that is the answer. Real Christian love in the heart of every member of a given congregation will make church splits impossible. It is the oil that eases the jar of friction. Love brings one to Christ in complete surrender, and fills him with the spirit of the Master. Under the direction of one great leader all march on toward one goal, with one purpose in mind, the purpose of spreading the glad tidings of great joy which shall be to all people. Love begets love in others, and will spread from one to the other. It is a magic formula for solving church problems. Just try it brethren and see for yourselves. Box 128, Sanatorium, Texas.

CHARLES HEBER ROBERSON

I feel a personal loss in the passing of Brother Charles Heber Roberson at Abilene, Texas, on Monday, March 30, 1953. Brother Roberson was born February 28, 1879, at Robersonville, North Carolina, and was baptized by Percy Hooten in 1892. He began preaching in 1908. Brother Roberson, through his entire mature life, has been a student and most of this time a teacher. His schooling included Georgie Robertson Christian College, Texas Christian College and the University of Texas. He served as a minister of the University Avenue church of Christ at Austin in 1920, Drew and Albany, Houston, Texas, in 1924, and at Terrell, Texas, in 1928. He has contributed valuable essays to the Firm Foundation, Gospel Advocate and some articles to other papers. His publications included: "What Jesus Taught", Firm Foundation publishers, 1931; "Bible Versus Modernism", published by the Gospel Advocate in 1946; also "Radio Addresses" over Texas State network. He has spent a half century teaching. He taught four years in the public schools of Tennessee; also associated with Brother A. B. Barret in starting Childers Classical Institute (now Abilene Christian College) in 1906. He also taught at Southwestern Christian College, Denton, Texas, and was with A. B. Barret in founding Clebarro College at Cleburne. He taught in Thorp Spring College at Thorp Spring, Texas.

In 1919 to 1927 Brother Roberson was associated with Brother A. B. Barret and myself in establishing the Bible Chair in the University of Texas. Brother Roberson was the teacher in the Bible Chair for a period of seven years, from 1920 to 1927. He also taught Greek in the University of Texas, a portion of the time. He taught the Bible in Abilene Christian College in 1932 to 1936 when he became head of the Bible and Biblical Languages, 1936 to 1951. On account of his years of service, he retired from teaching in 1951. Brother Roberson, while he was preaching and traveling, preached in eight states and in the District of Columbia. He has done extensive and valuable research at the University of Texas and in the Library of Congress. Brother Roberson was a strong man. He was great in service. I have been associated with few men whom I have held in higher esteem than Brother Charles H. Roberson. Besides his wife (nee Catherine Moyers), he leaves four children. The funeral is announced to be at Abilene, Texas, at 3 p.m. on April 1. Don Morris, President of Abilene Christian College will officiate.

The greatest triumphs of the Christian are not the notable things of a material nature, but of the Spiritual, and the greatest triumph of all is a faithfulness in the hour of death, and a confidence in the realities of the glorious resurrection of the just.

LECTURES ON CATHOLICISM

G. C. Brewer will lecture on the menace of Catholicism at the Garfield Heights Church of Christ, 2842 Shelby Street, Indianapolis, Indiana, Thursday and Friday nights, April 16th and 17th. The Catholic church is strong in Indianapolis and recently has shown a militant attitude toward the church of Christ. We invite people from other states to attend these lectures.—W. L. TOTTY, 2842 Shelby Street, Indianapolis, Indiana, March 18.

GOING TO KOREA

During the last part of May I will be transferred to Korea for duty with the First Marine Division. It is, of course, most difficult to leave my wife, but aside from that I consider this but another opportunity of serving the Lord where others may not have the chance. My plans are to canvas the Division for members of the church. The Chaplain will make it possible for me, with others, to worship as we know the New Testament teaches us. I expect to preach just as I have for the past six years. In addition to work with the Marines and other members of the Armed Forces we may contact, I want to do what I can to take the gospel to the Koreans. As a member of the Fontana, California church, I shall report to the elders and I know they will provide me with whatever assistance they can. They, like other American churches, are limited in money as well as knowledge of the Korean needs. However, when I can give them a more accurate report of conditions and needs, they can make whatever facts generally known as they deem appropriate. The only general request I have is that those knowing of a member of the church serving with the First Marine Division, please send me the names and addresses immediately. Finally, the prayers of brethren are solicited, especially of those among whom I have labored.—ELVIS E. BOZARTH, Staff Sergeant, U. S. Marine Corps, Hqrs. Co., 2d Inf. Tra. Regt., Camp Pendleton, California.

Herb Swinney, Coleman, Texas: Three were baptized at Coleman this week. A 71-year old man and his wife, and a 17-year old boy made possible the happy occasion. I am told that the elderly couple's response was a result of personal work that was begun some twenty-five years ago.

Claude Robertson, Haskell, Oklahoma, March 26: I have completed my first year with the good congregation here. During the past year the church bought a preacher's home, air conditioned the auditorium and ordered new pews. We have had 72 responses to the invitation, 39 baptisms, 30 restorations and 3 to place membership. It is a pleasure to work with a happy and growing church as we have here.

M. R. Phillips, Victoria, Texas, March 29: I am in the midst of a fine meeting with the church in Electra, Texas. There have been four responses so far. A man and his good wife were baptized. Good crowds are in attendance for all services. Brother A. F. Thurman, my father in the gospel, has and is doing a great work here. He is loved by all. Pray for us and visit us in Victoria at 907 N. Cameron Street.

May God be thanked for his many blessings here.

G. W. Patterson, Weatherford, Texas, March 27: Thus far for the year there have been twelve additions. Of these, nine were baptisms, four from the Baptist church. Thanks for the power of the gospel. G. S. Westbrook, Pioneer Park, Lubbock, Texas, March 20: Dayton Keese, of Indianapolis closed our spring meeting last Lord's day. Seventeen responded to the invitation. We are beginning a $60,000 education building now. A new record of 355 was set in Bible school last Lord's day.

G. W. Patterson, 1300 North Main Street, Weatherford, Texas, March 27: Lectureship beginning as of April 12 to continue through April 19. Speakers: G. W. Patterson; Derrel Starling of Mineral Wells, Texas; Roy E. Howell of Decatur, Texas; Texas Stephens of Dallas, Texas; Leonard Mullens of Dallas, Texas; Johnny Richter of Cleburne, Texas; Wilson M. Coon of Dallas, Texas, and Leon Odom of Dallas, Texas. A cordial invitation to all. Services at 7:30 P.M. daily.

Ben West, Lampasas, Texas, March 26: One identified on the Lord's day: Two hundred nineteen at prayer Wednesday night. Next Wednesday the young men will speak on "The Requisites of a Prosperous Church." The young married men spoke last night on "Sound Doctrine." The ladies of the church are doing a fruitful service in "Zone Work." Personal evangelism keeps a church active and counts out family quarrels too. Get them too busy to start a fuss. It is one of the first lessons our parents taught us at home.

Clint Lovelady, 1833 E. 22nd Street, Merced, California: The annual Yosemite National Park Encampment is to be this year July 19-31. Brother Wm. S. Irvine of Bellflower, California, and Brother C. E. McCaughey of Springfield, Missouri, will be the evening speakers in the Church Bowl. In Camp 9 there will be a different speaker each morning and a vacation Bible School. Why not plan to spend your vacation at the Yosemite Encampment this year. The Encampment is under the direction of the Elders of the Livingston and Merced Churches of Christ.

Joseph Sherman, 709 East Third Street, Kinsley, Kansas, March 16: Yesterday I baptized a man who was seventy-two years of age. Jesus came to give light to them that sit in darkness, and in the shadow of death.

Arthur W. Francis, Jr., P. O. Box 924, Sioux City, Iowa, March 25: We would like to announce that Bill Hearn of Lipan, Texas, will help us with our spring meeting May 10-17. Brother Hearn is making plans to join us in the work in the near future. There is much to be done. Pray the Lord of harvest that he may send forth other reapers for the fields are white and the laborers are few.

R. C. Copeland, Jr., Clarendon, Texas, March 22: One restored to duty this morning. Crowds good and the contribution is about normal in spite of the prolonged drouth. The Lord willing, I shall be in a meeting with the good brethren at Boise City, Oklahoma, April 3-12. I am anticipating a good meeting for the expansion of God's kingdom and to God's glory. The Firm Foundation continues to be a very good paper. You are doing a great work in our Master's name. I have time for some more meetings in the summer.

John F. Lilly, Seagraves, Texas: Our Spring meeting came to a close last Sunday night with eight responses, two baptisms, six confessions of wrong. Marshall Davis did the preaching in this meeting. Marshall is an excellent preacher. He preaches for the Fair Grounds Road Church of Christ in San Angelo, Texas, and is doing a fine work there. They have had about forty additions there in the past eight months. The work here in Seagraves is progressing very nicely with unity prevailing. There have been fifteen baptisms, twenty-five restorations, and about twenty to place membership with this congregation since I began preaching here last September 1.

Doyle Banta, Box 205, West Helena, Arkansas, March 26: The church of Christ is now meeting in Hughes, Arkansas. Brother Porter Hogan of West Memphis, Arkansas, is doing the preaching there each Sunday morning at 10:45 and afternoon at 5:00 p.m. in the American Legion Hall. Please notify him if you know of any members living there. Not many months ago we baptized Sister Kate Cannon from Holly Grove, Arkansas. Since that time the Shiloh brethren have met with her in her home since she is in a wheel chair. Services will be conducted in her home until a better place is arranged. Please notify me if you know of members there. We are hoping this beginning will lead to a strong congregation in Holly Grove.

Basil C. Doran, P. O. Box 186, Ferris, Texas, March 16: The work of the Lord here in Ferris continues to make progress. Yesterday was a great day—not only were we blessed with large audiences, but two were restored to their first love. There are more people who are not members in attendance now than ever before in the history of the congregation. Our radio program, "The Gospel in Song," heard each Sunday morning at 8:15 over Station KGKO, 1480 kcs., is accomplishing much good. The meeting recently with the church in Italy, Texas, was a pleasant one. Brother Kenneth Free led the songs. One was restored. My next meeting is with the Church Street congregation in Mobile, Alabama—March 22nd through March 31st. Brother Paul Epps will direct the singing. When you are in this section, visit with us.

C. B. Glasgow, Box 906, San Felipe, Texas, March 26: I have been working with the church at Sealy since January and enjoying it very much. The interest is good. We have Bible classes on Sunday and an extra good class each Wednesday night. Brother E. L. Stern has been a faithful gospel minister here for more than five years. He would consider local work with a congregation near here. I have some time for meetings next summer. May the Lord bless Brother Tice Elkins and family. We are praying for them daily.

Doyle Cannon, San Antonio, Texas, March 24: The work here moves along at a fast clip with a new building in the planning stage and about ready to be launched. During the first ten months that I have labored with the Government Hill congregation there have been 117 responses also we have shattered our record contributions three times. We have organized our classes and instituted a teacher training program that tends to make our teachers much more efficient. A new ladies' class has been started with much interest manifest. So it seems as the elders tell me, that we are doing better than ever before. To the Lord be all the praise. When in San Antonio, won't you stop and worship with us?

Grover C. Ross, 613 W. Fourth Street, Portales, New Mexico, May 25: C. E. McGaughy of Springfield, Missouri, assisted us in an eight-day meeting which resulted in 25 baptisms and 14 restorations. We have never had better interest or larger crowds to attend a meeting. The church on West Fourth is working in harmony and has great zeal and love for the cause of Christ. This congregation (500) is supporting two full-time preachers, the Bible Chair at the E.N.M.U. with the assistance of other state churches, and spending approximately $1000 on radio per year, some mission work also. We are now working toward an Orphans' Home toward which 80 acres of land valued at $25,000 was given in January. We have $5200 in cash toward the $25,000 in cash we want to raise this year. When in Portales, you are invited to worship with us.

Ira Y. Rice, Sr., Norman, Oklahoma, March 26: I am engaged in conducting a song drill for the Northside church in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Brother I. C. Nance is the efficient minister for this congregation. We are having a very fine interest in the school. I close there Sunday, and the Lord willing, I shall begin a school in Chickasha, Oklahoma, next Monday night for the congregation where Brother Waldo Proffitt is the faithful minister. Success to the Firm Foundation and its staff, also to the readers of this good paper.

Robert A. Bolton, Box 245, Lometa, Texas, March 19: The Bible-School of the Air, a radio broadcast of the gospel, supported by the churches of Christ in Lometa, Star, and Lake Victor, and conducted by Robert A. Bolton of Lometa under the oversight of the Lometa elders, can now be heard in Central Texas over Station KCYL, Lampasas, 1450 on the dial, each day, Monday through Friday at 1:00 P.M. This is in addition to the weekly Sunday morning broadcast of the hour of worship heard at 10:45 A.M. over the same station. We thank God for this unusual opportunity of sowing the seed of the kingdom and pray that we may not become weary in well doing, but press on toward the goal.

Earl D. Mansur, Sr., 1926 S. 13th St., Chickasha, Oklahoma, March 16: We want to thank all the fine preachers who have written us since the first of February, regarding the work at Sixteenth and Florida and advise them that we have secured the services of Brother Ted B. Underwood, Jr., to begin April 1st. The preaching has been carried on the past several Sundays by our home forces and will be the remainder of March. Yesterday, we baptized the husband of one of our faithful sisters. Brother Lido Petrini, whom we are supporting in Italy, reports that he is able to do a great deal of preaching and personal work in spite of his being in the army. We would welcome any visitors traveling through Chickasha to worship with us. Brother L. R. Wilson will assist us in a meeting April 29 through May 10.

Elton D. Dilbeck, 1335 Granada Drive, New Orleans 22, Louisiana, March 18: Since we began our work with the Carrollton Avenue church on February 1, sixteen have been added to the membership. Interest in all phases of our work is good and we are finding the brethren ready and willing to do everything for a greater work in this great metropolis. We meet for worship at Carrollton Avenue and Palmyra Street, midway between Canal and Tulane Streets on Carrollton. A premillennial group meets in another section of our city. I trust all who plan to visit our city this year will notice our address and worship with us during their stay here. I am to preach in a meeting at Clarksville, Arkansas, March 23-April 1.

G. S. Westbrook, Box 486, Lubbock, Texas, March 23: Two were baptized last Lord's day. One was a former Presbyterian. Two were restored and one was identified. This makes 23 responses the last two Lord's days, and several more are expected right away. The elders have worked out a more systematic way of doing personal work and are getting excellent cooperation from the membership. We are trying to have every member at work. We are beginning a new educational building, a two-story annex, about 90 feet long. This will greatly enhance our Bible school work. I am to be in a meeting with the Brykerwood church in Austin, May 4-13, the Lord willing. Mac Bartee is the very fine evangelist there. June 1-10, my home congregation, Pioneer Park, in Lubbock, is sending me for a mission effort in Durango, Colorado. Why not plan your vacation there at that time and give us a boost in this meeting?

Cecil Allen, Box 50, Plains, Texas, March 16: We have just concluded a meeting of one week with Brother Luther Roberts of Corsicana, Texas, preaching. This meeting was furnished us by the church at Spur, Texas, Brother Fred McGinty, and Mrs. Oscar McGinty. We are indeed grateful to them. Had fine interest throughout, four baptized and one restored. The church has only been planted in Plains about six months. The future is very bright here. We are about to purchase lots for a building. Our immediate need is a building. At present we are meeting in the court house. We have to drive, at present, sixty-four miles to baptize anyone and this is proving a hindrance to our work. When we buy the lots, we won't have any money to build. Won't some of the congregations and brethren who read this come over into Plains and help us? If we can get a start, we will borrow the balance. If we had to borrow the full amount, we could not meet the payments now. Any contribution, no matter how small or large, will help and we will acknowledge all help received.

DEAN BROOKSHIRE MOVES TO LUBBOCK

M. Norvel Young

Sunday, May 17th, Brother Dean Brookshire of the Ninth and Columbia church in Plainview begins a new work with the new Sunset congregation in Lubbock, located at 34th and Memphis. Brother Brookshire attended Freed-Hardeman College and has continued his study privately and by correspondence courses. He has been in local work since 1940 having worked at Monument, Lovington and Carlsbad, New Mexico, and at Slaton and Plainview, Texas. He has been in Plainview for six years. In that time the church there has doubled in number of members and has been doing from $12,000 to $20,000 per year of mission work. They have taken the lead in conducting an annual West Texas Singing Normal. Last year they established another congregation in Plainview.

Brother Brookshire has done work in gospel meetings in Texas, New Mexico, California, Idaho, Colorado and Vermont. His family consists of Sister Brookshire and two adopted sons, Herbert, 6 and Dudley, 4.

The Sunset congregation began in May of 1952 and has grown consistently. They are building the first permanent unit of their church building and will be worshipping in it soon. Christians in the other ten congregations in Lubbock as well as the faithful congregation at 34th and Memphis rejoice to welcome the Brookshires to this city. The Lord has blessed our community with a splendid spirit of unity and brotherly love. Brother Brookshire's coming will mean much to the growth of the kingdom in this area. Visitors will find a warm welcome in this congregation.

A. P. Henthorn, 1409 W. Park St., Dodge City, Kansas, March 25: Since your visit with me in Ogden, Utah, I began a series of evangelistic meetings in the northwest but I became too sick at Wells, Nevada, and the doctor advised against my continuing the work. After two sessions in the hospital I am again in good health and I have a desire to assist needy congregations that want to work. I will make my home in Dodge City, Kansas. Any congregation near enough may contact me at this address.

I. D. Ames, Cassville, Missouri, March 25: I want to tell the readers of the Firm Foundation who assisted the brethren at Carterville, Missouri, in building their meeting house that the financial assistance was deeply appreciated. They now have a nice commodious house, nicely arranged and well heated, and entirely paid for. These brethren made a real sacrifice. I have just closed a meeting there. Brother and Sister Scott are to be given much credit for this work and I am sure that there will be great good accomplished in the future by the good people who constitute this congregation. My meeting was well attended. There were at least six preachers from the surrounding congregations and every congregation in those parts was represented for which we are very thankful. Pray for the success of the work at Carterville, Missouri.

Max T. Neel, Waco, Texas, March 17: We were greatly encouraged last Lord's day by the fact that we set a new high in Bible class attendance with 375, and had the largest evening audience for a regular service we have ever had. We had three baptized, including one active Baptist. In a recent meeting of the elders, it was decided to add an annex to our Bible school rooms to accommodate our increasing attendance, as we plan to begin having two worship services on Lord's day mornings soon, and will need the extra space all the more. The elders who were insistently solicited, agreed to take the sponsorship of Brother Dale Pittman and his family as they return to Italy this summer to work in Bologna, and with the help of other congregations who want to have a part in this fine work, will support them. We take courage at the forward movement of the church everywhere! The Lord willing, I will be with the church at Ennis March 23 to April 1 in a gospel meeting. Pray for us!

Jesse Brookshire, Box 273, Morton, Texas, March 14: The nine months we have spent working with the church here has been most pleasant and profitable for the cause of Christ. During that time we have had twenty-eight responses to the invitation: eleven by baptism, ten restorations, and seven to place membership. The first of the year the elders submitted the largest budget in the history of the congregation, and we have gone over it every Lord's day. We are helping in the support of Brother Ceoll Allen at Plains, Texas, and are supporting Brother Juan Garcia, Deleacias, Mexico, with the assistance of Granite, Oklahoma, and Bogata, Texas. Numbers are faithful at all the services now who were not regular and interest is at an all time high. We have broken all previous records in Bible study attendance and broke them again last Sunday with 190 present for Bible study. C. M. Moser begins a meeting with us March 22, and Wilburn Whittington will be with us August 10th. A Vacation Bible School is planned for the first of June. I am in a meeting at Bula, with one baptism thus far. I go next to Maple April 19-26. When coming this way, worship with us.

VITAL MESSAGE ON RUSSIANS

"Where there is no vision, the people perish." Prov. 29:18.

Anyone who says that the Bible cannot be gotten to the Russians is playing in the hands of communists who do not want the Bible to reach the Russian people. How stupid are those who assert that because king Saul could not kill Goliath, that no one else could do it either. When years ago Russia was closed to the Gospel, and everybody said: "Nothing can be done," the Russian Bible Society printed and spread 81,000 Bibles. With God there are no Red Seas which cannot be crossed by faith.

While others are doubting, the Russian Bible Society is again getting ready its Bible sling to shoot at the communist Goliath. Through the ministry of Pastor Malof, the exiled Russian Church leader and President of the Russian Bible Society, more souls have been converted to Christ on the Russian mission fields than through any other human instrument. He has been called the Martin Luther and John Wesley of Russia. The well known Christian leader, Colonel F. J. Miles, the former chief Chaplain of the Australian armed forces, has recently stated:

"I am constrained to write you praising God and congratulating you on your great achievement in making the Bible available to the Russian races. That there is a greater demand than ever among Slavs for the inerrant, infallible and inspired Word, makes this issue the more important. Of the multiplicity of ministries which our Lord has privileged you to initiate, in my judgment, this last seems fraught with greater possibilities than anyone that has preceded it; to which end I am confident that God will grant His abundant blessing."—F. J. Miles.

The Russian Bible Society deserves the most liberal support of all Bible loving people. For $2.00 one Bible can be printed, for $100 fifty, and for $1,000 five hundred Bibles. Donations may be addressed to the Russian Bible Society, Inc., P. O. Box 2709, Washington, D. C. The opportunity is great, and the need most urgent.

V. E. Howard, 1128 Commerce Highway, Greenville, Texas, March 24: I am now in a good meeting with the church in Guymon, Oklahoma. Jimmy Campbell is the local evangelist. Recently concluded meetings with the Diamond Hill church in Ft. Worth, Texas, where Neal Marshall is regular minister, and with the church in Rayville, Louisiana, where Wendell Winkler is the local evangelist. Ten additions in previous meetings. Next I shall be with the church in Monroe, Louisiana, April 3-12. Following this I shall be with the church in Bastrop, Louisiana, April 19-30, and with the church in St. Jo, Texas, May 1-10.

D. B. A. Tate, Larned, Kansas, Box 589, near Great Bend, Kansas: A debate between Curtis Porter, Monette, Arkansas, and John Causey, Missionary Baptist, was held at Wichita, Kansas, March 24-27, inclusive. The general church question was discussed. Curtis Porter represented the church of Christ, a great, honest, and professional thinker. When Curtis Porter affirmed the church of the Lord, John Causey of Little Rock was so completely disturbed he had no place to go. He did admit he was under pressure. Porter's scholarship and knowledge of the New Testament bewildered John Causey in such a way that the Baptists of Little Rock, Arkansas, and Wichita, Kansas, should feel the deepest regret for representing a Missionary Baptist church foreign and unknown to John the Baptist, Christ, the apostles, and the Bible; for John the Baptist, Christ, the apostles, knew nothing of a Baptist church of any kind and Porter ably showed by the Bible, history, and John Causey (Causey putting his own private interpretation on every scripture) that the Baptist churches of any kind are a total fraud, unknown to the Lord. There is not a Baptist of any kind (about 16 kinds) in America, that can establish or defend a Baptist church in the presence of Curtis Porter. The church of the Lord today must rid itself of an inferiority complex with a lot of its members, and meet and uproot those plans (denominations of every kind) and let the truth purify the hearts of men. The church needs to be on the offensive, recognizes nobody unless called out and trained by the Lord through the word regardless of first, second or third Baptists, or any other denomination set up by man.

W. Woodrow Allen, Kearney, Nebraska, March 20: I am starting a trip among the churches early in April to tell of the work here in Nebraska. We have information on all the churches in the state, along with colored slides of several of the buildings we have. We have two purposes in this trip: one, to acquaint the brotherhood with the great need for preachers, buildings, teachers, etc., in Nebraska and the north central states; two, to ask your help in our local building program. It is our belief that we have neglected the work in Nebraska long enough. And we believe, further, that the brethren are just as interested in preaching the gospel to the people of our own land as to those across the oceans. We will not be guiltless in the day of judgment if we continue to neglect the millions in our own land. I plan to attend the Central Christian College lectures and may be contacted there. If you would like to know more of the work and if your congregation would like to hear our story, I will be glad to come your way. I may also be contacted by writing Brother Frank L. Smith, 645 North Union, Shawnee, Oklahoma. The church in Shawnee, along with the church in Seminole, Oklahoma, has supported the work here from the beginning, and Shawnee is sending $500.00 to our building fund. Let me hear from you soon.

John W. Hedge, Representative

Murfreesboro, Tennessee, resulted in eight baptisms. Our audiences were the largest and interest the highest of any meeting here in recent years. Our building for the downtown church at 118 E. Jefferson Street is filled to capacity again. The new congregation in Holden Heights with Jerry Belchick as the preacher, continues to grow at a rapid rate. Three were baptized there by Brother Belchick yesterday. H. A. Fincher of the East Point congregation in Atlanta, Georgia, preached in a fine meeting with them a few weeks ago. Two were baptized and one restored during the meeting and five have been baptized in the four weeks since the meeting was concluded. The radio program over WORZ continues at 7:00 A.M., Monday through Friday. WORZ is 740 on the dial.

Gordon L. Downing, Floydada, Texas, March 23: I have humbly accepted the invitation of the City Park Church of Christ at Floydada to work with them and am looking forward to a profitable work for the Lord here. The opportunity is unlimited; the facilities are fine with a wonderful new auditorium and educational building, a radio program each Lord's day and a splendid group of interested Christians to co-labor with in the Lord's work. We are zealously looking forward to this work. Our work has gotten under way in a wonderful way with two baptisms the first Lord's day we were here and one baptized last night. We are humbly grateful and thankful to God for the wonderful harvest that he is giving in the beginning of the work here. Pray for us that the church might go on to greater heights than ever before for the glory and honor of God. I follow Brother George Darling here.

Luther Savage, Box 694, Magnolia, Arkansas, March 28: The church in Magnolia has just completed a lectureship in which there were speakers from four states. Murray Marshall from Frederick, Oklahoma, spoke on the subject, Necessary Attitudes in Profitable Bible Study." Gus Farmer from Terrell, Texas, spoke on the subjects, "A Renewed Mind," and "The Lost Part of the Great Commission." Aubrey Miller from Plain Dealing, Louisiana, spoke on the subject of "Humility." Plato Black from Stephens, Arkansas, spoke on "God's Plan." Robert G. Cook from Hope, Arkansas, led the singing for the first half of the lectureship and Vernon C. Porter of Magnolia, Arkansas, led the singing during the last half. Our building could not accommodate the people who wanted to hear.

J. B. Hudson, George West, Texas, March 17: Brother Byrl Brockman, formerly of Luling, is now associated with us in the great work of preaching the gospel of God's dear Son. Both Brother Brockman and I will be supported full time in this work by the George West church. While his work will be principally with the Spanish speaking people and mine with the English speaking, we will assist each other whenever possible. We anticipate a pleasant and fruitful work. There have been two responses to the invitation recently. One was baptized and one restored. Brother Gordon Teel of Pasadena will be with us in a gospel meeting April 13-22. Those in this vicinity are invited to attend. I am well into my sixth year with this congregation and in my humble opinion the work is in a healthy condition with bright promises for the future. We solicit the prayers of the faithful everywhere.

"Debate Notes." By James R. Cope. Mimeographed Materials. Temple Terrace, Tampa, Fla. $1.50. 1951.

An invaluable production, and one that every gospel preacher and Bible Student ought to have, is this set of notes by the President of Florida Christian College. These notes were prepared during the spring and summer of 1948 for a discussion held between L. H. Brown and James R. Cope. Mr. Brown is a Missionary Baptist. The material is gleaned from about ten debates by outstanding men, and then various other works were inspected in preparation thereof. A more thorough or painstaking work never came under this scribe's observation than this. It is well organized with argument and answer given. The material is mimeographed, but ought to be published for permanent record and use. The regular topics are dealt with such as The Establishment of the Church, Salvation by Faith Only, Baptism for Remission of Sins, and Apostasy.

We commend this preparation to a wider reading audience. It is our understanding that the supply is somewhat limited—not too many left. So it might be to the interest of our readers to make this a "must" on their next book purchase.

In 1946 a new "Revision" or "New Translation" came from the press, prepared by a committee of nine. This book's thesis deals with the question of what this production actually was—A Revision or a New Translation. The contention of the author is that it is a misnomer to call the Revised Standard Version a "revision".

Dr. Allis has taught in Princeton and Westminster Theological Seminary. Since 1929 he has been an Associate Editor, new Editorial Correspondent, of the Evangelical Quarterly (Edinburgh). He is the author of such works as "The Five Books of Moses", Bible Numerics, and Prophecy and the Church.

The present volume is a scholarly production and deserves more than mere reading—it lends itself to real study. It will prick the ears of any student. He develops his thesis along the line of "Idioms", "Words and Their Meanings", "The Word Order in Translation", "Form", and then closes with Dogmatism and Inconsistency in Translation. The last chapter deals with the question of: "Is the Revised Standard Version" a "Liberal" Version?

Our readers will find profit in this for an evaluation of the growingly popular "Revised Standard Version". Order your copy from the Firm Foundation, Box 77, Austin, Texas.

Perry B. Cotham, 625 Lamar Avenue, Paris, Texas, March 27: It was my privilege to again be with the church in McAlester, Oklahoma, in a meeting which closed Wednesday night. This was one of the best meetings in the history of the church, so the brethren said. Twenty-eight came in response to the invitation, eighteen for baptism. One was a Methodist lady eighty-two years old. One was from the Nazarene church. Two were restored from the Christian Church. The balcony was used several times to seat the people. New records were made in both class attendance and contributions. Alstone Tabor is now in his fourth year with the church and is well loved by all. He is certainly doing a splendid work. Fine men serve as elders and deacons. D. A. Kirk preaches for the North McAlester congregation. The cooperation from there was splendid. Last night I spoke at Durant, Oklahoma, on their lectureship. O. J. Russell is doing a good work there and the church is making rapid progress. I am to be in meetings at Duncan, Oklahoma, Oak & A Streets, April 6-15, and Clarksville, Texas, April 19-29. James Baird, Dean of Central Christian College, Bartlesville, Oklahoma, preached at Lamar Avenue last Sunday. Both services were broadcast over our local station, KPLT. John H. Banister, of Dallas, preaches in our meeting, May 3-10.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Circumstances

The writer who said, "Circumstances make the man" did not tell all the truth. It is no less true that man makes the circumstances. It is not unusual for people to make their adverse circumstances an excuse for not doing anything, or for doing the wrong thing. One man is poor, so he can't give to the support of the church. Another man is so prosperous that he hasn't time to go to church. Nearly all excuses are lies based upon circumstances that the people themselves are responsible for.

Peter was in a bad situation when he denied Christ, but he did not have to be there. He followed the Lord "afar off" that night, and got into the wrong crowd. When he saw that circumstances were against him, he denied the Lord. Lot was not compelled to live in Sodom. He was there by his own choice. He chose the wrong circumstances in which to live, which ruined his life and destroyed his family.

No one can escape circumstances. But circumstances have two handlers, and men often get hold of the wrong one. Hard circumstances that ruin one man may make another person better. Some men are made strong by resisting temptation. Others go down in defeat.

God does not ignore circumstances in making a man what he ought to be. Moses could not become a true servant of God in the court of Pharaoh. Circumstances forced him to forsake Egypt and take up life in the desert of Arabia, where he saw the burning bush and heard the voice of God. Moses did not bemoan the loss of the throne of Egypt, but apparently found great satisfaction as a humble herder of sheep in the desert. Moses possessed a diversity of characteristics, that made him master of all circumstances. Paul attributes the lofty living of Moses to his unfounded faith in God.

The Judgment Day

In the life of man there are many important days, but none of such tremendous significance as the day designated in the Scriptures as the judgment day. To people who knew not God, Paul made this statement, "And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent: because he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead" (Acts 17:30, 31).

There are many dangers from which man can escape by his own wisdom and skill, but no one can escape death and the judgment. If a criminal is sentenced to die, he may find some ground on which to get a new hearing or appeal to a higher tribunal, but there are no such provisions in the law of God. God's judgment settles man's destiny for eternity.

All men need to use more wisdom in learning of the way of the Lord revealed in the Bible. The Bible is not just a Book of suggestions for better living—it is a Book of positive commandments backed by the authority and power of God. Man is not going to be judged by any standard but the Bible. The man who goes by his own conscience misses the mark. Those who live by human creeds will be found wanting. Only those who square their lives by the word of God will hear the Master say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

The Located Preacher

J. W. Roberts

A copy of a new paper, "Bible Talk," published by Brother Leroy Garrett, has been given to me, and I should like to make a few comments on it. This paper has been started, seemingly, to propagate Brother Garrett's peculiar idea against what is usually called the "located" preacher. Leroy is a friend and former classmate of mine; he held these views when I knew him intimately. We were once "rival candidates" during our school days for the place of the "located preacher" of one of the local churches in Abilene. I never have thought any less of him because he won out and gained the distinction. But I did think him as inconsistent at the time as I think he is wrong now in his contention.

Brother Garrett does not simply attack the abuses of the practice under question, but thinks the matter wrong in principle. He quotes on the cover page of the February number of his paper a statement by Brother Fuqua which says: "The idea that each congregation needs 'a preacher' in its pulpit continuously is a wrong idea. There is not an example in the New Testament where an inspired man ever 'stood in one pulpit' from Sunday to Sunday, and preached to the same people, on much the same subject. Preachers 'went about preaching' to those who were unsaved. The elders stayed at home and taught the congregation, or developed it in the gospel work. Though Paul and Timothy were stationed for some time with a congregation, there is no evidence that either of them 'preached regularly' for the congregation. I believe that such a practice is unscriptural."

The following statement is made (page 68) by Brother Garrett: "The two main Greek words for 'preach are kerusso and euangelizein. A third word, katangellein (announce), can also be translated preach. These words appear in the New Testament about 125 times. They never mean teach and are never so translated. These words are used when the gospel message was known to a sinner. Never are these words used in the context of teaching the church.

"Never, never, never do you find Paul or any other New Testament minister preaching to a church. Why? Because it is an impossibility. The word for preach means to announce, to proclaim good news, to herald. The church has already heard the good news . . . (it ceases) to be news once they heard it. So Paul may well say, 'As I teach in every church' (1 Cor. 4:17), but never, 'As I preach in every church.'"

Brother Leroy is not very complimentary of his brethren who are guilty of trying to "preach to the church." He calls them a bunch of "hirelings," who do not "dare face" the facts of his arguments. He thinks paying the preacher or giving him gifts, as he calls it, violates Deut. 19:16 (Shades of Col. 2:14-16!) and "puts the preacher under obligation to the church and the salary seals his lips and perverts his words." He complains that some churches do nothing but pay a preacher and buy a building. "Besides these pastors do not know much. They are a hindrance rather than a help. Let them get some honest work and quit being religious racketeers" (page 79).

If we grant that he is right in the contention that the word evangelize means primarily to announce something new, does his conclusion follow? Does one hearing of the fundamentals of the gospel exhaust the possibility of learning something new? Does not teaching the church and grounding them in the truth often afford opportunity to announce the facts anew to those who visit, who may lately have reached the age of accountability, or who may be lately won to a sympathetic hearing of the gospel? If Paul could stay three years (Acts 20:25) in one place and tell members of the church that he had been going about among them "preaching" why cannot one do so today?

But I am not so sure that these words are so limited in their connotation. Paul used the word angellos of his "declaring the things profitable" to the church ("you" e.g., the elders at Melitus, Acts 20:20). John used the compound verb anaggello of the things which he "announced" in the epistle of 1 John (1:5) to those who were members of the church. These things they most certainly must have already known. Paul, Silas, and Timothy had preached (kerusso) Christ "among" the church (humois) at Corinth (2 Cor. 1:19). Timothy was located at Ephesus (1 Tim. 1:3) long after that church had been supplied with elders (Acts 20:17, 28, etc.), and he was told to "do the work of an evangelist" (ergon poisson euangelistou) and to "preach the word" (kerukson ton logon) (2 Tim. 4:ff). Yet his work certainly lay with the church. The purpose of the letters written to him while there was to show him how "men ought to behave themselves in the house of God, which is the church of the living God . . ." (1 Tim. 3:15). He is told to put his instructions "before brethren" (1 Tim. 4:6); to command and teach (1 Tim. 4:11); to "attend to public reading, to preaching (RSV), and to teaching" (1 Tim. 4:13); to "take heed to his teaching" and give himself "wholly" to such matters (1 Tim. 4:15, 16); as the Lord's servant he is to be apt to teach (2 Tim. 2:4). Here is such a co-mingling of the terms preach, teach, exhort, and evangelize that it is ridiculous to make separation of areas and spheres of work purely on the basis of the etymology of the word evangelize. What difference does it make whether a man's preaching to alien sinners is in the role of an evangelist and his exhorting Christians is in the role of a teacher so long as it is admitted that both works are combined in one man, laboring at the same time and at the same place?

This very fact is proved by Brother Garrett's own text that Paul "taught in every church" (1 Cor. 4:17). According to his contention, Paul had no business teaching in the churches; he should have known that that was the exclusive work of the elders of all these churches and that he should have been out preaching where "no man had laid a foundation." Brother Garrett's idea would not only make it unscriptural to "build upon another man's foundation," but would also make it unscriptural for him even to build upon his own foundation.

Someone called his attention to the fact that Paul preached to the church at Troas (Acts 20:7). But he "takes this away" from the "hirelings" by attempting to prove that the word dialogomai, translated "preach," does not mean to preach. He says he will take back all he has said if it can be shown that "Paul ever preached to a church" (page 69). But hear him: ". . . Paul did not really preach to those brethren, for the word there is dialogomai rather than one of the words that mean preach. The RSV corrects the King James' error with: 'Paul talked with them.' The American says: 'Paul discoursed with them.' The word means 'to interchange talk.' It was more a 'round-table' than a sermon at Troas" (page 68).

Despite the fact that some "authorities" are quoted to prove his points, I say Leroy has not ascertained the facts of the case. The word dialogomai does sometimes mean to argue among a group. It is so used in Mark 9:34 of a group arguing over a matter which no one of them understood. It was also the regular word at Athens for dialogue in which a teacher preached his theories by drawing out facts by questioning his audience. But E. L. Hicks has shown in an article (Classical Review, I, page 45), that the regular meaning in the New Testament is (except Mark 9:34) "always used of addressing, preaching, lecturing," a use he shows to be the ordinary meaning in the Koine as shown by the inscriptions. So also Moulton-Milligan, Vocabulary of the Greek New Testament.

A simple look at the passages where it is used in the New Testament would have saved embarrassment on this point. When Paul "reasoned" (dialogomenou) before Felix "of righteousness, self-control, and judgment to come" (Acts 24:25), does Brother Garrett think it was a "round-table"? The same word is used of Paul's sermons in the synagogue at Thessalonica for three sabbaths (Acts 17:2). At Athens (Acts 17:17) the same word describes his preaching in the synagogue in that city and in the market place. But this same "reasoning" (v. 17) is called "preaching" (kataggelegen) and "preaching the gospel" (euangelizeto) about "Jesus and the resurrection" in verse 18. Other uses of the word will be found in Acts 18:4 (at Corinth); in Acts 18:19 (for three months in the synagogue at Ephesus); and in Acts 19:9 (for two years in the school of Tyrannus). Were these speeches to the synagogues just "round-tables" or "seminars"? The reader will see from Acts 13:14 just what kind of services and sermons was usually given at such times. What Paul did at Troas was preaching, then. Now will he take back all he has said?

I think that these matters show that the contention of Brother Garrett is basically wrong. Brother Leroy's ability and training deserve better things than the use to which he is putting them. In another article I hope to examine the practical application of this matter. Taylor, Texas.

CHARLES HEBER ROBERSON

A Few Lines From Among The Many Who Mourn His Loss

Charles Heber Roberson

Brother Charles Heber Roberson, Sr., 74, one of the founders and first faculty members of Abilene Christian College, died at the family residence, 1618 College Drive, at 3 a.m., Monday, March 30.

He had been ill a year and confined to bed the past month.

Funeral services were held at 3 p.m., Wednesday, April 1, in the College Church of Christ, Abilene, with Don H. Morris, president of ACC, in charge.

Burial, under the direction of Elliott's Funeral Home, was in the family plot at Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Survivors are his wife; two daughters, Mrs. John W. Holton of Washington, D.C., and Mrs. Paul Rotenberry of Searcy, Arkansas; two sons, James A. Roberson of Abilene, and Charles H. Roberson, Jr., of Anson; six grandchildren; one brother, H. Leland Roberson of Fort Walton, Florida; one aunt, Mrs. Emma Finley of Marshall; and two cousins, Dr. John A. Roberson of Levelland and Chelsey Roberson of Ostella, Tennessee.

Seven children were born to the Robersons, but two died in infancy at Terrell, and a son, Henry, was killed while serving as a pilot during World War II.

Brother Roberson was born February 28, 1879, at Robersonville, North Carolina, the old family home. He was the son of Betty Bullock and James Baker Roberson.

Early in his life, the family moved to Tennessee, where he received part of his public school education.

Later he attended Georgia Robertson Christian College, now Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tennessee, receiving his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1901 and his Master of Arts in 1902 with a major in Greek and Latin. During the next four years he taught in the public schools of Tennessee.

In the fall of 1906 when Abilene Christian College was opened, Brother Roberson was one of the first faculty members. He had spent the summer before traveling over Texas with then President A. B. Barret trying to arouse support and interest in the new school they expected to establish. When the doors of the school opened in the fall there were about 100 students and nine teachers.

For 45 years Brother Roberson was closely related to the development of Christian colleges, during which time he had a vital part in starting and developing five of them.

After teaching two years in Childers Classical Institute, the original name of ACC, he moved to Southwestern Christian College at Denton. The school was in difficult circumstances and closed its doors in 1909.

This same year, again joining hands with A. B. Barret, he opened Clebarro Christian College at Cleburne. This school struggled financially about eight years and with the beginning of World War I it went out of business.

Roberson then taught one term in Thorp Spring Christian College, until he decided to enter school again.

In 1918 he entered the Graduate School of Texas Christian University, and while working on an advanced degree he also taught physics and chemistry in the university.

The year 1919 saw Brother Roberson enter upon his work as professor of Bible in the University of Texas Bible Chair maintained by churches of Christ. For nine years he worked in Austin and took all the Greek and Hebrew courses the university then offered. He also taught some classes in mathematics in the university during this period.

In 1928 Brother Roberson moved to Terrell to teach in Texas Christian College. This school had been moved to Terrell from Thorp Spring and its name changed, but due to the depression years it finally had to close its doors.

Once more Brother Roberson joined an old associate, James F. Cox, then president of Abilene Christian College, on the Abilene campus. He was made head of the Bible department in 1932, a position he held until his retirement in 1951.

Brother Roberson was not only busy through the years in teaching, but also in writing and doing research in religious fields. He is the author of many books and pamphlets, but perhaps his best known work is the book entitled, "What Jesus Taught," published in 1930. Most recently he had been engaged in research into the meaning and derivation of the word "psallo."

Brother Roberson was married in 1909 to Katherine Moyers of Ferris, Texas.

He entered the ministry more than 40 years ago and had been active in the church many years prior to that. He held his first revival meeting in 1908 in Bell County, Texas.

However, he was never a regular minister of a congregation. His preaching was mostly by appointment. At one time or another, he had spoken in most of the states of the United States and had traveled throughout Texas dozens of times.

He was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws degree by ACC in 1940.—WALTER E. BURCH.

Charles Heber Roberson

By the church and especially those people who love Christian schools, the name of Charles Heber Roberson has been respected for almost a half-century. He was a friend of my family and one of the men who meant most to me for nearly that long.

I remember the first time I ever saw him and heard him. He had come to the little rural congregation at DeSoto to preach, over 40 years ago. In those days the preacher usually had to introduce himself. In doing so, I remember that he said, "I am a North Carolinian by birth, a Tennessean by adoption, and a Texan by choice."

His preaching, as his teaching, impressed the community profoundly. It was definite and full of faith. One sermon was on this subject, "I Know I'm Right and I Can't Be Wrong"; and so he proclaimed the plea of the restoration. I watched and listened as his teaching restored my father to the church, and when he led an uncle, A. B. Morris' father, down into the waters of Ten Mile Creek and baptized him.

With me, there are many today, here and in other places, who would like to express words of love and personal appreciation for what Brother Roberson has meant in their lives.

He was one of those first young men and women who came to Abilene 47 years ago to establish Abilene Christian College. During the two years he and A. E. Barret were here, they drove among the ranches and towns of West Texas telling of a school with the Bible as its curriculum center, enlisting patronage and support.

We can hardly understand the discouragement that must have come, how determined they were, and what price they paid. After two years, it was Southwestern Christian College for a year, then Clebarro at Cleburne for eight years, then Thorp Spring Christian College, the University Bible Chair, Texas Christian College at Terrell, and then back for the last twenty-one years with his first love at Abilene Christian College.

But it was always the same dream, the same purpose, the same faith; and it was a work that brought forth much fruit. He taught literally thousands. His boys, now hundreds of them preaching throughout the earth, and his girls, as he said, were his jewels. And today, wherever they are, they stand with uncovered heads and call his name blessed—and they pass on his teaching of the Master from generation to generation. Four of his former students today will hold a memorial service in Philadelphia. Others are speaking publicly of his life. Dozens have sent messages.

His teaching was exact and remarkably correct, as was his storehouse of knowledge. Once he saw me with some literature on George Washington. He said, "All of that will tell you that George Washington was an Episcopalian, but if you will go to the library, in a certain book, on a certain page, you will find that General Washington was baptized by a Baptist chaplain named Gano during the Revolutionary War." It was there on the page as he had said.

Others of you remember similar experiences. Even to the last it was so. In January this year, the President of a Christian college in another state wrote him to ask the meaning of a Greek passage in the New Testament. Brother Roberson wrote back in four lines of longhand, but the inquirer said to me later, "He told me exactly what I asked for."

And yet his teaching, though exact and detailed, had the rare quality of emphasizing principle and the rarer quality of inspiring students. His impressions upon his students were lasting. Almost everywhere I have gone, especially during the last year, those who had been his students have asked, "How is Brother Roberson?" and then each would say, "I'm going to write him and tell him how much he has meant to me." Scores of them did write.

Many of his students, perhaps some from each school where he taught, are here today.

But probably the greatest thing about Brother Roberson was the everlasting principles by which he lived.

He believed in the fundamentals—they guided his life. He gave himself purely to them. Even his language was pure, always dressed in dignity with not even the spot of a by-word.

He was guided by loyalty to whatever he believed was right. A peaceful man, he was not afraid of controversy. Once at a meeting, a man in error on a point issued a challenge for discussion. Brother Roberson stood up and said in a quiet, firm way, "I accept that challenge." Almost as it was when the Master wrote in the sand the challenger and his friends left and have not been heard of since.

His loyalty to ideals was what prompted him and his family to give himself unselfishly to his work for nearly half a century.

Another characteristic was his unfailing respect for authority. He believed in being subject to every ordinance of man or the Lord. But, always supreme were the laws of God. Along with these fixed affections was a humility, almost a timidity, that many did not know, and a sympathy and kindness for all people, and especially students.

But above all in the life of Brother Roberson was his absolute faith. Here he stood and here he made his decisions. It was faith in God, faith in Christ as his Son, and faith in the Bible as his book. He struck out against anything that would turn mankind from this path; and he gave his life of teaching that others might believe as he did.

In 1951 his fellow teachers wrote—"We esteem your nobility of bearing, your conviction of principle, your profound loyalty to truth, and your Christian dignity. We shall always remember your pronouncement of the one cardinal fact—'Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God.'"—DON H. MORRIS.

As I Knew Him

It is with mingled joy and sadness that I add my brief word in memory and honor of my old-time friend, teacher and brother in Christ, Charles H. Roberson. Truly a prince and a great man of God has fallen.

When I reached Abilene to become one of the first students of then Childers Classical Institute (now Abilene Christian College) November 1, 1906 (just fifty days after the opening of the first session), nearly 47 years ago, I first met Charles H. Roberson. He was my beloved teacher the first two years of the school, and parts of two years at Clebarro College, Cleburne, Texas, 1909-1911; and I have known him and his family quite intimately through the years. At all times he has been a great personal friend and safe counsellor of mine. I appraise his true greatness as follows:

1. His personal appearance was always attractive because of the neatness and personal taste in his dress.
2. In his manners, both as a public speaker and in his private life, he was most princely and dignified. I never saw him any other way. I remember with much interest and a definite profit the many earnest and impressive "chapel talks" on the old campus. Those character-building talks helped materially in laying the firm foundation upon which Abilene Christian College now so solidly stands.
3. As a teacher, Brother Roberson had few equals, both as to scholarship and the ability to impart his great storehouse of knowledge to his students. Although he was kind and courteous to his students, yet he required thorough preparation and a definite, clear recitation.
4. His real character was impressively exemplified in his willingness and cheerfulness in the tremendous sacrifices that he made as a Christian, as a gospel preacher, and as a co-founder and first teacher in Abilene Christian College. The first two years of the school it was necessary for Brother Barret to sell real estate in order to help pay teachers; and I am certain, from his small salary, Brother Roberson wrote checks to help pay me as the custodian of the building, and always without a frown or a word of complaint. It required men of faith, good men, yes, great men, to pay the price of service and sacrifice that these men made in order to manifest the Pauline spirit and to begin well and right the now largest of all Christian colleges!

5. Although brethren Barret and Roberson seemed to be different types in many respects, yet they certainly were in heart and soul modern Jonathan and David. To the last Brother Roberson had great respect for and confidence in Brother Barret. Each was a counterpart of the other.

6. Though he be dead, yet his rich and full life will continue to speak through the coming years in his wonderful family, in the lives of multitudes of Christians whom he has helped along life's rugged way, and the great host of his students—in the business world, in professional life, as teachers, and above all, as preachers of the gospel of man's salvation. Brother J. D. (Jimmy) Harvey and the writer were the first two preachers to come from within the walls of Abilene Christian College. Brother Jimmy was a great preacher and worker, and before his home-going, baptized hundreds of people, and (pardon) I have baptized more than 2,000 souls, and encouraged many, many thousands. If the "first fruits" have accomplished even this much, what about the hundreds of strong, faithful preachers that now grace the cause of Christ!

7. Truly, Brother Roberson "fought a good fight, kept the faith, finished the course, "Therefore, a glorious crown in the city four-square" will be waiting for him when he arrives at the beautiful gate.

Sister Roberson has been a wonderful helpmeet and an inspiration to Brother Roberson for more than 40 years. The fine children are a commendation to Brother and Sister Roberson.—O. M. REYNOLDS.

Friend-Scholar

Charles H. Roberson, my friend and brother in the Lord whom I've known and loved for almost half a century, has now gone to be with his Lord. We first met in Abilene in the fall of 1906 in the Childers Classical Institute and what is now known as Abilene Christian College. He was dean and professor of English and I was professor of math and science.

At that time and through the years since, he has been a very faithful and earnest student of God's holy word. It has ever been his great aim and prayer to know God's Holy Book, the Bible. He firmly believed that the Almighty God has so revealed himself in the Scriptures that by faithful study of the Bible one can know God, "Whom to know aright is life eternal." His great desire was to know the exact, true message as God has given it to humanity through his Son and through his holy apostles and prophets. He, therefore, became very proficient in the ancient languages, the Hebrew and the New Testament Greek, so that he could better know the exact truth of God's Book. Dr. D. A. Penick, professor of Greek and Latin at the University of Texas said that Charles H. Roberson was the best authority on New Testament Greek in the United States.

But Brother Roberson didn't learn these languages for any worldly distinction. His great desire was to know God's eternal truth that he and his might be saved and that he might be able to teach others of God and of his Son, Jesus Christ.

He taught and labored many years as a preacher and teacher of the Holy Scriptures. He has taught many the way of salvation and persuaded them to obey God's plan to save. Hundreds have learned the way more perfectly through Brother Roberson and they themselves have become faithful, zealous teachers of God's Holy Book. He has always been a great help to me in my study of the Bible. I shall miss him very much, but we are so thankful that he has left behind a great heritage; 1st, a record of a faithful devoted Christian life; 2nd, as a teacher, preacher and writer of the Christian religion his record is unsurpassed.

But now, having finished his great work on earth, he has gone to be with that great master Teacher, the Lord Jesus Christ, whom he revered and loved so much. We shall miss him very much, but, like him, may we continue to study, to teach and to proclaim God's holy word until God calls us home to join in that great happy reunion just over there.—JAMES F. COX.

Thoughts On His Passing

Thousands of us are saddened by the news of Brother Roberson's passing. We loved him and appreciated the good that he did through training young people in the Bible through the years. He spent his life in the work of teaching. It is not a work which brings large monetary returns, but the investments in immortal souls will be producing dividends until the Lord comes again. From 1909 to 1917 Brother Roberson sacrificed to found and maintain Clebarro College at Cleburne. It was named for Cleburne (Cle), A. B. Barret (Bar), and Brother Roberson (Ro). Several hundred students studied in this school, and many leaders in the church received Bible instruction and inspiration from this effort.

But the greatest number of years Brother Roberson spent with Abilene Christian College. When the years have passed, and the fruits of a Christian school are harvested we can see more and more that it is the noble Christian men and women who have made the greatest contribution. The greatest need of Christian schools today is not buildings or money (although these are direly needed), but more consecrated Christian teachers willing to invest their years in training young people in the Bible and related subjects. May Brother Roberson's example inspire young men of today to sacrifice material gain to serve Christ in full-time service at home and abroad.

Those of us who had the privilege of studying in Christian schools have warmed ourselves by fires we did not build. Men like Charles H. Roberson helped build them. Let us build fires today that our children's children may warm by them. Thank God for our noble Christian teachers. Let us pray that the Lord of the harvest will send many more into the field.—M. NORVEL YOUNG.

Faithful, Conscientious

I taught in the department of Bible in Abilene Christian College for fifteen years while Brother Roberson was head of the department. Of necessity, I became well acquainted with him. His bearing toward fellow teachers was unfailingly considerate, reasonable, and just. He respected them as men, and expected them to teach and work according to their individuality and personal bent. He was a wise, agreeable man with whom to associate and under whom to work.

As a teacher, Brother Roberson was orderly, diligent, and thorough. He was satisfied when his students worked as hard as he did himself. He was conscientiously faithful to their best interests and would not tolerate careless, indifferent work. Though his standards were high, he was always sympathetic and helpful toward students. He made, over the years, many abiding friends among them.

I respected Brother Roberson's intellectuality, learning, scholarship, and Biblical knowledge. He was a man of principle, purpose, conviction, and steadfastness, who could be trusted. The better I knew him, the more I admired, liked, and loved him. Along with his natural dignity, earnestness, and sobriety, he had a decided sense of humor, and enjoyed innocent jokes and wholesome fun. I appreciated him as a brother and fellow-worker in Christ, and as a personal friend. I feel that he is too good to lose, and that I shall know and enjoy him again in another mansion of our Father's house.—R. C. BELL.

"I have lost a friend of a third of a century, and we have all lost our ripest scholar and best loved teacher."—G. C. Brewer, Memphis, Tennessee.

"As my major professor in Abilene Christian College, he was just what a teacher should be: patient, understanding, yet firm and thorough. His scholarship and wealth of knowledge have inspired many hundreds of students, and that inspiration lives on, and shall live through future generations. But greatest of all, as you so well know, was his sincere devotion to the cause of our Lord."—Mrs. Kathryn Molly Huff, Lubbock, Texas.

"I appreciated deeply the inspiration of his scholarship, his devotion to truth, and his faithfulness in the great task of education of countless young people in the ways of the Master."—Frank Pack, Abilene Christian College.

In-Memory Of Charles H. Roberson

Gifts of money have been made to Abilene Christian College by two families, with the request that books be purchased for its library in memory of the late Charles Heber Roberson, professor emeritus of Bible and former head of the Bible department.

President Don H. Morris said books on religious subjects would be purchased and appropriately inscribed in memory of Dr. Roberson. He said this would be done with any other gifts made in memory of him.

Until his retirement in 1950, Professor Roberson had headed the ACC Bible department for 19 years. He had spent nearly a half century in the ministry, as a scholar, teacher and author. He was recognized as one of the leading authorities on New Testament Greek. He was a founder of Abilene Christian College, a member of its first faculty, and had been the president and taught in several other colleges operated by members of the church of Christ.—DON MORRIS.

His Life An Inspiration

With the passing of C. H. Roberson, another great man in Israel has fallen. For over half a century Brother Roberson has stood fast in the faith, even though at times he stood almost alone. His life as a college professor, preacher, Bible chair director and Christian gentleman, is an inspiration to all of us who have been associated with him. For all who knew and loved him, the greatest consolation in his passing is to know that he died in the Lord.—MONT WHITSON.

As I Knew Him

There are many lasting impressions made on me when I think of our benefactor, Brother Roberson:

Firstly, his advice to young preachers was always sound and correct. I have heard him say often, "Boys, the great preachers among us are the ones who preach where others will not preach." He would sanely exhort, "Go to the university of hard knocks."

Secondly, when premillennialism was raging among the churches he would exhort his students against its dangers and use almost every day this expression: "The kingdom of heaven is the reign of Christ in the hearts of men and women." He was a guiding light against all threatening "isms."

Thirdly, the following exhortation Brother Roberson made in a classroom. I copied it in my Bible and see it often. It is a true picture of his thinking: "The world has had few Abrahams. It has had many Lots; grasping worldly advantage at eternal risk. Lot and his race passed away like a morning's mist. Abraham and his race shaped the world's destiny forever." May God bless his memory. We will miss him.—CLAUDE A. GUILD, Fort Worth, Texas.

God, Man And Money

M. Norvel Young

To meet the need of a pamphlet teaching members of the church their duty in regard to the handling of money, a new pamphlet is being published April 1st. It will contain the following articles:

"Can I Afford To Be Honest in Business?" by Robert Bell; "The Elder's Responsibility to Wisely Spend the Contribution," E. R. Harper; "It Pays to Give," by Dr. John G. Young; "A Liberal Church Will Prosper," Otto Foster; "What Percent of My Income Should I Give?", Clifton Rogers; "New Testament Teaches Planned Giving," John Banister; "The Proper Use of Money," B. C. Goodpasture; "The Individual Christian's Duty to Give Each Lord's Day," Jack Meyer; "Modern Idolatry—Covetousness," Dean Brookshire; "Sacrificial Giving," F. W. Mattox; and "The Land is the Lord's," by Tim O'Shanahan.

These may be ordered at 10c each from the Firm Foundation, Box 77, Austin 61, Texas.

A Prince In Israel

Brother Roberson gave to me the inspiration to go ahead and seek higher education that I might be of greater use in the Lord's service.

He inspired me to the appreciation of scholarship and the characteristic about being right, about whatever I should say. He taught that the "what" of a gospel preacher's message was more important than the "how"—when you know the truth you can find a way to tell it. Brother Roberson taught me facts about modernism and its insidious dangers so that I was able to keep my faith through many classes under modernist teachers. He was a gentleman and a scholar—and truly a "prince in Israel."—J. D. THOMAS, Abilene Christian College.

A Life Of Faith

Charles H. Roberson is resting, but his work, matchless work, will continue to live to bless all those who knew him. It was a privilege of mine to be in Abilene Christian College when he became head of the department of Bible. In his classes in Greek and Bible I gained information and inspiration to aid me greatly in life.

In 1939, I returned to Abilene for gospel work, first at North Park, then for several years at Camp Berkeley, and during this time I lived in the same block with him. His life is a life of faith and a great example in the home, in the school, in the church, and in the community. It is my prayer that his diligence in study and research will continue to inspire men to study God's word through generation after generation.—J. WOODIE HOLDEN, Fort Worth, Texas.

His "Studies In Revelations"

To me Charles H. Roberson was a Christian, a scholar, a Bible teacher of the highest quality. This rose I gave him while he lived. I once told him that I was deeply grateful for the privilege of having studied the Bible under him. I believe that in every Bible course and in the study of the Koine Greek of the New Covenant he always gave us something of eternal value. His Bible teaching is written unerasably upon the hearts of his students. His books on the Bible should be in the library of every Bible teacher. His "Studies in Revelation" will enable one to better understand the last book of the New Covenant. Truly, in the language of Paul,

A Call From Wisconsin

Paul Butterfield

Dear Brethren: This is a call for help in Wisconsin. A state with few churches of Christ. La Crosse, where I am the evangelist, is the only true church in a radius of 75 miles, with the exception of a small group at Romance, where I go and preach Sunday afternoons.

The La Crosse church started two and one-half years ago when Brother Howard Wilson came out of digression. The College Avenue Church in Lubbock, Texas, took hold of the work and assumed the responsibility of supporting the preacher and a fifteen-minute radio program on a local station. This they continue to do.

The church at first met in homes and then in a school. At present the YMCA is used. We need a meeting place of our own very much. We cannot do the work we should until we do have. A lot has been purchased in a good location and with the help of College Avenue and others we have paid he has committed God's word unto faithful men who are teaching others also. This is what he meant to me.—BROOKS TERRY, Dallas, Texas.

A Scholar In The Scriptures

It was my rich fortune to be privileged to sit at the feet of Brother C. H. Roberson, whom I regard as one of the great Bible teachers of our generation. He was truly a scholar in the Scriptures and all related subjects. Young men in his classes, preparing to preach the word, were impressed with the importance of being thoroughly prepared, not merely scholastically, but morally and spiritually. Among my most prized possessions are the outlines of the courses of study I had under him, and the notes which I took in his classes. I shall always cherish his memory.—MELVIN J. WISE.

TELEGRAM—To G. H. P. Showalter, Editor, Firm Foundation, Austin, Texas: Old soldiers in the Army of the Lord never die, nor do they fade away. They continue to crusade for Christ in the lives of younger recruits who have been trained under their command. This is certainly true of the venerable soldier of the cross, Brother Charles Heber Roberson, whose career has meant so much to the cause of Christ. Truly a prince and a great man has fallen but he fought the good fight. The influence of his noble service will not be fully known until the Supreme Commander decorates him with a crown of righteousness at that day.—PAUL SOUTH-

The Church Has Sustained A Great Loss

It is with a feeling of deep regret that I learn of the death of Brother Charles H. Roberson. Brother Roberson has been a synonym for dignity and scholarship in the church for a long, long time. Respected in circles of educators throughout the land, as well as by his brethren, he has contributed substantially to the success of our battles with ignorance and error. He was a most noble soldier.

As a teacher and educator he has left his imprint upon hundreds of gospel preachers and thousands of other Christians who were his students. Through them, though he is dead, yet will he live.

No man is indispensable, and Brother Roberson wasn't; but when able brethren are called to their rest some of them leave us more lonely than others. Charles Roberson was that way. He was one of those we'll surely miss. The church has sustained a great loss.—REUEL LEMMONS, Cleburne, Texas. ERN.

THE RESURRECTION OF THE DEAD

All of us are interested in what divine revelation has made known to us on the resurrection of the dead. As one by one our dear ones leave us, and we note how increasingly numerous the number of them is becoming we are interested more and more in what God has said to us in regard to the state of the dead. Human philosophies do not help us; when we leave God out of it all is the blackness of darkness in a starless night. Atheistic philosophy offers not one ray of hope as we look into the cheerless gloom of the grave that has claimed the sweetest and dearest of all of life's treasures. Those nearest to us in the ties of flesh and blood; those most loved, trusted and appreciated in the strong bonds of friendship and of our most sacred spiritual relations in the church of our Lord are, all alike, passing on in a ceaseless procession to the grave.

From the Old Testament we learn that God's people fully believed that death does not terminate man's existence. The law of Moses contained little on the future life. There are good reasons why this was so; the law was restrictive in several particulars being concerned almost wholly with things material and temporal, showing the Jews the manner of life God wanted them to live, together with matters symbolic and typical in reference to the coming, revelation, government and matchless glory of Messiah whose kingdom would cover the whole earth and would last forever. But there were in their writings references to the glorious resurrection from the grave, and the triumph of immortalized spirits over the proverbial darkness and gloom of the Hadean world. Conspicuous in the writings of the Hebrew prophets who spoke and wrote through the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, we find the following.

From The Old Testament

"Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing ye that dwell in dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead" (Isa. 26:19).

"And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt" (Dan. 12:1).

From The New Testament

"And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth; and he that was dead came forth" (John 11:43, 44).

"But now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept; for since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead" (1 Cor. 15:20, 21).

"For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive" (1 Cor. 15:22).

"Marvel not at this, for the hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation" (John 5:28, 29).

"And God hath both raised up the Lord, and will also raise up us by his own power" (1 Cor. 6:14).

"For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body" (Phil. 3:20, 21).

"It is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption; it is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power; it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body" (1 Cor. 15:42-44).

OUR GREAT LOSS

Those of us who looked forward to visiting with Brother Roberson when we returned to Abilene, will feel a deep loss now every time we return. The work of a great man never dies, though, and his lessons will continue to guide our lives.

EASTRIDGE CHURCH

Claude A. Guild

Completion of a $70,000.00 expansion program by the church of Christ in Riverside was observed April 5, when formal dedication services were held in the new church of Christ building in Eastridge, beginning at 3:00 P.M. In charge of the dedication services was Claude A. Guild, minister of the church of Christ in Riverside. Don H. Morris, president of Abilene Christian College, and Joseph C. Malone, minister at the West Berry Church of Christ in Fort Worth, were guest speakers.

The new church building faces Northeast 28th Street, in the 4300 block. Built of Reliance golden tan brick, it contains over 6,600 square feet of floor space, included in the classrooms and auditorium. The auditorium seats 500, in upholstered, individual opera-type chairs.

Three classrooms are located at the south end of the auditorium, the other six being in the 42x50 ell, extending east from the auditorium. Three of the classrooms were designed to be converted into a small chapel, seating slightly over a hundred persons, to take care of overflow from the main auditorium. The floor of the auditorium is covered in marbelized, green asphalt tile. The walls are finished in light green plaster, with white acoustical tile overhead. Windows are of diffused glass, with glass brick used in the west wall.

Plant facilities include four typhoon Carrier circulating air-conditioning and heating units. A public address system includes the main auditorium and classrooms.

Furnishings of the rostrum and Lord's table are finished in natural oak, as are the slab doors throughout the building. The mural decorating the baptistry was painted by Ray Luke.

Seth Castleberry, contractor, was in charge of constructing the plant. Mrs. Seth Castleberry took charge of the bookkeeping on the construction job and for the Eastridge Church of Christ building fund. The plans were drafted by McLure and Co., designers. Subcontracts were let to G. R. Horton and Sons, plumbers; the Martin Company, electricians; Albin Hurd, plasterer, and Marvin Paul, painter.

Eastridge Church of Christ, Fort Worth, Texas

Very ample parking space is found at the rear of the new church building, on 29th Street. The front entrance and vestibule are designed to facilitate rapid seating in the auditorium.

The officers of the sponsoring Riverside congregation saw the imperative need for expansion in January of 1951. Plans were made to provide an expansion program and R. H. Bannowsky, W. E. Stewart, W. C. Sparkman and J. H. Tew, all elders of the Riverside congregation, were selected as the building committee. The 166x190 lot on N. E. 28th Street was purchased February 15, 1952, at a cost of over $13,000, and the building program initiated. Frank Allen, Wade Bannowsky, W. L. Burlison and T. L. Cannon, Jr., were appointed trustees of the building corporation.

Many Fort Worth church of Christ members donated their services, without pay, to construct the Eastridge church. The bookkeeper's log shows over 920 hours of such time.

Completion of the new church marks a high point in the growth of the Riverside congregation since 1949 under the ministry of Claude A. Guild. During that time, the membership has grown from about 500 to over a thousand, the annual church income having been quadrupled, and even before the Riverside expansion program was completed, work was begun on plans for a colored congregation, to be located in Riverside.

Various guest ministers will serve Eastridge until a minister is selected.

MEETING AT UNIVERSITY AVENUE CHURCH OF CHRIST AUSTIN—APRIL 19TH TO 26TH

Several months ago arrangements were concluded with Robert C. Jones, minister of the Southside church in Fort Worth, to conduct a special series of gospel sermons for the University Avenue Church in Austin, beginning April 19th and continuing through April 26th.

Much work is being done to make this an outstanding meeting in every way. The attendance of Christians everywhere will contribute much to our success. Particularly congregations within fifty to one hundred miles of Austin are specially invited to be in attendance.

DEGREES OF FAITH

George Hickey

Six hundred thousand men left Egypt but only two had an unmovable faith. Job was very sick and bound to a nagging wife, yet he had an unmovable faith. The faith of the three Hebrew children was steadfast outside and inside of the fiery furnace. Daniel's faith was not shaken by the king's order. These men, along with their father Abraham, possessed what God describes as a "great faith" (Matt. 8:10).

Job's wife wanted him to curse God and die. Judas fell away to his own reward. Moses struck the rock. Uzza touched the Ark and died. Nadab and Abihu offered strange fire and burned. Peter at one time sank in the water and lived to curse God on another occasion. Demas forsook Paul. Some are described as having "little faith" (Matt. 6:30). Many have a "weak faith" (Rom. 14:1). Others have a "vain faith" (1 Cor. 15:14). Too many have a "barren faith" (2 Peter 1:8).

Fanny Crosby went totally blind when only six weeks old. At her death over six thousand hymns bore her signature. "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," "Rescue the Perishing," "Pass Me Not," "Blessed Assurance," "What A Gathering," "Closer to Thee," "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross," are a few of the precious lady's works which have solaced millions. Helen Keller became blind and deaf before she was two, and for years her power of speech was dormant. Miss Anne Sullivan taught her to type and talk to where she could interest large audiences in her lectures. Not only did Helen Keller master the English language, but French and German as well. She could "read" and write those foreign languages with ease.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, at the age of thirty-nine, was stricken with Infantile Paralysis. Both of his legs were paralyzed. He refused to surrender. His purpose to serve was unmovable.

In order for man to have peace with himself and God he must have a faith which cannot be shaken (Heb. 12:27). This faith must be unfeigned (1 Peter 1:22). It will cause its possessor to "give attendance to reading" (1 Tim. 4:13). He will delight in attending all assemblies of the church (Heb. 10:25). He will hate every false way and love only sound doctrine (Titus 1:9). While it is yet day all must prayerfully seek a "great faith" for little, weak, vain, and barren faith will be condemned when all nations stand before the Judge of our hearts.

THIRTY-THREE RESPONSES IN SPRING MEETING AT BROADWAY AND "T" IN LUBBOCK, TEXAS

Athens Clay Pullias of Nashville, preached the gospel in our spring meeting. Horace Coffman led the singing. Thirty-three persons, mostly adults, responded to the invitation. Nineteen were baptized into Christ. Eleven were restored and three placed membership with the local congregation. The Sunday prior to the meeting six were baptized. Brother Pullias brought some very solid, practical lessons from the word of God. Each morning at 7:25 he spoke to the men on, "Principles of Christian Living." We are grateful for the interest and attendance and the edification of the church as well as for the souls saved. Twelve prayer meetings were held in homes the week before the meeting, and each evening of the meeting those who wished came twenty minutes early for a ten-minute prayer service.

Clyde P. Findlay, 304 Pierce Street, Houston, Texas, April 6: Brother James W. Nichols held a highly successful meeting at Pierce and Baldwin recently. We will also conduct the Vacation Bible school during the meeting.

Mark N. Hicks, 507 Old Lyons Rd., Colonial Heights, Virginia, April 1: We are happy to inform you that the church which meets at 241 Virginia Avenue in Colonial Heights, Virginia, now has its own building in which to worship. W. F. Showers, Box 104, Pleasanton, Texas, April 3: The spring meeting with Robert C. Welch preaching closed with six responses—three of these for baptism. A record in attendance for a worship service was set. His sermons were delivered in all sincerity. Much good will come from this meeting.

Thos. G. Fowler, 355 Hicks Avenue, San Antonio, Texas, April 3: I want to thank Brother L. R. Wilson for saying in a better way what I wanted to say. I wish every preacher and elder in the land would read Brother Wilson's article, "Hiring a Preacher" as given in the Firm Foundation of March 31. It expresses my sentiments. God bless the Firm Foundation and its faithful editor.

Ross W. Dye, 408 N. Marshall, Oklahoma City 10, Oklahoma, April 2: Leonard Mullens closed a meeting here yesterday with twenty-nine responding to the invitation. Fifteen were baptized and fourteen were restored. Most of those baptized were Baptists, Nazarenes, and Catholics. We had good attendance throughout the meeting with 303 in Bible School last Sunday. The work here has steadily grown and prospects are now better than ever before.

Arthur L. Golden, Box 365, Perryton, Texas, April 2: After four years and one month at Eastside in Amarillo, we have moved to this nice little city to work with the church. The present record shows a little less than 100 members in Perryton at present. At Eastside in Amarillo, there have been nineteen responses since January 1. While I was at Eastside there were over 400 responses to the invitation. Of this number most were to confess sins and be restored but over 120 were baptized into Christ.

Bill Wright, Hobart, Oklahoma, April 3: The work of the church in Hobart is off to a good start. There have been several baptisms here lately, and plans are now in the making for a new building. The plans are being drawn up by one of the leading contractors in this vicinity, and the cost of the building is estimated at $60,000. George W. Allison, Comanche, Oklahoma, Box 428, March 31: Sister U. G. Wilkinson has been ill for the past month. She is doing some better now. The church here is moving along splendidly. We had one baptism recently. We are thankful to have access to a fine paper like the Firm Foundation.

Glenn H. Annear, 309 South High Street, Gallup, New Mexico, March 30: Two were baptized yesterday and one restored, making a total of five baptized, two restored and two placed membership since my last report. Texas H. Stevens, 1815 Melbourne, Dallas 8, Texas, April 3: The Lord has given us an increase of four during the month of March, three baptized and one identified with us. Willis G. Jernigan, 1401 Ash Street, Commerce, Texas, April 1: The work here is progressing in a very fine way. May 10 will be the occasion of our annual all-day services.

Glenn E. Green, 1402 West Pikes Peak, Colorado Springs, Colorado, March 31: In 1952 thirty-one were baptized and about the same number by membership and restoration at West Pikes Peak congregation. E. D. Green, 221 E. Garfield Street, Del Rio, Texas, March 30: Good audiences for both services yesterday. One baptized and two restored since last report. If you happen to be in this vicinity visit with us.

Glenn L. Wallace, 673 E. N. 16th, Abilene, Texas, March 30: Our spring meeting closed on March 29th with Mardell Lynch of Pecos doing the preaching. Two were baptized and one restored from the Christian church. Brother Lynch did some of the best preaching we have ever had at the College Church and all agreed that this was one of our outstanding meetings.

J. P. Williams, Rt. 11, Box 198, Ft. Worth, Texas, March 30: The church of our Lord that meets at Lake Worth in Fort Worth enjoyed another fine month. Four were baptized, eight confessed faults, three were identified with us as Christians. We also had an all time high in Bible class attendance with an overall average of 176 per Sunday for the month. For all this we give our Lord the glory and press on toward better things for his cause.

Preston Cotham, 2000 Oakland Blvd., Fort Worth, Texas, April 2: The church in McCamey, Texas, closed a good meeting last evening in which I did the preaching and local forces took care of the singing in a very fine way. There were seven baptisms and four restorations. This is a good little oil town and they have a good church. Martin Kamstra is the untiring worker for this church. Hulen Jackson of Dallas will assist us here in a meeting and Vacation Bible School June 7-14.

A. S. Higgins, Box 86, Texline, Texas, March 31: Brother Austin Taylor of Uvalde, Texas, closed a fine singing school here for us recently. It was the first one ever conducted here. Brother Taylor is one of our great vocal music teachers.

One was a man seventy-eight years of age who was much beloved by the congregation but he had never accepted the Lord. My next meeting will be at Beaumont.

Price Bankhead, Box 204, Big Spring, Texas: I prefer to work with a church in a small town or rural community. I feel at home when it is necessary to work at some manual labor for part of the support. For reference, write either of the following: Elders, Church at Forsan, Texas, % O. W. Fletcher, S. C. Route, Big Spring, Texas; Elders at 4th & Benton Street Church in Big Spring, Texas, % Walker Reed, 1710 Young Street. If interested, communicate with the writer.

Joe Lomax, Vega, Texas, March 28: Our spring meeting ended March 25. Curtis Camp of Amarillo, Texas, did the preaching. Attendance was good and interest was high throughout the meeting. Much of Curtis's preaching was directed to the members of the body, consequently, the church was edified and are more spiritual as a result of this preaching. There were ten responses, eight baptisms and two restorations. Andy Burks of Slaton, Texas, will do the preaching in our fall meeting. When traveling our way on Highway 66, worship with us.

J. D. Rothwell, 1003 E. Portland, Phoenix, Arizona, March 31: I was with the Netherwood Park congregation in Albuquerque, New Mexico, in a gospel meeting March 22-29. This is the newest congregation in Albuquerque (only 7 months old) and is growing rapidly in a new residential area. Cooperation of other congregations was excellent. Robert A. Hawkins is doing excellent work as local evangelist. Eight were added during the meeting. Two were baptized, two restored (one from the Christian Church) and four were identified.

Cecil Allen, Box 50, Plains, Texas, March 30: We had another great day yesterday. After service last night we drove sixty-four miles round trip to baptize another fine young man into Christ. Two more have left the errors of the Antis. More opportunities are being opened to us every day for which we are thankful unto the Lord. We will close the deal this week for our lots. We still need help in building. Haven't received any help at this writing. The church has been planted here only six months. I am to speak tonight on the Lectureship at Wellman, Texas.

Vernon J. Gahagan, 11404 Barnes Avenue, Dallas, Texas, April 1: Two were added to the Scotland Drive Church of Christ last Lord's day. An elderly lady was baptized and a young man, just recently from Abilene Christian College, placed membership. Thus far in 1953 there have been ten additions to the church here. Three have been baptized, three restored, and four placed membership. Our summer meeting begins June 7 and continues through June 14 with Charles Goodnight, Minister of Cockrell Hill Church of Christ here in Dallas, doing the preaching. I have time for a few meetings this summer. During the month of August I would like to hold a meeting or so in New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, or California, as my family and I plan a trip to the West Coast, having lived there two years during the war. First come, first served. Write me soon so I may book you. When in Dallas, visit with us at 2507 Scotland Drive, near the Veteran's Hospital.

C. B. Thomas, Corpus Christi, Texas, March 30: The Ayers Street Church of Christ in Corpus Christi employs two more men to teach and preach the gospel of Christ. They are Jules Miller of Searcy, Arkansas, who becomes the first full-time educational director for this church, and Colis Campbell, a member of the congregation, who will go to Tokyo, Japan, as missionary. Brother Campbell served in Japan for about four years, returning only last fall. He and his family came to Corpus Christi after their return from Japan and have been actively identified with the Ayers Street church since then. Mrs. Campbell's parents, the D. D. Barkers, live in Corpus Christi. Four men are now being fully supported by the Ayers Street church of Christ. They are C. B. Thomas, who for more than 12 consecutive years has preached for this church; Santiago Martinez, who preaches for the Spanish speaking church that meets at 314 Cheyenne Street in Corpus Christi; Jules Miller, educational director at the Ayers Street church, and Colis Campbell, who will go to Japan in July of this year. In addition to this, monthly contributions are sent to other mission fields as well as to orphan and old people's homes. The budget for this year is $52,000.00. J. W. Martin, C. T. Brown, G. R. Freeman, John Lawrence, D. D. Barker, and Russell Mozeney are the elders of this church.

John W. Gay, Box 604, Erick, Oklahoma: We have just recently concluded a gospel meeting with J. M. Gillpatrick, of Pampa, Texas, doing the preaching. Three were baptized and two were restored. The attendance was the best the church has had in the last twenty years. The work here continues to progress with amazing success. The Sunday night attendance has more than doubled that of this time last year and the attendance at the other services has greatly increased as has the contribution. Our classes are now overcrowded and some kind of classroom expansion is being considered.

HARDING COLLEGE
SEARCY, ARKANSAS

Maurice A. Meredith, 1507 Cleveland Blvd., Caldwell, Idaho, March 31: The work here goes well. The elders would be glad to hear from anyone interested in locating here after June 1, as I plan to move to Richland, Washington. We plan a Vacation Bible School there to begin June 22, and Brother Willard Collins will be with us in a meeting beginning July 19. I plan to be in Spokane for their lectureship tomorrow, and will go on to a meeting with Brother J. C. Bunn and the Annapolis (Wash.) church, to begin next Lord's day. Brother Frank Pack will be at Caldwell in a meeting the last of July.

Windle Kee, 712 East Race Street, Searcy, Arkansas, March 31: "Take a Stand for Christ Here and Now" was the theme of the annual spring meeting just concluded here at the College church with Brother Burton Coffman preaching. His preaching was outstanding in its simplicity and power. The total response was 95 with 19 baptisms and the balance restorations and rededications. This congregation is unique in the talent available but the elders are taking advantage of this talent and are reaching out constantly to bring people to Christ. There is a very close spirit of cooperation between the two congregations of this city.

M. Keeble, 801—24 Avenue N, Nashville 8, Tennessee: On March 8 we began a meeting at Louisville, Kentucky, with the new Beech Street church, where Sutton Johnson preaches, and he is doing a great work for our Lord. I had two of our boy preachers with me, and large crowds came to hear them preach the pure gospel of Christ. One fine man was baptized, and ten restored. There is a great future for this fine church. This meeting continued two weeks and many sectarians heard the gospel. Brother Loyd Watkins did a fine work leading the singing. I find men and women are hungering for the pure gospel as never before in Louisville. Let us work while it is day for night will soon come. Many of our brethren and sisters are sending large donations to the Nashville Christian Institute to help some worthy boy or young man make a preacher of the pure gospel, and be able to lead their parents out of sectarian churches. This is considered by a good many brethren and sisters as a great investment and makes their hearts leap for joy as they develop these boys. This is considered a greater thing than investing in stocks and bonds or real estate because these are material things, but to invest in preaching the gospel we are dealing with something that brings everlasting life, and a crown that fadeth not away. There are fifteen million negroes in America who have never heard the pure gospel of Christ. It is alarming. We have some churches that are sending from one to four boys to the Nashville Christian Institute in order to have them prepared for the greatest work in the world. One of these boys preached in our chapel one day, and twenty-two students obeyed the pure gospel, and there was great rejoicing. To God be all the praise, honor, and glory. This is an opportunity to make your greatest investment. Pray for us.

Brother R. L. Roberts, Jr., is available to preach on Sundays and week nights in and around Houston, Texas. He may be contacted in Houston at phone number CE-8741 or OL-7754.

Thomas L. Campbell, 1132—17th Street, Anson, Texas, April 2: "Our gospel meeting with Claude A. Guild doing some of his best preaching closed last night. Six were baptized."

PHILIPPINE MISSION REPORT

Elders, Seventeenth Street Church of Christ,
San Francisco, 10, California

During the past few months several developments have occurred in the Philippine Mission work and we hope in this report to bring some of these to the attention of all who have been interested in that field.

First of all, we are delighted to report that plans are underway for the O'Neal family to return to Zamboanga City in August of this year, under the sponsorship of the Westside Church of Christ in Duncan, Oklahoma. Brother L. E. O'Neal and family spent four years in this province of the Philippines and now they are to return with Brother Harold O'Neal and his family to work together in and around Zamboanga City. These brethren are capable and, with your help and ours, will do much to strengthen the native Christians. We urge that you send your contributions to the Duncan church if you are not now sending to us. Your letters and prayers are needed to get this work on a working basis.

Seventeenth Street church in San Francisco will continue to forward funds to the men presently being supported in the Philippines, as this is thought advisable by Brethren O'Neal and Floyd T. Hamilton, both of whom know the men being supported and the places where they are laboring.

The men being supported through this congregation report some progress each month, with a number of baptisms. Brother Bruno of Cotabato now uses his motorcycle to meet several appointments each week, and expresses his appreciation for our having made this possible when we were able by the contributions of several to buy and ship him this vehicle. Brother Bruno receives $50.00 each month for his support. Brother Jesus (Hey-sus) Talliver is receiving $20.00 to assist him to spend part time in preaching. Brother Jose Soler has been receiving support of $20.00 per month since the first of the year when several sent in special contributions as a result of Brother Floyd Hamilton's appeal through some of the papers. One rather substantial contribution has helped us to meet these contributions each month when we lost the support of some who had been sending for some years. Some congregations changed their support to other needs at home, and were kind enough to explain this to us.

We sadly report the falling away of Mr. Santos, who was so long active in the work in Zamboanga City. It is our prayer that he may be restored by the work of the O'Neals when they arrive in the Philippines.

The possibilities for a truly great work are before us, and we prayerfully solicit your help to see that the O'Neals get on the field and that you plan to continue to send to us for the support of the native workers so urgently in need of our assistance.

Paul S. Gray, P. O. Box 573, Bowie, Texas, March 30: The meeting in Nocona was indeed pleasant. The attendance was very good. Much advertising was done and the brethren were ready for the meeting. Both morning and evening services were well attended. There were no additions but we hope the harvest will come later. It was a real pleasure to work with John McCoy, the regular preacher there. W. P. Parker led the singing at the evening services and Brother McCoy at the morning services. Two have been restored here since my last report. Attendance and contributions are about normal. April 12th I begin a meeting at Beckley, West Virginia; April 26th I begin at Seventh Avenue in Columbus, Ohio, and May 10th at Beallsville, Ohio.

Thursday—7:30 P.M.

Choice L. Bryant, 165 So. 15th St., Salem, Oregon, April 2: We have baptized four and had two transfers of membership here at Central in Salem the past two weeks.

Hatton B. Gist, 636 Steves Avenue, San Antonio 10, Texas, March 27: Three were baptized at Highland Hills March 23 and six placed membership. Our prospects are bright.

Silas Howell, Llano, Texas, April 3: I lived at Altus, Oklahoma, and worked with the church there from 1933 to early in 1937. Recently I returned for a meeting there. The meeting was enjoyed and we believe the time was profitably spent. Interest was good and attendance was splendid. The response was fair—eight in all, five by baptism. With Brother W. S. Boyett as local preacher, and Brother Leon Rheinschmeidt as song director, and a splendid group of church officers, and a great membership the work at Altus moves on in a very good way.

George A. Bennett, Box 216, Lexington, Oklahoma, April 1: The work at Lexington goes forward beyond our fondest hopes. March was the greatest month yet with the highest attendance in Bible classes or worship service in many years. One hundred in Bible classes on March 15th with one hundred fifteen in worship service. Two have been baptized since last report. One was a thirteen year old young lady and the other was a head of a house, making another complete Christian home. I have time for some meetings this summer. Should any desire my services I can be contacted at the above address.

Finis R. Petty, 105 Cherry Street, Lake Jackson, Texas, March 31: During the past three months we have had forty-four responses. Thirteen of these have been baptisms. The others were restorations and placing of memberships. Our Bible school attendance has almost weekly established new records. It has progressed from 116 at the first of the year to last Sunday's attendance and new record of 212. We are in the process of erecting a new building, and have almost completed two sections which eventually will be all class rooms; but at present one wing is being used as an auditorium.

Luther G. Roberts, 2110 West Second Avenue, Corsicana, Texas, April 4: From March 18th to 22nd I preached in a short meeting for the church in Casper, Wyoming. During the time two men were selected and appointed to serve as elders of the church. There is an excellent opportunity for the cause of Christ in Casper, which is growing rapidly due to much oil activity by most of the major oil companies of this country. The church in Casper is self-supporting, but there is need for much work to be done there and elsewhere in the state, in the establishing of the church on a firm basis. Our work in Corsicana continues in a very pleasant way.

Bill Thompson, Lufkin, Texas, March 28: Two restorations at Fourth and Groesbeck last Lord's day.

Virgil Bentley, 201 West 6th Street, Cordell, Oklahoma, April 3: One was baptized here March 29.

E. R. Harper, 402 Highland, Abilene, Texas, March 30: There were 610 in Bible classes March 29. We have had an average of 582 in classes for the first quarter. Our contribution Sunday, March 29, was $1798.00. We have averaged $1210.00 for the first quarter. We had twenty-two additions during March. We have added fifty-three to our local membership during the first quarter. We now have 941 members at Highland; both auditoriums are filled. We are using some chairs. Our future looks good and we believe Highland is in the best condition for accomplishing good in our Master's kingdom it has ever been. This could never have been done had it not been for the fine work of such men as F. B. Shepherd, Homer Hailley and Cecil Wright, who laid the ground work for the work that is now being accomplished at Highland. Thanks to these good men and the members of the Highland congregation. When you come this way, visit with us.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Submission To God

A passage of scripture worthy of frequent meditation is this: "Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded. Be afflicted, and mourn, and weep. Let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to heaviness. Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord and he shall lift you up" (Jas. 4:7-10).

Those who call themselves Christians often lose sight of the importance of humility. It does not seem as important as other things. But anything that God commands is important. We are not often criticised for not being humble, and sometimes we are commended for our pride. Some philosophers have classified humility as a vice instead of a virtue. Carl Marx thought that meekness was a sin.

But the word of God puts great emphasis on humility as an attribute of righteousness. King Pharaoh refused to submit to God because he was puffed up with pride. He said, "Who is the Lord, that I should obey his voice?" Saul, the king of Israel, served the Lord acceptably while he was humble, but when he was filled with pride, he refused to submit to God. He lost the throne and died in disgrace. Self-aggrandizement is not true dignity.

Jesus humbled himself and became obedient unto death, and God highly exalted him, and gave him a name that is above every name. The Lord says, "He that hath an high look and a proud heart will not I suffer" (Psalm 101:5).

Many things may keep people from being humble, but probably the most common cause is the one indicated by the writer of this psalm—"A high look and a proud heart." The grace of God was abundant in the life of Paul, because he knew how to use it. He saw himself as the chief of sinners, and that made him a very humble man. He said, "By the grace of God I am what I am." He was a learned man, but that was not what made him great. God says, "I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit" (Isaiah 57:15).

Fellowship With Christ

Some who profess to be Christians are not in full fellowship with Christ. They may be in full fellowship with their congregation, while their fellowship with Christ is lacking. It is commendable to be in good standing with the Lord's people, but the main thing is to be in good standing with the Lord.

Paul says, "And be found in him, not having mine own righteousness, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith: that I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death" (Phil. 3:9, 10). Paul did not regard himself as being in full fellowship with Christ without conforming to his death and participating in his sufferings.

Probably many of Christ's disciples come short in this attainment—they are not anxious about suffering with Christ. Peter wrote to suffering Christians who were scattered abroad, saying, "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you. But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy" (1 Peter 4:12, 13).

I HEARD DR. TREVER ON THE R.S.V.

"Dr. John C. Trever, executive director, department of the English Bible, of the National Council of Churches and representative of the Committee of the Revised Standard Version of the Bible, told Rotary members Monday noon some of the problems confronting the committee in bringing out the new revision . . .

"Dr. Trever stated that the committee of scholars has not changed the Bible as some people erroneously think—they have merely presented a more accurate interpretation, so that much of the meaning of the original text has been recovered. He called attention to the fact that the meaning of words change with the passage of time and that today some 400 words in the Bible have a much different meaning than when they were used in the King James version of 1611.

"The Revised Standard Version of the Bible is the most accurate translation—it is the Bible for today," Dr. Trever declared."—(From the Bartlesville Examiner-Enterprise, March 10, 1953).

I was at the Rotary meeting on March 9th when Dr. Trever delivered the address here reported. He has a high pitched voice, which is just a little grating. However, he has an excellent choice of words and makes his points clear and effective. He did not give an opportunity to any present to ask questions. I had hoped that he might do so. There were a few questions that I should like to have heard him explain.

Dr. Trever stressed the need for accuracy. He emphasized the fact that it was not the business of the translators to try to interpret the Bible, but to make an accurate translation of what the writers actually stated. The New Testament, he declared, had been somewhat colored by the Septuagint, which was a translation of the Hebrew Old Testament into the Greek "about 200 B.C." (as he put it). This translation was followed by most of the New Testament writers in their quotations. These, according to Dr. Trever, were not always accurate. He gave two or three illustrations of this fact, one of which was Matthew's quotation (ch. 1:23) from Isaiah 7:14. The original Hebrew in this passage, according to the speaker, simply meant a young woman of marriageable age, without any-reference one way or the other as to whether she was married. Matthew who followed the Greek translation, stated that she was a virgin.

Assuming that Dr. Trever was correct, at least partially so, in the illustrations which he gave, one could not keep from feeling that he meant to leave the impression that since the Septuagint was not always accurate the New Testament writers were not infallibly inspired, else they would not have followed these errors.

Another point that was difficult for me to grasp was Dr. Trever's explanation of John 3:16. He declared that there was no word in the original for "begotten" in this passage; hence the translators were compelled to omit this term, making the passage read, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son." He admitted that the original term signified son in a sense different from the ordinary, that it was a son of a certain kind. But he asserted that it could not be accurately translated "begotten Son." According to Westcott and Hort's Greek New Testament the terms used in this passage are "ton uion ton monogena." If we allow the correctness of Dr. Trever's criticism in this passage we are compelled, as I see it, to render the passage "For God so loved the world that he gave the Son, the only son of the kind." I also have before me Dr. George Ricker Berry's literal translation of the Greek New Testament where this passage reads "ton uion autou ton monogena." Dr. Berry translates it "his Son the only begotten." I also have before me the Emphatic Diaglott by Benjamin Wilson in which the Greek is the same as Dr. Berry's. Wilson translates the term, "ton uion autou ton monogena" as follows: "the son of himself the only begotten." I cannot see how a literal translation could put it otherwise.

If Dr. Trever and the translators of the Revised Standard Version were such sticklers for accuracy where the translation might weaken one's belief in the divinity of Christ, it is strange that they were so careless in other places. For example, in the first chapter of Matthew where we read, "Abraham begat Isaac, and Isaac begat Jacob, and Jacob begat Judah and his brethren," etc., we have the term egennasen, which is the aorist tense for gennao, and literally means exactly what the translators of the King James and American Standard Versions said it meant. However, in this chapter the R.S.V. has completely omitted the word for "begat" and substituted an entirely different word which is not in any Greek manuscript that I know anything about. They make the text to read, "Abraham was the father (Gk. pater) of Isaac, Isaac was the father of Jacob," etc. If the committee on the new version was so bent on accuracy where the tendency was to leave doubt about the divinity of our Lord, we cannot keep from wondering why they were so liberal in other places.

There was one other matter that I kept wondering about while Dr. Trever spoke. He mentioned the fact that there were more than 400 words used by the King James translators that had different meanings today from what they had when originally used. He insisted, therefore, that it was imperative that we have a new translation in order to correct the meaning of terms which are now obsolete. Not one time did he make any mention of the American Standard Version, or the English Revised Version. What I couldn't understand was why he kept talking about words which had changed their meaning since 1611 without so much as hinting that more than ninety per cent of these had been corrected by the American Standard Version a half century before the R.S.V. made its appearance.

Most of those who heard Dr. Trever had scarcely read the Bible, and did not know that the American Standard Version existed. The speaker knew this, of course, and took advantage of the opportunity to press his points. He went on the assumption, apparently, that since those present scarcely knew about the American Standard Version, that they did not know that it was not only much more accurate than the R.S.V., but had already recovered the meaning of virtually every passage where there was doubt or question, and had given us the correct words which are necessary today to understand the meaning of the original text.

The unfortunate part of this whole story was, judging by the applause, that nearly all who were present accepted everything Dr. Trever said without any reservation.

Christian Church Preacher Changes

Hoyt H. Houchen

We are happy to announce that Gaylon Murphy, formerly a preacher in the Christian Church, has publicly renounced the errors of that body and has taken his stand with the New Testament church.

During the week of February 1-8, 1953, Central, 14th and Monroe, Amarillo, Texas, where I labor, supported me to do the preaching in a gospel meeting for the small congregation in Elkhart, Kansas. I was ably assisted by Ford Carpenter of this congregation and also Arthur Golden, preacher of the Eastside congregation here in Amarillo. These men helped in a wonderful way in directing the singing and doing personal work.

Brother Murphy, preacher of the Christian Church in Elkhart, attended the services of this meeting frequently as did other members of that group. In the first personal interview with Brother Murphy, his sincerity to do right was evident. He had been convinced for some time that the group with which he had been identified is responsible for the division of the body of Christ. Being associated with what is known as the "conservative" group of the Christian Church, Brother Murphy had preached publicly in defense of the name, Church of Christ, as being scriptural, believing the name Christian Church to be unscriptural. As to the music question, he thought that mechanical instruments should be excluded from the worship only as a matter of expediency, since they were causing division. However, after personal teaching on the matter, we readily convinced him of the unscripturalness of their usage.

On Friday night of the gospel meeting I preached on the subject: "Why We Do Not Use Mechanical Instruments in Worship" and during the singing of the invitation song, Brother and Sister Murphy walked forward to publicly announce their stand for the truth. Brother Murphy made his own acknowledgment of error, stating that he could no longer remain in the Christian Church, that he was convinced and convicted of its errors, and his prayer was that others would take the same step as he and his wife had taken. This statement was made in the presence of the two elders in the Christian Church at Elkhart and the majority of the members who had come to the services that night.

Brother Murphy was born January 3, 1929, at Elk Point, South Dakota, and began preaching in 1946. He attended Ozark Bible College, Joplin, Missouri, from the fall of 1948 to the end of 1949. He then entered Southern Christian College in San Antonio, Texas, where he earned his B.A. degree in 1951. It was there that he met Mary Davis, to whom he was married while attending that school. He had been preaching for the Christian Church in Elkhart, Kansas, for about one year and a half.

To many, the change of Brother and Sister Murphy was not a surprise as he had been unhappy in the Christian Church for about two years. He needed further teaching on some matters, and on the music question in particular. Brother J. B. Harrington, formerly of Texhoma, is working with our brethren in Elkhart. A nice and commodious building in which to worship had been completed just prior to the meeting. The church has great possibilities in that community and we pray for its success.

Brother Murphy is an able speaker and we believe that he will be a valuable man to the cause. He needs encouragement and support. Any congregation desiring his services, either for local work or a meeting, may write to me in care of Central Church of Christ, Fourteenth and Monroe, Amarillo, Texas.

"Ye Commit Sin"

(James 2:9)

William M. Nelson

A teacher in a Christian school has said that, "Superstition is the offspring of ignorance." The same thing could be said of the prejudice that is too common among members of the Lord's church. With humility and a sense of the bigness of the problem I write a challenge to the mighty on this question. I realize the content will pierce many brethren. I pray their sorrow will be of a godly sort unto repentance rather than a sorrow of this world that worketh anger, frustration and death.

In considering the subject of racial prejudice I do not consider the universal nature of the problem. We are considering racial prejudice among Christians. Prejudice, as here used, is the preconceived respect of persons resulting from a proud spirit. We shall consider this anti-Christian, anti-social attitude that turns brethren against brethren and places brethren in opposition to our Father in heaven. Every human being is created in the image of God. Every Christian receives the same gift of the Holy Spirit. Thus Christians enjoy a two-fold equality.

We can thank God there is no "high church" or "low church" among the family of God. It is regrettable that some congregations fail to realize this. As in the days of Christ some seek the "upper seats" among their brethren. It is odd, though, that racial prejudice is not limited to the "high churches" where a person without a coat is hurried out the side door, that is if he is not ignored altogether. Neither is it limited to the "low churches" where "ain't" is about as common as the tobacco juice about the church house steps. Anywhere one finds ignorance and lack of the "mind of Christ" one finds racial prejudice.

One wonders if the "Christian educator" who is reported to have said, "A nigger shouldn't go beyond the third grade," knows the Christ who asked all the world to, "Come unto me," or the words of Paul when he said that in Christ "there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free" (Col. 9:11; Gal. 3:28). The Jews had considered their race superior to all others (Matt. 3:9), but God proved to them once and for all times that he is "no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:15-35). All class distinctions and social distinctions are broken down in Christ the Lord. Racial lines are annihilated and social etiquette becomes only of surface value.

In some ways it seems the children of darkness are more wise than the children of light. Most informed scientists look upon the old ideas that "Niggers have odors," and "Niggers just can't do no better," as belonging with the theories, "Break a mirror and have seven years of bad luck," and "Let a black cat cross your tracks and you're sure to have trouble." In their effort at self-exaltation the racial prejudice person marks themselves as being uninformed. This is true whether they wear a mink or a rabbit.

When someone advocates equality among Christians some persons usually ask, "Well, if we have no racial segregation and our young people go to school together and worship together, they will soon intermarry. How about this segregation and intermarriage?" I think segregation among Christians is as opposed to Biblical teaching as sprinkling is opposed to baptism. Some places a colored brother or sister is not welcome in a "white congregation." Colored people must go to hell rather than use the "white baptistry." Colored brethren are looked down on in scorn and their service made a source of ridicule. About the only thing I can see such a "white congregation" has in common with Christ is the name above the front door. Paul said on Rom. 12:9-16 (RSV): "Let love be genuine; hate what is evil, hold fast to what is good; love one another with brotherly affection; outdo one another in showing honor. . . Live in harmony with one another; do not be haughty, but associate with the lowly; never be conceited."

In many cases the colored people desire to worship together in their own community. It is more convenient for them just as it often is for the poorer people to worship in their own community which may be on the other side of the track. This is a social situation which is brought on because of locality and I think voluntary segregation is no segregation. No distinction is made. No one group is considered better than another. When a distinction is made by the wealthy, by the poor, by the colored or by the white; when "respect" is shown to anyone and others are told to sit here, then, "Ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convicted of the laws as transgressors." Read James 12 and tremble!

Intermarriage of any widely differing group—racial, social or economical—is unwise because of the children that must come into the world. Race is only skin deep. God "hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation" (Acts 17:26). My prejudice brother or sister, the same kind of blood that races below your skin races below the skin of the blackest Negro in Africa. Whatever the "bounds of their habitation" might refer to, whether to the distinction between Jew and Gentile broken down in Christ or anything else, the American Negro's dwelling today is here. Habitation here means dwelling. Yes, I would that all marry in their own race but I would be the last to condemn someone who didn't. In Christ all are one. Liberty is not always license for action.

I am not a northerner. My great grandparents owned plantations worked by slaves. I do not state this to brag but only to alleviate the charge of "yankee prejudice." I write as a Christian and not as a sectionalist. I write about Christian relationship and limit my arguments to that. The same condemnation rests on any "prejudiced Christian" whether his hatred be against the "wops," the "chinks," the "Jews," the "square-heads" the "greasers" or the "niggers."

My Christian friend, as far as I can see this is your decision. Either go to hell with your beloved prejudice or get rid of it and prepare for the home where all God's faithful children go. If ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin." Can a sinner see God?

PREACHERS OF TODAY

Horace Wooten Busby was born in Tennessee in 1884 on February 21. He was baptized in November, 1904, by H. E. Warlick and began preaching in 1910 in Ellis county, Texas.

H. W. Busby

He married Miss May Wise, and they have three children. Brother Busby attended the public schools and a state teachers college.

After he was grown he made a serious study of the Bible, which convinced him he should leave Presbyterianism. He continued his study for four years in preparation to preach. His first meeting was held near Midlothian, Texas, with twenty baptisms. His next meeting was held in the same year at Lockney Bible College, in which he baptized his father, and soon the rest of the family. In 1913 he began a ministry of seven years with the Vickery Boulevard church in Ft. Worth, Texas. From 1910 until 1913 he had done part-time work with several congregations.

In 1920 it seemed best for him to give up local work so that he might fill all the calls for gospel meetings. Since that time he has annually conducted from 25 to 28 meetings. Only one meeting has ever been cancelled because of illness of the 1000 he has held. More than 18,000 people have been baptized through these efforts. Several churches have been established and many thousands of Christians have been restored to their allegiance to Christ.

He has held meetings in most all parts of the United States. Especially has he worked in Texas, Tennessee, California, Oklahoma, Alabama, Arkansas, Kansas, and New Mexico. Brother

Busby has also done radio preaching along with some of his meetings. His health continues to be fine and his time is promised for meetings until 1954. His home address is 2225 W. Hawthorne Street, Fort Worth, Texas, or he can be reached in care of the Southside Church of Christ, Ft. Worth.—The above sketch appears in abbreviated form as one of 1350 biographical sketches in Preachers of Today; Price $3.50. Order from Firm Foundation.

Silas Earp

LeRoy Davis

Silas Earp was born August 11, 1883, near Butler, Alabama. As a small child he lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Earp on a 160-acre homestead. At the age of five, Silas, with his family moved to Colorado. In the year 1890 the family moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma, then Indian Territory. The journey was made in a light "spring wagon" drawn by two Mexican ponies. Silas, then only about seven years old, says that he can remember seeing a large herd of sheep, possibly four or five thousand. Meals were prepared in the open on this journey over a camp fire. It was approximately eight weeks in consummation.

At the tender age of twelve Silas was afflicted with "inflammatory rheumatism," now known as arthritis. The disease began in his left ankle and soon drew and knotted his whole body. Within a year he was unable to walk. By the time he had reached his twentieth birthday his eyesight began to fail. Eight years later he was in total darkness.

One year after he became totally blind he experienced the greatest event of his life. While living near Bixby, Oklahoma, he had the privilege of attending a gospel meeting. Brother Frank Elmore was the evangelist. During the course of this meeting Silas obeyed the gospel, along with his elder brother and his sister, Holice, with whom he now resides. Looking back to this event Silas said that this was one of the happiest moments of his entire life. Brother Elmore, assisted by one of the elders of the church, Brother Haggartman, carried Silas into the Arkansas river and there immersed him into the body of Christ.

Silas' father died in 1926. His mother having preceded his father in death. Since Silas is one of a family of eight: two brothers and five sisters, it fell their lot to care for him. At the present time he is with his sister, Holice Stewart, of Jay, Oklahoma. She and her husband give him excellent care. For the past five years he has been confined to his bed and can sit in his wheel chair only long enough to eat his meals. This constitutes a great sacrifice on the part of his sister and her husband. Surely the Lord will bless such love and consideration.

Although Brother Earp is gnarled and twisted in body and unable to see, he is possessed with a cheerful disposition. His is a pleasing personality, and despite his handicaps can converse intelligently upon the current events of the day. He is a wonderful Bible scholar, having committed to memory a large portion of the New Testament.

In retrospect Silas said: "When I was six years old I attended the only free school in my life." While he was living in Colorado in 1889, he attended part of one term. After moving to Tulsa he attended part of two terms of subscription school. When asked how he had managed for so fine an education, he replied, "I read my brother's and sister's school books and they helped me quite a lot."

But, perhaps the greatest boon to his education came about while living with a sister in Joplin, Missouri, in 1927. Miss Grace Speak taught him to read braille. For several years he worked at his new found joy and furthered his education greatly, especially in Biblical knowledge.

Brother Earp is now 69 years of age. He is still in good spirits although his health will permit the reading of his

New Testament but little. For the first fifteen years of his malady, Brother Earp suffered intensely. Many nights he could not sleep for the excessive pain. In writing this sketch I am reminded of what the apostle Paul said one time in Acts 14:22: "Confirming the souls of the disciples, and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that we must, through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God."

Brother Earp has an unaltering faith, and is a staunch supporter of the truth. Although confined to his bed and unable to see, I'm certain that by his many conversations with the unsaved, his cheerful disposition, and his buoyant optimism in spite of all obstacles, he has been instrumental in winning many souls to the kingdom of God.

May the life of this noble saint inspire and encourage all to a greater and more efficient service in the vineyard of the Lord.

Philippine Work

Orrin W. Utley

The elders of the Westside Church of Christ in Duncan, Oklahoma, announces plans to send the L. E. O'Neal and Harold O'Neal families to the Philippine Islands in August.

These two families will move to Zamboanga City, Mindanao, where they will work for three years. In the general vicinity of this city of 35,000 people there are seven small congregations of the Lord's people. For the past year and a half, no American missionary has been in this field. The natives are anxious to have someone return. We believe that this field presents a challenge.

The Lord's work in Zamboanga City was started by Frank Trayler, while he was an Army chaplain. The L. E. O'Neal family answered the call to go help those who had been baptized. They remained in the Philippines four years (1946-1950), under the supervision of the Oak Park Church of Christ, Sacramento, California.

L. E. O'Neal is the evangelist for the church of Christ in Velma, Oklahoma, and Harold O'Neal is laboring with the Wilson, Oklahoma, church of Christ. Both are in the general area of Duncan. Each is doing an outstanding work. We believe that these brethren are well qualified to carry on the Lord's work in Zamboanga City and surrounding territory.

Our general plans are as follows: (1) Get the money raised for support, transportation, and freight on cars for the two families. (2) Get support for more Filipino preachers. (3) Get a printing press in operation. (4) Buy a lot for expansion.

If you desire to have fellowship in this good work, please contact the elders of the Westside Church of Christ, 14th and Main, Duncan, Oklahoma.

Trayler Commends O'Neals For Work

It is with great joy that I learn of the plans of the Leland O'Neal and Harold O'Neal families to go to the Philippine Islands this fall. Going 'two by two' will multiply their strength, and the previous experience of the Leland O'Neal family will serve for foundation.

I trust all our brethren who have opportunity to assist in this great project for Christ will respond liberally so that their support may be secured promptly.—Frank Trayler, Chaplain, U.S.A.F.

Planning For The Future

As can be seen from accompanying articles, we plan to spend three years in the Philippine Islands. Many of you are greatly interested in this part of Christ's vineyard, and we are soliciting your continued interest.

We need your help in support and transportation to the Philippines and trust that you will include this opportunity in your 1953 budget.—Harold O'Neal, L. E. O'Neal.

Studies In Galatians (No. 8)

R. C. Bell

Galatians 3:1-14 comprises four short pithy arguments in support of Christianity as a means of salvation contrasted with law. The first argument, built on the experience of the Galatians, and the second, built on the experience of Abraham, have been considered. The third, built on Hebrew scripture, and the fourth, built on Christ's substitutionary death, are now to be studied.

"It Is Written"

Three verses (10-12) contrast legal works and gospel faith as the only two conceivable ways by which men may attain unto righteousness and life. The argument runs: since no man ever has rendered, or ever can render, the perfect obedience to "all things that are written in the book of the law" which righteousness by means of law requires, no man can escape God's curse of death on law breakers. Faith is, therefore, the sole way of life. The two ways cannot co-exist, nor can they be combined. Gospel faith is not primarily faith in acts of obedience, but faith in Christ's death for our sins. Paul reached this same conclusion in his first sermon in the Galatian country years before he wrote Galatians: "By him (Christ) everyone that believeth is justified from all things, from which he could not be justified by the law of Moses" (Acts 13:39).

Inasmuch as the little sentence, "The righteous shall live by his faith" (Heb. 2:4) is worked into the great doctrinal epistles of Romans (1:17) and Hebrews (10:38) as well as into Galatians, it must hold cardinal Christian doctrine. Taken in its contexts, it teaches not only that men are justified by faith, but also that they must continue to live, suffer, and grow by faith, not by works. The fact that the Galatians after beginning in faith were falling into works of law was the cause of Paul's writing them this sharp, warning letter. Ever since Eden, true religion on the human side has always been based on faith in God. Although Abraham demonstrated his faith by sacrificing Isaac, and Paul his by being baptized, their faith was essentially the same. Who can doubt that Abraham would have been baptized had God commanded him to be? Because of this continuum of faith in God, the entire Bible is one organic whole. The Old Testament anticipates the New and kindles the fire of redemption that burns and blazes throughout the New.

"It Is Finished"

Before "grace and truth came through Jesus Christ," men, Jews and Gentiles alike, were inevitably and universally doomed because they were under law. "But Christ redeemed us (Christians) from the curse of the law, having become a curse for us; for it is written, cursed is everyone that hangeth on a tree." Before Christ died, there was only one class of men, namely, men condemned to death. His dying created the possibility of another class coming into existence. Condemned men who believe that God in free grace will accept Christ's vicarious death in lieu of their deserved death and act accordingly come out from among lost men into a new class, namely, justified men. These are they, who realizing their doomed state and feeling keenly their inability to change it under law, come, with no plea but, "Be thou merciful to me a sinner," and accept God's gracious, judicial decree to deliver them from the sentence of death and to treat them as if they had never been sinners. A justified man "cometh not into judgment (with men who remain under law), but hath passed out of death into life" (John 5:24).

Such is Christian justification. Christ's, "It is finished" from his cross signified that the means for justifying condemned humanity was perfected, and that addition from "the flesh" or "will of man," as the Galatians were attempting, could but pervert and ruin it. Think you not that such a great justification should put an end to self, and that God has a moral right to expect Christians, out of sheer gratitude, to be "zealous of good works"? This is the place and the manner in which good works come into Christianity.

The Purpose of the Law

Since Abraham possessed the faith upon which salvation depends, why did not God give him immediately, instead of the promise of Christ's coming, Christ himself? And why was the covenant of law necessary at all? The last half of Gal. 3, very simply and directly, considers such things.

By his oath, God confirmed his promise to Abraham that in his seed (Christ's) all nations should be blessed, "That by two immutable things, in which it is impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong encouragement" (Heb. 6:18). No matter what time might elapse or what events intervene before its fulfillment, this promise so confirmed, could never in any manner whatsoever be altered. After 430 years, God supplemented this immediate, personal promise to Abraham by a covenant of law, which was in a roundabout way "ordained through angels by the hand of a mediator (Moses)," and which was to last only "till the seed should come to whom the promise" was made. This "till" shows that the covenant of law was to be but a temporary, provisional insertion within the longer, larger covenant of promise. It neither superseded nor opposed the prior promise, which was to be fulfilled after the transitory, legal covenant had passed away.

The Abrahamic covenant with its positive emphasis on promise and faith, inadequately emphasized sin and its curse. The Mosaic covenant with its heavy emphasis on sin and death was needed to attain the proper moral balance, and was therefore "added because of transgressions." Is it not meaningful that, though provision was made for six tribes to stand on Mount Gerizim to bless and the other six on Ebal to curse the people after they had crossed the Jordan and assembled in Canaan, in the actual history not a single blessing was heard, but twelve curses with all the people answering "amen" were pronounced? (Deut. 27). Could there be a better commentary on Gal. 3:10, "For as many as are of the law are under a curse"? As there can be no trespassing without a boundary, so, though sin exists, it does not take the character of transgression and rebellion, and "is not imputed when there is no law" (Rom. 5:13). "The law came in besides (sin and death) that the trespass might abound" (Rom. 5:20). "Through the law cometh the knowledge of sin" (Rom. 3:20). Though the Sinaitic covenant served other purposes too, its prime purpose was to discover wounds for which it had no healing that men might seek the great Physician when he came in fulfillment of the promise to Abraham.

THREE NORTHWEST CHURCHES NEED PREACHERS

Claude A. Guild

Three churches in the Northwest have asked this eldership to find a good man to work with them. Monte Vista, Colorado, has about 20 very strong and faithful members. It would soon build into a lovely church, if they could have someone preach for them. They are paying for their own building. This is a wonderful place to live.

Two congregations in the state of Washington are in need of a minister. The support will be good and one place offers, in addition to salary, a furnished house.

We are not interested in men who are morally reprobate or unsound in doctrine. These churches deserve sound, clean men. They offer wonderful opportunities for anyone who has a desire to help needy fields.

If you are interested in these places, please write us: Elders, Church of Christ in Riverside, 2701 E. Belknap Street, Fort Worth 11, Texas.

What Does The Bible Say?

For Whom Is Baptism?

Corinth was a commercial center of the Roman Empire with a population of about 400,000 when Paul arrived to preach the gospel. Today it is called Salonica, and is still a city of importance.

In Corinth he lived for a time in the home of a devout Christian couple, Aquila and Priscilla, who followed the trade of tent-making as Paul did. Soon he was wholly absorbed in preaching the gospel and enthusiastically assuring the Jews that Jesus was the Christ. But as they opposed and abused him, he turned to the Gentiles. Later Crispus, the leader of the synagogue, became a believer in the Lord with all his family. The Bible says of the Corinthians: "Many of the Corinthians hearing, believed, and were baptized" (Acts 18:8). Thus the church had its beginning in this pagan city.

Here are seven Scriptures from God's word which help to clarify the question: "For whom is baptism?" 1. For the unsaved. Mark 16:15, 16: "And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned." 2. For the one who has heard. Acts 18:8: "And Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, believed in the Lord with all his house; and many of the Corinthians hearing believed, and were baptized." 3. For the taught. Matthew 28:19: "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit." 4. For those who receive the word. Acts 2:41: "They then that received his word were baptized; and there were added unto them in that day about three thousand souls." 5. For believers. Mark 16:15, 16; Acts 8:37: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned." "And Philip said, if thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." 6. For the Penitent. Acts 2:38: "And Peter said unto them, Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." 7. For men and women. Acts 8:12: "But when the believed Philip preaching good tidings concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women." Have you been baptized into Christ? Are you ready to obey the Lord in this act of faith? We will gladly assist you.

One Home Shared By Hundred Homeless

Howard Justiss

Last year I became acquainted with a foster mother and her activities in caring for many dependent and neglected children for the state of Wisconsin. She kept these children in her home on a boarding basis. Mr. and Mrs. Walker had only one daughter of their own because Mrs. Walker was unable to have other children. After this one daughter had received her Ph.D. and had married, Mrs. Walker decided to board children who were under the care of the state and who needed a temporary home until a more permanent arrangement, such as an adoptive home, a return to their own home, long-term boarding, or an institutional arrangement could be worked out. Mr. Walker worked for the University of Wisconsin and had much spare time, and an interest in children. Mrs. Walker was a warm, accepting, understanding lady who loved children. In 1934 the first child was placed in the Walker home. Since that time they have boarded over a hundred such children of both sexes and of all ages from periods of a few days to as many as seventeen years. Most of their boarders stay for a short time while other arrangements are being made with relatives, own parents, adoptive parents or institutions. Mr. and Mrs. Walker may be reluctant to give up a child after they have worked faithfully with him. They console themselves however by thinking of a job well done, that there are children in their home, and others will come. At the present time (February, 1953) there are ten children in the Walker home. One of these is an eight-year-old girl named Cathy, who is crippled so badly that she requires special care. I was in the Walker home one afternoon when this child arrived by special bus from orthopedic school. Because Mrs. Walker was talking with me she, calmly, asked another child to help Cathy up the front steps. Cathy smiled a greeting to "Toughie" ten-year-old Edwin who took her crutches and assisted her into the house. I could see Edwin brace her foot with his foot as she removed her snow suit. Cathy gave a cheery "hello" as she wobbled to her special chair in an adjoining room. She had been rejected by her own mother who was divorcing her father. No one would take Cathy except Mrs. Walker who made the spoiled, neglected, hateful child into a well-behaved young lady.

I was amazed to learn how skillfully Mrs. Walker managed all these children. Even though most of them had come from broken homes and had been rejected, they were orderly and seemed content. Both foster parents supervise the recreation of the youngsters on week-ends and evenings. Each night they conduct a "family worship service" and have Bible study. Children who had never heard of such, learned to lead prayers and read the Scriptures. The children are not punished or restricted in a rigid way, but discipline is maintained through genuine acceptance and affection for the children. That is what is needed. When the Walkers determine a child has a feeling of security, they help the case workers move him to more permanent living arrangements. But he never forgets what the Walkers did for him. One of their ex-boarders who is a nurse in Japan wrote a "thank you" note to them enclosing 25 dollars. Theirs is a work for which the state of Wisconsin pays at the rate of $2 per day per child. The pathetic thing about all the good work done by Mr. and Mrs. Walker is that they are not members of the New Testament church. They teach their Mormon doctrine and take those dependent children to Mormon services each Sunday.

Could we not provide love, security, care and Bible instruction for many of the dependent children we now maintain in our orphanages just as the Walkers are doing in Madison, Wisconsin? Such a program would require case work services and a license from the state obtained by some responsible group such as the elders of a local congregation.

I feel that many Christian parents whose own children have gone from their home, would be willing to "board" homeless children and give them the advantages of a normal, secure home life with Christian influence and Bible teaching.

Those foster parents who are willing and qualified to do this work deserve the financial assistance of the whole congregation. Without this help some could not afford to keep children. Others can. If the children have a parent who is financially able, that parent, through the case worker, should be helped to assume all the expenses. In this way parents are not encouraged to neglect their moral obligations to "provide for their own" (1 Tim. 5:8).

TRAFFIC SAFETY

The Public Information Department on traffic safety brings to the attention of all automobile drivers and other travelers some very important matter.

We have just received authentic details of a calamity that struck our nation last year. It was a calamity in every shocking sense of the word, and yet you probably didn't even realize it was happening to us.

The Travelers Insurance Companies report that traffic accidents took a casualty toll of more than two million Americans in 1952. It was the worst year in history for motor vehicle deaths and injuries.

Webster says the word calamity implies "a grievous misfortune, usually public, yet affecting many persons and often causing widespread distress." We stand in awe of flood, famine, train and plane crashes because these are calamitous events occurring in one short span of time—one moment, one hour, or one day. But a series of misfortunes which cripple or kill two million men, women and children in only one year is beyond even the wide bounds of calamity.

Unfortunately, traffic accidents usually are awesome only when they happen to you or someone you know. This, ironically, is an underlying cause of our traffic troubles. If drivers and pedestrians respected the dangers inherent in driving and walking, they would follow the rules of the road and avoid the accidents that add up to calamity.

Only you can prevent traffic accidents.

If this strikes you as an unreasonable charge, you need to read a booklet we just received from The Travelers Insurance Companies. It is their annual publication of traffic accident data in which statisticians have dissected the anatomy of street and highway safety.

You would learn that 37,600 persons were killed and 2,090,000 injured by motor vehicle accidents last year. Turning the booklet's pages, you would find out why 1952 made tragic history as the most disastrous year for traffic casualties we have ever experienced.

It is clear from this report that most of last year's accidents could have been avoided. Most of them were caused by drivers and pedestrians in control of the circumstances which got them into trouble. The conclusion is inescapable: the accident problem can be solved only by those who do the driving and walking.

Only you can prevent traffic accidents.

Most people think of week ends as a time for rest and pleasure. We can relax with the kids, or shoot a game of golf. It's a time for watching television, loafing through the newspaper, going to church, or a visit with old friends.

But it is also a time of climactic violence on our roads. More than 15,000 persons were killed and nearly 750,000 hurt in week-end accidents last year, according to figures compiled by The Travelers Insurance Companies. Forty per cent of the deaths and 36 per cent of the injuries were recorded on Saturdays and Sundays in 1952.

The most dangerous day of the week was Saturday, partly because more cars are in use Saturday than on any other week day. Something else sets this day apart from the others. Saturday night for too many people is a time when drinking and driving get together. No one knows exactly how many traffic accidents are caused by drinking drivers, but everyone knows it is a major problem. Everyone needs to know that even one drink before a drive is too many.

More than two million casualties, the worst automobile accident toll in the nation's history, were recorded in 1952, according to figures released today by The Travelers Insurance Companies.

Last year's traffic deaths totaled 37,600, an increase of 500 over the 1951 mark. The injury count soared to 2,090,000, more than 127,000 over 1951, the Hartford firm reported.

The death and injury totals are highlight statistics from "Who, Me?" nineteenth in an annual series of traffic accident data booklets published by The Travelers. Company statisticians collect and analyze accident facts from each state.

The most dangerous mistake in driving last year was excessive speed. Speed killed 13,430 persons and injured nearly 600,000, according to the report. Drivers under 25 years old were involved in almost 25 per cent of the year's fatal accidents although they constitute only about 15 per cent of the total of all drivers.

More than 15,000 persons were killed and nearly 750,000 hurt in week-end crashes in 1952. Forty per cent of the deaths and 36 per cent of the injuries occurred on Saturdays and Sundays last year.

It was the second consecutive year of improvement in the pedestrian record. Figures from the booklet show that pedestrian casualties were reduced by more than eight per cent in 1952. Crossing between intersections, "jay walking," still is the chief cause of pedestrian deaths and injuries.

Other facts from "Who, Me?":

Three out of four 1952 auto accidents happened to passenger cars driving in clear weather on dry roads.

Eighty per cent of vehicles involved in fatal accidents were traveling straight ahead.

Saturday was the most dangerous day of the week to drive.

1952 was the third consecutive year of increase in the death toll.

FROM THE HARVEST FIELD

Virgil Bentley, 201 West 6th Street, Cordell, Oklahoma, April 7: One baptism here on April 5.

Walter E. Banks, 2 South Tasmania, Pontiac, Michigan, April 6: Two were baptized yesterday. All attendance records were broken, both for worship and Bible study. Fourteen responses so far this year at Pontiac. I will begin a meeting at Alliance, Ohio, on May 4th.

M. Cecil Perryman, 714 Terrace Avenue, Montgomery, Alabama, April 5: Yesterday marked the beginning of our sixth year of happy labor with the Cloverdale congregation. A new record was set in Bible school attendance at worship and contributions were also among the highest ever seen. One was baptized and one restored. Worship with us when you chance to pass our way.

E. Lucy Porter, Huntingdon, Tennessee, April 9: Last Lord's day we had our largest attendance and contribution since I began work here in August. Of course, it was Easter Sunday, and that brought out several more. We have had two baptisms and one restoration recently. We plan to have our vacation Bible school the first part of June. I have promised to be in five meetings this summer.

M. T. Bishop, 2302 W. 41st, Tulsa 7, Oklahoma, April 6: We concluded a fine meeting with Judson Woodbridge the last of last month. We had good crowds throughout and four were baptized during the course of the meeting. Fourteen responses here since the first of the year, including seven baptisms, three restorations and four to place membership with us.

Charles E. Gentry, Box 375, Lamar, Colorado: We have just closed a very fine meeting with Brother Riley Henry of Mangum, Oklahoma, doing the preaching. There were three baptisms, making a total of five baptisms for the month of March. The attendance was good and the church strengthened by sound gospel preaching. The tourist season will soon be with us and we urge you to stop with us in passing.

W. Elliott Bell, Jr., South Hill, Virginia, April 6: One was restored here yesterday. Our meeting begins June 14 with Irvin Himmel of Jacksonville, Florida, doing the preaching. Interest continues to grow for all services—Sunday and mid-week. All congregations having faithful members in service stationed at near by Camp Pickett, Virginia, can know assuredly that they are having a great part in the work here in this needy mission field. Ask your members in service at Camp Pickett, Virginia about it.

Jack Hardecastle, Box 3157, Lubbock, Texas, April 6: One was baptized yesterday. Two baptisms and nine restorations and memberships during the month of March. Our meeting with Paul McClung of Lamesa doing the preaching will begin April 12. R. L. Shuman, local song leader will lead the singing in the meeting. Our second annual singing normal with L. O. Saderson, Paul Epps, Wilkin Bacon, and Texas Stevens will be held here at College Avenue July 6 through 17. All who are interested in attending the singing normal please write us at the above address.

Howard Casada, Great Bend, Kansas, April 9: Four baptized this week. One placed membership. Some good personal workers are here. Personal work gets results.

Fletcher Cauthen, North West at Yazoo Street, Jackson, Mississippi, April 6: Two were baptized and two placed membership here with the Central church yesterday. Also a new record of 225 for Bible study was set.

Paul T. Dumm, 35 Piedmont Avenue, Charleston, South Carolina, April 5: Four answered the invitation today. Three to be buried with their Lord in baptism and one to be restored. We also had a record attendance at Bible study. With God's blessings the work in Charleston is prospering.

Thos. E. Cudd, 210 Cheyenne Avenue, Colorado Springs, Colorado, April 7: The work at Central in Colorado Springs, continues in a fine way. Since January first we have had sixteen additions. If you have relatives or friends here let us hear from you that we might visit them. When traveling through Colorado, plan to worship with us at Boulder and Weber.

V. J. Cullum, North Military Street Church of Christ, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma: We have broken all previous records in Bible school, church attendance, and contributions, recently fifteen have been added to our happy and growing family here. Five baptized, four restored and placed membership, and six placed membership. We rejoice over these marks of progress and praise our Savior and God for such blessings. Success to the Firm Foundation and what she stands for.

Robert P. Stewart, P. O. Box 459, Grass Valley, California, April 7: Since our last report one has been baptized and one restored. The work here seems to be on the upward trail. All classes have equaled or surpassed their attendance goals and new ones will have to be set. We are very much in need of a building in which we can work and worship every day of the week. The people here have a mind to work, but have little of this world's goods with which to work. You can have a helping hand in this work if you will. Direct your prayers to the Lord, your checks to church of Christ at the above address. I have finally found work which will help feed the family, though it will limit to some extent what I can do for the church. We are thankful for the work.

Bill McCown, 176 Ohio Street, New Braunfels, Texas, April 6: The church in New Braunfels recently closed a fine gospel meeting with Reuben Stanley from San Antonio as evangelist. One was baptized. I spoke on April 3 at the Galena Park church near Houston on the Bible versus Catholicism with emphasis on the Catholic contention of the Popeship of Peter. Thomas B. Warren is the fine minister currently working with this congregation. They have just moved into a beautiful new building which will enhance their possibilities many fold. I am leaving this week for a two week meeting with the church at Natick, Massachusetts. My home congregation here in New Braunfels is sending and supporting me in this work. We pray for good to result from our labors there.

Claude A. Guild, 2701 E. Belknap Street, Fort Worth 11, Texas, April 10: There were six baptisms in the meeting at Anson, Texas. My next meeting is at Central, in Houston, Texas, beginning April 12.

Willis G. Jernigan, 1401 Ash Street, Commerce, Texas, April 12: The Kamay meeting closed April 9. Seven were baptized and four restored. Brother Dennis Kellogg directed the song service. The work in Commerce continues in a very fine way. One was restored at the morning service today.

Cecil B. Douthitt, P. O. Box 67, Brownwood, Texas, April 13: I was with the church in Comanche, Texas, for a ten day meeting which closed April 12. Eight were baptized and one placed membership. M. F. Manchester, minister for the Comanche church, is a very fine co-worker.

John W. Franklin, 1730 Custer Avenue, Laramie, Wyoming: Since last reporting, three have been baptized here. A very nice fifth Sunday contribution last Sunday was set aside for a building fund. A preacher's home and remodeling of the present church edifice is needed here. We shall be happy to have you stop and worship with us.

W. Halliday Trice, 67 Waller St., San Francisco, California, April 8: Since my last report two young married women have been baptized, one person has been restored and six persons have placed membership at the Golden Gate congregation, 8th Avenue and Cabrillo Street, San Francisco. Please send me the names of those who should be contacted in this area.

Hatton A. Gist, 636 Steves Avenue, San Antonio 10, Texas, April 13: Brother Paul Stevens closed a good meeting with Highland Hills church April 12. The results were good. Three were baptized as a visible result. Seven others have been baptized as a result of the regular work during the past three weeks. All are happy and live in peace.

Sister U. G. Wilkinson, Box 192, Comanche, Oklahoma, April 12: Today was a good day here for the church. Brother G. W. Allison gave a wonderful lesson on "The Church." Some say, it was the best ever heard here. Crowd was large. Since Brother Allison came, the building has been enlarged to accommodate the people, as more attend than have for years, even in the revival meetings. Love to the Firm Foundation and readers.

Kenneth J. Arrington, Wichita Falls, Texas, April 9: Twenty-third and Grace Streets in Wichita Falls, Texas, began a local radio program the first of March over station KFDX (990) each Lord's day morning at 8:45-9:00 o'clock. Everyone in the listening area of KFDX is invited to listen to this program. We have been meeting in our new building approximately eighteen months and are now in the process of building more class rooms to meet the urgent need for more space. The present membership of this congregation numbers 254 members. There were nine responses in the month of March—two baptisms, three restorations, and four to place membership. Brother and Sister Alan Bryan of the Broadway congregation in Lubbock, Texas, will be with us in a Teachers Training Course which begins April 13-18. This congregation plans to have its first Vacation Bible School in June of this year with our summer meeting to follow in July. When in this section of the state, be sure to visit with us.

Harold Thurman, Lindsay, Oklahoma, April 10: Again last month the average attendance and contribution was the highest ever for this congregation. We begin a meeting the 13th with G. W. Allison preaching.

John W. Hedge, 636 Kickapoo Street, Jacksonville, Texas, April 8: I am now in a very fine meeting with the church at Jal, New Mexico, where Brother Shira labors as preacher. I will close here on April 15th and begin with Brother J. B. Griffith and the church at Eunice, New Mexico, on April 16th.

M. B. Hartley, Alturas, California, April 6: Yesterday I preached for the fine new church in Lakeview, Oregon. It was my privilege to assist them in the beginning of the church there a little over a year ago. Yesterday saw an all time record attendance in both services. Dan Mansur is the preacher there.

E. W. Stovall, Glasgo, Kentucky, April 7: Sunday was our greatest day so far as regular attendance is concerned. One placed membership. My tract on "The False and True Vines" is off the press. Every congregation should have some. My sermon outline book, loose-leaf style, is ready for the printers. Those desiring a copy will please let me hear from you at once. Satisfaction guaranteed.

O. L. Winborn, Box 145, Anthony, New Mexico, April 8: Our recent meeting with Brodie Crouch doing the preaching resulted in one restored, one baptized. The church was edified and encouraged. Prior to the meeting we have had this year, three were restored and one was baptized. Since then two have responded to the invitation, one for baptism. Our attendance and contribution are now exceeding records for recent years.

Lawrence Hazell, 1509 William Street, Valdosta, Georgia, April 11: Seven were baptized and one restored in a good meeting with the church in High Springs, Florida. Harold Dowdy is the hard working preacher with this congregation. R. B. Jones, one of the elders, led the singing in a fine way. C. E. McGaughey begins our spring meeting on May 3rd. M. Norvel Young will be with us in the fall. Worship with us when you come south.

John Bullock, Box 484, Lewisville, Texas, April 9: Three were baptized last week, for which we thank God and take courage. We are enjoying a very pleasant work with this congregation. Average Lord's day attendance, also the contributions, are reaching new marks in this congregation. Brother John Banister will hold our meeting in July, and then in the early fall, the elders are planning a lectureship. The Lord willing, we anticipate these things as the work goes forward. Stop and worship with us on Main, at Milton, when passing through this vicinity.

Horace W. Busby, Fort Worth 4, Texas, April 6: The meeting with the Amherst church was well attended from the start. Brethren from Lubbock to Portales, New Mexico, and most of the places between, were in attendance, including many gospel preachers. Richard Daughtry, the regular preacher in Amherst, led the singing and did it in a very acceptable manner. My home while in the meeting was with Brother Daughtry and his wife, and it was a pleasant stay indeed. They wanted me to return in February of next year.

Wyatt Sawyer, Madisonville, Texas, April 9: One was baptized here the night of April 5th.

Raymond C. Kelcy, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, April 6: Eighteen responded to the invitation in our meeting. Of these, six were baptized and three restored. Cleon Lyles did an excellent job of preaching the gospel. L. B. Clayton, one of our elders, led the singing in a fine way.

J. T. Marlin, 1503 McCaulley, Sweetwater, Texas, April 7: Two were baptized and one restored at 4th and Elm Sunday. I recently preached in a meeting at Crawfordsville, Indiana, with twenty responses, twelve of them baptized. Gene Worman has done a good work there for the past three years.

Tom Walker, 1135 Hollywood, Dallas, Texas, April 13: I closed a very interesting meeting at Wofford, Texas, on March 29. During the meeting they contracted for a nice five room house for the preacher, Brother Dacus, who will move in it May 10 to begin his work with them. Many of my old friends attended the meeting.

Boyd D. Fanning, Dallas, Texas, April 13: Pearl and Bryan has just closed a six-day meeting with Hugo McCord preaching and Kenneth Davis, Jr., directing singing. Interest and attendance were fine. No additions, but on Sunday following the meeting two were baptized and one restored as a result of the meeting.

John H. Banister, 3014 Skillman Avenue, Dallas, Texas, April 13: Good crowds and interest prevail here at Skillman Avenue church. Twenty-five have responded the last two weeks. Seven baptisms, one restored, and seventeen identified of whom three also were restored. I assist the Lamar Avenue church in Paris, Texas, in a gospel meeting May 3-10. Jack Nadeau, whom we support in gospel work in Munich, Germany, is spending five months with us here and may be reached at 3243 Homer, Dallas. He will be glad to visit churches who might be interested in hearing a report of the German work.

Harold Griffin, DeKalb, Texas: I plan to terminate my work with this congregation here in the not too distant future. I would be glad to hear from anyone needing a preacher. I am thirty-three years old, have a wife and three children, ages 3, 5, and 8. I have been preaching for seven years. For references you may contact the congregation here, the elders of the church at Belle Plaine, Kansas, in care of Harold Martin or Brother W. W. Otey at Belle Plaine, Kansas. Write me at Box 521 or call DeKalb, Phone Number 2136. I particularly enjoyed Brother L. R. Wilson's article in the March 21 issue of the Firm Foundation on "Hiring a Preacher."

Arnold Hardin, Lancaster, Texas, March 18: Our work continues to grow as we have had twenty-seven people to respond since the first of the year. Our building, seating a few over 300, is being outgrown. Between 230 and 240 are attending Bible study on Sunday mornings and the contributions are at an all time high, averaging about $375. We are now spending $300 per month for mission work. I am to be with the Logan Street congregation in Denver, Colorado, the first of April for an eleven day meeting. We are now printing a four page bulletin to be placed in all the homes twice a month. We believe this will be productive of much good as it will contain teaching for outsiders.

George Hickey, Kingston Springs, Tennessee, April 8: The contribution and average attendance is at an all time high at this church. June 1 will be my last Sunday with these good people. I don't know where I will locate but will prayerfully consider all offers. We have two children.

F. L. Paisley, 204 South 29th Street, Temple, Texas, April 10: I have time for a meeting the latter half of June, and one the latter part of August. I would love to have the time taken, as I can do more good in meetings than elsewhere. Harvey Dykes is in a meeting here at Avenue G church, and Lloyd Smith will soon be in one at Central.

C. M. Moser, Thornton, Texas, April 5: I closed a meeting at Morton, Texas, last Wednesday night with one baptism. This was my fourth meeting at Morton. The crowds and interest were reasonably good throughout the meeting. Brother Jesse Brookshire is working with this congregation. We had two good services here yesterday.

John H. Lanier, Seagoville, Texas, April 6: Brother Howard Wayne Norton of Fort Worth, preached for us last Lord's day to a very fine audience. The church enjoyed his lessons very much. He is a promising young man. He will be among the best some day. I still have some time for summer meetings as song leader, some in July and August.

Cleon Lyles, Little Rock, Arkansas, April 16: Five were baptized, three restored and five placed membership at 6th Izard in March. The 10th & Francis church in Oklahoma City closed a meeting April 1st in which I preached. Six were baptized and twelve were restored or placed membership. Raymond Kelcy is doing a much appreciated work as the preacher for this church.

Floyd Embree, 1203 Merchant, Artesia, New Mexico, April 6: Brother A. H. Kennamer of Midland, Texas, concluded a good gospel meeting with us last evening. The lessons he brought were most forceful, timely and ably presented. As a result of this meeting, four were baptized and one restored. There was one baptized and two were restored on Sunday before the meeting began.

Hartsell Johnson, Hutchinson, Kansas, March 17: The work in Hutchinson at 14th and Adams moves along in fine shape. We have been much hampered by sickness of late, but attendance is again on the rise. We have had one baptism, one restoration and three to place membership recently. We are anticipating a wonderful effort beginning April 6th with Brother Wilburn Hill doing the preaching in our spring meeting. We plan two services daily, one at noon to be followed by a lunch day, another at 7:30 each evening. We especially invite those within driving distance to be with us at the noon day services, as well as at night. This will continue through April 15th. We have been conducting Bible services each Friday night at Haven, Kansas, for the past seven weeks. We are encouraged by the possibilities of starting a congregation of the church there. Last week we had twenty-six present for Bible study. The congregation which meets at 5th and Pershing in our city will soon be in their new building. We wish for them success in every way. Should you have friends or relatives who are going to move to our city; we would appreciate hearing from you. Pray for us and the cause of Christ in Kansas.

Jas. A. Fry, Box 1255, Goldthwaite, Texas, April 3: On last Sunday evening I closed an eight day meeting with the church at Second and Donley Streets in Tulla. Brother W. P. Dennis has done a very fine work with this church. He is loved by the church and is esteemed by the community. Brother Dennis directed the singing in the meeting in a good way. The interest and attendance were fine from the first service. Three were baptized, one man restored and three identified themselves with the congregation. My next meeting will be with the Twelfth Street church in Phoenix, Arizona.

A. L. Harbin, 109 14th St., Vallejo, California, March 31: Four have been baptized and five restored here during the month of March. Attendance continues to increase so that almost every foot of available seating space is being used. Next Sunday some twenty families from the church here will begin a new congregation in Benicia, six miles away. Many of them live in or near Benicia and have been driving to Vallejo for worship. They will be working in a fertile field, and with Brother Tillman Prince as their preacher we predict for them a rapid growth. There is complete harmony between the two groups.

Arley E. Moore, P. O. Box 984, Astoria, Oregon, March 30: Bad weather and sickness have greatly hindered the new work here. Our Sunday morning attendance has averaged in the twenties. Another hindrance to our attendance and growth is the fact that we are having to meet temporarily in the chapel of Hughes-Ransom Mortuary. This is a very nice and comfortable auditorium, but we do not have facilities for conducting Bible classes. Too, people are reluctant to attend church services in a mortuary. We conduct a weekly 15 minute program at 10:15 every Sunday on radio station KAST. If you know of the presence of members of the church in this area, please send me their names and addresses.

Luther G. Roberts, 2110 West Second Avenue, Corsicana, Texas, March 30: From March 9th to 15th I was in a meeting with the church at Plains, Texas. Good interest was manifested in the meeting and four were baptized and one restored. Brethren from various congregations in that section attended the meeting. The meeting was supported by the church at Spur, Texas, and by some individuals from there and other places. Brother Cecil Allen is the regular preacher for the church in Plains and is doing an excellent work. The church was started in Plains last October and has made excellent progress since that time. The church plans to purchase lots and erect a house just as soon as possible. This will mean much to the growth of the church.

S. C. Kinningham, 814—30th Avenue S.W., Calgary, Alberta, March 28: One young lady was baptized Sunday night who said she had been to various denominations and found none of them to be according to the scripture. But being convinced of the truth upon hearing it, she expressed a desire to obey it the same hour of the night. L. J. Anderson of Kalispell, Montana, will do the preaching in our meeting May 4-15. Sidney G. Roper of Water Valley, Mississippi, will begin work in Edmonton, the thriving capital city of this province, the first of May to establish the church there. He needs further financial assistance in that endeavor and any church that would like to have fellowship in that work may contact him at our address here until his Edmonton address is given.

John McCoy, Box 65, Nocona, Texas, April 6: Last month the Nocona congregation concluded a very good meeting with Brother Paul Gray doing the preaching. The building was filled each evening and Brother Gray did some excellent preaching. The last two Sundays four have placed membership and three have been baptized. We have broken our records recently with 258 in Bible study and $414.00 contribution. The last two weeks of April I will be in a meeting in Bloomington, Texas. Brother D. J. Hamilton is the minister for the congregation there.

Curtis Camp, 917 Louisiana, Amarillo, Texas: Gussie Lambert of Shreveport, Louisiana, preached in our meeting March 1-10. Thirteen were baptized and nine were restored. Roy Baker of this congregation led the singing. There have been 54 responses to the invitation here this year, thirty-four of them being in March. We also set two new Bible school attendance records in March. March 16-25 I preached in a meeting in Vega, Texas. Eight were baptized and two were restored. March 27-April 5 I preached in a meeting in Tucumcari, New Mexico. Seven were baptized and five were restored. Joe Lomax preaches at Vega and Forrest Moyer preaches at Tucumcari.

Wyndal H. Hudson, Coleman, Texas, April 5: Today it was my pleasure to speak to a record audience in Hillsboro, Texas. At the conclusion of the service a lady was restored that had been out of duty for three years. Tonight I go to Central church in Temple, Texas. Tomorrow night I go to Lake View congregation in Waco, Texas. If you would like to have us speak in your congregation concerning our work in Italy, please call us collect at 7230—in Coleman, Texas. Contributions should also be sent to Box 7, in Coleman. Funds are urgently needed for our travel fund. Some more monthly help is solicited by the elders of Coleman church of Christ.

Bert Wells, Archer City, Texas, April 9: Though our accomplishments for the year have not been spectacular, we feel that what we have done for the Lord's church is something to be proud of. I began work here as an evangelist March 1, 1952. Since that date there have been four baptisms, six restorations, and quite a number to move in and place membership with us. Last Lord's day, April 5, a fine man and his twelve year old son were baptized into Christ. In addition to these and other spiritual accomplishments, the church building has been redecorated throughout. At the present time we have a building program on hand, in which we expect to enlarge the auditorium and add four more classrooms. The street running in front of the church is due to be paved this summer and our part of the paving cost is already paid for. We have a well-rounded program of church activities instigated. The book of Revelation is being studied on Wednesday nights and just recently a Women's Bible Class was begun on Tuesday afternoons. We have a number of capable men and women teaching the Scriptures to all who will attend our services. I am sure the little church here has had many hindrances in the past, but these are gradually being overcome, and we anticipate a fine church here for the future; for interest and enthusiasm are evidently mounting. We think we are now deserving of the recognition and respect of the entire brotherhood. We covet the best wishes and prayers of the churches of Christ everywhere. Brother Jimmy Wood of Odessa, Texas, is to be with us in a gospel meeting the second week in June.

Quentin A. Dunn, Box 273, Eldorado, Texas, April 7: I have just returned from a very enjoyable meeting in Blanco, Texas. One was restored, three confessed faith in Christ, and requested baptism. Brother Raymond Despain is the faithful preacher there and is doing a good work. I have time for some more meetings during the summer and fall.

Otis L. Rowe, Cotton Valley, Louisiana, Box 291: On April 5, Thomas D. Rose of Shreveport, Louisiana, closed a very pleasant and profitable meeting in every respect. Interest and attendance were the best. Visible results were one lady from the Methodist church baptized, two confessions of faults and two identified with the church. The work is very pleasant and continues to make progress.

Jimmy Campbell, Guymon, Oklahoma, April 4: Many good things for the success of the Lord's work have taken place since my last report. The church has grown here in the past six months, more than it had the full year before. Brother V. E. Howard just completed a meeting here last Sunday. This meeting was the best in the recent history of the congregation. Eleven were baptized, seven restored, and one placed membership. Additions this year are averaging more than two each Sunday. Certainly the power of the gospel is great. Pray for the work here.

Morris Moore, Hubbard, Texas, April 7: This is our first report since moving to the work in Hubbard. We have just completed our first two months work here on April 2. So far eight have responded to the invitation, six for baptism and two by membership. For these additions we humbly thank God. This is a mission field. The church at this time has a membership of only forty-one members. Herring Avenue church of Christ in Waco; West Second and Fifth Avenue church of Christ in Corsicana are helping us financially. For their assistance we are humbly grateful. Two new records were reached last Lord's day in attendance and contribution. Realizing that all of these blessings come from God, may we hasten the day that we will be as faithful to God as he is to us. When passing through Hubbard, we invite you to worship with us. Please remember us in your prayers as we press on in our work for the Master.

John McCoy, Nocona, Texas, April 7: The church in Nocona, Texas, has reached another one of its goals by beginning May 1st to support another full time preacher in the mission field. Brother Bill Hearn and family will go to Sioux City, Iowa, fully supported by the Nocona congregation. Sioux City has a population of 100,000 with one congregation of Christians of twenty-five members. Brother Arthur Francis, Jr., and family are doing a wonderful work in this city supported by the church in Tulla, Texas, and other Texas congregations. The need for more workers in this area has been felt from the very beginning but only until now with the vision of the Nocona congregation has another full time preacher been able to move to Sioux City to assist in the work. Brother Francis and Brother Hearn will be co-laborers in teaching and preaching in the Bible classes, public teaching and the Daily Radio Broadcast as well as the general work of the church. The advantage of two or more preachers working together in a mission field cannot be overstressed. The Nocona congregation with a membership of 250 has a budget of $365 per week and half of it is spent outside of Nocona.

H. L. Matheny, Goldsmith, Texas, April 7: The church here is enjoying a good gospel meeting. Brother J. P. Crenshaw of Pampa, Texas, is doing the preaching for us. He is presenting the truth in such a forceful way, yet in kindness and love that so far six precious souls have obeyed the truth. The church here is sending me to Worland, Wyoming, to help in the mission meeting there, starting April 15. Pray for us in this gospel effort.

Wayne Hargrove, 5317 South Park Boulevard, Houston, Texas, April 7: Last Sunday morning there were sixteen additions to the MacGregor Park congregation here in Houston, including four baptized. This brings our membership to 234. There were 287 in Bible School and over 500 in morning worship. Contribution was $661. A month ago we started two morning worship services to accommodate the overflowing crowds. We are planning to build the second unit of our building soon.

W. B. Cox, Mason, Texas, April 9: On April 1, I began work with the brethren in Mason, Texas. This is a congenial work in every way. The congregation is capably overseen by Brethren C. D. Sanders, Arthur Flemings, and Howard Burnett, elders. In addition there are four deacons: Brethren John Flemings, Ray Walker, Herman Spaeth, and Henry Kothman. Recently, the parking area around the building was paved. This should be a very good work in every respect. When you are through this section, be sure to stop and worship with us. Note my change of address to P. O. Box 766, Mason, Texas.

Tice Elkins, 4426 Gresham Street, San Diego 9, California, April 8: I desire very much to advise my friends everywhere that my health, my physical condition and nervous system will not permit me to answer personally even a small number of the letters, cards, and some financial gifts I received from brethren and sisters in Christ. If it were not for these gifts there is no way for me to even figure out a way to meet my doctors' bills, drug bills, and other expenses. I beg that each one will understand that I truly thank you and pray God to bless every one. It seems to be the belief of many that "Ma" Elkins and I "moved" from Alamogordo, New Mexico, to California. We did not move. Ma Elkins has gone back home to take care of our few earthly possessions there, but will come back to help take care of me as soon as she can arrange to do so. My address will be 4428 Gresham St., San Diego 9, California, until you see notice of a change. I now have a good supply of all books I have written and my son here will mail out your orders promptly. Please send them in. I need the money for my daily needs.

WANTED—Full-time gospel preacher for small congregation anxious to grow and prosper in the Lord's work. Young or middle-age man preferred with an apt knowledge of the Bible, and a personality capable of doing the great personal work needed here. All members are willing and anxious to labor with whoever comes to help in the great work and a salary awaits you. Good living provisions, excellent climatic conditions, in a 5400 population, and only 54 miles from San Antonio on Highway 81.

Truman E. Spring, 2901 Lawnview, Corpus Christi, Texas, April 6: For the calendar quarter closing Sunday, March 29th, we are glad to report on the progress of the Hillcrest congregation. In this three-month period, there were 85 responses to the invitation (36 of these during our early spring meeting conducted by Frank J. Dunn of Dallas, Texas). Of this 85, there were 29 baptisms; 32 restorations and 24 transfers of membership. Work has begun on the remodeling and enlarging of our building, with completion date set for May 10th. We will then be able to seat over 500 comfortably in the auditorium. New "highs" have been set in every phase of the work and the zeal and enthusiasm of the congregation is at a peak. We trust that we will be able to press forward in furthering the borders of the Lord's kingdom.

John W. Hedge, Representative

Brethren, coming short is the curse of present days, both in preaching and practice. If you want a meeting where the gospel is preached (that is often being left out), I would like to hear from you.—FRANK M. POPE, 800 Clay, Kerrville, Texas.

Gordon L. Downing, Floydada, Texas, April 5: God is blessing the work in Floydada in a wonderful way. Two young ladies were baptized into Christ today. Thirty-eight ladies were present for our Ladies Bible Class this past week. We lacked the presence of three people last Lord's day to break the record attendance in Bible study. It is a pleasure to work with this fine group of Christians. Every one is cooperating and working in a way that is most gratifying.

John H. Banister, 3014 Skillman Avenue, Dallas, Texas, March 30: During March there were forty additions here at Skillman Avenue church. Eighteen were baptized, one was restored, five restored who also placed membership, and sixteen identified. Batsell Barrett Baxter of Nashville, Tennessee, held our meeting March 15-22. Of the above number of additions, twenty-five of them responded during his meeting with fifteen of that number being baptized into Christ. Bible School attendance was very good. Contributions for the month exceeded the budget. Interest and attendance are good.

Rorace W. Busby, 2225 W. Hawthorne, Fort Worth 4, Texas, April 5: We began in Abernathy today. A large crowd was present and two were identified. Ed Bryant is the regular preacher here, and has everything ready so we are expecting a fine meeting. My next meeting will be in Ardmore, Oklahoma, beginning April 19th.

STEPHEN—Geo. R. Stephen died at Junction, Texas, February 5, 1953, lacking about four months of reaching his 81st year. He was a native of Travis County, Texas, but had lived here many years. Four brothers, three sisters, and numerous other relatives survive him. He was my neighbor. B. W. Mantooth and the writer conducted the funeral service on February 6, at the Smith Funeral Home in Junction.

WALTER W. LEAMONS

WREN—William Artie Wren was born near Springtown February 9, 1887, and died at his home here on February 28, 1953. He was married in 1913 to Nannie Mae Thomas and was baptized into Christ by Brother E. H. Rogers about fifty years ago. He was appointed treasurer of the church here in 1918 and an elder in 1935 and remained active in these duties till death. Brother Wren was a man of few words, but his constancy, his warm, hearty handclasp made everyone appreciate his friendship and believe in his sincerity. The loss of such a friend has cast a gloom over the community. Such a life will continue to redound to the glory of his Master. His presence and his encouragement will be greatly missed by the church. He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Edwin Bowen, Boyd, Texas; a son, Thomas Wren, Dallas; three grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Austin Stone, of Fort Worth; Mrs. G. O. Talley, of Green Forest, Arkansas; and two brothers, Vancil Wren, Fort Worth; and Dennis Wren, Greggton. Brother B. J. Thomas, Sister Wren's nephew, assisted by the writer, spoke words of comfort to the family and friends. Interment was in the Springtown cemetery.

J. K. BENTLEY

CHERRY—Funeral services were held in Chickasha, Oklahoma, April 2, at the 6th & Iowa church building for Y. H. Cherry. Brother Cherry was an outstanding man and loved the church of our Lord. He was one of the deacons of the 16th & Florida church in Chickasha. Burial was in Rush Springs, Oklahoma.

BURT—Mr. J. M. Burt, 66, died suddenly on February 26, 1953, just as he finished unloading the children from his school bus at the school building in Junction. He was a native of this county. He was married to Miss Bessie Lee Allsup here March 12, 1922, in a ceremony performed by the late Brother John S. Durst. The widow, three sons, two daughters, and two grandchildren survive him. The daughters are members of the church. His cousin, Louis Pearl, and the writer conducted the funeral service on March 1.

COX—Sister Nora May Cox died at Comanche, Texas, March 10, 1952. She was born March 3, 1874. Most of her life was spent at London, here in Kimble County. She was known as a very faithful Christian and was loved for her works. Brother M. F. Manchester conducted a funeral service in Comanche on March 11, and the same day he and the writer conducted a second service at London, where burial was made. Her husband, Brother C. L. Cox, of Comanche, a number of nieces and nephews survive her.

BAKER—Sister Thomas Baker, 81, a native of Louisiana, who had lived here 52 years, died here March 21, 1953. She was the mother of Weaver H. Baker, chairman of the State Board of Control at the time of his death in a traffic accident in 1946. A daughter, Mrs. Lila Mae Taylor, a son, Eli Baker, both of Junction, several grandchildren and great grandchildren still live. Funeral services were said by the writer. I loved her and her late husband.

TAYLOR—My wife made the trip to Georgia with me last February, when we buried my mother, Mrs. J. W. Taylor, Route 3, Alpharetta, Georgia. A minister of the church of Christ from Atlanta, who was acquainted with my mother and two of the sons, preached the funeral sermon. I made a short talk at the close of his lesson to the many friends, old neighbors, kinfolks, about my mother's faithfulness as a New Testament Christian. The church at Gould, Oklahoma, and the Hollis, Oklahoma, churches of Christ sent flowers, as did several other churches where my mother had lived in times past with the children. Five of her six sons were present at the funeral. One son was unable to come because of illness. Our two sisters were present. Mother was eighty-three years of age when she died, February 24, 1953. She has started different congregations of the church of Christ or has been one of the leading ones insisting on getting a preacher to come and hold a meeting where she lived with the children when there was no church of Christ meeting in her community. I have held two or three of those meetings myself. We have much for which to be thankful. We are very thankful to our loving heavenly Father for blessing us with such a wonderful mother. Our father died several years ago. He was an elder and a very capable leader and teacher. We pray for strength to be faithful and meet them on "Brighter shores and sweeter climes."

WRYE—Mrs. Sallie Journey Wrye, wife of H. W. Wrye, well known faithful gospel preacher, was born May 4, 1868, near Columbia, Tennessee, and passed away April 4, 1953, in Abilene, Texas. She is survived by her husband, a devoted companion for nearly sixty-four years, a son, Paul Wrye, of Amarillo, Texas, two daughters, Mrs. Lee Cox and Mrs. Grace White, both of Abilene, Texas; five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Sister Wrye has known much physical pain in her life. Twice she suffered a fractured skull, a car wreck in which a leg and both arms were broken, then a fall resulting in a broken hip had made her an invalid for nearly four years. Yet all these misfortunes, sufferings and confinements she bore without complaints. She was a faithful wife and devoted mother. It is said she never closed her eyes at night without praying for her husband and his work. She brought up her children "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord," carrying them regularly to church instead of sending them. She was indeed a true helpmeet to her husband in his church work.

As she could in her quiet way she rendered much helpful service to his located work while the children were young then after they were all grown and married she traveled extensively with him in his preaching throughout many states lending whatever assistance and encouragement she could, during which time she made many friends who will mourn her passing. Funeral services were conducted by O. B. Proctor, North Park Church of Christ, and the writer, after which her frail body was laid away to rest in beautiful Elmwood Memorial Park, Abilene, Texas, to await the resurrection of the redeemed.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Skeptics

I have never talked with a skeptic who was not one because he wanted to be—I think this is true of all skeptics. There may be honest doubters, but I don't know of any. Skeptics are not honest in handling the truth. They misrepresent the Bible, twist what it says, in an effort to make its teachings look incredible. They assume inconsistent positions and become special pleaders to justify their position.

Skeptics are very exact in their demands for evidence of the truth of the Scriptures. In most instances they demand impossible testimony as a condition of faith. Greater and better evidence may be offered them, but they refuse to accept it. In the days of Jesus, the leaders of Israel were skeptics. When the Lord was on the cross they said, "If he be the Christ, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him." But he could not come down from the cross without repudiating some of the most emphatic prophecies concerning him. Instead of proving that he was the Christ by saving himself, and coming down from the cross, that act would have been conclusive evidence that he was not the Christ. The leaders of Israel were ignorant of their own Scriptures.

No matter how many other great things Jesus had done, he must do this one thing before they would believe him. And there is a strong probability that they would not have believed him, if he had come down from the cross. On that same occasion they saw the darkness that occurred from the sixth hour till the ninth. They witnessed the earthquake and saw the rending rocks. But they would not believe, though this evidence was so striking that the Roman Centurion said, "Truly this was the Son of God." These men were skeptics because they did not want to believe.

Where is the consistency in accepting one part of the Bible as true, while saying that other parts are false? We have heard skeptics quote from the Bible to prove what they were contending for, and then quote other passages to prove that the Bible is not true. Some of them will say that there never was such a person as Christ—that he was only a mythical character like Santa Claus. Then they will quote the words of Christ in an effort to prove what they believe. They assume prerogatives which they will not allow others to share.

What About The Bible?

Any way you take it the Bible is a wonderful Book. Skeptics and all other kinds of infidels say it is a human production. I think the Bible becomes a greater mystery, and harder to explain, when men say it is a product of the human mind. Its contents are more reasonable upon the ground of divine inspiration, than they are upon the theory that it is of human origin. How a nation of people could foretell the coming of a great person like Christ, produce the person, crucify him, then in opposition to their wishes be defied by the world, is a thing that cannot be satisfactorily explained, only on the ground that he was a divine person.

We believe that Jesus was all that he claimed to be—the Son of the living God. On any other explanation he is a greater mystery than this explanation. We believe the Bible is the word of God. It is easier to explain its existence by this hypothesis than by any other. "Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit," is the most reasonable conclusion.

Bread And Fruit Of The Vine, Not Flesh And Blood

Hoyt Bailey

If one were to partake of literal flesh and blood in partaking of the Lord's Supper that one would be doing what Jehovah has forbidden in both the Old and New Testaments. In Gen 9:4, Jehovah says: "But flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof, shall ye not eat." Jehovah said to the Israelites: "It shall be a perpetual statute throughout your generations in all your dwellings, that ye shall eat neither fat nor blood" (Lev. 3:17). "And whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among them, that eateth any manner of blood, I will set my face against that soul that eateth blood, and will cut him off from among his people. For the life of the flesh is in the blood; and I have given it to you upon the altar to make atonement for your souls: for it is the blood that maketh atonement by reason of the life . . . For as to the life of all flesh, the blood thereof is all one with the life thereof: therefore I said unto the children of Israel, Ye shall eat the blood of no manner of flesh; for the life of all flesh is the blood thereof: whosoever eateth it shall be cut off" (Lev. 17:10-14). Under the New Covenant, we have these words, "For it seemed good to the Holy Spirit, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things: that ye abstain from things sacrificed to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication; from which if ye keep yourselves, it shall be well with you" (Acts 15:28, 29). Children of God under all three dispensations have been commanded to abstain from or to keep themselves from blood. When one partakes of the Lord's Supper that one partakes of the bread and fruit of the vine in remembrance of the body and blood of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Lord Jesus Christ instituted the Lord's Supper. The scripture says: "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it; and he gave to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took a cup, and gave thanks, and gave to them, saying, Drink ye all of it; for this is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many unto remission of sins. But I say unto you, I shall not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom" (Matt. 26: 26-29). Again, we read, "And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the apostles with him. And he said unto them, With desire I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer: for I say unto you, I shall not eat it, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God. and he received a cup, and when he had given thanks, he said, Take this, and divide it among yourselves: for I say unto you, I shall not drink from henceforth of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come. And he took bread, and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and gave to them saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. And the cup in like manner after supper, saying, This cup is the new covenant in my blood, even that which is poured out for you" (Luke 22:14-20). Jesus said unto those apostles: "And I appoint unto you a kingdom, even as my Father appointed unto me, that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom" (Luke 22:29, 30).

The same New Testament which informs us concerning the institution of the Lord's Supper, also informs us of the disciples of Jesus partaking of the Lord's Supper. Paul said to the Corinthians: "For I received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, that the Lord Jesus in the night in which he was betrayed took bread; and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, This is my body, which is for you: this do in remembrance of me. In like manner also the cup, after supper, saying, This cup is the New Covenant in my blood: this do, as often as ye drink it, in remembrance of me" (1 Cor. 11:23-25). The apostle was guided by the Holy Spirit when he wrote the letter to the Corinthians as well as when he wrote the other letters. He says: "For I received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you." After the Lord went back to heaven, he revealed his word unto Paul under the direction of the Holy Spirit. The Spirit guided Paul to say: "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come. Wherefore whosoever shall eat the bread or drink the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man prove himself, and so let him eat of the bread, and drink of the cup" (1 Cor. 11:26-28). The Spirit-guided apostle did not understand that one partakes of the literal flesh and the literal blood of Jesus Christ in partaking of the Lord's Supper. The idea of eating the literal flesh and drinking the literal blood from the Lord's table developed ten or twelve centuries after Paul wrote to the Corinthians. That idea developed that many centuries too late to be what the Bible says. Paul said: "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come. Wherefore whosoever shall eat the bread or drink the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man prove himself, and so let him eat of the bread, and drink of the cup." He makes it very clear that one does not eat the literal flesh and drink the literal blood of Jesus Christ in partaking of the Lord's Supper.

Again, Paul said: "I speak as to wise men; judge ye what I say. The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not a communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not a communion of the body of Christ?" (1 Cor. 10:15, 16). He points out that the cup and bread are a communion of the blood and body of Jesus. In partaking or eating of the bread, the Christian eats it in remembrance of the Body of Christ. In partaking of the cup, the Christian drinks it in remembrance of the blood of Christ. The scripture says: "That the Lord Jesus in the night in which he was betrayed took bread; (He didn't take flesh, but bread) and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, This is my body, which is for you: this do in remembrance of me. In like manner also the cup, after supper, saying, This cup is the New Covenant in my blood: this do, as often as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come. Wherefore whosoever shall eat the bread or drink the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man prove himself, and so let him eat of the bread, and drink of the cup. For he that eateth and drinketh, eateth and drinketh judgment unto himself, if he discern not the body" (1 Cor. 11:23-29). When Jesus instituted the Lord's Supper, he took bread and fruit of the vine to institute the Supper. After Jesus blessed them or gave thanks for them, they remained bread and fruit of the vine. When the Corinthians ate the Lord's Supper, they ate bread (not flesh) and drank the cup or fruit of the vine. They took the bread and fruit of the vine in remembrance of the body and blood of Jesus.

On what day are we to partake of the Lord's Supper? Acts 20:7 says: "And upon the first day of the week, when we were gathered together to break bread," is the approved example of how often the Christians partook of the Lord's Supper in remembrance of Christ. It was and is today that Christians are to partake of the Lord's Supper upon the first day of the week. It does not make it too commonplace to partake of it each and every first day of the week, for on that basis contributions would be ruled out; except for once a month, once a quarter, or once a year. The Spirit-guided apostle said: "Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I gave order to the churches of Galatia, so also do ye. Upon the first day of the week let each one of you lay by him in store, as he may prosper, that no collections be made when I come" (1 Cor. 16:1, 2). It is not too commonplace for some to have two collections on each and every Lord's day, on every first day of the week. The order set forth in the Scriptures is that each and every Christian is to lay by in store on the first day of the week. Inasmuch as it does not make it too commonplace to have collections every Sunday, why should partaking of the Lord's Supper every Lord's day, every first day of the week, make it too commonplace? The disciples of the Lord did not look upon it as becoming too commonplace, because "the disciples came together upon the first day of the week to break bread."

How often did Christians attend to partaking of the Lord's Supper? Scripture says: "And they continued stedfastly in the apostles' teaching and fellowship, in the breaking of bread and the prayers" (Acts 2:42). We have learned already that the disciples came together on the first day of the week to break bread. The passage does not say that they came together once a month, once every three months, or once every year, but they came together upon the first day of the week to break bread. They didn't start out and break bread for a few weeks and miss several weeks before breaking again, but "they continued stedfastly in the breaking of bread." As often as the first day of the week came, that often did Christians break bread during the days of the apostles. Some must have become neglectful, for they were admonished: "And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works; not forsaking our own assembling together, as the custom of some is, but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day drawing nigh" (Heb. 10: 24, 25).

Jehovah teaches on this point from both the positive and negative viewpoints. He gives the positive command as follows: "Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I gave order to the churches of Galatia, so also do ye. Upon the first day of the week let each one of you lay by him in store, as he may prosper . . ." (1 Cor. 16:1, 2). He gave the negative in these words: "Not forsaking our own assembling together, as the custom of some is, but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day drawing nigh" (Heb. 10:25). He commands Christians to assemble. He also says: "Not forsaking our own assembling together." How could teaching be stronger on the duty of Christians assembling for worship? These are commands of Jehovah. One cannot expect to be saved without keeping the commands of Jehovah. Rev. 22:14 says: "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city."

Inasmuch as the Lord's Supper is to be kept in remembrance of Christ, if it is not taken; then Christ is not remembered and obeyed. The scripture says: "Jesus was risen early on the first day of the week" (Mark 16:9). Christians are taught to lay by in store on the first day of the week. If they do not lay by in store on this day, they are not obeying the command. If they fail to assemble on the Lord's day or any time the Lord's people assemble, they are not doing what the Bible teaches Christians to do. If Christians do not eat of the bread and drink of the fruit of the vine on the first day of the week, they are not doing what Christ appointed for his disciples, neither are they following the example left in the scripture. 1 Cor. 11:26 says: "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come." If we fail to partake of the Lord's Supper, we fail to proclaim the Lord's death. Should we not conclude that if there is any authority for eating the Lord's Supper any first day of the week, there is the same authority for eating the Lord's Supper every first day of the week? The same scripture which authorizes us to eat the Lord's Supper on one first day of the week, also authorizes us to eat it every first day of the week.

The Lord Will Never Come

F. L. Paisley

You will say this is a daring statement, and a false one. I shall not dispute your assertion. Nor do I believe it for a moment. But I shall prove it true, according to a claim made by a great and able teacher, or prove that his statement was unfounded—product of an unnecessary effort to meet error. That able teacher is not herein quoted till near the close of this essay.

"Will Again Stand on Mount Olives"

It is easy to read into a passage what is not there, when such reading helps sustain what we wish it did say. All who have much to say about the Lord's return to begin his reign on earth refer to Zech. 14:4—"And his feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives." It is thus assumed that the prophecy has yet to be fulfilled in its entirety. Before me is the Primitive Christian, a relatively new paper from Australia, an overwhelmed premillennialist, in which the editorial says, "And so reading Zechariah 14:4 and Acts 1:11 together we know that his feet last touched the earth on the Mount of Olives and that they will again stand on the same ground when he comes."

"Will again"? Unless the editor knows several things the rest of us can not know, it is bold presumption to say that the feet of the Lord "will again" stand on that spot—and he adds to his presumption by saying "we know" it will be so. If such a scripture as Zech. 14:4 could be found written since Jesus left the earth, and evidently pointing to his return—or written we care not how long before he came to earth, and unquestionably referring to his return, then in absence of another clearer verse to the contrary, it would be some grounds for the editor's statement. But in as much as the Lord's feet have been on the Mount since the prophecy was written, it is folly to say "we know" that he "will again" stand there. Were the editor as fair with his readers and himself, and his Lord's word, as proper honesty demands, he should rather say, "It is my opinion that the Lord will stand there when he comes again." However far-fetched a man's opinion might be from what we believe to be the truth, we can have some patience with him when he declares it to be an opinion. But when he states that opinion as a truth uttered in the Bible, and declares "we know" it to be truth, such teacher is false to his trust, not worthy the confidence of any who regard the word of the Lord in its own terms as final and irrevocable.

It might not be easy, or even possible, to show that all things in Zech. 14 have come to pass. If our denial that verse 4 teaches what the editor says he knows demands that we prove that they all have come to pass, the opposite would be true—the one affirming what the editor does is obligated to prove that many things in the chapter are yet to come to pass. The speculator is strong on demanding that those who question his knowledge prove certain things, but forgets that himself is in the explaining and proving business, and not the denier of his assertions. If the negative by reason of his denial of the claims is obligated to prove that the mount has sometime in the past been rent asunder, the halves drifting literally apart, then the affirmative must also tell us if verse 2 is also to be literally fulfilled when Jesus comes. If so, what becomes of the theory of the reign of perfect peace Jesus is to inaugurate when he comes? Will fighting nations revert to the use of horses, mules and camels as instruments of war? Verse 15. Will people at God's approval observe the "feast of tabernacles" then? Verses 16-18.

Aside from all doctrinal points and claims, I should much rather say that all of the chapter has been fulfilled than to say that all is yet to come to pass. It is very evident that one or the other is true. Never has God reverted from a higher to a lower order in divine worship for man. Was the "feast of tabernacles" lower or higher in spiritual import than the Lord's Supper? Is the blood of animals lower or higher in the scheme of redemption than the blood of Christ? Was the Jewish economy higher or lower than the church of the Lord? If Zech. 14 is yet to be fulfilled, God will then give us the lower order of things in lieu of the present higher spiritual values. Who can believe it?

"Coming Is Not Immediate"

This quotation is from a very splendid class book written by Brother H. Leo Boles who believed no part of the millennial theories. His statement was an unnecessary one—not at all needed to refute the error in view. I had as soon risk saying the Lord will evidently come tomorrow as to risk saying he will not come for a thousand years. There is no evidence, direct or indirect, either way. When the New Testament was written the Lord's coming was not immediate, but it took a special revelation of truth to let Christians know it. As the then intervening hindrance has since come to pass, we would have to have another special revelation to make us know his return is yet long withheld.

As I write this we suppose that no atom bomb will be dropped on any enemy city within the next few days. But with world strain as it is, who can feel the same supposed certainty that it will not be dropped within the next twenty years? In as much as it has been officially announced that all things are ready for such tragedy from the skies to fall within a few hours of certain happenings, we'd have to know all plans and aims even of the enemy to know it will not take place shortly. No man can know God's plans so well as to say the Lord will not come within any certain time range. "The New Testament Teaches the Same as When Written"

Again I quote the same author, as above, and find the two statements related. The statement is true regarding some things; but the blanket statement is misleading. Years ago a great written debate had just ended in which he had part. He had made a statement which many brethren generally agreeing with him seriously questioned. In a private conversation with him over the matter he made to me the statement just quoted, and added, "When written the New Testament taught that the Lord's return was not then immediate, and it teaches now just what it taught then." This is a catchy statement because of the partial truth it contains.

Matt. 16:18 when uttered by the Lord clearly taught that the building of the church was future. It does not teach that now. Many utterances of Jesus on earth most clearly taught that his crucifixion was future. Neither one so teaches now. When no time element is involved it is generally safe to say that the verse teaches now what it did when written. But when something was to take place subsequent to the writing, and time and happenings remove the intervention, it is definitely unsafe to make the statement—it is contrary to truth to say such a thing.

Paul taught the churches that a great falling away must then precede the coming of the Lord. The same verses do not teach that such falling away is yet to precede the coming. All scholars regard that the great apostasy closely following the close of the apostolic age was the one Paul predicted. To say that the New Testament now teaches just what it did when written, without regard to time elements, is to deny that such apostasy has yet come. Truth does not demand such risks by its defenders. Those facts were pointed out to the debater in the presence of J. Petty Ezell, but to no avail so far as evidenced by him who made the statement. Over-anxiety to get another "point" against an opponent is dangerous.

Jesus Will Never Return

This error is an inescapable conclusion if the above argument were true. The New Testament, when written, taught that the Lord's return was a long way off—at the least, we must admit that it so turned out—exactly contrary to what it taught, if it then taught the imminency of the return. Granting the debater's argument, if it then taught a long delay before his coming, and teaches now what it did then, it follows that it will always teach the same thing. Then a thousand years from now, yea ten million years hence, it will teach the same thing. The New Testament teaches that Jesus will never come, or he will have to come when it teaches he will not! This is inescapable. We can not accept the conclusion either way.

Imminency is Not Justified Expectation Now

Just because we grant that we know nothing to keep the Lord from coming any day is not grounds to expect him any day. A certain man's life expectancy is thirty years, but that gives him no grounds to claim to know he will live thirty days longer. The soldier in battle knows he may fall any minute, but after the first fright, he does not normally expect to fall any minute.

Some years ago an excellent Christian lady, every ounce of her being sincere, now gone over, thought she believed all the premillennial teachings, and was sure that we should look for the Lord to come any day. I called her attention to the fact that she was not expecting him for more than two weeks from that date. She was very interested to know how I knew so much about what she did or did not expect. I was pleased to tell her. It happened that she was then planning to leave home in a few days for a distant city where she planned to remain two weeks, and then return home. She was reminded that she would not be so planning if she really expected the Lord to come that day, or during the next ten days. She quickly saw the point, colored considerably, and changed the subject. Why not?

Either death or the Lord's return will certainly end our sojourn here. It is impossible for us to know which it will be. Thus prepared for both, we are willing to leave the rest with the divine arrangements, and never lift a finger to prove which will be first. This effort is to help some cut loose from all such speculations over any of the Lord's arrangements, especially when we have to contradict plain truth and common sense so to do.

Jesus is coming; let's be ready, and leave the time with him.

At Thorp Spring With Brother Roberson

Carl A. Gardner

In 1917-1918 Brother C. H. Roberson and I were co-workers in old Thorp Spring Christian College. He was an inspiration to those who knew him. Many times did we walk and ride together. His happy slant on life, together with his love for the simple faith, gave him great influence among many. His scholarship was well known, even then. He burned the midnight oil often to delve into the Bible, lexicons and other sources. He passed on to some of us his main findings, and was always happiest when conversing on Bible themes. Such a mind sets others to learning how to study. By him I was encouraged to study more carefully and not to follow the usual way of half-baked conclusions. He loved the gospel and knew that its simplicity should ever be held to as the most precious heritage. He deplored the tendency to give so much emphasis to externals to the neglect of the spiritual. He loved the brethren.

After we left Thorp Spring in the summer of 1918, he and I drove hundreds of miles over several counties to contact brethren to see if they were interested in giving financial support to revive old Clebarro College at Cleburne, which had several years before closed its doors. I let Brother Roberson do all the talking, because I knew he excelled in the debonaire and dignified ways. He never used high pressure. He called on only individual Christians and did not solicit congregations. I furnished the automobile and Brother Roberson the influence and strength. We drove over to Clifton to visit with Brother C. R. Nichol, then ill and confined. Brother Nichol and Brother Roberson were bosom companions and counsellors during the years all of us were at Thorp Spring together. Both of them inspired me.

Brother Roberson's main "range" in those days was in Ellis and Hill counties, where he was known by all the brethren. It was a coincidence that in 1918-1922 I served as superintendent of Bardwell and Ferris public schools in Ellis county. At Ferris I came to know and love the family of Sister Roberson—the Moyers. Her brother, Henry Moyers, was a great help to me, for he served as president of the local school board. Her niece, Rebecca McKay, was a pupil of mine in the Ferris High School—an ideal girl and student. Later she married A. B. Morris, coach at Abilene Christian College. Her brother-in-law, Brother Dick McKay, was a pillar in the church, standing for the primitive faith and against all innovations.

In those days, after we ceased to associate at Thorp Spring, it was my joy to be with Brother Roberson when he visited at Ferris and other points in that area. He showed no indication of pessimism or defeat. He always had the twinkle of confidence and was ready to venture again into the work of "Christian education." It was a joy to many when he was chosen to head the Bible department at Abilene Christian College. Here he realized his desires to teach the Bible to hundreds of our young people—especially to young preachers. That he did his chosen work superbly well is attested by thousands.

The last contact I had with Brother Roberson was the year he retired from regular teaching at ACC. At that time he and Brother Nichol were working on a commentary of the entire New Testament. Although this work was doubtless not finished, I trust what parts of it that were will be published, because it would be most valuable to the church. These two great teachers and scholars could produce only superior books. Truly Brother Roberson "filled his niche, accomplished his task and left the world better than he found it." I hope to join him anew in the resurrection day.

THAT PASSAGE IN ISAIAH

Norman Gipson

There are faults in the Revised Standard Version. But the criticisms which are being made against this translation are not all valid. It is to be feared that these criticisms will discourage the study of this translation; and whosoever fails to read it will certainly be doing himself a disfavor. As to whether the translation has sufficient merit to endure, time alone will tell.

One of the criticisms which is not entirely valid concerns Isaiah 7:14: "Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign. Behold, a young woman shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel." Much of what has been said on this verse ignores the context entirely. Here is the paragraph in which it occurs: "Again the Lord spoke to Ahaz, Ask a sign of the Lord your God; let it be deep as Sheol or high as heaven. But Ahaz said, I will not ask, and I will not put the Lord to the test. And he said, Hear then, O house of David! Is it too little for you to weary men, that you weary my God also? Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign. Behold, a young woman shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel. He shall eat curds and honey when he knows how to refuse the evil and choose the good. For before the child knows how to refuse the evil and choose the good, the land before those two kings you are in dread will be deserted. The Lord will bring upon you and upon your people and upon your father's house such days as have not come since the day that Ephraim departed from Judah—the king of Assyria."

This is the historical background: Ahaz, Judah's king, had led the people into idolatry. Because of their sins, God brought Pekah, king of Israel, against Judah; and 120,000 men of Judah were killed in one horrible day of slaughter (2 Chron. 28:1-6). Ahaz feared that his kingdom was about to be annihilated; and this fear was increased when he heard that Pekah had made an alliance with Rezin, king of Syria. In order to encourage Ahaz, God sent Isaiah to him with a message: "Take heed, be quiet, do not fear, and do not let your heart be faint because of these two smoldering stumps of firebrands, at the fierce anger of Rezin and Syria and the son of Remaliah . . . It shall not stand, and it shall not come to pass (within sixty-five years Ephraim shall be broken that it will no longer be a people). It was then that Ahaz was told to ask a sign; and upon his refusal, the prophet said, "The Lord himself shall give you a sign . . ."

This is one of those prophecies that has a dual fulfillment. The immediate fulfillment was to occur in the birth of a child who would be a sign to Ahaz. Now, brethren, was this child to be born of a "virgin"? Or of "a young woman"? There are other elements of the prophecy that indicate a fulfillment in the days of Ahaz. The child who was to be born "shall eat curds and honey when he knows how to refuse the evil and choose the good." Here the Revised Standard Translation is certainly preferable to the King James, which reads, "Butter and honey shall he eat, THAT he may know how to refuse the evil, and choose the good." If there were any possibility that this translation could be correct here, we all ought to order butter and honey by the case! Yet I never noticed any of the brethren writing that the King James translators made a mockery of the Holy Spirit, or a fool of Isaiah, by the translation.

Back to the point: A child was to be born in the time of Ahaz; the child was to be a sign to him. Despite the sad condition of his kingdom at the time this promise was made, such a change was to come that the time the child was old enough to know good and evil, there should be plenty—curds and honey—in the land. This is the food of good times; not the food of war and famine. This leads us to the conclusion: the IMMEDIATE fulfillment of this prophecy demanded the use of a word that can mean "a young woman." Isaiah used such a word. Hear Thayer: "Parthenos: a virgin: Matt. 1:23 (fr. Is. 7:14) . . . Septuagint . . . twice for almah, i.e., either a marriageable maiden, or a young (married) woman" (Lexicon, page 489). Shall we all now dispense with Thayer's Lexicon?

As to the remote fulfillment of this prophecy, in the coming of Christ, the Revised Standard Version reads: "All this took place to fulfill what the Lord had spoken by the prophet: Behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and his name shall be called Emmanuel" (which means, God with us) (Matt. 1:22, 23).

The charge is made that the translators of the Revised Standard Version are modernists. And I do not doubt it. Were the translators of the King James Version entirely acceptable to us in their religious views? Do we agree that it was right and good for them to retain, by order of the king, such words as "baptism," which was not a translation at all, but a mere transliteration? Did they make a mockery of the Holy Spirit, and a fool of Luke, by putting their feast of Easter instead of the Passover, in Acts 12:4? I do not urge that we accept the Revised Version with no criticisms. But I regret to see the impression furthered that has plagued us these many years, that the King James Version is the BIBLE—and nothing else is.

Studies In Galatians (No. 9)

R. C. Bell

Between the promise to Abraham and its fulfillment in Christ, God gave the law through Moses in order to teach man that under law, which required him to earn his justification by his own doing, he was a lawbreaker, condemned to death. This universal, perpetual human failure was supposed to shatter man's religious faith in himself, and to prepare him to accept justification as a gift procured by the doing of another. Herein lies the chief advantage of Christianity over Mosaism. Were Christianity just another law for man to keep, still he would fail.

"God Is One"

As the foundation of Jewish religion, Moses taught that "Jehovah our God is one Jehovah" (Deut. 6:4). Even men without the Bible have so much evidence in nature that they are without excuse, if they do not see the unity, power, and infinite goodness of God, the Maker and Governor of all (Acts 14:17; Rom. 1:20).

When God promised old, childless Abraham an innumerable progeny to occupy, centuries later, a land three or four times as large as Texas, he was pleased to grant Abraham the assurance he asked. At God's direction, Abraham divided some animals into halves and laid the pieces opposite each other with a passageway between. From time immemorial when two or more parties made an important covenant, they, to seal the compact, walked together along such a passageway. God used this then ancient, familiar ceremony as Abraham's pledge. But very singularly only a flaming torch, representing God, passed between the pieces of the offering.

The reason Abraham did not so pass was twofold: first, he was only the recipient of a free promise and was not himself promising anything; second, the relationship between the two was so personal, unifying, and binding that any difference between them, needing a mediator to compose, was impossible. "Abraham my friend" (Isaiah 41:8), was God's own characterization of this remarkable man. To his friends, the promise of the great "I am that I am" (Exod. 3:14), is always, in both natural and religious matters, enough.

Both the circumstances under which and the manner in which the temporal Mosaic covenant was made preclude the idea that it was to supersede the Abrahamic covenant. Despite all that God had done for them in Canaan, Egypt, and the wilderness, over a period of 430 years, the Hebrews utterly failed to understand and appreciate God's promise to Abraham. Moreover, they were so far from realizing their great distance from God and the depth of their depravity that the indirect, parenthetical, legal covenant, with its mere angelic ministry and human mediator, became necessary to reveal to them their miserable moral condition.

Since in God's promise to Abraham only one party was bound, there could be no mediator to arrange terms between two parties. But in the inferior Mosaic covenant much mediatorial work was required. Moses made three up and down trips between the people at the base and God at the summit of Mount Sinai (Exod. 19). Even after the people in ignorance and conceit had lightly answered Moses, "All that Jehovah hath spoken we will do," Moses toiled up and down the rugged mountain twice more, cooperating with God to solemnize and sanctify the occasion, to deepen the people's sense of sin and separation from God, and to lead them to make their side of the contract profoundly religious and sacred. But even so, they had scarcely agreed to the terms of the covenant before they flagrantly broke it with their golden calf. So much for men under law, flesh, and self.

All this underlies Paul's reasoning with the Galatians when he says of the Sinaitic covenant: "It was ordained through angels by the hand of a mediator. Now a mediator is not a mediator of one, but God is one." In dealing with each other, God and his sons are not two parties, requiring the services of a mediator. Christians are so incorporated into Christ's personality, so instinct with his life that one nature serves the whole Christian organism—head and body alike. They are so surrendered to Christ, so identified with Christ, and so absorbed into Christ that, with all differences and discords silenced, Christ and his friends (John 15:15) become one party, with all need of human mediation forever eliminated. What else can Christ's high priestly prayer to his Father, "That they may all be one, even as we are one; I in them, and thou in me, that they may be perfected into one" (John 17:22, 23) mean? Paul thought this reasoning should show the Galatians their folly and sin in thinking that the law could add anything to God's everlasting promise to Abraham, fulfilled in Christ. He hoped it would crush their legality completely and permanently. Can Christians, now, but learn and yield themselves to the truth that God through Christ in the Spirit takes them to his great fatherly heart in a gracious, loving, friendly, personal oneness, they will have the only way of pressing "on unto perfection" that infinite wisdom, power, and love provide.

Law As A Jailer

Because all men are foolish and slow of heart to believe that law never makes alive, but ever kills, Paul, to his beloved Galatians, yearningly lingers over this vital truth. In the last of Gal. 3, he represents law as a jailor who herds all men into a vast house of death, and securely locks them in. Man is truly a sinner by nature. When he knows but little law, he is a slave to his unbridled flesh. Since "the power of sin is the law" (1 Cor. 15:56), when he knows law he becomes a rebel, therefore a greater sinner, by breaking it. Verily, law is a huge jailor who has men fast confined in his great jail till—"Till the seed should come to whom the promise hath been made." Law, therefore, with his massy, iron key of sin, curse, and death shuts all in his prison till grace comes with her golden key of faith, justification, and life to open doors for all who, to their imprisonment, prefer freedom. Why do doomed men even hesitate to accept deliverance from sin by God's unmixed grace and their unmixed faith!

The final teaching of the chapter is that Christianity is a universal religion, without restrictions of race or rite. "There can be neither Jew nor Greek . . . bond nor free . . . no male and female; for ye all are one man in Christ Jesus." This does not mean, of course, that Christianity obliterates distinctions in races, social status, and sex, but that, ignoring such things, it offers equal blessings and opportunities to all human beings alike.

What Does The Bible Say?

What About Various Versions?

Continuing our discussion of English versions of the Bible let us notice how the Bible has come to us in our mother tongue. Originally it was written by inspired men mainly in the ancient languages of Hebrew and Greek. Although we do not have the original parchments which were written we have more than 4,000 ancient manuscripts containing portions of the Bible as they were copied in early centuries. The three most important of these manuscripts are the two in the British museum (Alexandrian and Sinaitic) and the one in the Vatican library. The remarkable fact is that not one of these was used by the translators of the King James version in 1611 and yet there were enough other manuscripts to give us a good translation. Due to the large number of ancient manuscripts available to scholars we today can know more accurately exactly what the inspired writers actually wrote than at any time since the third century after Christ. No book as old as the Bible can be so accurately established as to its text as the Bible.

It is sad to contemplate that the Bible was not translated into our mother tongue until 1384 when John Wycliffe of Yorkshire, England, completed his translation. While he was seeking to put the Bible into common speech so that no man would be "so rude a scholar but that he might learn the words of the gospel according to his simplicity," Gregory XI issued five edicts ordering his arrest. He was sheltered by Oxford University, but after his death his bones were ordered dug up from the church cemetery and cast into the river Swift by the Roman Council of Constance of 1415. About 170 copies of his Bible are in existence today.

In 1525 Tyndale translated the New Testament and printed it. The Bishop of London ordered it burned, and even in Holland the ecclesiastical authorities caught him and had him strangled and burned at the stake for the crime of translating the Bible into the English language. His last words were these: "Lord, open the king of England's eyes." This was October 6, 1536. Nearly a century later, King James authorized the translation which was issued in 1611. Much of Tyndale's translation was preserved in the King James version.

In between these two great translations were such Bibles as the Miles Coverdale Bible, the Matthew's Bible, the Great Bible, the Taverner's Bible, the Geneva Bible, and the Bishop's Bible. Forty-seven men served on the committee for the King James translation and when they brought forth this, the greatest document in the English language, they were bitterly criticized for translating the Bible from the stately Latin (which few understood) into the "barbaric English" of the street.

I love the King James. I believe it holds a place in the hearts of the English-speaking people which none of the modern versions will take from it. No matter what the publishers of the new version say in their advertising, do not give up your King James Bible for your family and public worship! Keep a copy close by at all times.

In 1881 an English Revised Version was brought out and in 1901 an American Standard Version was published with approximately 100 scholars from both countries participating in the translating. It is recognized by most scholars as the most accurate, word-for-word translation. For a standard version, it is the best one to have to refer to. The archaic language of the King James' time has been removed for the most part, and it can be understood. As you read the various modern speech translations it is good to check controversial questions with this version.

Next week we shall discuss the Revised Standard Version of 1952.

"THE HARVEST IS GREAT, BUT THE HELPERS FEW"

When Jesus looked out upon the vast crowds that came to hear him he was moved with pity for them for they were so bewildered and miserable. They were like a flock of sheep with no shepherd. Then he uttered this profound statement of the situation: "The harvest is great, but the reapers are few."

How true that is today in this world with 2,300,000,000 souls. In America alone there are 10,000 communities without any kind of church or religious assembly at all, to say nothing of those without a church after the New Testament order. From the best information available it seems that there are at least 1,200,000 members of the church who are holding to the simple New Testament worship and organization. These people are meeting in some 15,000 congregations. Yet, there are only about 7,500 men who are giving full or part-time in publicly preaching the word, and only some 4,000 of those are giving time during daily working hours. The others are working regularly at some job and preaching some on Sundays.

So, you can understand why there is such a shortage of gospel preachers. And the indications are that this shortage may increase rather than decrease for the congregations are beginning faster than men are preparing to preach. Many churches which used to be unable to support a preacher are now supporting one, and churches which formerly had only one are now supporting two or three at home and away from home. An estimate of the number of young men now preparing to give full time to preaching the gospel runs around a thousand including those in school and those training in local churches. Probably fewer than 400 will be entering full-time service this year. By the time they have completed their preparation and are at work in the field there will likely be at least that many more congregations at home and abroad. Then a number of older preachers will retire or pass on. So, unless more workers prepare to enter the field the plentiful harvest will not be reaped.

This means that more young people should prepare to give full-time service to the Lord. It means that more Christians who earn their livelihood by other means should be preparing to move to communities where they can help start a new church of the Lord or to help teach and preach where they are.

The harvest today is indeed plentiful, but the reapers are still few. Let us pray that the Lord of the harvest will send more reapers in our time. Then let us work to help bring about an answer to that prayer. The greatest need of the church today is qualified young men and women to give more of their talent and time to teaching the word and practicing pure and undefiled religion. "The harvest is great, but the reapers are few."

Let us pray daily that this situation may be improved!

FAMILY PRAYER

Good men, in all dispensations and ages, have been praying men. Wicked men and hypocrites may pretend to pray, but he who thinks he can be a Christian without praying, deceives himself as much as if he should imagine himself in heaven while on earth. We are commanded to pray always, everywhere; and for all men. It is said charity should begin at home; so say we of prayer. First we must pray for ourselves, before we can make an availing prayer for anyone else. We believe in family prayer, and it is the especial object of this brief article to invite attention to it; but we think no one is qualified to pray with and for his family, unless he is given to private devotion. And we say with emphasis, no head of a family ought to be called on to pray in the congregation, unless he prays regularly at home. There is something to me exceedingly inconsistent in the idea of a brother praying in a congregation, who does not pray for and with his family.

Is it possible for children to be impressed with religious truth by the parents, unless they, morning and evening, call the family together and read the word of God, and in prayer thank and adore him, confess their sins and unworthiness, and ask for the help and blessing of Jehovah? The benefit and pleasures of family prayer are so great, that it is but reasonable to conclude, that nothing but circumstances beyond our control, making it impossible, would cause its omission. In a recent tour through a portion of the state, among many brethren, we witnessed numerous things gratifying and cheering—zeal, liberality, and activity in the cause.

The brethren, of late, have built many good and commodious houses of worship, and a number are about being erected. A deep interest is felt and manifested for improvement in music. But we are constrained to say, from all we saw, we concluded that family worship was greatly neglected. When there is no prayer in the family, we conclude the members thereof do not engage in private devotion. We are required to assemble ourselves together for worship on the first day of the week, but we conceive the true worship of God contemplates something more than services once a week; we believe it requires the family altar to be erected and surrounded, that we may draw nigh in confidence to the throne of mercy every day.

The Jews had their Sabbaths and annual festivals, and sacrifices, and also their daily sacrifices. "Now this is that which thou shalt offer upon the altar: two lambs of the first year, day by day, continually. The one lamb thou shalt offer in the morning, and the other lamb thou shalt offer at even. This shall be a continual burnt offering throughout your generations, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, before the Lord; where I will meet you, to speak there unto you, and there I will meet the children of Israel."

If under the Jewish economy the slain victim was placed upon the altar every morning and every evening, should we not, as continual worshippers of God, present a living sacrifice—our bodies—as often before the Lord? The priests not only offered a lamb, morning and evening, upon the burnt altar, but they were commanded to burn incense upon the altar of incense which was in the holy place, every morning and evening. "And Aaron shall burn incense thereon, sweet incense, every morning, when he dresseth the lamps, he shall burn incense upon it. And when Aaron lighteth the lamps at even, he shall burn incense upon it, a perpetual incense before the Lord, throughout your generations." The offering of the lamb, and the burning of the incense morning and evening, are called a continual offering and a perpetual incense, and we do not think it unsupported conjecture, when we say, to pray every morning and every evening, is to "pray without ceasing," to pray always—to be instant in prayer. The Psalmist says: "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O, Most High! To show forth thy loving-kindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night"—Psalm xcii, 1, 2. He says, "Evening and morning, and at noon, will I pray and cry aloud, and he shall hear my voice"—Psalm lv, 17. It is said of Daniel, "He kneeled upon his knees, three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God"—Dan. vi, 10.

If those who live under the law were so devoted, and delighted with frequent communion with God, shall not we who live under grace, and have tasted of redeeming love, day by day, from the fulness of our hearts, express deep and unfeigned gratitude to God and the Savior, shall we not gladly embrace every opportunity, through our faithful and compassionate High Priest, to draw nigh unto the God of all grace and consolation. We long to see the time, and we pray God to hasten the blessed and glorious day, when there shall not be a family in the whole church which is not regularly engaged in reading the Scriptures, and prayer every morning and evening.—Bible Advocate in Millennial Harbinger, Vol. 7, Series 3, 1850.

The Church At Plains, Texas

Luther G. Roberts

It was the good pleasure of mine to do the preaching in a meeting during the past March for the new congregation in Plains, Texas. This meeting, as previously reported, resulted directly in four being baptized and one being restored to the church. The congregation in Plains was started in October of 1952. Since the first of 1953, Brother Cecil Allen has been working full time with this church. He is doing an excellent work and the church has grown considerably since his arrival.

There is an excellent opportunity for the establishment of a strong congregation in Plains. However, they are handicapped due to lack of a building of their own. They are meeting in the courtroom of the old courthouse. This is far from satisfactory. The members of the church are able to buy a lot for a building and have already or, at least, have plans to secure a lot immediately. The church does need money to assist in the erection of a church building. Although I have made very few appeals through the gospel papers for churches, this is such an urgent need and so worthy a cause that I am happy to make this appeal to Christians everywhere to help this needy project. They do not need a "big" amount of money, but if they could get $3,000.00 they could build a house that would greatly strengthen the cause of Christ there. Why not some churches in Texas help this sister congregation to secure a sorely-needed house for worship and work! Send your contributions to Brother W. L. Ham, Box 16, Plains, Texas.

A. E. Findley, Refugio, Texas, April 14: C. R. Nichol and Austin Taylor have just closed a fine meeting here. People attended from 21 surrounding towns. Two were baptized, one restored, and one placed membership. The church was also made stronger by having had these men labor with us. To God be all the praise.

M. F. Manchester, Comanche, Texas, April 13: We closed a good meeting last night with Brother Cecil B. Deuthitt of the Southside church in Brownwood doing the preaching, and it was fine indeed. There were eight baptized and one placed membership. I will hold a meeting some time in the future for the brethren in Brownwood. The work here is in good shape.

James O. Wilburn, Box 11, Gruver, Texas, April 14: In our spring meeting, seven were baptized, two restored, and two added by membership. New Records were made in all phases of our work. A. C. Williams did effective preaching and O. F. Shewmaker helped greatly by directing the singing. I will assist the church at Goodwell, Oklahoma, in a meeting beginning May 1.

Gordon L. Downing, Floydada, Texas, April 13: Attendance is increasing at each service. We had two baptisms yesterday in our services. This makes seven baptisms since we began our work here.

Ernest McCoy, Borger, Texas, April 17: Three have been baptized, four have placed membership and eight have been restored in the past three weeks. We used chairs in the aisles for the second worship service last Sunday.

D. Lomax, Dallas, Texas: Brother C. R. Nichols of Clifton, Texas, will begin a ten-day gospel meeting May 17, at the Arcadia Park church. Brother A. D. DeLaughter, our regular minister, is out of the hospital now and will be back with us very soon.

Ben West, Lampasas, Texas, April 17: Two hundred and twenty-two were at prayer meeting Wednesday night. A man and wife were restored from the anti-class group and one was identified. Interest is good. Perry Wilmeth will talk during our gospel meeting, June 15-23.

A. E. Wickham, Roscoe, Ohio, April 13: I am in a good meeting at Chandlerville, Ohio. Interest is good and I baptized three persons yesterday. The work is going along good at the East Main Street Church of Christ in Coshocton. I speak to large crowds when I am there.

Robert C. Jones of Southside, Ft. Worth, Texas, is in a very interesting meeting with the University Avenue Church at Austin, Texas, as this paper goes to press. To date, to men have been baptized, and one brother has been restored. Further good results are expected before the meeting closes.

William H. Price, 235 South "H" Street, Exeter, California: The meeting in Venice closed with two baptisms and one restoration. Brother Morgan Taylor has recently moved there to work with them. We had fine cooperation from surrounding congregations.

Tom Walker, 1135 Hollywood, Dallas, Texas, April 20: The church at Mt. Tabor in Madison county will have their first homecoming, Sunday, May 10. We are expecting a large crowd. After the morning sermon we will have a basket dinner on the beautiful church lawn. At 2 p.m. there will be singing and short talks from the old-timers.

Clarence Gobel, 1157 E. Mabel, Tucson, Arizona, April 13: Brother Robert H. Bell of San Diego closed one of the best meetings in the history of the congregation here, last night, the 12th. There were two baptisms and much good was done otherwise, we feel certain. There was an average attendance per service of 82, and only about 35 members in the congregation.

Claude McClung, 1614 West 2nd Street, Arlington, Texas, April 13: I moved to Arlington, 13 years ago, and saw the great opportunity here, I thought, but it has passed my greatest conception of growth. The church, with whom I labored four years and eight months, is now one of the best in north Texas. They are planning another congregation soon, and it is badly needed. I labored with the Oaklawn congregation in Ft. Worth for six years, and they're doing a wonderful work there with Hood Wilkins as preacher. I'm now with the Mansfield congregation, in my third year there, and they're growing nicely. I have just closed meetings with the N.E. congregation of Ardmore, Oklahoma, with good results, and Sudan, Texas, with much good accomplished. I left them rejoicing over the wonderful results. If you're at all interested in Arlington, the fastest growing section of north Texas, write me, and I'll be glad to assist you in a location where many Christians dwell, and more coming.

Elmer L'Roy, 901 S. Broadway, Springfield, Missouri, April 14: Gilbert Copeland of Wichita Falls, Texas, preached in a meeting at Broadway and Madison Church of Christ, Springfield, Missouri, from April 3 through April 12. Brother Copeland was at his best, and the church profited greatly by his lessons. Two persons were baptized and four restored. The next meeting at Broadway and Madison will be June 1-10 with Cleon Lyles of Little Rock, Arkansas, doing the preaching.

Cornelius C. Abbott, 401 N. Park, Seminole, Oklahoma, April 17: We broke all records last Sunday in Bible study attendance with 373 present. Interest is running high in the Lord's work in Seminole. Twenty-four have responded to the invitation thus far in '53. The broadcasting of the Sunday evening service from the auditorium is creating a lot of interest. Cleo Wallace and Glenn Boyd will be with us in a meeting beginning May 31st. We will also conduct the vacation Bible school during this meeting.

C. B. Thomas, Corpus Christi, Texas, April 15: There were twelve responses during our last meeting in which Brother Burton Coffman from Washington, D. C., did the preaching. Four of these were baptized. The others were restorations and transfers of membership. We had the best interest and attendance throughout the meeting that we have ever had. Brother Coffman was invited to help us in another meeting in 1956, the Lord willing. With Brother Jule Miller now associated with us as full-time educational director, we are looking forward to greater things in the Lord's work here.

Woodrow W. Hughes, Box 202, Healdton, Oklahoma, April 11: Joe Laird has accepted the invitation to work full time with the Healdton church beginning about the middle of July. We all rejoice for we believe his coming will mean much to the church here. He closed a fine meeting here last Wednesday night with 11 baptized, eight restored, and one identified. My family and I plan to be in Grand Forks, North Dakota, the first Sunday in July to begin the Lord's church in that city of 35,000 souls. We know of only one member in that city. The church in Hereford, Texas, is supporting us in this effort.

Jesse M. Kelley, Jacksboro, Texas, April 17: The termination of my work with the church at Jacksboro will come after school is out in May and not later than August 1. We have labored with these brethren here for approximately two years and have enjoyed every minute of it. Considerable growth in all phases of the work has been realized, and we are happy to have had a part in it. We have made no definite arrangements concerning future work. If any should wish to correspond concerning local work, I may be reached at P. O. Box 793, Jacksboro, Texas, or phone 4459. My successor has not been named.

O. H. Tallman, Pensacola, Florida, April 20: One was baptized and one restored at the church of Christ here yesterday.

Mrs. James H. Warner, Newton, Texas: We have been using your book, "Simplified Bible Lessons" on the Old and New Testaments and we find it most helpful in our Wednesday night Bible study.

Homer Putnam Reeves, 229 Hollywood, Dallas, Texas: One was baptized and two came by transfer on April 12. Sunset will move into her new building in mid-June. The new location is 235 W. Jefferson Boulevard.

Oliver C. Cunningham, 406 Chestnut Street, Cookeville, Tennessee, April 20: I will preach in a gospel meeting at the Green Hills Church of Christ, Nashville, Tennessee, June 14-21. Brother James H. McBroom is the regular preacher there.

John H. Gerrard, Box 735, Aurora, Illinois, April 20: Two placed membership and one was restored yesterday. The work here improves steadily. If you have friends or relatives that have moved to this section, send us their names and addresses and we will look them up. The church building is located at 529 Clark Street. Visit us when coming our way.

Alan R. Hill, Station A, Box 444, Abilene, Texas: I plan to spend the summer singing for gospel meetings and have only arranged work for the month of June. I have had considerable experience in this work and will be glad to serve anywhere needed. The elders of the Beacon Hill Church of Christ, San Antonio, Texas, my home church, can speak for my work.

Stanley Singleton, 409 South 4th, Kenedy, Texas, April 11: I am leaving the work in Kenedy to take up work with the Wood Street congregation in Denton, Texas, beginning the first Sunday in May. I shall begin with a meeting there, May 3-10. The work in Kenedy has been very pleasant and profitable to me. It is a good work. They have not selected a man to work with them here. We are anticipating and looking forward to a good work with the church in Denton.

Joe H. Morris, 2707 Kentucky Avenue, Paducah, Kentucky, April 13: The work at Clements Street continues to make progress. Every phase of the work is growing. One was baptized, one identified, and one confessed unfaithfulness last week. Two were baptized yesterday. I begin a meeting with Center Street in Owensboro, Kentucky, on April 20th. Our Monday through Friday radio program is attracting more listeners than any program I have ever broadcast. Hear it! WPAD, 1240 kc, Paducah, Kentucky.

James P. Miller, Orlando, Florida, April 15: The brethren met for the first time in Clermont, Florida, at 3:00 p.m., Sunday, April 12, in the community building in Kehlor Park. There was a total attendance of 50 with a contribution of $51. Clermont is in the rolling hills of the citrus country of Central Florida and is an excellent location for a new church of the Lord. Anyone who knows of brethren that live at Clermont, Minneola, Groveland, or surrounding towns, please get in touch with Ray Coon in Clermont. They plan to continue meeting at 3:00 with different speakers from the Jefferson Street congregation in Orlando assisting them until further notice.

L. A. Douthitt, Chattanooga, Tennessee, April 17: I arrived in Paris, France, at noon, April 14th, and am feeling fine. The sea was rough most of the way. Mr. Fitzgerald, the purser in first-class, called me and requested me to conduct the services at 11:00 a.m., April 12th, in the first-class auditorium. I preached to a large audience on the S. S. United States—the largest I ever saw assembled on a ship. After the sermon the head officer asked me to preach again on my return voyage. I go from Paris to Rome tomorrow, April 15th.

Jess Hall, P. O. Box 401, Paducah, Kentucky, April 13: During our meeting, April 5-12, six were baptized and four were identified with us here at Broadway. Joe Malone did the preaching and Foy Hall led the singing. Both of these men did a splendid work with us during the meeting and we felt that the members who faithfully attended the services were all strengthened. All those baptized were grown people and four of them had been members of the Baptist church. I will begin my part of a meeting in Fort Worth, Sunday, April 19, with the Birdville congregation.

Lester L. McElrath, Cheyenne, Wyoming, April 17: I will be available for full-time work about May 1st, 1953. I attended school at David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tennessee. I have preached in about nine states including Texas, New Work, Tennessee, Alabama, and also Nebraska and Wyoming. I am a married man with just my wife and I up to now. I am 31 years old, and am doing missionary work at present in Nebraska, and teaching a Bible class here in Cheyenne, on Wednesday nights. I can be contacted at the following two addresses: 1601 East 19th Street, Cheyenne, Wyoming, care of W. H. Hale, or Lester L. McElrath, 1124 Van Tassel Terrace, Cheyenne, Wyoming.

B. C. McCarley, San Angelo, Texas, April 16: I closed a good meeting on March 25 with the Harlingen church. Four were baptized and one restored. April 20th I begin with the Central church in Denton, Texas. Brother Otto Foster was with us five nights beginning on March 30th and the lessons were splendid. We believe it to be one of the most profitable meetings we have ever had. He discussed, "Scriptural Church Government." On April 26th he will be back for a discussion of "Church Finances." Brother Paul Southern of Abilene Christian College will be with us for an eight-day meeting beginning on May 3rd. The Santa Rita congregation is growing with about 30 additions since the first of the year. I am beginning my third year with this good church.

J. Enmett Wainwright, 547 East Walnut Avenue, El Segundo, California, April 16: Several months with the fine group meeting at 1330 South 3rd Street, Las Vegas, Nevada, were quite profitable. They passed through severe experiences and I was permitted to suffer with them; now we all rejoice in the manifestation of God's sustaining grace and overruling providence. Several mature persons were baptized, some restored, and others placed membership. Brother B. L. Bedwell will assist for some time. I'm being called to assist the new work in my home town, 406 East Grand Avenue, El Segundo; and it is encouraging to have the elders of Hermosa Beach, Hawthorne and Inglewood, heartily endorse my association with the new work in a splendid down-town location with excellent facilities.

Robert F. Turner, "Rocky Roost," Prescott, Arizona, April 17: The year of '53 has been a busy one—with promises of more to come. I spent most of January with the Westside church, Phoenix; then began a meeting tour which has taken me to Hartford, Connecticut; Carlisle, Pennsylvania; Brookston, Indiana; Franklin, Indiana, and Greggton, Texas. I am at present engaged in a good meeting at Overton, Texas, and will go from here to Oakdale, Texas, and Visalia, California, before returning to Prescott. After directing a vacation Bible school in Prescott, I go to Conway, Arkansas; Chico, California, and Susanville, California, for meetings. I will spend most of August in Prescott before beginning my tour of fall meetings.

Hugh M. Tiner, Los Angeles, California, April 13: Just closed a very successful meeting at Wenatchee, Washington, with 54 additions. Of this number there were 31 baptisms. The success of the meeting was due to the fine work being done here by Seth E. Rehkop, the local evangelist, who is well known and loved throughout the community; to the fact that this congregation has a group of elders and deacons of faith, vision and courage; and last to the fact that all members of the congregation have a mind to work. The church is located in Wenatchee at Okanogan Avenue and Kittitas Street. The success of the meeting was also due in no small measure to the fine cooperation of the Cascade Street congregation. There is now full fellowship between these two fine congregations.

Jimmy Wood, Odessa, Texas, April 17: I closed a gospel meeting at Levelland, Texas, on April 5th. We had a very enjoyable and profitable meeting. The church at Levelland is one of the friendliest that I have ever seen, and Brother J. V. Davis is doing a wonderful work with them. The meeting resulted in four baptisms, two to confess errors of the Christian church, and 14 restorations. Our work here at Northside in Odessa is fine. We lost 100 members to the new congregation that was started here on March 15th, but we are confident that our building will be overflowing again before too long. Our Bible school attendance is below the 300 mark now, and our contributions are off some too, but we believe we can carry on our present program of work. When in Odessa, we would be glad to have you worship with us. Also, if you know of any in Odessa who are not attending services, we would be happy to receive a letter from you about this.

TEXAS NORMAL SINGING SSCHOOL

We wish to call attention to our half page ad in the Firm Foundation of recent issue. Applications are coming in and we are anticipating a good enrollment this summer. In case you cannot find this particular copy of the Firm Foundation, we would suggest that the age of enrollment is from 12 years of age and on up. The complete cost of room, meals, and instruction for the school is $65.00. Remember, our work is devoted to training song leaders, song writers and teachers for the churches of Christ. Send all mail and inquiries to our winter address, P. O. Box 293, Crystal City, Texas, until June 1st. An early response will be profitable to you and helpful to us. Remember this is our 8th Annual Session with students having come from 17 states. If there should be someone who would like to finance a student we always have those whom we can help. Sabinal, Texas.

Milo Sullivan, Buffalo, Texas, April 20: We had a good day yesterday. One confession and baptism. We had a nice congregation out in the afternoon for our singing. That rounded out my forty-sixth year of preaching and also my wife and I got married on the same day forty-four years ago. I can conduct a meeting where needed in August. I preach the plain gospel of Christ and I love it. I refer you to the church in Buffalo where I've been preaching for the past fifteen months.

G. L. Mann, Fayette, Alabama, April 15: A man and his wife were baptized here last Sunday night. The work generally is in good shape. Contributions continue to increase and we are doing more work than ever. On May 1, I begin my fourth year here. Maurice M. Howell of Birmingham, Alabama, will be with us in a meeting May 17-24.

O. E. McGaughey, 2407 W. Lincoln, Springfield, Missouri, April 15: Was with the North Houston congregation in opening meeting of their new building. Twenty-one were baptized, thirty-eight restored, and six placed membership. This church has a good eldership and Idus England is serving well as evangelist. Next meetings will be at Pueblo, Colorado; Valdosta, Georgia, and Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

Edward J. Craddock, 1714 Cass Street, Nashville, Tennessee, April 16: The meeting with the church in St. Augustine, Florida, resulted in two baptisms and one restoration. Ralph Lemon is doing a fine work. The present meeting in Ft. Lauderdale assisted by W. Ray Duncan and J. B. Cox has yielded five restorations and special interest so far. I begin with Emerson Flannery in Cullman, Alabama, the first Sunday in May.

George True Baker, Kermit, Texas, April 13: Brother Wallace Layton has just concluded a meeting with the Eastside congregation in Kermit. Two, a man and his son, were baptized thus uniting a whole family in the Lord. Good crowds, good interest, and many visitors characterized the meeting. With 204 present on the last Sunday of the meeting the record for Bible study was broken. This congregation is doing more work and showing more enthusiasm than at any time in the six years I have worked here.

Charles E. Wilson, Cambridge, Kansas, April 13: Our spring meeting started April 8 with Brother Dale E. Church doing the preaching and his son, Oran, leading the singing. Attendance and interest have been excellent with many neighboring congregations attending each evening. I am leaving here about the middle of May. I do not know yet where I will locate. I am to assist Brother Olice Cruise in a meeting at Herington, Kansas, beginning April 23, with the possibility of taking over the work there.

Elton D. Dilbeck, 1335 Granada Drive, New Orleans 22, Louisiana, April 17: The meeting at Clarksville, Arkansas, closed with six baptisms and four confessions of faults. Waldon Tarpley continues to do a wonderful work with the church in that city. He is an excellent helper in meeting work. The Lord willing I shall be with the Clarksville church for my third meeting with them in the fall of '54. My next meeting will be with the congregation in Okay, Oklahoma, from June 16-25. We are enjoying a great work in New Orleans with the Carrollton Avenue church.

B. E. Bawcom, 926 N. "C" Street, Arkansas City, Kansas, April 14: A meeting was closed at Wellington, Kansas, last Sunday evening in which I preached. One was baptized and one came from the Christian church. Ray Wright is doing a good job with them as preacher. The brethren plan the erection of a new building which is badly needed. They have a membership of some 250. This is one of our good churches in Kansas.

H. Alton Wimbish, Box 468, Spearman, Texas, April 15: I have not reported my work for some time but I have been busy. After four years' of pleasant work with the church at Chandler, Arizona, I have now been with the Spearman church almost two years. The work here is growing and we are having record crowds for the Bible classes and for regular services. The contributions are good also in spite of the dry weather in this section. Two were baptized Sunday night and several have been baptized in recent months. Forrest D. Moyer, of Tucumcari, New Mexico, will be with us in a meeting beginning Friday, April 24th, and will continue through Sunday, May 3rd.

Barton Davis, 447 W. Ross, Farmington, New Mexico: I am now in a meeting with the Eastside congregation in Albuquerque. G. F. Mickey is the local preacher and is doing a fine work under a very capable group of elders. Since beginning our two Sunday morning services, the Northside church in Farmington has broken every record in attendance and contribution. Last month the budget was exceeded by $124.

Guss Eoff, Stockton, California, April 13: Since my last report, I preached in a two-week meeting in Watsonville, California. We enjoyed the meeting very much and the Lord certainly blessed us. There were 32 responses, 13 of which were baptisms, 19 confessed wrongs. We learned to love the brethren there and pray that they will continue to grow spiritually and in number. Brother Clayton Buzzard is the minister there and did a fine job in personal work. Brother Elbert Garretson of Fullerton, California, begins a meeting in Stockton, April 20, to continue through May 1, 1953. During the month of March in Stockton we had 23 responses: 18 confessed wrongs, four were baptized, and one placed membership.

David V. Fultz, 315 E. 6th, Winfield, Kansas, April 6: Work with the church here continues pleasant and profitable. Eight have been identified, one restored, and nine baptized since the first of the year. We begin our fourth year with this congregation the first of June. More is being done by the brethren here in the way of mission work than ever before. Our latest undertaking is to raise funds for the building program in St. John's, Newfoundland. Those interested in having fellowship with us in this endeavor should send contributions to H. A. Sipe, 2104 Simpson, Winfield, Kansas. In a recent meeting at Yale, Oklahoma, my birthplace, four were baptized, and local interest was good throughout the meeting.

Max T. Neel, 2700 Pine Avenue, Waco, Texas, April 6: Our meeting at Ennis was most pleasant, and we trust profitable. When the meeting closed, six had been baptized, and two placed membership. After the meeting, the next night in fact, one was baptized and one restored, and others shortly thereafter were baptized. Brother Tillit S. Teddlie has done a wonderful job there. The church seems to be ready to do a grand work. We were invited back next year, and accepted. The work at Herring Avenue is still going well. We will soon begin construction of our Bible school annex. We set a new high yesterday, with 400 present for classes. Three placed membership. The Lord willing, I shall begin a meeting April 20 to go through the 29th with the church at Conroe, and Brother J. Cleo Scott. Pray for us!

Alvin Jennings, P. O. Box 1023, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada, March 30: We witnessed two more baptisms at YMCA swimming pool two weeks ago. One was a young lady, 25 years of age who states she has not ever come in contact with any church that preaches the Bible just as she has read it for herself. The other was a woman who taught the truth about 50 years ago in Nova Scotia, but in living in places in Canada where there was no church of Christ, she has delayed obedience until the present time. We thank the Lord we were able to reach these two fine folks who were looking for what the Lord taught, but had as yet not found any man "to guide them." We were also encouraged by the coming last week of two young folks from Texas who moved here to get secular jobs, and to help with the church in any way they can while here.

Raymond DeSpain, P. O. Box 172, Blanco, Texas, April 6: Yesterday brought to a close our spring meeting. Brother Quentin Dunn did the preaching in this effort. One confessed neglect of duty, three confessed their faith in Christ to be baptized. The work here continues to make progress. Our next meeting will be the second and third Sundays of July. Brother Jess Hall of Paducah, Kentucky, will do the preaching in this meeting. When you are passing through this little hill country town, stop by and worship with us.

J. Odes Forshey, 1308 E. Jefferson, Boise, Idaho, 1308 E. Jefferson, April 6: This summer will conclude two years' work with the congregation here. I plan to make a change at that time. We believe progress has been made in the work here, and there have been a number of additions. Our remodeling program will soon be finished giving us extra class rooms and increased auditorium space. Our services yesterday set a record in both attendance and contributions for this year.

James W. Reynolds, 135 Vernon Place, Pueblo, Colorado, March 5: March 18-29 I was in a meeting with the 6th & Iowa congregation in Chickasha, Oklahoma. Five were baptized and two restored. Brother Bob Hawkins has done a fine work with this congregation. Beginning Sunday, April 19th, to continue through the 29th, Brother C. E. McGaughy and Brother Palmer Wheeler will be with the church here in a gospel meeting. Naturally we are looking forward to a great meeting. Several have responded to the invitation here since our last report.

L. Arnold Watson, 7350 Chase Road, Dearborn, Michigan, March 26: Hugo McCord closed a very successful meeting with us last night in which three were baptized and confessed wrongs. Interest and attendance ran high throughout the meeting, perhaps the best from the local membership since I have been here. Brother McCord did his work splendidly and endeared himself to all. Bids are now out for our expansion program which will enlarge and add new class rooms to our building. Last Lord's day we set a new record in class attendance since we have moved here. During the week of April 6 I am to speak four times on the Irvington, Lectureship, Indianapolis, on "The Church and Personal Work." April 13 I begin a meeting at Northside, Wichita, Kansas. Then to Twin City, Kansas City, Kansas, April 23, and to Taylor Center, Michigan, beginning May 11.

Robert P. Stewart, P. O. Box 459, Grass Valley, California, April 2: We are in our second month in this mission field. Things are looking up. The people here seem to have a mind to work. We have had two restorations and are looking for a few baptisms soon. There is much to be desired in Grass Valley for we have only a small number, no building, no preacher's home, and inadequate support. We are grateful that one congregation, Roseville, California, is helping us in a small way. We are confident that with God's help and your prayers much can be accomplished in this area. I will have some time for meetings in the northern California and Oregon area. Write early for a date.

Jimmy Bays, 3621 W. Second Street, Wichita, Kansas, April 1: Five baptisms and five restorations at Emporia Avenue in March. New records were set in Bible study with 353 and also for the 11 o'clock service with 454. At no session could the crowds be accommodated at the Porter-Causey debate. Call W. Curtis Porter when the truth is questioned. The Herald of Truth will originate here in Wichita soon. May 31st is the tentative date. All within driving distance plan to broadcast with us at the Arcadio on South Water Street. Rodney Wald, who sails soon for Assam, India, has completed his shots and awaits his visa. He is responsible to the elders here at Emporia Avenue (Southside) in Wichita. We invite you to worship with us when in our city.

W. L. Baze, Box 684, Quanah, Texas, April 12: After almost three and one-half years of pleasant and very profitable labor with the congregation here, I have submitted my resignation, effective as soon as I located a suitable work to which to move. The elders and many of the congregation have graciously told me that the work here is in the best condition ever, and that there have been more responses to the invitation, better attendance and contributions, and less dissension, than ever in the church's history. I am happy to think that I enjoy such a position with the brethren and that I can reciprocate the love which they have for me and my family. Since I have not yet committed myself to work with a congregation, I should be happy to hear from any good church wanting a mature and experienced preacher. I expect to move by or before June 1, and so must give first consideration to those who contact me first. I am able to furnish the best of references, including the elders of this congregation who would, I am sure, recommend me highly. Brethren, let me hear from you at once.

Gordon J. Pennock, 216 Hill Street, Bismarck, North Dakota: We are presently in a meeting with Brother Leslie Diestelkamp of Minneapolis, Minnesota, doing the preaching. Our crowds are not large but we had some non-members present at every service thus far. The preaching is simple and to the point. We pray that some will respond before we close. I would like to contact some individual or church which can supply the Correspondence Bible Course which originated with the Lawrence Avenue church of Nashville, Tennessee, in printed form. I mimeographed this course about three years ago but the supply of some lessons is running low and my stencils are wearing out. You may contact me by writing to the above address.

Will W. Slater, Box 343, Hydro, Oklahoma, April 13: The lectureship in Hydro was successful in many ways. Brethren Davis, Crumley, Sparks, Finley, Shackelford, and Trent, were the speakers. Two were baptized, a soldier boy and a man about 60 years old. We are indeed grateful to these brethren for their splendid work and cooperation. It instilled enthusiasm in the members, and the church in going forward with greater determination to do more for the Master's cause. This leaves me in El Reno, Oklahoma. Brother Max Crumley is doing the preaching and I am conducting the song services. Fine attendance and good interest.

P. D. Wilmett, 808 Hamvas Lane, Tyler, Texas, March 30: The writer is in a most excellent meeting with Brother Robert Waller and the saints at Henderson, Texas. We close Wednesday night. My next meeting will be at Magnolia, Arkansas, April 19-26. I go next to Hearne, Texas, May 4-10. Our Vacation Bible School at Glenwood in Tyler is scheduled for June 8-12. I begin a meeting with the church in Lampasas June 15, where Brother Ben West is the preacher. The work at Glenwood is growing and interest is at a high pitch. Brother Rasco, one of our elders, preached yesterday to two good audiences. Brother Carl Mitchell is scheduled to speak at both services Sunday, May 10th. When in our city, worship with us. Our fall meeting is scheduled the last week in November with Brother Elbridge Linn of Denver, Colorado, doing the preaching.

Monroe Tharp, El Paso, Texas, March 30: We are happy to report twenty-three responses for the month of March. Eight were baptized, one was restored, and thirteen were identified by membership, three of whom confessed faults and asked for the prayers of the church. The work of the church is moving along well as evidenced by increasing attendance at all services, and new records being set in Bible school attendance. In co-operation with the Grandview and North Loop churches, a teacher-training school is scheduled to be conducted here April 21-24. Teachers will be Reuel Lemmons, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Bryan, and Mrs. Mary Oler. Work will soon be started on an addition to our educational building, which we expect to have completed in time for a Vacation Bible School in August. We are still receiving names of young men in the service at Fort Bliss and contacting them. Write us if you would like us to contact any young man here.

J. D. Taylor, Gould, Oklahoma, April 4: The church of Christ here is marching on. Our lectureship begins here April 12, and a group of nearby preachers will speak beginning that night with Bill Tittle, of Hollis church of Christ, and continuing throughout the week with two speakers each night.

Mrs. Taylor and I enjoyed a fine service at Hydro, Oklahoma, church of Christ this Monday night, where we moved from to Gould, and heard a fine sermon by Brother Joe Crumley of El Reno church. I tried to say a few things about their continuing the fine work they have under way there. Hydro is where some of the Christian church leaders have come with the church of Christ. Three of their fine people came the last night I served as local minister at Hydro. Several have come since then. Will W. Slater is doing regular work there until the church gets the man they have agreed with to follow Brother Slater. Several have responded and are working while Brother Slater is preaching, or since he began his work there. Brother Slater feels others will come. We pray for many more there.

Ernest A. Finley, 250 N. Millwood Avenue, Wichita 12, Kansas: Our recent debate, held March 24-27 here in Wichita, was a glorious victory for truth. Brother W. Curtis Porter, Monette, Arkansas, met John Causey, Missionary Baptist, Little Rock, Arkansas. Brother Porter did not leave a single Baptist error standing when the debate closed. We are thankful to the Lord that he has such men of ability and courage to defend the truth. Only the most biased could fail to see that Brother Porter had the situation well in hand at all times. Since the first of the year I have conducted two meetings and assisted in a third. I had the honor of conducting the first meeting in the new church building for the Elpyco church here in Wichita. Three responded during this meeting. In February I was in Athens, Alabama, with the Eastside congregation in a meeting. Eight were baptized and a large number of confessions of wrongs. In March Brother Wilburn Hill and I worked together in a meeting at Norwich, Kansas. In the first half of the meeting I preached, then Brother Hill took over and finished up. One was baptized. I began a gospel meeting tonight, April 6, at Isabel, Kansas. In October I am to assist the congregation at Nacogdoches, Texas in a meeting. I still have time for one more meeting in 1953. Our work here at West Douglas moves steadily along. My mother, Mrs. A. B. Finley, has accepted a position with Maud Carpenter Home as matron for the smaller girls. We are glad to have her in Wichita with us.

"PREACHERS OF TODAY"

James D. Bales

Besides being an interesting book in which to browse, I find at least two other uses for this book. First, it makes the address of various preachers available. Second, I have a difficult time keeping names and faces together, and this book furnishes me both the name and the face. The historical value of the book will be better appreciated as the years go by.

Our Departed

ABBE—Sister Oleta Abbe was killed in an automobile accident near Hale Center, Texas, March 11, 1953. She was born to George and Mattie Coleman at Emblem, Hopkins County, Texas, July 9, 1900. She was married to H. B. Abbe March 22, 1924, at Wilson, Texas. She obeyed the gospel at New Home in 1925 and was a very devout Christian. In her passing the church here has lost a faithful and loyal member, but our loss is her gain. She was contented with the place the Lord had given her, she was "a worker at home," devoted to the welfare of her husband, her children, and the church. Thus her influence has spread beyond the immediate family circle, and has made an abiding impression on all who knew her. Her two sons and their families are faithful members of the church. She was a person who always believed in dividing the things that she had been blessed with, with other people. Her influence will continue to exercise itself for time to come in her children and grandchildren. She is survived by her husband, an elder in the church here at Morton, her two sons, four grandsons, four sisters and one brother. Funeral services were conducted here in the church building March 13, 1953, by the writer, assisted by Paul Foutz of Sweetwater.

JESSE BROOKSHIRE

HOLT—Ida Bernice Holt was born in Young County, Texas, November 9, 1875. She was married to J. M. Abbe May 23, 1900. To this union were born two sons: J. M., Jr., Hale Center; and H. B., Morton, Texas; two daughters: Mrs. C. R. Williams, of Hale Center, Texas, and Mrs. H. E. Kirby, Goodland, Texas. She obeyed the gospel at the age of 19 and was faithful until the Lord called her home on March 7, 1953. She is survived by her husband, the four children, eighteen grandchildren, and four great grandchildren; also one brother. Funeral services were conducted here in the church building, March 9, 1953, by the writer.

JESSE BROOKSHIRE

COX—Nora Eleanor Stewart, daughter of Reuben F. and Mary Jane Stewart, was born March 3, 1874, and departed this life March 10, 1953. She was married to George T. May May 19, 1891, at Eagle Pass, Texas. Mr. May died February 1, 1930. On December 24, 1943, she married Brother C. L. Cox at Abilene, Texas. Brother C. L. Ledbetter, a life long friend, performed the ceremony. She reared three nieces, Mrs. Callie May Bayes of Monahans; Mrs. Lottie E. Ammon of Abilene; and Mrs. Selma May Guyton of Junction. Selma died May 23, 1943. Among other children she partly reared a nephew, Emmitt T. Hensley of Fort Worth. She leaves these, along with her devoted husband, to mourn her passing. She was baptized by Brother W. A. Schultz in June, 1902, and was faithful until death. There was hardly a dry eye in the large group that attended her funeral service. She will be long missed by the church in Comanche.

M. F. MANCHESTER

Comanche, Texas.

LIGHTFOOT — Samuel Jack Lightfoot, born November 2, 1879, died March 12, 1953, at the age of seventy-three years, four months and ten days. He had been a faithful Christian for many years, an elder in the Polytechnic Church of Christ, and a good Bible teacher. He had a good family. Sister Ethel, his wife, was very faithful to the church and to her husband to the end. His three daughters: Mrs. Lois Roberts, Mrs. J. W. Hattman, and Mrs. C. R. Hendricks, are noble women. He also has ten grandchildren. The writer and Brother LeRoy Brownlow conducted the funeral service in the Polytechnic Church of Christ. A large crowd of friends were present. His body was tenderly laid to rest in Rose Hill Cemetery, all embanked in pretty flowers, to await his call to the "Halls of his God." His close friend and brother for nearly forty years.

In spite of the Catholic priest telling the people here that the Bible which I am preaching is "a lot of lies," and in spite of the intensified campaign of the Jehovah's Witnesses to try to keep people from hearing us, we have made very satisfactory growth during March. Our daily teaching of the Bible to a few has brought results beyond our hopes.

Chilenje led the three congregations in baptisms for the month with eleven. Two of these were baptized at Kapopo but live at Chilenje. Chlilanga was a close second with ten baptisms for the month. Nine of these came on the 30th to bring to a successful close what otherwise would have been a pretty discouraging month. Due to much Catholic opposition, heavy rains and bad roads, Kapopo was held to only one baptism for the month again. There is an old man and a Catholic teacher who no doubt threaten the people of Kapopo with being bewitched if they attend our services. That is the most effective threat to make against an African if you don't want him to do something. These Catholics certainly don't want them to hear the truth.

The rains for this season have almost completely stopped. We may have another rain or two in this month, and we could have an unusual one in May. Brick making for our heavy building program should be in progress but sufficient funds have not been forthcoming for this much needed work. We need such a small amount compared to many places but even so it is impossible for this work to be done without the help of brethren in the U.S.A. A small amount has come from England, and I have collected some pennies from the Africans. But, this won't get the job done. I am again pleading most earnestly for brethren everywhere to consider helping with this small but most urgent need. People are now standing aloof because we don't have a house to meet in. We are just meeting under the trees and they think that we will be gone in a little while so why take up with something that won't be here but a short time. When we have only a few months to do all the building for the year, we need to make use of every day to try in a splendid way. There were twenty baptisms and restorations in this meeting. I begin this Sunday with Weslie Mickey and the Northside congregation in Fort Worth. Despite several years drought, severe economic conditions and the loss of 140 members during the past year and a half we are increasing our program of work June 1 when we assume the full-time support of Leonard Gray and family who are sailing to Port Elizabeth, South Africa, July 20.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

The Correct Pattern

If a lady gives the wrong pattern to her dressmaker, she will not have the kind of a dress she wants when it is finished. It is not the dressmaker's fault, but the fault of the one who gave her the pattern. She did not examine her patterns closely, and got hold of the wrong one. The best tailor in the world cannot make the right kind of a dress by the wrong pattern.

A contractor actually started to build the wrong kind of a house, because the man who hired him, gave him the wrong blueprints. The foundation was built before the error was discovered. When the builder saw the foundation, he told his contractor he had given him the wrong floor plan. It all had to be done over at the expense of the builder, not the contractor. The contractor could not build the right house by the wrong plan.

But if the dressmaker had used her own opinions in making the dress, and refused to follow the pattern, she would have been responsible for the error. And if the contractor had received the right house plans, but changed them, he would have been responsible for the error. So those who work for other people should be careful to follow the plans placed in their hands.

In the Hebrew letter the writer says concerning the tabernacle and priests, "Who serve unto the example and shadow of heavenly things, as Moses was admonished of God when he was about to make the tabernacle: for, See, saith he, that thou make all things according to the pattern showed to thee in the mount" (Heb. 8:5). God gave the pattern and Moses was to fully follow it. Anyone who ever changed the Lord's plan suffered great loss. The wisdom of Moses may have suggested the propriety of changes in the tabernacle, but he was following a divine plan, so he was governed by faith, not his own wisdom.

In the New Testament we have a divine pattern of everything we need to do to be saved. We are told what to do to become Christians and we are told how to live the Christian life. Our duty is to follow the pattern.

What Do I Think of Myself?

This is an important question, and it has two sides. Paul says, "For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith" (Rom. 12:3). In this Paul tells Christians how they should not think of themselves, then he tells them how they should think.

There may be a wide difference between what a man thinks of himself and what the Lord thinks of him. Solomon says, "All the ways of a man are clean in his own eyes, but the Lord weigheth the spirits" (Prov. 16:2). Vanity and self-esteem are very common in the lives of men. Not many people think of these vices as being sinful. But anything that keeps a man from glorifying God is sinful. When Samuel was divinely commissioned by the Lord to anoint Saul's successor as king of Israel, he thought Eliab was certainly the man to be king. "But the Lord said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart" (1 Sam. 16:7). We think righteously only when we think soberly of ourselves.

The Lord's Day

Foster L. Ramsey

This article is prompted by one that appeared in the Firm Foundation of January 6, 1953, written by A. D. Wilkinson on the subject: "Sunday, The Lord's Day (?)." It is not unusual that gospel preachers find it necessary to convince Sabatarians that the first day of the week is the Lord's day, but it is exceedingly strange that a member of the church of the Lord requires such attention. In the article under consideration, the writer attempted to set up and meet all the arguments concerning the things that were done on the first day of the week having any connection with that day being called the Lord's day. He answered the question, "Why not call it the Lord's day?" by saying, "There is no divine authority for doing so." Then the writer attempted to prove that the expression "Lord's day" referred to this present dispensation of time. Here is his statement, "The text of the book of Revelation itself declares most emphatically that this dispensation is that which John meant when he said the Lord's day." Any declaration as emphatic as that should be easily found, but the Bible scholar searches in vain for the passage that makes such a plain declaration. In fact, the word "dispensation" does not even occur in the entire book of Revelation. It is certainly true, that we do not have a direct statement from the Lord saying, "The first day of the week is my day, the Lord's day." But neither do we have the Lord saying, "The Lord's day is this present dispensation."

Christ refers to one of the days of the Son of man in Luke 17:22: "And he saith unto the disciples, The days will come, when ye shall desire to see one of the days of the Son of man, and ye shall not see it. And they shall say to you, See here: or, see there: go not after them, nor follow them." These verses are a condensation of the same matter which was discussed more fully in Matthew, chap. 24. Jesus knew that terrible events awaited those of Jerusalem when that city would be besieged by Roman armies and burned. They would long to see the deliverance brought by the coming of the Son of man. Certainly this usage of "the days of the Son of man" cannot refer to the present dispensation as was suggested in the article under consideration. Those events of the destruction of Jerusalem took place in this present dispensation. Those suffering people would long for the coming of Christ, and there would be those who would say, "See here, or, See there." But Christ warned his disciples not to follow such false proclaimers because when he came in his day, the day of judgment, it would be as the lightning, shining from one part of heaven to the other (Luke 17:24). Therefore, these days mentioned in this passage cannot refer to the days of the Christian dispensation of time.

"Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day; and he saw it, and was glad" (John 8:56). Jesus was discussing his obedient life with the Jews who had asked him if he was greater than Abraham. Abraham saw the entire life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ. By this the promise was fulfilled that through his seed all nations of the world should be blessed. All nations of the world today are blessed by the life of Christ, and by the sacrifice of Christ upon the cross, and by his resurrection from the dead. Leave out all of this, and there is no blessing left for the nations of the world; but all of that "day" took place before the Christian dispensation of time. That which caused rejoicing on the part of Abraham took place before the establishment of the church. Abraham rejoiced in anticipation of the life of the Messiah. He saw that life through the promises of God which are sure and immutable.

Now, let us turn to Rev. 1:10, which is the only place where the expression, "The Lord's day" is found. "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet." If there is anything in this verse that makes it mandatory to assign a symbolic meaning to the expression under consideration, it is certainly not easily seen. If this expression is merely figurative of something else, then there should be something that would indicate that such was the case. If "the Lord's day" means "this dispensation" then it should be possible to make such a substitution in the reading of the verse without disrupting it. "I was in the Spirit on this dispensation"; but that does not read properly. The truth is there is not the faintest reason to consider that this expression means anything else other than the Lord's day. Any attempt to read anything else into it will strain the passage. If we stay with this verse, then it will be possible to speak as the oracles of God. In Rev. 1:10, we have a Greek word that is found in only one other place in the New Testament, that word is kuriake. It is used in connection with the word hemera; thus we have kuriake hemera or "the Lord's day." In 1 Cor. 11:20 the word is found again. Here it is kuriakos deipnon, or "the Lord's Supper." For the new memorial that was to be observed upon the first day of the week, a new word to express that memorial; and for the day upon which it was to be observed, a new word, kuriake hemera. Liddell and Scott gives this definition, "Kuriakos—Of, belonging to, concerning a lord or master, especially belonging to the Lord (Christ); hence, kuriake hemera, the Lord's day." Through the memorial of the Lord's Supper and the expression used for that memorial, we have the definite connection between the Lord's day of Rev. 1:10, and the first day of the week upon which the Lord's Supper was to be observed. With this connection in mind, all of the things that took place on the first day of the week, take on a more important relationship to the Lord's day.

The Catholic church makes the claim that they changed the Sabbath day to the first day, but this claim is as false as many of the other claims of that apostate body. Before the Catholic church was known, we have the testimony of writers and historians affirming that the first day of the week was known as the Lord's day. In A.D. 270, Anatolius, of Laodicea: "Our regard for the Lord's resurrection which took place on the Lord's day will lead us to celebrate it." In A.D. 250, Cyprian, of Carthage: "The eighth day, that is, the first day after the Sabbath, and the Lord's day." These and many other authorities recognized that the early church followed the example of John and referred to the day of worship as the Lord's day, the first day of the week.

He who refers to the first day of the week as the Lord's day is certainly doing no wrong to the Scriptures or to any person. The day is made holy to us by that which has taken place upon it, and by that which we are commanded to do on that day both by precept and example. Let no one teach anything that would detract from the importance of the day which we are commanded to observe. Let us follow the example of the apostles and early disciples, and also their teachings; then we shall be able to say that we are speaking as the oracles of God.

Recreation And Thorp Spring

Thomas M. Campbell

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" is an adage of ancient vintage, yet we are coming more and more to recognize its truth. More and more "recreation" is becoming a word of much use in our vocabularies. This is not because our fathers and grandfathers did not have recreation, but because many of their activities were not recognized as such. Yet they went fishing, hunting, swimming, horseback riding, buggy riding, and hay riding. As the life was principally agricultural these wholesome forms of recreation were the natural course of life. These today still form the most wholesome form of amusement. To have suggested in that Calvinistic-tempered world that these things were pleasures would have brought vehement denials. We should thank God that Calvinism, with its prohibitions on everything that might cause men to be happy, is gone. However, the pendulum has swung to the other extreme and pleasure has become an end in itself. If possible, our forms of recreation have degenerated to a state worse than puritan Calvinism.

The principles of recreation are sound. Even our Savior found need for it as he withdrew from the crowds into a rest. There is no indication that Jesus did not enjoy the festivities of the wedding at Cana; on the contrary, he seems to be a chief contributor to its success (John 2). In our fast moving, nerve racking world, recreation is especially needed. What we choose generally depends upon training, disposition, lack of experience, or point of view. A thing is not worldly because it is enjoyable; for if so, what austere and barren lives we would live. A thing is worldly because it appeals to a false or base motive.

There are three essential activities of man: worship, work, and play. The individual that neglects any one of these will be warped in his conceptions of life and duty. The man who overlooks worship or religion has failed to put first things first, and has denied a purpose to his existence. Any who strive to by-pass the obligation of work is a parasite on society and an infidel before God. The person who neglects "play" in his life is a wicked steward of his body, mind and spirit and is a plague to the fellowship of men. He is the one who is always embroiled in strife and misunderstanding with his brethren. Now in all these activities of men there must be moral and religious principle. Naturally our worship must be moral, upright and true to God's truth. Our work must be a contributing factor to our religion, and morally good. Our recreation is expected to be Christian in principle, and morally good.

There is a haunting spirit in most of us that draws us back to the forms of recreation which our fathers enjoyed. No longer do most of us live on the farm or ranch, so we have to go where these are to be obtained. It has become a national custom to permit our youngsters to attend a camp for a summer period each year. Many send their children to Boy Scout or Girl Scout camps, or to secular or sectarian camps. The wisdom of this course is greatly to be doubted, for here your child and mine make friends from many places which will temper their concepts of living and of right and wrong. Many Christian parents rue the day they let John and Jane attend these worldly establishments. While the camps may be patriotic or well-meaning in purpose, yet it is the personnel that matters. Are they Christians? Many Christian parents wish for a camp conducted by Christian men and women and attended by Christian boys and girls where they could send their youngsters (or if they wished, take them and spend the time with them) without worry. This is one of the great purposes of the camp conducted at Thorp Spring.

When Thorp Spring Christian College ceased to exist in 1928, the matter of what to do with the campus became a problem. Rather than to allow this property to go back to the state, some far-sighted brethren saw the need of retaining the property for religious training and recreational purposes. Camp Crucis, just across the creek was a flourishing Episcopal youth camp. It seemed a shame that with Christian children crying to get out of the cities (particularly Fort Worth and Dallas) some kind of a camp could not be held for them. Hence, the encampment idea was born at Thorp Spring. A charter was obtained from the state and entrusted to the Thorp Spring Training and Encampment Association. Its trustees were mostly former students of the old college, who desired to see some kind of religious activity and memorial conducted at Thorp Spring. Among the trustees were Charles H. Roberson, James F. Cox, and A. R. Holton. The president of the board of trustees is A. R. Holton, a former president of the college. The executive board of trustees is composed of Claude McClung, Chairman; Rich S. Garrett, Roy Watson, Miss Jewell Watson, and Thomas L. Campbell. The latter, who is the writer of this piece, has been director of the vacation Bible school and encampment for the past four years. This association is a non-profit organization for the purpose of training young people and providing wholesome recreational facilities for boys and girls and family groups. It is an adjunct to the home, not the church, and is sustained by donations from interested people who believe there is a great need and opportunity for this type of work.

The Association is quite aware that it cannot yet provide first-class camp facilities for all who wish to come. These can be obtained only as Christian people see the need and come to its support financially. Through its board of trustees and former students, remarkable improvements have been made and are being made. The barracks building used for the women has been provided with modern sanitation facilities, and a tabernacle has been erected on the spot of the old administration building, and an acreage north of the present church building (old boys' dormitory) has been purchased to provide a place for any who would like to erect cabins. Other modernization plans are in the making as funds become available.

It is hoped that as facilities do become available that many congregations, especially of the cities, will bring their young people for one-week or week-end Bible schools and outings. Some congregations of Fort Worth and Dallas plan to avail themselves of these opportunities this summer. Of course, all are welcome to come and pitch camp in the shady glen any time they wish. There are cooking facilities a block off the campus in the school building.

The regular encampment and vacation Bible school will be conducted this year on July 18-31. Then the facilities of Camp Klebit will be available to take care of about 100 boys and girls. A fee of fifteen dollars a week will be charged. Claude A. Guild of the Riverside congregation in Fort Worth, and Joe B. Rhoten also of Fort Worth will do the preaching.

The Thorp Spring Training and Encampment Association solicits the suggestions and support of all interested persons, particularly parents who want to see a work of this kind progress. Financial contributions from one to one thousand dollars are needed to improve the grounds and make the old college campus continue to bless the lives of young people through the years to come. Small donations are always appreciated. Send your donation to Thorp Spring Training and Encampment Association, care of Richard Overton, Thorp Spring, Texas.

From Southside Church of Christ, Amarillo

Jack L. Mackey

The Southside Church of Christ, 40th at Lipscomb Streets, Amarillo, Texas, will have completed its first year of existence the end of April, 1953. The Central congregation in Amarillo was responsible for the construction of the Southside building and completed it with an indebtedness of but thirty-five thousand dollars. The membership is composed in large part of members from Central and five other congregations of the church in Amarillo.

With a beginning of 72 members, April 27, 1952, we have been privileged to see the congregation at Southside grow to a membership of something over 250 during the first year. A majority of these were additions by transfer of membership but during the first year there were 64 restorations and 17 who were baptized at Southside.

At the present time our Bible class facilities are being taxed with something like 300 present for Bible study classes. Sunday morning audiences presently average 400 or more and a program of work calling for a contribution of three hundred and seventy-five dollars weekly is being met at the present time. The main auditorium of the Southside building is very crowded when seating 400, however, five of the classrooms alongside the auditorium are equipped with folding doors and ordinarily from two to four of these rooms are used for Sunday morning services.

We have been much encouraged to observe the teachableness manifested by the Southside church and excellent spirit of love and cooperation prevails. Eldership material is being developed and full organization of the congregation may become a reality before 1953 has passed. We can anticipate a very excellent work for the Lord's church in this part of Amarillo—a fast growing section of the city largely populated by younger married couples. I anticipate another fruitful year with the congregation here.

Majestic Hymns

Edgar Furr

In order to have a singing school we must have song books. In times past when singing schools were more popular, we had more song writers; now that singing schools are not so common we are having fewer new hymns written, fewer new song books printed and fewer people interested in hymn singing. If new books are not continually being printed, the writers are not encouraged to write, and new hymns are very slow to be put into use.

Soon from the presses of the Firm Foundation will come a new song book, "Majestic Hymns." This book will be the means of some of our new hymns to be published. The favorite hymns of all times will, of course, have to be included or no one would want the book.

I had no idea of the amount of work that would be required to produce a new song book until Brother Showalter asked the staff of teachers of Texas Normal Singing School to assist in making up an index. No doubt the help I have been in encouraging a new book is indeed small. Brother Holland L. Boring, Sr., has given a great deal of help. Brother Austin Taylor deserves credit for the major portion of the editorial work on the new book, "Majestic Hymns." Brother Taylor is known over the brotherhood and is highly respected and appreciated for his work in the field of gospel singing, hymn writing and song editorial work. Few men in the past or present have given as much time to hymn writing and song editorial work as has Brother Taylor and his full life has been devoted to teaching hymn singing, singing for gospel meetings, writing and editing hymn books. We have many fine brethren who have contributed much to our hymns in the first half of the 20th century, but these have given much time to preaching and other church work, whereas Brother Taylor's life has been devoted exclusively to the gospel song field. Brother Taylor has been a teacher in Texas Normal Singing School since its beginning in 1946 and will continue with the school as long as he cares to continue teaching hymn music.

It goes without saying that Texas Normal will use "Majestic Hymns" printed this year by the Firm Foundation Publishing House of Austin, Texas. It would be to the advantage of every congregation who wishes to buy a new book to get "Majestic Hymns" and send your song leaders to Texas Normal Singing School, Sabinal, Texas, June 7th to 20th, in order to get ready to use "Majestic Hymns" in an effective way. For more information about Texas Normal Singing School write to our winter office, Box 293, Crystal City, Texas. Place your orders now with Firm Foundation for the new hymn book, "Majestic Hymns."

Contending For The One Faith In Germany

Otis Gatewood

Most people in Germany are dissatisfied with their religion. They are looking for something that is different and better than the two large state supported churches of which most of them are members. In one section of Frankfurt where I live there are more than twelve thousand members of the State Lutheran church, but there is only one of the state church buildings that will seat more than seven hundred people. This means that the leaders of the church do not expect or plan for their members to attend church services with any regularity. The building which they have is full only on very few occasions each year. The same is true with the Roman church.

These two state supported churches have been bitter enemies for years. They have fought one another in politics as well as in religious matters. A plea for unity of faith therefore has a special appeal to most Germans. They are tired of hearing so much fighting, bickering and backbiting. To most Germans such a spirit is contrary to the teaching of Christ, and they are glad to hear of someone who pleads for us to lay aside human creeds, party names, and bickering and unite on the one faith. Recently, one of the German students that we have sent to Harding College wrote back to Germany and said that Harding seemed like heaven to her because there no one was against the other.

The dissatisfaction that most Germans have in religious matters might be illustrated by the following story. Before the last world war when Hitler was persecuting the Jews, a Jewish family fled from Germany and went to the Dominican Republic. The father was a Jew, the mother was a German State Lutheran, and the daughter had been reared in the state faith. The daughter had longed for the day ever since they left Germany when she could return to her home church in Berlin, for she found no rest or peace among the Roman churches in the Dominican Republic.

About four months ago she returned to Germany and went back to Berlin to the church in which she was reared as a child. The first disappointment she met was to find that the church building was destroyed and the preacher who preached before the war was killed during the war. She then tried to find her former friends who had been so close to her as they attended church together as they grew up. But many of them couldn't be found. War had killed some and scattered others. Finally, when she found some she learned that they no longer attended church services. Some had lost faith entirely while others were dancing, drinking and going to the road houses rather than attending services.

She returned to Frankfurt disappointed, dejected, and disillusioned. She looked into a telephone book for a church here in Frankfurt that she could attend. She found the church of Christ listed and came to our services. I don't believe I have seen a person in a long time who was so confused religiously and so unhappy with what she believed. We talked together and she came again and again to the church services. A few weeks ago she obeyed the gospel. Immediately she wrote her parents and told them of her new faith. Two weeks ago her father, a Jew, returned to Germany and she met him and told him personally of the joy that she had found. He came to Frankfurt to visit us and to learn firsthand why his daughter was so happy. He was so greatly impressed that on a recent visit to Berlin he told several of his friends about his daughter's new-found joy. It is news when a Jew begins telling about the Lord's church. Three of his friends told him to tell his daughter to write them and tell them about this church for they also were very much dissatisfied with their present religion. Ruth Ranschoff plans to write them and try to teach them the truth.

Ruth has been admitted into our Bible school for this semester and she is one of our best students. For one year she will be taught the Bible daily and be better prepared to serve the Lord. It is a real joy to see her sitting in the Bible classes with former Nazis. Last night a former captain in Hitler's army who is now a member of the church served at the Lord's table and passed the emblems to Ruth. As I looked upon that scene I thought of the power of the one faith to unite former enemies. If Bienick, the former captain in Hitler's army, had met Ruth ten years ago he, perhaps, would have tried to kill her, but today they sit together in peace at the Lord's table and love one another with a greater love than that which unites two brothers and sisters in the flesh. There are thousands like these two in Germany, and may God give us the vision to find them and teach them the truth.

Since 1946, twenty-one churches of Christ have been established and there are now thirty-two American missionaries and twelve full-time German evangelists supported in the work. Eight permanent buildings have been erected or begun, and about 2,500 people are being taught the Bible each week. Frankfurt, Germany.

Changes Among Southern Baptists

Wayne Hargrove

According to an article by Don McGregor, on page 5 of the March 19, 1953 Baptist Standard, several important changes are taking place among Southern Baptists. Mr. McGregor gives some statistics compiled from a questionnaire returned by pastors of Southern Baptist Convention churches. According to the article, "eleven and one-half percent of churches in the Southern Baptist Convention accept members to full fellowship who have been immersed by other than Baptist churches."

The article goes on to reveal that five percent invite other bodies of any faith or denomination to share the Lord's Supper with them. Eighty-nine percent practice "restricted communion," and thirty-seven percent restrict the observance to their own members (members of one congregation). Five and one-half percent have no regular observance of the Lord's Supper, five percent never observe the Lord's Supper, and in eighteen percent there is nothing said about who shall be invited.

One-half of one percent of churches in the Southern Baptist Convention practice open membership. Sixty percent of the pastors preach on the Lord's Supper once a year; ten percent preach on it twice a year; twenty percent preach on it on the occasion of the observance; and ten percent never preach on the Lord's Supper. The pastors preach on baptism an average of one time a year.

Anyone familiar with Southern Baptist manuals will recognize the variance between the manuals and the above practices. The Southern Baptists are concerned about the matter, too, as evidenced by the fact that the article goes on to say that in the above-mentioned questionnaire, each individual pastor was asked to state what he believed should be done "to safeguard the doctrinal purity and denominational integrity of Southern Baptists." The three most common suggestions made by the pastors were:

1. "Refrain from ordaining any candidate to the ministry who cannot wholeheartedly subscribe to all of our New Testament Baptist doctrines and practices."

2. Observe a "Baptist doctrine week" every year in all churches.

3. "Maintain a class in New Testament Baptist doctrines for all new members."

From this Baptist Standard article, it seems that even the Baptists themselves recognize the difference between their teaching and the simple New Testament doctrine, because in their own denominational paper they speak of "our New Testament Baptist doctrines and practices." Also, they recognize that their members need a week of special teaching each year in "New Testament Baptist doctrines." Truly, they are beginning to realize what many have seen for a long time—that it takes more than the simple New Testament to make a Baptist!

CATHOLIC REACTION IN MADISON, WISCONSIN

Robert W. Lawrence

Joe Malone of Fort Worth, Texas, concluded a meeting here last evening of unprecedented nature in this part of the country.

On the first Tuesday of the meeting we were successful in getting a paid ad in the local paper entitled, "From Catholicism to the Truth." We did not know what to expect. At any rate, we anticipated some form of reaction and were not disappointed in that. When time for the evening service approached, people whom we had never seen before began to press into the building. Every pew was filled and folding chairs were used; the building was very much alive. We estimated forty percent non-member representation. We believe the audience to have contained twenty to twenty-five Catholics. One of these, we feel quite confident, was a priest disguised in civilian clothes. Of the entire audience it would have been difficult to have found an entirely relaxed person.

Brother Malone ascended the platform in noble fashion and with unsparing energy and demonstration unveiled before all present the ghastly monster of Romanism. With clear logic and documented material he made known her deceitful tongue, her blasphemous lips, her forceful and merciless arm, and her crushing heel. He was able to perform this difficult task and still season his remarks with love.

After the discourse, several Catholics and others stayed 'til near 11:00 p.m. for a question-and-answer period.

Requests that have come in from neighboring places and as far off as Chicago are indicative of the publicity afforded the church.

We take courage and press on. One confessed sin during the meeting.

Studies In Galatians (No. 10)

R. C. Bell

Thus far in the doctrinal portion of Galatians the following points stand out prominently: first, "The Holy Spirit which dwelleth in us" is the distinctive and unique possession of all Christians; second, since God's absolute promise to Abraham was that all nations should be blessed through him, the law, which was given to Jews only, chiefly to demonstrate that they were inveterate transgressors of the law, cannot be the fulfillment of the ancient promise of worldwide blessing; third, inasmuch as every man fails to live up to law, he is under God's curse of death, "kept inward under the law shut unto the faith which should afterwards be revealed"; fourth, the Jewish Scriptures themselves declare that, "The righteous shall live by his faith," not by his self-righteousness.

All Jews were inexorably condemned by the moral laws of Moses, but, lest they lose heart and in utter despair give up the law altogether, their hope was fostered by the pictorial gospel in its types and symbols. Despair is good, when it becomes creative, as God intends it should, and leads sinners, under the law shut up unto the faith which should afterwards lessness, to Christ.

The Law As Tutor

"The law is become our tutor to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith." Simultaneously, the law was both jailor and tutor. It offered tutorial instruction and guardianship to the imprisoned Jews; but incarceration and tutorage were to continue only until Christ, who would set them free and lift them out of bondage and pupilage into sonship and inheritance. In the very nature of things, a tutor is for the immature, whose maturity will render the tutor, because his work is done, unnecessary. "But now that faith is come, we are no longer under a tutor. For ye are all sons of God, through faith in Christ Jesus . . . ye are Abraham's seed, heirs according to promise" (3:25-29).

Man's passing from law (the Mosaic covenant) to faith (the Christian covenant) shifts the emphasis from human to divine activity. Under law, men try to do something to win divine favor, and thus earn justification by their own doing. Under faith, God does something to win the favor of men, that they may trust him and accept a justification that is based on his doing. This forever separates the two covenants. Under faith, instead of men's being justified by what they do for themselves, or do for Christ, they are justified by what Christ does for them. Under law, each man is for himself. He is safe only, if he does "all things that are written in the book of law." If he sins, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Under law, no provision is made for a justification that is procured by another. Since man was bruised and put under a curse in Eden, Christianity is the only religion he has known that properly proportions divine and human activity. In this all-important matter, all other religions, being falsely pivoted, are fundamentally wrong and fatally perverted.

To lead men to think they can weave these two contradictory systems together is probably the devil's masterpiece of ingenuity, malice, and success. Paul advised a certain course for the church at Corinth, "that no advantage be gained over us by Satan; for we are not ignorant of his devices" (2 Cor. 2:11). But are not some Christians today ignorant of his devices? It seems men can never learn that, "If the inheritance is of law, it is no more of promise"; that justification is not something earned by keeping law, but that it is a free gift of God's grace. This attempt to combine the two covenants was the trouble in Galatia long ago. Is it not a prevalent trouble in the church today? Fallen man has naturally a Judaizing bias. Why do we, as if we mistrusted God's promise to Abraham, made good to us in Christ, persist in trying to add the principle of law to the principle of faith? We must never forget that the road to heaven not only begins in faith, but also continues all the way "from faith unto faith," never once shifting into the works of the flesh. Who can know how much Christ has been in the past, or is now being straitened, in the house of his friends by this insidious, satanic device?

"Baptized into Christ"

"For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ" (27). This verse tells how men become "sons of God, through faith." A few years after Gentile Cornelius and his house became Christians, Peter said that God "made no distinction between us (Jews) and them, cleansing their hearts by faith" (Acts 15:9). Now turn to Acts 10, 11 to see what occurred when their hearts were so cleansed. An angel said to Cornelius: "Fetch . . . Peter; who shall speak unto thee words whereby thou shalt be saved, thou and all thy house" (Acts 11:13, 14). After Peter came, and while he was speaking the "words" that would save, the falling of the Holy Spirit upon his listeners suddenly interrupted him. But after the interruption, he finished his saving "words." Their faith in Christ led the Gentiles to repent and to be baptized in obedience to Peter's command. The fact that Peter said not one word about the Holy Spirit proves that the Spirit's coming was no part of Peter's "words." God sent the Spirit, not to save Cornelius, but to convince Christian Jews that Christ was for Gentiles as well as for Jews. Thus, was Cornelius justified and cleansed by his faith as it obeyed.

This way of cleansing hearts has never been, nor is it ever to be, changed, for Christ's last charge to his apostles was: "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world" (Matt. 28:19, 20). In this manner, fulfilling God's ancient promise made to Abraham before there were any Jews, are Jews, Romans, Galatians, and all humanity to be saved.

An actor, taking the part of Hamlet, tries to impersonate and reproduce him. Similarly, to "put on Christ" is, first, to put him on in baptism, then "follow his steps" and always be like him. According to the Bible and human experience too, the way for us really to get Christ on and be clothed in him is to let him, through the Holy Spirit, dwell in us, and take over our lives. Other ways get very imperfect likeness, and easily lead into pride, pretense, and hypocrisy. Said Christ: "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy" (Luke 12:1).

What Does The Bible Say?

What About the New Versions of the Bible?

There is a revival of interest in the Bible! Thank God for that. One indication of this interest is the astounding sale of the new Revised Standard Version before readers had an opportunity to even see a copy, much less study it carefully. A million copies were ordered for the first printing, and the supply was soon exhausted. If these books had been stacked in a pile they would have reached 24 miles into the sky. It required 1,000 tons of paper, 2,000 gallons of ink, and 20,000,000 square inches of gold leaf to produce this largest single printing of a book.

Many people thought this indicated the excellence of the new translation, but buyers had not had the opportunity to see the Old Testament at all. It was primarily an indication of interest in the Bible! And it is wonderful that so many are reading the Bible in the various versions. Let me challenge you once more to read the Bible through. Several thousand people on the South Plains are doing it this year. Begin today reading three chapters a day and five each Sunday to complete the entire Bible in 12 months.

When the subject of versions comes up I am reminded of the good brother who told the preacher that he wasn't interested in any "version." He wanted the Bible just like the Lord gave it to King James! The King James version of 1611 is the most important book ever put into the English language, and no other translation will take its place. However, we all realize that the Bible was not written in English, but principally in Hebrew and Greek. I believe that God has given us his word in the Bible as originally written. He not only inspired the men to write the true ideas, but to clothe those ideas in accurate words. "For no prophecy ever came by the will of man; but men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit" (2 Peter 1:21). Paul taught Timothy to be loyal to "the words of our Lord Jesus Christ," and said: "Every scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness: that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work" (2 Tim. 3:16).

Since the Scriptures are inspired of God, then it is very important that we know exactly what the original words of the inspired writers were. Most scholars are agreed that the most accurate translation of the original languages is the American Standard Version of 1901. In the preface to the New Revised Standard Version the translators admit that the American Standard Version is a "mechanically exact, literal, word-for-word translation which follows the order of the Greek words, so far as this is possible . . ."

There is a place for modern-speech translations of the Bible. One certainly can profit in his study by having several such versions to read and refer to. The Revised Standard Version is such a modern-speech version to be used along with the Goodspeed, Williams, Weymouth, and others. However, do not accept it as a replacement for the beauty and power of the King James Version or the accuracy of the American Standard of 1901. The publication of the new version will cause many people to read the Bible who have not read it before. For that I am thankful. I do not share the views of those who want to burn it, nor of those who want to throw away the King James and American Standard and enshrine the new as the standard Bible for our time. Next week we shall treat with the values of modern speech versions, and some specific objections to the new version as a standard version.

M. Norvel Young

One Christ For The World

We hear much these days about "one world." Wendell Wilkie popularized this phrase during his campaign for the presidency twelve years ago. The United Nations headquarters in New York sends out much material about the "one world" in which we live. But do not think that this is a modern idea. The Bible has taught all through the ages that one God created this one world in the beginning. Then Jesus Christ, God's one begotten Son, came to teach us that God loves all people, regardless of race or nation or culture, in this "one world."

Jesus said: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:16). Even after spending three years training the apostles, Jesus had to perform a mighty miracle to convince Peter and the Jews that "God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is acceptable to him" (Acts 10:35).

Paul enunciated the principle of all nations being part of "one world" when he spoke on Mars Hill in Athens.

"The God that made the world and all things therein, he, being Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is he served by men's hands, as though he needed anything, seeing he himself giveth to all life, and breath, and all things; and he made of one every nation of men to dwell on all the face of the earth . . . for in him we live, and move, and have our being" (Acts 17:24-28).

One World Through Christ

So this idea of "one world" is as old as the Bible. But the sad thing is that many who realize that men of all nations and races must dwell together in peace or destroy one another have not understood that men must know the one God through Jesus Christ before they can truly love all men.

The secret of one world dwelling in peace is Jesus Christ. He alone has the answer to man's deepest needs, and he alone can change our selfish hearts to love even our enemies. So, we believe the greatest contribution that can be made for "one world" at peace is the preaching of the "one Christ" as the hope of the world!

Paul gives us the basis for this unity in Christ in the unities listed in this verse in Ephesians, chapter four, "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as also ye were called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is over all, and through all, and in all."

Not An Impossibility

Jesus prayed that all men who became his disciples might be one even as he and the Father are one "that the world may believe that thou didst send me" (John 17:21). We believe that Jesus did not pray for an impossibility. We believe that we do not have to wait until everyone else is united before we take our stand on the grounds of "one Christ for one world." We plead with all who read this article to leave all human names or creeds or traditions which divide believers in Christ and to stand on the platform of unity in Christ. Let us determine to be Christians only, nothing more and nothing less. Let us find unity with "no creed but Christ, no rule of faith but the Bible!"

Concerning The Revised Standard Version

Ross W. Dye

Putting the Bible in the language of the people has been a prodigious task beset by many pitfalls. Linguists know that it is difficult to accurately translate the full meaning of any language. This is particularly true of the Greek of the New Testament, not that scholars do not know the meaning of the Greek words, but Greek is such a fine, precise language that it is often impossible to find an English word that has all the depth of meaning inherent in the Greek. Sometimes the meaning of a Greek word requires several English words or sentences to convey the fullness of the thought to the English reader, but that is beyond the legitimate bounds of a translation. The best English translation can never equal the power and beauty of the Greek.

The reader will be familiar with several English versions of the Bible. These have been translated from manuscripts of the original writings of the inspired prophets and apostles. The Vatican, Sinaitic, and Alexandrian manuscripts are the oldest and best. In view of the fact that these manuscripts were copied by hand, the variants are remarkably few. Of the 181,000 words in the New Testament, 6,000 variants are found in the manuscripts. Most of these are minor, and concern only a few words in any one place. The two largest, Mark 16:9-20, and John 7:53-8:11, contain only twelve verses. Thus the main job of the translator is simply to give an English rendering of the manuscripts. Of course, the variants are a problem. Manifestly some choice must be made. Aside from the choice of English words, the main difference in the English versions lies in the decision of the translators regarding the variants. Whatever decision is reached concerning the variants, Price's, "Ancestry of the English Bible" says, "No essential teaching of the New Testament is greatly affected by them."

The Revised Standard Version is the most recent and controversial of the English Bibles. It, like all translations, is a work of men, and therefore is imperfect. I have read with interest the criticisms of the Revised Standard Version, both pro and con. That there are some objectionable features to this version is no doubt true. That we are many times governed by prejudice, ignorance, and sentimental considerations is also true.

Some critics have spoken against modernistic tendencies apparent in this version. The charge is brought that the word "begotten" was omitted from John 3:16 due to modernistic influences. If the absence of that word lends any comfort to modernism, I am unable to see it. The word "monogenes" is a combination of the words "monos" meaning only, and "genos" meaning offspring. A literal and accurate translation of John 3:16 is as follows: "For God so loved the world that he gave his Son, his only Son, (monogene) that everyone who believes in him may not perish, but have eternal life." The Greeks sometimes piled up words which are unnecessary in English. The Revised Standard Version does not repeat the word "son" inherent in "monogene," but picks up the "only" and lets one use of the word "son" suffice. Is it necessary to say more than, "He gave his only Son" to make the meaning clear?

Considerable opposition has arisen over the use of "young woman" instead of "virgin" in Isaiah 7:14. It is admitted by all that the Hebrew word "almah" means a young woman of marriageable age. The word "almah" occurs in Gen. 24:43 with reference to Rebekah. She was both a young woman and a virgin. The word is found again in Exodus 2:8. It is here applied to the sister of Moses and rendered "maid" in the King James. Though the word does mean a young woman, I think that in view of the fact that respectable young, unmarried women are virgins, and since the Jews understood

"almah" to signify "virgin" in Isaiah 7:14 as witnessed by the Septuagint, that virgin should have been in the text and young woman in the margin. However, the meaning of Isaiah 7:14 may be seen by reading the inspired explanation of it in Matthew 1:21 where it is unquestioned that virgin is meant.

Perhaps one of the strongest objections insofar as modernistic tendencies are concerned is the use of the archaic pronouns "thee, thou," etc., when referring to God but not with reference to Christ. There can be nothing wrong with dropping these antiquated pronouns altogether. It certainly is true that the apostles didn't speak Shakespearian English. They didn't even speak Classical Greek. With the apostles, there was no such thing as one language for ordinary conversation and another for prayer. If there is any merit in praying and singing in Shakespearian English, I think a good case could be built for praying in Latin, and a better one for praying in Greek. On the other hand, I see no excuse for using thee and thou in reference to God and not Christ. Christ is God even as is the Father.

Many oppose the treatment accorded Mark 16:9-20 in the Revised Standard Version. What was in the footnote and in the text of the American Standard Version have exchanged places in the Revised Standard Version. As noted already, these verses are not in all of the ancient manuscripts, but the fact that they are in the Alexandrian and in versions older than any known manuscript is good evidence that it was in the original text. The American Standard Version deals with the passage fairly enough, and their decision, I think, should have been followed in the Revised Standard Version. Regardless of whether Mark 16:16 be in the original or not "no essential teaching of the New Testament is affected." Baptism and the remission of sins are repeatedly connected in the New Testament.

There are other objections to the Revised Standard Version, and some of them have some merit. Some are unjustified and stem from prejudice or sentimental attachments. Despite the weaknesses of this version, it is obviously a very scholarly work deserving of the study and consideration of Christian people wherever English is spoken. It is a mistake to fanatically follow any one version to the exclusion of all others. All have some merits as well as demerits. Time alone will tell what the influence of the Revised Standard Version will be. It is doubtful that it will or should replace the older versions. That it is useful in studying the Bible is unquestionably true, but the wisdom of using it in our preaching rather than the older and more generally accepted versions is very questionable.

PREACHERS OF TODAY

FROM THE HARVEST FIELD

Malcom P. Hinckley, 3034 E. Gage, Huntington Park, California, April 23: Since our last report, we have had one baptized, one restored, and two to place membership. We also set two more new records, for Sunday morning and Sunday evening attendance.

Clarence C. Gobbel, 1157 E. Mabel, Tucson, Arizona, April 24: I plan to make a vacation trip to West Central, and East Central Texas, the latter part of June. I could fill in, in the absence of your minister for the last two Sundays in June. If you could use me, please write me at the above address.

Paul T. Dumm, Charleston, South Carolina, April 20: We are happy to report two more baptisms and one to be restored in the past week. This is a total of six baptisms and two restorations this month. The Lord has blessed us in our efforts. When in Charleston, worship with us. The church is located at Hester and Sans Souci Streets.

Wade Banowsky, 4109 N.E. 28th St., Fort Worth, Texas, April 23: Thomas B. Warren, Galena Park, Houston, Texas, has been selected as the minister for the new Eastridge congregation in Fort Worth. The congregation is an expansion program of the Riverside congregation. We feel very fortunate to secure Brother Warren to minister with us.

Abe Lincoln, 911 Hallum, Fort Worth, Texas, April 23: Our spring meeting here at Castleberry closed last Sunday evening, with Brother James W. Nichols of Abilene doing the preaching. There were 60 responses, 24 of them baptisms. We had the largest crowds during this meeting that we have ever had. We set a new record in Bible class last Sunday with 449.

Lloyd Moyer, 416 Lewis Avenue, San Leandro, California, April 21: Closed a good meeting last Wednesday night with Harrell Collard of Childress, Texas, doing the preaching. Fourteen people came forward during the meeting and four more came forward last Sunday. The church was edified and we look to the future with a renewed zeal.

Murrey W. Wilson, Mountain View, Oklahoma, April 24: Brother Bascomb M. Litton of Memphis, Texas, has just closed a fine meeting here. Two were baptized and two restored to the Lord's work. My own little girl, Sharon, was baptized Wednesday night after the meeting. The church has been greatly strengthened as a result of Brother Litton's work with us.

Virgil J. Cullam, Box 8242, Oklahoma City 14, Oklahoma, April 24: After three very joyous years with the North Military Street church in this city, I am ready to consider a change some time during the summer months. I would like to make this change before the beginning of the next school term for the benefit of my children. If interested, write me at the above address, or call VI-3-4725, Oklahoma City.

Bill G. Brown, Hale Center, Texas: Our recent meeting with Brother Dean Brookshire of Lubbock, Texas, was a great success from every standpoint. A total of 85 responded to the Lord's invitation: 72 were restored, three placed membership, and ten were baptized. Now that all have become reconciled to God and to one another, love, peace and a spirit to work prevail in the Lord's church of Hale Center. Brother Brookshire's contribution to the success of the meeting cannot be over emphasized. He preached the gospel in his usual manner. Love, simplicity and sound gospel preaching characterized his lessons throughout. Aside from the visible results of the meeting, the church has been greatly strengthened and edified by the splendid lessons presented. The church here is destined for great things in the future.

Roy E. Stephens, Burnet, Texas: In March, I was with the Bellaire church in Houston in a meeting, where Luther Blackmon is the preacher. In April, I helped the 26th and N. Shepherd church in Houston in a meeting where Otha D. Fikes labors. There have been six baptisms and a number of restorations in the work here since last report.

Horace W. Busby writes: We began a good meeting here, Sunday, April 19, with fine crowds and six restored or identified to date (Tuesday). The Central church in Ardmore, Oklahoma, has made wonderful progress since I was here about fourteen years ago. Brother George Carter is the regular preacher for this congregation. We are to begin May 3 with the Central congregation in Norman, Oklahoma.

T. D. Boston, Sr., Box 487, Gilmer, Texas: I was in a wonderful meeting at the Tenth and Saunders Street congregation in Gatesville, April 6th through 11th. Four were baptized into Christ. Brother Rudy Wyatt, a graduate of Abilene Christian College, will move to Gatesville this summer to work with the church there. Prospects are bright for a good work. Eight have been baptized and twelve placed membership with us here at Gilmer since last report.

Will W. Slater, Box 343, Hydro, Oklahoma, April 23: The work in Hydro is making some progress. Four more came in from the Christian church last Lord's day. We go forward with courage. This leaves me in a singing school with the church in Siloam Springs, Arkansas. Much interest is being manifested. Several congregations are being represented. Brother George B. Curtis is the minister here, and he is doing a good work.

John G. Bills, 4133 Middlesex Drive, San Diego 16, California, April 19: Since my last report, we have had 22 responses at Linda Vista congregation in this city. Five of the number being baptisms, three memberships, and the others confessed wrongs and were restored to their first love. During the same time we have lost, I believe, twelve by moving away, but our loss will be others' gain. One baptized today and two last Lord's day. To God be all the glory, and may we work while it is today.

Walter W. Leamons, Junction, Texas, April 21: Work here at 102 N. 10th Street (1 block south of Main), moves along in a good way. Nearly all our male members will take some leading part and our little cobblestone building is nearly filled every Lord's day morning. We have visitors from many places. Among them some time ago were Major General and Mrs. T. R. Rampy, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and their daughter, Mrs. R. E. Smith, of Oceanside, California.

William K. Cunningham, Box 1165, Paducah, Texas, April 23: In recent weeks we have had seven baptisms, four restorations, and five identifications. I spoke in the lectureship at Kirkland, Texas, not long ago.

E. J. Matlock, 3105 N. W. 24th Street, Ft. Worth, Texas: Brethren, I am interested in contacting congregations within driving distance of Fort Worth that are in need of a preacher. You may write me at the above address or call me at NO-3117. For references you may write C. L. Brown, 2808 N. W. 27th Street, and Edwin C. Stillings, 2814 N. W. 24th.

Arnold Hardin, Lancaster, Texas, April 20: In the last month, eight more have been added to our membership; two by baptism. I have just returned from a fine meeting with the Logan Street congregation in Denver, Colorado. One was baptized and one restored to duty. Brother Joe L. Banks is doing a fine work with this group and the future looks much better for them than ever before.

Robert P. Cooper, 2201 Gordon Street, Hopewell, Virginia, April 22: A married woman was recently added to the church here by baptism. Her husband is a Greek Catholic. The church publicly withdrew fellowship from nine unfaithful members this past Lord's day. We now have a membership of 93. We plan to publish a church directory in the near future. I am to be with the church at Elton, West Virginia, May 6th to 17th. Charles G. Lemons of Louisville, Kentucky, will be with the church here June 7th to 14th. If in this vicinity, visit with us.

Claude A. Guild, 2701 E. Belknap, Fort Worth 11, Texas, April 24: The meeting at Central in Houston closed with 53 responses: five baptisms, 11 placed membership and 37 restorations. (These restorations were so vital in the meeting because not many have been restored in years at Central). Carl Spain, Paul Easley, and Doc Mason are a force for good in Houston. They are spiritually-minded men, uncompromising. Their influence for good is seen in the congregation. I am now in a meeting with the Linwood congregation in Fort Worth. Homer Steadman is the minister there.

Joseph W. White, 417 California Avenue, Santa Monica, California, April 18: For the past four Sundays there have been two or more additions to the church here. A total of nine have been baptized in that time. Beginning May 3, we will have a one-week series of meetings on the theme: "Reviving New Testament Christianity." Speakers and subjects are as follows: "The Need for a Revival," Joseph W. White; "Reviving the Plea," Wade Ruby; "Reviving Love," J. D. Fenn; "Reviving Zeal," Morgan Taylor; "Reviving Loyalty to Christ," Bob Melear; "Reviving Unity," Eugene White; and, "Reviving Missionary Zeal," Delmar Bunn.

Austin Taylor, Uvalde, Texas, April 22: I have just been down to Refugio, Texas, in a meeting with C. R. Nichol and A. E. Findley. It was a great treat to be with those old brethren again. They know their lesson and understand how to present it with power. In a short time (June 5th), men and boys will gather in Sabinal from several different states for the school of singing. There will probably be more enrolled this year than in any previous year. Our friends drive many miles each year to hear the wonderful singing. If you cannot become a student in the school, come and enjoy the great singing with us. You are welcome.

J. T. Marlin, Sweetwater, Texas, April 21: One baptized and three restored at Fourth and Elm, Sunday. Our prayer meeting attendance is approaching the 300 mark.

Joseph Sherman, 709 East Third Street, Kinsley, Kansas, April 27: I baptized four people at Kinsley yesterday, and spoke at St. John yesterday afternoon during a fellowship meeting. I baptized one man on April 5, and am scheduled to speak during a Penolosa, Kansas, protracted meeting May 4-10. I broadcast from Great Bend, KVG, Saturday mornings at 8:15.

Cleon Lyles, Little Rock, Arkansas, April 27: Three were baptized, three placed membership and one was restored at Sixth and Izard yesterday. The East Side church in Tulsa, Oklahoma, closed a meeting the 22nd, in which I preached. Five were baptized, three placed membership, and one was restored. Delmar Owens is in his eighth year of good work with this church.

J. K. Bentley, Springtown, Texas, April 28: Our spring meeting with Brother Joe Rhaten doing the preaching was a great success. Brother Rhaten preached the gospel with great earnestness and zeal. Six came to be baptized and eight to be restored. Three divided homes were united as a result of this meeting. The whole church is rejoicing. We believe a number more will soon become Christians.

Wyndal H. Hudson, Coleman, Texas, April 27: Sunday before last we preached in Cisco, Texas, where there were four baptisms and four restorations. Yesterday we spoke in McKinney at both services and there were five restorations. All together we have seen 16 added to the Lord since the fifth of this month. Preparations are nearing completion for our return trip to Catholic Italy. Our travel fund is still short.

K. M. Kelly, Box 436, Alice, Texas, April 27: The church here recently closed one of the best meetings in its history. There were six baptized and seven restored. Guy N. Woods did the preaching in an excellent way. Attendance and contributions are continuing to rise. Our mid-week Bible study has not fallen under the one hundred and fifty-six mark in some time. Robert R. Price will do the preaching in our fall meeting.

Buford Holt, 1621 Mitchell Street, Humboldt, Tennessee, April 27: Fine crowds for all services yesterday. One was baptized on April 19 and one restored April 15. This makes a total of sixteen baptisms and six restorations since January 28, when we arrived to begin work with this congregation. Brother Franklyn T. Puckett will do the preaching in a meeting here, May 24-31. All within driving distance of Humboldt are encouraged to assist us in this work. We invite all who come through Humboldt, to worship with us at 1613 Mitchell Street.

W. H. Nichols, Box 787, Columbus, Texas, April 25: Brother A. Chester Grimes of the Heights Church of Christ in Houston closed a meeting at Columbus, Texas, April 19th. We had good outside attendance and fine support from the church at Columbus. Two were baptized during this meeting. Brother Grimes did some fine preaching, both to the alien sinner and the church. The Heights church in Houston was kind enough to send Brother Grimes out here for this meeting. Brother Leon Locke of Hungerford, Texas, preaches in our meeting the last week in July and the first of August.

J. Roy Waldrum, Box 417, Big Lake, Texas, April 25: My services as evangelist here will come to a close in the near future. I am ready to serve the church anywhere in the world. If you need my services, please contact me.

Herbert M. Broadus, 1252 College, Topeka, Kansas: The Huntoon and College church in Topeka entered its new building on March 29. Eleven persons were baptized during the first two weeks in the building. Elbridge B. Linn of Denver, Colorado, closed a meeting here on April 22, in which two persons were baptized and three placed membership. Another was baptized yesterday and two placed membership.

Ralph Russell, Carrizo Springs, Texas, April 28: During April two have been baptized into Christ. Several young people are looking forward to attending the encampment at Abilene Christian College in June. A splendid spirit prevails in the Lord's church here. Remember us in your prayers. If you plan a vacation into Mexico, include a visit with the brethren in Carrizo Springs, Texas. A welcome awaits you.

O. M. Reynolds, DeLeon, Texas, April 27: Next Lord's day, May 3rd, I shall close more than three years with the church here, and move next week to Leakey, Texas, to become the first regular minister for this splendid church. The church is fifty years old and has never had any church trouble! Brother White of San Marcos begins the annual meeting for the Leakey church the last part of May. Leakey is in the beautiful Frio Valley and on the Frio River, which are very picturesque—a fine place to spend your vacation. We had a splendid work here.

R. L. Roberts, 528 Boyce Street, Fort Worth, Texas: I have resigned my work with the Rosemont church in Fort Worth, Texas, and will consider work elsewhere. During the 18 months I was with them, 87 were added to the membership. A new building was erected at a cost of about $40,000 that is easily worth $60,000. I am interested in working with a church that is at peace among themselves, and that wants the truth preached without addition or subtraction. Any such church may write me at the above address or call me at WA-7660.

Choice L. Bryant, 165 S. 15th Street, Salem, April 24: April 6 through 19, I served the church in Albany, Oregon, in a protracted meeting. This campaign was designed to revive the congregation—not to teach the non-member. There were eight confessions of error during the two weeks. It is believed much good was accomplished toward re-establishing New Testament Christianity in that congregation. The possibilities are great for a successful and prospering church of Christ in Albany, if the congregation there now will pursue the proper course henceforth.

Wilburn C. Hill, 130 Cleveland Avenue, Wichita, Kansas, April 22: Since our last report, three have been baptized, four restored and four identified here at Cleveland Avenue. The work is doing well and our training program both for men and women is being well received and attended. I helped with a mission effort at Norwich, Kansas, along with Brethren Ernest Finley and James C. Bays, also of this city. One was baptized and the interest was good. I have just closed a meeting at Hutchinson, Kansas. Five were baptized and four restored and the interest was very good. Brother Hartsell Johnson is doing a good work with the congregation. I go the first of next week to Hooker, Oklahoma, for a one-Sunday meeting. The congregation at Dellore and Murdock which was started here in Wichita a couple of months ago, by this congregation, is making splendid progress. Our next effort will be our vacation Bible school June 8-19. Brother Smith Kite of Norwich, Kansas, is going to help us by conducting music classes during the school. Every congregation in Wichita seems to be making splendid progress and the future looks bright for the work here.

Robert C. (Bob) Copeland, Jr., Box 863, Clarendon, Texas, April 24: Brother George Wilkins of Eldorado, Oklahoma, concluded a good meeting here last Sunday. He preached to the church since there were three other meetings in town. He did his work well. I will start at Eldorado, Oklahoma, in a meeting April 26th, Lord willing. We are well along in our third year with this congregation, and I would like a change by September at the latest. Any congregation wanting a sound gospel preacher who stresses personal evangelism, may contact me at the above address. The elders here endorse my work, and any interested congregation may contact them for reference. Have time for two more meetings in the summer.

Perry B. Cotham, 625 Lamar Avenue, Paris, Texas, April 27: In the meeting at McAlester, Oklahoma, there were 28 responses; 18 for baptism. Alstone Tabor has done a fine work there as local preacher. Palmer Wheeler did an excellent job of directing the singing in the meeting for the Eastside church in Duncan, Oklahoma, and Mack Stirman, local preacher, gave full cooperation. I am now in a meeting with the church in Clarksville, Texas. W. B. Barton, Jr., is the fine local man for this growing church. In all of my meetings this spring the crowds have been large. The churches seem to be growing all over the country. John H. Banister begins with us Sunday. We plan a fine meeting. Paul Epps, preacher for the West Paris congregation, continues busy in local work and singing for meetings. We plan a joint vacation Bible school when Delmar Owens, former Paris boy, holds their meeting, beginning May 31.

Dwain Jones, Box 14, Cordell, Oklahoma, April 27: Two restorations at Lone Wolf, Oklahoma, yesterday.

J. Willard Morrow, Fort Worth, Texas, April 21: After eight years I have resigned my local work at the splendid Rosen Heights church. I am ready to hold gospel meetings all the time. Please write or call me at 2203 Azle Avenue, North Fort Worth, Texas, Phone Market 1603.

Charles Estes, Sheffield, Alabama, April 20: One young lady was baptized yesterday at Highland Park. Highland Park church is located in the famous Muscle Shoals City, within sight of the new proposed TVA headquarters to be moved here from Knoxville. The building is the only church of Christ building in this area on the new super highway being built from Nashville to Mobile. We have plans for a large new auditorium facing this highway, which will be passed by people from all over the world.

V. J. Cullum, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, April 20: Yesterday, Brother Jim Kinney of the 12th and Drexel church, this city, concluded a good meeting with us here at the North Military Church of Christ. We broke all previous records in Bible study and church service attendance, both on Lord's day and the week night attendances. Eight responded to the gospel invitation: four were baptized, three restored, and one restored and placed membership. We give our heavenly Father and Jesus Christ the Savior, the glory. If you need a man for a gospel meeting, Jim Kinney will do the cause of Christ good in any community.

Frank J. Dunn, Dallas, Texas, April 22: The meeting with the Hillcrest church in Corpus Christi resulted in 36 responses, including 20 baptisms. Truman Spring is the local preacher. This is one of the fastest growing congregations in the brotherhood. Our meeting at Peak and East Side with G. C. Brewer resulted in three baptisms and three restorations. We were greatly strengthened by his marvelous teaching. Last week, I closed a meeting at Irving with 40 responses of which seven were baptized. Thomas Sullivan and Louis Hogue assisted in a splendid manner. Hoyt Bailey has recently resigned this good work. His fine teaching bore fruit in the meeting.

John W. Hedge, 636 Kickapoo Street, Jacksonville, Texas, April 20: From April 5th to 15th, I was with the church at Jal, New Mexico, in a gospel meeting during which three heads of families were baptized and one was restored. We had extra fine attendance in both the morning and evening services with many visitors from near-by churches in most all the services. Brother Luke Shira preaches for the church at Jal and the brethren there speak commendably of his work. I am now at Eunice, New Mexico, with Brother R. E. Griffith, local minister, in a meeting. This meeting was begun on April 16th and will continue till the 26th. The services are well attended, the interest is extra good, and our hope for doing much good is high.

Robert Gordon Clement, Liberty, Texas, April 22: It was my pleasure to speak to the church in Marlow, Oklahoma, on the 12th. Good attendance both morning and evening—one baptized and one restored to his first love. We entered a mutual agreement to begin labor together May 1. We anticipate a pleasant work. Worship with us when traveling in South Central Oklahoma. Note our new address: 701 North 4th Street, Marlow, Oklahoma. We are to begin a gospel meeting with James LeFan of Temple preaching Monday evening. The auditorium was filled last evening and thus we anticipate a successful meeting. Claybourn Umberfield, band and choral director of the local schools, is directing the singing. He will be available for a few meetings this summer, if you desire the services of an excellent song director. Contact him now. The church here, as yet, has not selected a man to work with them.

W. Taylor Carter, 1501 New Hampshire, Lawrence, Kansas, April 20: The Sixth Annual Lawrence, Kansas, lectures closed last Friday night with George Benson, president of Harding College, Searcy, Arkansas, delivering the final lecture to an audience of about 450 persons. Among this group was 125 young people of high school and college age from Kansas City, and Topeka, Kansas, Lawrence and communities near Lawrence. Other speakers on the program were Dale Hesser, Paul Faulkner, Woodrow Davidson, Hugo McCord and Wilburn Hill. The church in Lawrence continues to grow. Eight baptized and three placed membership in the last month. Homer Halley will be with us in our summer meeting beginning May 31st.

G. W. Austin, 217 Chama Street, N. E., Albuquerque, New Mexico, April 21: Since last report, I have been preaching for a colored congregation in this city. They are making some progress, but they are surrounded by Baptists, and possibly a few other denominations. A greater percentage of outsiders attend the meetings than we generally see in the white churches. Last Sunday a young man with a family, a former Baptist, was baptized. His father-in-law, a Baptist preacher, was converted some two or three years ago. It seems that over half of the congregation was of that faith. I can understand their strong convictions and sympathize with them in their quest for the truth, having been brought up in that faith myself. Probably, the Lord is making use of my former error to convert others.

L. L. Gieger, Tyler, Texas, April 20: The work at West Erwin Street is showing steady growth. Two were baptized yesterday, one was restored and two placed membership with us. I was with Brother James Scott and the Broadway church in Houston, April 1 to 12. The meeting was well attended; two were baptized, four restored and a number identified themselves with that congregation. Brother Scott is a faithful evangelist and pleasant associate. He has done and continues to do a great work in Houston. Brother Harvey Porter, one of the evangelists here, baptized five during my absence. Remember us in your prayers. My next meeting is to be with the Capitol Hill church in Oklahoma City, May 31 to June 7. This will be like going back home, for we worked with these brethren for nearly seven years before moving to Tyler. Brother Paul F. Johnston is the regular evangelist at Capitol Hill now. Brother Reuel Lemmons is to be the guest evangelist in our meeting from June 7 to 14.

Dow Wilson, Box 2427, Philrich Branch, Borger, Texas: The church here at Eunavista (near Borger), is progressing very well. I have been working with these brethren a year and have enjoyed a pleasant and profitable work. Brother A. G. Hobbs just closed a fine meeting here with us. There were three to confess wrongs and then three were baptized. Brother Hobbs suffered a heart attack last fall and this meeting was his first one since then. He is gaining his health back and should be able to be going again at full speed as soon as he learns to regulate his diet. We appreciated his good work. Brother O. F. Shewmaker led the singing and was a great help in personal work. The church here is sending me to Pekin, Illinois, for a meeting with a small group of Christians who have just started meeting. From there I will go to Spartanburg, South Carolina, for a mission meeting with the Beaumont church. I will be gone all the month of May in that work.

K. M. Kelly, Alice, Texas: The church of Christ here at Alice, Texas, should like to hear from small congregations who are unable to support the preaching of the gospel in destitute fields. We will send our evangelist for several months to help any worthy cause. Please give number in congregation and condition of work. Send all information to: Elders, Box 1228, Church of Christ, Alice, Texas.

Herbert L. Coffman, 2208 Cleburne, Houston, Texas, April 23: The work at the West 34th Street congregation in Houston is progressing nicely. We are just completing the purchase of a tract of land with a house on it that is adjacent to us. This now gives us 221 feet frontage and 310 feet depth on a concrete sub-highway that connects U.S. 290 with U.S. 75. In the past year and a half, our membership has more than doubled. I am presently teaching a course on personal work on Wednesday nights. The congregation has accepted this course with much enthusiasm in that the attendance has risen 75 percent and they also are beginning to do personal work in the community. Starting the first week in June, Brother Warren Branner of Boling, Texas, will begin a series of meetings with us. This meeting is being extensively advertised by radio, newspaper, poster card, direct mail, and personal visitation. We expect some good results.

Richard Weaver, 110 Division Street, Smyrna, Tennessee, April 13: This is my first report since last summer. At that time we installed a new gas heating system, insulated the building and the men of the church painted the basement. This $2,000 improvement was paid for with the surplus accumulated in the treasury in our first 15 months of work here. The balance in the treasury when we came was $17. Brother Billy Nicks did the preaching and his father, T. A. Nicks, led the singing in a good meeting for us in the fall. Brother O. P. Baird, Wilmington, North Carolina, preached one night in January. Smyrna is assisting financially in the great work he is doing there. Interest and attendance at all services continues high. One was recently baptized from Sewart Air Force Base which is located here. Three others in the last two weeks have been baptized. Brother Edward J. Craddock is to preach in our spring meeting, May 17-24.

Willard Collins, David Lipscomb College, Nashville, Tennessee, April 20: My first meeting for 1953 closed last night. During the ten services of the eight-day meeting with the Church Street congregation in Lewisburg, Tennessee, there were 38 baptized and four restored. 1157 attended Sunday school the last day of the meeting, which surpassed the all-time record by 103. Over 1400 were present for the last Sunday morning service. Paul Brown conducted the singing in an excellent way. Avis Wiggins, who preaches for this church, moved to Lewisburg six years ago. The Sunday school attendance has jumped from an average of 246 per Sunday in 1946 to an average attendance of 700 per Sunday in 1952, and it is still growing. Contributions have jumped from $300 to $750 per Sunday. The church building was enlarged some four years ago but it is overflowing again. This is my home congregation, and it was a real joy for me to work in the meeting. I am thankful for this unusual growth. This congregation's influence is being felt over a wide area. Brother Wiggins and many others really did a good job in preparing for the meeting, and it was a pleasure to be associated with him in this effort.

Fred C. Boshart, 1928 Arizona, Dallas, Texas, April 9: Maryland Avenue Church of Christ concluded a gospel meeting April 8. Six were baptized before and during the meeting. W. L. Vessels, Charles Boshart and Fred C. Boshart did the preaching. Henry Lee Foster led the song service. My son, Charles, did most of the preaching. He plans to teach and preach in Wyoming during the summer months. If interested in this communicate with him, addressing Charles Boshart, Station ACC, Box 100, Abilene, Texas, before May 15. Mrs. Boshart and I enjoyed a recent five state visit, observing apparent progress of the Lord's church. Ten years ago we helped in a small way at Omaha, Nebraska, and now learned they are self-supporting. Vacation Bible school plans for night classes are being studied. Maryland Avenue Church of Christ building is located at Maryland and Garza Streets, Dallas, Texas.

W. S. Boyett, 1416 North Hudson, Altus, Oklahoma: We have just recently closed a meeting in which Silas Howell of Llano, Texas, did the preaching. Brother Howell formerly served this church as preacher, and his return visit was very pleasant and much good was done. Five were baptized, two identified and one restored. The work here is very pleasant and our effort to reach the lost is being increased more and more. Within the past two years we have increased our program of work outside of Altus from zero to where it will soon be more than seven hundred dollars per month. We are sending $35.00 per week to Headrick, Oklahoma, and we are looking for a good man to send to Buffalo, Oklahoma, where we have committed ourselves to the amount of $200.00 per month. This church has also spent almost $2,000.00 on a building and preacher's home for the colored brethren and we are helping them support their preacher to the sum of $30.00 per week. Laverne and Buffalo are in Harper County in the northwest part of the state. Brother Odell Weatherford is at Laverne and he is doing a fine work. Buffalo has only twenty-seven members, but they have built a $13,000.00 building within the past year and only owe $4,000.00. They have committed themselves to the support of a preacher for $150.00 monthly. Churches in this section of the state are very small and need much help. We feel that Laverne and Buffalo both offer a splendid opportunity. With the help of God we hope to be able to do more at home and abroad.

Basil C. Doran, P. O. Box 136, Ferris, Texas, April 2: Tuesday night last brought to a close a very profitable and a most enjoyable meeting with the Church Street congregation in Mobile, Alabama. The Lord wonderfully blessed this meeting with ten responding to the gospel invitation. Seven were baptized and three were restored. Brother Paul H. Epps added much to the meeting in directing the song worship. Brother L. Daniel Harless, the present minister for this good congregation, is doing a great work. He is one of the greatest servants of the Lord it has been my privilege to meet. This was my third meeting with this good church. During my absence, the pulpit was occupied by Brethren Sam H. Crawford, an elder of the Pearl and Bryan congregation in Dallas, James B. Scott, minister for the Broadway congregation in Houston and Clyde P. Findlay, minister for the Pearce and Baldwin congregation in Houston. The congregation enjoyed the association of these men. The work here seems to be making some progress. Our radio broadcast, "The Gospel in Song" may be heard each Sunday morning at 8:15 over station KGKO, 1480 on your radio dial. When you come our way, visit with us.

Pierce Adams, 624 N. Lucille, Harrison, Arkansas, April 6: Yesterday was another good day for the cause of Christ at Bellefonte. Four baptisms and one restoration with overflowing crowds at both morning and evening services. Our spring meeting starts May 4 and continues through May 14. Evangelist Cleo N. Blue will be the guest speaker. If you are planning on vacationing in the beautiful Ozarks this spring, plan to attend this series of meetings. My first meeting will be with the Omaha church beginning April 13, then from there to Green Forest, Arkansas, on April 27 for ten nights. Our radio broadcast is bearing much fruit. This is truly a great mission field. Many precious years have been lost wandering in the wilderness, mainly due to a lack of competent and qualified preachers. Many people receiving the truth with readiness of mind as demonstrated by the phenomenal growth that the church has made. Last November a year ago when we accepted the work here, there were about seventy-five members, with a shabby building and a contribution of around seventy dollars per Sunday. Today we have a new building with adequate classrooms. The attendance last Lord's day was 262 with a contribution of $355. We give the Lord the glory for this growth and press on to greater efforts in the Master's service. When in this vicinity visit with us. The church is located on U. S. Highways 62 and 65 in Bellefonte, Arkansas.

Paul T. Damm, 35 Piedmont Avenue, Charleston, South Carolina, April 13: Two were baptized at yesterday's services. The work in Charleston moves along nicely. We will try to contact all whose names we receive who are stationed in the Charleston area, either in the Navy or Air Force.

James P. Miller, Orlando, Florida, April 15: The cause continues to move forward in Orlando. Since Brother DeHoff's meeting last month, three have been baptized and one has come from the Christian church. We have completed the purchase of a two-acre lot on Par Avenue which is the dividing line between College Park and Winter Park in the northern part of Orlando and are making plans for the third congregation. Our contribution to this end last Lord's day was eleven hundred dollars. The Holden Heights congregation where Jerry Belchick preaches, baptizes someone almost every week and they are growing splendidly. Our radio program continues on WORZ at 7:00 a.m., Monday through Friday.

L. A. Douthitt, 8 North Tuxedo Avenue, April 5: Tonight, April 5th, Brother L. C. Anderson of Nashville, Tennessee, and I will take a plane and start our journey to Palestine. This will be my third trip to the Lands of the Bible. I am expecting this to be the greatest trip of my life. We will visit several countries through Europe, and our Greece, Egypt, Lebanon and Syria, but the main part of our two-month trip is to be in Palestine. I want to give plenty of time to revisit the sacred places and re-study the land where so many important events transpired. I hope to return better informed and able to do better work than I have ever been able to do before. We will cross the Atlantic on the United States

NEWPORT NEWS, VIRGINIA

Church of Christ meets at Catalpa Avenue and Kecoughtan Road, Route 60, between Newport News and Hampton, Virginia. Telephone 22037 Newport News. Address 1124 25th Street, Newport News, Virginia, B. H. Atkinson, Minister.

Steamship and from Le Harve, France, the rest of the journey will be by airplane. The work at Brainerd goes along in a fine way. Our crowds are large and the interest is good. I baptized one man last Sunday. One placed membership with us today.

J. Emmett Wainwright, 1330 South 3rd Street, Las Vegas, Nevada, April 1: Brother Bedwell baptized Brother Joe Petty, formerly of Cordell, Oklahoma. Two couples placed membership and more of the "scattered sheep" returned to the fold. Government transferring some fine persons to this field, AEC and Nellis Base. Largest attendance last Lord's day. Class studies being enlarged and intensified. Ben LaMunyon of the auditor's office of AEC and Arva Shields were united in marriage Saturday. They plan to make this their home. We are expecting J. Ridley Stroop of Nashville to be here during June, July and August. I am to spend the summer assisting groups in the Los Angeles area.

Idus England, Houston, Texas, April 14: The North Houston congregation began using their new auditorium Sunday, April 5, and also began a meeting with C. E. McGaughey on that date. The building seats a little over 800 and there was an estimated 700 at the first service. All previous records were broken, both attendance and contribution. During the meeting there were 63 responses, 21 of which were baptisms, one restoration, four memberships, and the others were members of this congregation who confessed wrongs, negligence, indifference, and otherwise asked the prayers of the church. The use of the new auditorium brought to a close nearly four years of two identical services on Lord's day morning. We thank the Lord for his blessings on our feeble efforts.

S. A. Ribble, Wellman, Texas: We have just closed our first year of work with the small church of Wellman. During the twelve months of very pleasant work, there have been about thirty responses to the gospel invitations. Ten have been restorations and memberships. Sixteen have been baptized by me during the past three months. Four were baptized during the meeting last April, held by Brother Bobby Hoover. The last group, eleven of the sixteen, were baptized during our Lecture Services, from March 29th through April 5th. Our attendance was fine, and the speakers delivered good gospel instruction throughout the entire series. Our house is too small, and if, and when, we can get a crop in this drouthy country, we will try to get a more adequate building. Our work is peaceful and harmonious. To God be the praise for all.

PHILLIPS-ABBOTT DEBATE

M. E. Blake

March 16-19 it was my pleasure to moderate for Brother Murphy D. Phillips in a debate with Chester Abbott, of the United Pentecostal Church. Mr. Abbott is one of their ablest debaters, but even with the aid of his father, Mark Abbott, who is a power among them, Mr. Abbott was in no wise a match for the truth as presented by Brother Phillips. The debate was held in the Hillcrest Church of Christ meeting house in Carlsbad, New Mexico, and was conducted on a high plane. Both disputants conducted themselves as gentlemen and order prevailed throughout the four night discussion. The propositions briefly stated were: Three Persons in the Godhead; and Prayer Has No Part in An Alien Sinner's Conversion. Brother Phillips affirmed: The United Pentecostal Church is the True Church; and Jesus' Name Only is to be Used in Baptizing. Brother Phillips denied. Throughout the debate, Brother Phillips defended the truth with power and persuasion.

If any congregation needs a man to defend the truth against this sect, United Pentecostal Church, the elders of the Hillcrest Church of Christ, as well as other congregations here, are ready to endorse Brother Murphy D. Phillips' defense, and it is my opinion that no more able man could be found. The visible results following the debate were one baptism, one restoration and one placed membership with the Hillcrest congregation.

A VISIT TO CALIFORNIA

Glenn L. Wallace

The friends of the Lord's work will be interested in the program of the Central Church in Long Beach, California. It was my privilege to spend the month of January with this congregation. While there I became acquainted with some of the problems these people have had to solve in the development of a church program.

Central congregation, located at 5th and Atlantic, has the physical equipment to make it one of the great congregations of that area. The present leadership is determined that the church shall stand in the front with loyal congregations of that area to combat the evils of modernism and sectarianism that is threatening the work in many places. For years this congregation was under the complete domination of Ernest Beam and his compromising leadership. In time the membership came to have many people who were only half converted. Within the last two years Ernest Beam has left the church and is now preaching for a disgressive congregation. Several of the leaders who were leaders under Ernest Beam are now working with Christian churches in that area. The church is now free from this disturbing element of compromise.

On June 1, Bud Irvine will begin work as an evangelist with the Central congregation. Bud has done an outstanding work with the church in Baytown, Texas, and those who know him and his stand for the truth will rejoice in his decision to go to the Central Church in Long Beach. Brother Irvine has worked in Southern California and his influence and talents will be a valuable asset to that whole area.

Tom W. Phillips, Warner's Theatre Bldg., Suite 607-11, 7th and Hill, Los Angeles 14, California, April 7: April 5th brought one of the largest morning audiences in the history of the 600 N. Rossmore, Hollywood, California, congregation. The contribution was $275.00. Both the attendance and offering show the Hollywood church to be in a healthy condition. Dr. Wade Ruby and James Smythe are co-ministers. After having been with this congregation since July of 1942, I rejoice to see it beginning to come into its own as a credit to the cause of Christ. My mother, Mrs. T. W. Phillips, Sr., is now seventy-two years of age and is in the best of health. She lives here in Southern California with us.

Cecil E. Hill, 1111 West Mulberry, San Antonio, Texas, April 20: The work here continues to be interesting, progressing and challenging. Our growth has been gradual and substantial. For several months we had our services earlier than is customary but one month ago we changed back to the regular time: Bible school 9:45; worship services 10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Our own members liked the earlier time better but it was a great disappointment to our visitors and we have a good number all the time. In fact, this is one of the most interesting things about gospel work in the Alamo City. Brother C. E. McGaughey's recent meeting with us was one of the very best we have ever had. His influence was very fine for the congregation. He has promised to return at the earliest date possible. If you visit in San Antonio, you will enjoy worshipping with the Beacon Hill congregation.

Lloyd Frederick, 926 Poindexter, Cleburne, Texas: The Granbury Street church continues to go forward in a very encouraging way. We have been able to break our Bible school attendance records for the past seven out of eight Sundays. Our contributions have been rising also each month. These things have been made possible because our members have a mind to work. We are only eight months old but have enjoyed a steady growth from our beginning. A lady who was a Primitive Baptist was baptized into Christ last Lord's day. Recently it has been my privilege to speak on lectureships at Rio Vista, Joshua, and Glen Rose. On Wednesday night, May 6, I shall be on the lectureship at Worth Heights in Fort Worth. Brother Ralph Starling of Stephenville, Texas, will be with us in a gospel meeting the first week in May. Worship with us whenever you are in Cleburne. We are located on the corner of Granbury and Turner Streets, near the site and campus of the old Clebarro Christian College in the northwestern section of Cleburne.

Our Departed

LANDON—Brother Elves Leonard Landon, minister for the church of Christ, Monument, New Mexico, suffered a heart attack while conducting services at the regular morning worship April 5. He was taken immediately to the hospital but died about two hours later. Brother Landon had been with the Monument church three years, ending about thirty years as a gospel minister for the Lord. Most of these years were spent in South Central Oklahoma with churches of Christ at Santa Fe, Elmore City, County Line, Pernel, and Comanche. Being born at Lehigh, Indian Territory, March 8, 1893, he had recently passed his sixtieth birthday. Besides his good wife, Brother Landon is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Eck, Healdton, Oklahoma; one sister, Mrs. Dixie Wright, Linda Vista, California; several half-sisters and one half-brother; and two grandsons, Alan and Mark. Services were conducted at the West Main Church of Christ, Healdton, by the writer, assisted by J. U. Bristow, Comanche, and Woodrow Hughes and Bennie Beal, Heald-ton. Burial services were held at Elmore City cemetery. Brother Landon was one of my first new acquaintances among ministers after I began preaching. He and Sister Landon were by the office for a short visit just three weeks before his death. To be sure there is a great loss to be borne, but great influence left behind will bear fruit for many years. And so passes another constant soldier of the Christ.

SCOTT—George Lee Scott was born November 12, 1868, in Lee County, Virginia. He came to Texas in 1941. He lived in or near Frisco after coming to Texas. He passed away at McKinney, Texas, April 17, and was buried in Frankfort community in north Dallas County, April 18, 1953. Brother Scott was a member of the Frisco Church of Christ, where he attended regularly as his health permitted. The funeral was held in the Staley Funeral Home in Frisco, the writer being the speaker. Brother Scott leaves no known relatives. The Odd Fellows had charge of the graveside services.

ROBERT J. KELLER

Frisco, Texas.

HILL—Wilmer Grove Hill was one of the finest Christian men that ever graced the earth. He was baptized into Christ in 1922 by A. R. Holton and followed steadfastly in the footsteps of our Lord. During his thirty-one years in the church of our Lord, he was absent from the Lord's supper less than six times. His first work, after his conversion, was to convert his wife, who at that time was a very devout Presbyterian, a teacher in that denomination. His efforts to convert others were just as untiring and forceful. His influence for good in the town of Kemp, Texas, where he spent most of his life, shall be remembered by a great host of friends; and shall continue to bring forth fruit unto God.

WILSON M. COON

HOBSON—Nettie Eddleman was born May 30, 1877. She was married November 1, 1902, to Till Hobson. To this union were born seven children, three boys and four girls. She died March 3, 1953. Sister Hobson left this world to be with her Lord. She obeyed the gospel in young girlhood and lived only for God and his church all these years. She had been in failing health for two years, yet she never missed a service. Just a few hours before she died, she said to tell Brother Powell that she could not be at Bible class tomorrow. So like a ship that has left its moorings and sails bravely out to sea so some one dear has sailed away in calm serenity, but there's a promise of a greater joy than earth could have in store for God has promised a richer life beyond that unseen shore. Our prayer to her loved ones and friends is to live as she did for the sweet hope she did so look forward to.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Washing Of Regeneration

Paul says, "Not by work of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost" (Titus 3:5). No one who believes the Bible has the idea that the meritorious cause of salvation is human works. Salvation is not by man's wisdom and planning. In the New Testament certain conditions are prescribed in order for man to be saved, but the saving power is not in the conditions.

Faith without Christ is worthless. It is not the act of believing that justifies the sinner, but the object he believes in, which is Christ. He can have faith in everything else, but without faith in Christ the sinner cannot be saved. And the same thing is true concerning baptism. Baptism without regard to Christ is worthless. This act must be done in the name of Christ or it is not obedience. Even prayer without the name of Christ is in vain.

So salvation is not by works of righteousness which we have done. God saves us by his mercy. Then Paul adds "by the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost." There is no difference between what Paul says here, and what Peter says in Acts 2:38, which reads: "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."

Just to be dipped in water is not of itself the baptism commanded in the New Testament. It must be in the name of Christ for the remission of sins before it is baptism. There is no such thing as baptismal regeneration. Men are regenerated by the mercy of God through Christ. But to carry out the purpose of God's mercy in Christ, sinners must be baptized. Ananias said to Saul of Tarsus, "Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord" (Acts 22:16). If preaching and practicing baptism as a condition of salvation is water regeneration, then that is just what Paul preached and practiced. But the apostles did not preach water salvation. They preached salvation in Christ, and the way to get into him is by baptism (Gal. 3:27).

Righteous Prosperity

When a man talks about prosperity, as a usual thing we do not know what he is talking about. A great many people do not know the difference between prosperity and adversity. I guess the prodigal son thought he was prosperous when he got the portion of goods that fell to him, and took his journey into a far country. He realized the dream of his heart—reached the goal of his ambition. And that is so often called prosperity. But true prosperity is determined, not only by gaining our objects, but by the character of the objects. What about a bank robber who robs one bank after another without being caught? Is he prosperous? What of the man who makes a fortune by dishonest methods?

The writer of Psalms says, "The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree; he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon. Those that be planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of our God" (Psalm 92:12, 13). This is a description of true prosperity. It is not prosperity when a man accumulates a fortune, but loses his soul. The palm tree and cedar flourish because they follow the laws of God, and the writer used them as an emblem of the prosperity of the righteous.

The Church And The Community

Glenn L. Wallace

Romans 13:1-7

There are two extremes that are held by members of the church on the relationship of the church to the community. One group says that the church, being a spiritual institution, belongs to God and that there can be no connection between the Christian and the world. These people insist that a Christian is a temporary traveler here with a task that should be completely severed from the "powers that be" and all community life. Another view held by some Christians is that the church is a service organization; a vessel of community action; that Christians are members of a semi-religious order and that a "chamber of commerce" attitude should prevail in all that is done. The latter view would urge that such things as major disasters, political pressure, racial betterment, scout work, polio drives, and any and all community projects should be made the heart of the church at work and even supported from the budget of the congregation. These people often insist that the "voice of the church" should be heard in public affairs all the way from the local precinct to the White House.

The truth is between the two extremes. The church does have a definite relationship to sustain to the community and yet there is a line that should be drawn between the mission of the church and the service rendered by members to the community life.

The Mission of The Church

If we are to know the true relationship of the church to the community, we must understand the mission as outlined in the New Testament. This plan will show that the church is divine in origin (Matt. 16:18), and was purchased with Christ's blood (Acts 20:28). This blood-bought institution has a definite mission and all the machinery necessary to carry it out is provided by command and example.

The church organization consists of elders and deacons (Phil. 1:1, 2). This is the only class of officers in the church and the authority of the elders extends only to the local congregation in which they are selected to serve. The evangelist is not an officer, and he along with any other members employed to work, is under the oversight of those who secure his services.

Three major works make up the program of the church. First, each congregation should seek to keep the local membership edified, strong and loyal. Second, the church should reach out to other communities and lands where the gospel is unknown with a program of evangelization. Third, the distressed should be given help and provisions, especially those who are of the "household of faith." There is an obligation to provide help to those outside of the church but the restrictions upon such a work are clearly evident in the New Testament plan. The church has neither the numbers (it will never be in the majority) nor the machinery for world-wide relief work. The church should attempt only that which she can do and supervise.

We can see how this mission was carried out by looking at a few examples in the New Testament plan. When a famine arose in apostolic times, money was raised by Christians and sent to Christians to be administered by the elders, the only class of supervisors that the church can recognize (Acts 11:30). Elders today have the right and privilege to call upon sister congregations to assist them in a work of providing for the needy but no "board of trustees" or any other unscriptural body has a New Testament right to call upon the church for aid in any kind of program. This would prevent a congregation from building its program to include any community, civic, national, educational or charitable organizations, whether they are administered by people of the world or of the church. A congregation may purchase the service and supplies of a human institution but the purchase of such service and the support of the institution are not parallel.

The task of evangelizing the world is a great one but it is not too great for God's people. The church at Antioch was the base of operation of two evangelists according to Luke's record (Acts 13). The work of these men began and ended with a report to this congregation. All work of evangelization, both local and foreign, should originate and end under the oversight of a local church. When a church is planted, it should become a church and not a "mission," then this relationship between the two churches will cease to exist.

The church cannot allocate the work of evangelization to any community and world-wide service organization. In our anxiety to carry out this mission, let us maintain the proper relationship to the worldly institutions among which we work.

James teaches that orphan children should be cared for by Christians (James 1:27). This work cannot be handed to benevolent organizations that have no connection with the elders of a local congregation. The church cannot have any organic connections with worldly institutions who claim to do what the church is commanded to do. Our relationship to such orders is very clear.

The Christian and Community

"The voice of the church should be heard in community affairs," says one. "We should make ourselves an effective agency for community service," is advocated by a few Christians. One preacher was heard to exclaim: "Our government cannot overlook one million votes." Is this the course the church should take? To make our influence felt should we organize and select a spokesman to be our "ambassador" at Washington? Should we have paid lobbyists in Congress to safeguard the plans of the "church of Christ"?

How can the church be heard in public life? A lobby in Congress or "representative members" working in Washington for the church is a violation of the principle upon which the American government is built. We have recently heard that the Pope of Rome has intervened in behalf of the Rosenbergs who are condemned to die. A church head, speaking for his church, is seeking to pressure the President and change the decision of an American court. He has no right to such action and neither does any other church, including the church that Jesus built.

No man can ever speak for all the churches of Christ. A sermon on "What the Church of Christ Teaches," should be titled, "What the Bible Teaches About the Church." It is not possible to know what all the members believe on any question, but it is possible to determine what the Bible teaches on all questions. There are many members who wear the name of Christ and worship according to the apostolic pattern, yet they are in error on many points of doctrine. Can any man speak for them or can one among them speak for all churches?

If a condition should arise where the citizenship of this town is called upon to vote on the liquor question, I personally would vote to keep prohibition and I would openly campaign if necessary to keep out the open sale of liquor. I am a prohibitionist but I cannot speak for all the congregation. I have known some good people who do not drink but who feel that a prohibition law is not the way to handle this issue. I would feel free to teach the Bible truth against the evils of liquor but I cannot presume to "vote the congregation" on this or any other issue. The Christian individual has a debt to pay to help to keep the moral standards of the community lifted high, but the church as an organization cannot enter into the political maneuverings of civic life.

What then is the medium through which a Christian may work to lend his influence for good? The text for this sermon reveals that God has ordered that all society be organized for the purposes of peace and happiness. Individual Christians live in this society and they are taught to support it and direct it toward the proper ends. The individual Christian must pay his taxes and give support to the government in any goals that are within the proper realm of government operation.

A few examples of the actions of individual Christians in the New Testament will help to keep this relationship clarified. The jailor was converted at midnight and the next morning he was a jailor (Acts 16). He was a Christian and served his community through this medium. We would not say he was a "church of Christ" jailor, but he was a Christian citizen serving the community in this capacity. Erastus was the treasurer of the city. As an individual he had a right to take such a job and the influence of his Christian teaching should have guided him in the administration of this work. He was not a "church of Christ" treasurer. We are taught to pray for kings, governors and those in authority. Christians may hold such offices, operate legitimate business houses, work at honorable occupations and in this way, the influence of the church is being felt in the community life.

A Christian may vote, hold office and campaign for his favorite candidate. He may engage in drives for funds to treat polio, tuberculosis, heart disease, and any other worthwhile civic and community enterprise. A Christian can build a hospital, work for city improvement, serve to relieve transients who are stranded in the city and he can support any task that is detached from some sectarian religion. These projects belong to the state, the community, and not to the church of the Lord. A Christian, as a member of this community, has an obligation to support such work. Let the Christian learn to be a good citizen.

The Christian, His Money and the Community

All the money of a Christian does not belong to the church. He has a great obligation to the Lord's church and only a prayerful heart and honest purpose can determine the amount that belongs to the Lord. The Christian must support his government with some of his money (Rom. 13:16). He must support his family and provide for his old age (1 Tim. 5:4-8). A Christian has the obligation to educate his children and he is entitled to some clean recreation (1 Tim. 4:8). These things are not the obligation of the church and an individual Christian is exercising his God-given right when he is in contact with the proper community and government organization that provide such opportunities for these things.

It is sometimes advocated that "whatever a Christian individual does, the church can do." This is not true. A Christian may operate a grocery store but a church should not. A Christian can purchase a ticket to a basketball game but the church does not purchase the ticket. In this capacity a Christian always acts as a Christian but he is not acting in a church capacity.

The church should be the church and follow her divine mission. The individual Christian should let the leaven of the truth he learns go with him into his daily life.

Matt. 5:13, 14: "Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost its savor, wherewith shall it be salted? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out and trodden under foot of men. Ye are the light of the world. A city set on a hill cannot be hid."

Acts 2:47: "Praising God, and having favor with all the people. And the Lord added to them day by day those that were saved."

The Church - God's Cultivation

Clarence C. Gobbel

Several figures are used in the third division of Paul's letter to the Corinthians when he wrote concerning their behavior, and how they came to be what they were (1 Cor. 3:1-11). To emphasize their duty and responsibility before God, he wrote to the Corinthians that, "We are laborers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building" (1 Cor. 3:9). He emphasizes two of the figures here especially, that of their being "God's husbandry," and "God's building."

The Greek word here translated "husbandry" is the word "georgion" and literally means "a cultivated field or ground," "a farm," or "tillage." In several of the more recent translations, such as, "The Centenary," "New World," "Standard Revised," and the Catholic and the American, or Goodspeeds translates it "field," "farm," or "tillage."

Thus Paul is telling us that the church in Corinth, and of course any congregation of true disciples existing today, is "God's tillage," "cultivation, or farm." The church is a farm which God works; that in which he works today. This seems to emphasize the idea that the church is that place in which God is to work for the salvation of the souls of men. The church must allow the work of God to so permeate through and through each and every part of it, that God will have his way in all that is done by his children here below.

In this very passage under consideration, the apostle Paul speaks of how the church was planted in Corinth. Paul had planted the seed of the gospel among them, and their becoming Christians had been the result. Often before planting can be done, a clearing off of the debris, or foreign matter must first take place. It seems that Paul had done that, also, as we read in 1 Cor. 6:9-11: "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolators, nor adulterers shall inherit the kingdom of God. And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus and by the Spirit of our God." He had to convince them that they were sinful, and had to leave such sins behind, in order to be among those who should inherit the kingdom of God. He had to uproot that which was evil, in order that the good could take its place. To plant the truth among that which is false, is but to make matters worse, rather than better. So the ground must be prepared by teaching against that which is false, then the truth will begin to thrive, otherwise it will come to nothing.

Paul had labored among them more abundantly than all of the others, but he wanted them to know that when another came along and watered, his work was just as acceptable, and just as badly needed, as his had been (vs. 4-8). After a crop has been planted, it must also be properly watered, but of course one must be careful of what he is doing when he does the watering. After all, it was God who gave the increase there in Corinth, and it is still God that gives such today. So there is still no room for jealousy among preachers, as to whether one had more to do with church growth in certain places, than did another.

Since the church is God's farm, or tillage, let us notice certain comparisons for some valuable lessons on this theme:

1. A farm must bear fruit, bring forth a crop. In order for a farmer to be permitted to continue to dwell on a farm, that farm must yield him a crop of some kind. Sometimes excuses can be made by the farmer, when his farm fails to bring forth a good crop, that he failed to have proper moisture, or the ground wasn't fertile enough. But when the church fails to "bear a crop," can this excuse be given? No. For after all, all that we need is furnished us. The word of God, by which we must grow and develop, we have in our own language today, and thus if we fail to grow, it is not the fault of our God, or that of anyone but ourselves (1 Pet. 2:1, 2; 2 Pet. 3:18).

2. In order for a farm to be an asset to its owner, it needs to produce more than mere running expenses. If the farmer must put back on the farm every cent of what he makes off of it, every year, then the farm is to him a liability, rather than an asset. And if a congregation of disciples barely makes its own expenses, not able to do anything outside of the four walls of its own building, then is it an asset, or a liability to its owner, God himself?

3. Crop rotation is valuable to a farm. When the same old crops are planted at the same spot year after year, the land often becomes run down, and not able to bear as before. Some churches become fanatic on some point of doctrine, or practice, and let it become a means to their weakness, rather than a steppingstone to greater achievements. We have no right to put more emphasis on one phase of the worship, or on some certain work that needs to be done, than upon other things which may also need as much attention.

4. We do not need to go out of the church for the production of worthwhile crops. Christians are obligated, and more than that, have the exalted privilege to labor in the church, and to produce the fruit therein that God has a right to expect. We do not need to give of our means through some organization of men, in order to do good therewith. We can, and we should be anxious to glorify Christ through the church, rather than give to help keep up organizations which man has organized through which to do the same things. If a farmer cannot produce the fruits, and receive the proper yields from his own farm, that he needs, then he needs to change farms, or to get another. So it is, if God cannot depend upon the church to do the work that he demands Christians to do, then his farm is not what he needs. Has he made a mistake, or is it the farm that is at fault?

Dr. Wood Complains

Homer Putnam Reeves

Dr. Eugene Wood, together with a number of his premillennial cohorts are chafing under the lash of some well-directed words recently published in the Dallas Times Herald. This brother frets through six typewritten pages in answer to the following brief article:

What Is Wrong With Premillennialism?

The doctrine of premillennialism is untaught in God's word. It is pure speculation. The millennial picture in Rev. 20 is a martyr scene. Souls (beheaded), "such as worshipped not the beast," reigned with Christ for a thousand years. Rev. 20 is the chief proof text of all premillennial exponents. But Rev. 20 does not mention "us." It does not mention the second coming of Christ. It does not suggest a reign "on earth," nor even remotely hint that Christ will be on earth in relation to his reign. It does not mention a bodily resurrection.

Premillennialism frustrates God's plans. We are told that God planned to have his kingdom established 19 centuries ago; but the Jews rejected Christ. Hence the kingdom was postponed and in lieu thereof the church was built. Not so! The church is the kingdom. Puerile is the mind of one who can believe that God's plans miscarried because of Jewish rejection and that, therefore, the church came into existence quite by accident. The church is no accident. It has always been in God's mind! (cf. Eph. 3:10, 11).

This fanciful speculation is wrong because it denies the real essence of Christianity. In essence it is spiritual. Jesus said, "My kingdom is not of this world." But premillennialism makes the reign of Christ a material thing: a physical ruler (earth dweller) on a material throne, over a physical people, people who suffer, sin, sicken and die: truly "of this world."

It fouls up type and anti-type. The Jewish system included a wide variety of types, anticipating the Christian system. The Jewish law foreshadowed the good things to come in Christ. The shadows were in Moses; the substance in Christ (Heb. 10:1). But premillennialism revives the Jewish ordinances, casting them in the millennium and making shadows the end to be attained.

This doctrine virtually denies the present reign of Christ. It denies to Gentiles the right to seek after God, seeing that, as premillennialists hold, the tabernacle of David has not been rebuilt (cf. Acts 15:14-17). Therefore the doctrine nullifies the Great Commission. It demotes Christ, removing him from a heavenly to an earthly throne.

Premillennialism is hostile to every passage of scripture which refers to the Christian dispensation as the "last days."

The doctrine has no standing in the Scriptures.

Some Observations

Dr. Wood suggests that I have a "loud and aggressive voice," and that people will believe anything if one cries against something "loud enough and long enough." He accuses me of trying to frighten people and incite hatred against his brethren over something of a bone called pre-millennialism, "of which probably, in the most part, the readers know little or nothing." Well, we can credit Dr. Wood, Chas. T. Russell, R. H. Boll, Frank Norris, et al, for the knowledge which the readers have of this hurtful theory. But for them and their like the issue would be dead. The Dallas brethren would never have published my articles if such men as Dr. Wood, Frank Mullins, and Robert Boyd were not constantly pressing their premillennial claims. Now the brother comes out with an "answer" to my article, an answer filled with calumny, invective, and the bold negation, "This statement has not the slightest semblance of truth." So says Dr. Wood! I shall ignore his ugly slurs and consider some of his (arguments?).

My critic denies that Rev. 20:1-6 is the chief proof text of all premillennial exponents. I reaffirm that it is. He accuses me of borrowing material from Brother Foy Wallace. Well, I didn't, but if I had I certainly could have done worse!

I stated that Rev. 20 does not mention us. My critic says, "It is too bad that 'us' will have no part in the first resurrection." How is that for answering the argument? Rev. 20 does not mention us!

Moreover it was pointed out that Rev. 20 does not mention the second coming of Christ. To which we have this response: "No, but what comes just before it does mention it in a big way" (Rev. 19:11). So, the brother asserts that the faithful and true, riding a white horse, to make war against the beast and kings of the earth in chapter 19 proves that Christ is coming in person (in the flesh) to reign for a thousand years on earth as they allege Rev. 20 teaches. How pitiful! He takes the sublime imagery of the spiritual conquest of Christ in chapter 19 and, by inference, declares that this is proof of his coming to earth in person in chapter 20. I feel that the Doctor knows better.

The brother quotes from my article: "It (Rev. 20), does not suggest a reign on earth." Then he adds, "No, and to hear Homer P. Reeves tell it, neither would Daniel 7:27 or Rev. 2.26, 27 or 11:15." Correct, neither would they!

Dr. Wood asserts that a battle will take place on earth and argues therefore that Christ who leads the saints must be on earth in person. It doesn't follow! How does Christ lead his saints on earth today? The brother imagines that Christ must be on earth in person to lead his saints on earth.

I stated that Rev. 20 does not mention a bodily resurrection. He asks, "What kind of a resurrection is it then?" I repeat, it does not mention a bodily resurrection!

I stated that Rev. 20 is a martyr scene. John says, "I saw the souls of them that were beheaded . . ." The Doctor asks, "Who ever heard of 'beheaded' souls?" Well, John heard of them! The brother denies that all here mentioned were martyrs. He says that there are three classes and mentions those that lived and those that lived not. What confusion! He is so anxious to discover another class or classes that he drags in those that lived not. Is he trying to get those who lived not into the millennium too?

Dr. Wood quibbles over the term "kingdom." Certainly it refers to the church (Matt. 16:18, 19). It is granted that there are other uses made of the term. But it is emphatically denied that Christ will establish his kingdom at the end of the "church age." It is denied that there will be a new phase of the kingdom at the end of the church age.

"Smithson On Elders"

Bill McCown

In the Firm Foundation, issue of January 27, 1953, there is on the front page an article by John T. Smithson, entitled, "Appoint Elders in Every City."

I do not know Brother John T. Smithson personally. To the best of my knowledge our paths have never crossed. He and I have never worked together in any special work. Together we are partners with all gospel preachers in the grandest business in all the world—that of preaching the gospel of Christ that souls might be saved. I have no ulterior purpose in saying what I shall say in this writing about Brother Smithson or his article. We have in no way entered into either alliance nor conspiracy.

Brethren, I suggest that you refer back to the Smithson article and read it again. Think seriously about it and then re-read it. It is filled with advice that is sound and certainly merits the careful attention of every person who is disturbed over the "elder" question.

It is not my purpose in this writing to "scotch" the arguments of Brother Smithson, for they need no help. They are clear and concise. They are forceful indeed, and it will be interesting to see the brethren who have advocated "unmarried bishops" and "childless bishops" meet and refute the arguments advanced by Brother Smithson.

I concur wholeheartedly with Brother Smithson that the difficulty encountered in understanding the language of Paul in writing to both Timothy and Titus about the qualifications of elders is not due to ambiguous language. It is not due to the fact that Paul was deliberately trying to confuse anyone. I fear that it is due, however, to an effort on the part of our preaching brethren to QUALIFY (?) some of their brethren as elders who cannot qualify according to the teaching of Paul.

Shall we set aside the teaching of Paul, who was inspired of God in what he said, on the subject of elders and substitute in its stead the later discoveries of some of our uninspired brethren who have suddenly learned that Paul after all did not mean what he said?

I had as soon adopt the Baptist position on baptism or the Catholic position on the Papacy as to adopt the modernistic thinking on the part of my own brethren who declare that they have just learned that Paul either did not mean what he said or else that he was honestly ignorant when he advised Timothy and Titus to appoint as elders, men who were once married—"the husband of one wife"—and who had children—"the father of faithful children, having these children in subjection to the extent that they be neither riotous nor unruly."

It would seem that the brethren need the words of admonition contained in the last paragraph of Brother Smithson's article. Let me state that I agree with the position taken by Brother Smithson, and, like him, I shall strive with all my knowledge, ability, and energy to oppose any deviation from the divine economy. It is time for us to heed, not the wisdom of men, but the counsel of God. Let us learn, my brethren, not to go beyond the things which are written. Let us learn to content ourselves with the divine order as divinity gave it in every respect. Only in that way is it possible for us to maintain and preserve the purity of the church which was purchased with the blood of Jesus Christ.

I pray that men everywhere who have been appointed to serve their respective congregations as elders will look into their own hearts and lives and determine their own fitness, according to divine standard, to serve God and the church in that noble capacity. If one is qualified, he can rejoice in that and can render a lasting service to the church and exercise a powerful influence for good. However, if one is not qualified, by continuing to allow himself to be so regarded is to exert an evil influence, is to bring reproach upon the church and upon himself.

Great Restoration Movement Gaining Force In South Africa

Frank J. Dunn

Today there are four white, English-speaking congregations in the Union of South Africa, a country twice the size of Texas, where three years ago there were none. Six American evangelists are laboring there, and a seventh will join them in August. Five of the South African converts are now preaching the gospel, four of whom are in Christian colleges in the United States in preparation of returning to preach the gospel in South Africa. These men speak three languages—English, Dutch, and the native tongue, Afrikaans. More than 200 white people and at least 200 natives have been baptized in the three-year period. There are about 25 or 30 native congregations, including those that have been restored from the Christian church, with at least a dozen full-time native preachers.

The four white congregations are at Johannesburg, where Guy Caskey, Waymon Miller, and Eldred Echols preach; East London, where Don Gardner and Leslie Blake, one of the South Africans, are located; Port Elizabeth, where John Hardin now is and where Leonard Gray will join him in August; and at Pretoria, the administrative capital of the Union, thirty miles north of Johannesburg, where Martelle Petty is fully supported by the Peak and East Side church.

Johannesburg has a fine, new building nearing completion which will accommodate 300 people in its auditorium and classrooms. The 60-member church at Pretoria, which is slightly larger than the Johannesburg group, has purchased property on which they plan to build a small auditorium, which later will serve as the classroom wing of their permanent building.

The property which is being purchased is ideally situated, only one block from the beautiful capitol building, on the principal east-west street of the city, about one mile from the heart of the business district. A more perfect location could not be found in that modern city of 280,000 people. Three residences now standing on the property will serve as a home for the preacher and for classrooms.

The total cost of the property and auditorium will be $47,400, of which Peak and East Side has given $10,000. The small Pretoria church will assume a $14,000 loan on it. Others have given money and promises totaling $6,400. This leaves a net balance of $17,000 which must be raised from other congregations and individuals before the building can be erected.

The people who are being converted are mostly of the "solid" middle-class variety, capable and zealous of being fully self-supporting in a very short time. In helping them become firmly established we will be carving out a beach-head from which they have the plan and the desire of taking the gospel into the other 36 countries of Africa. They can, and will, evangelize Africa much more effectively than we can from 12,000 miles away.

Thus your contribution to the Pretoria building at this time will be an investment in something more than a meeting house. It will be an investment in souls in Pretoria, in South Africa, and eventually in all the great, dark continent of Africa.

Send contributions to Peak and East Side Church of Christ, care of A. D. Jones, treasurer, Dallas, Texas; or to Martelle Petty, Box 1861, Pretoria, Union of South Africa (postage, 5c; airmail, 25c).

Studies In Galatians (No. 11)

R. C. Bell

Paul begins the fourth chapter of Galatians by tying up what he had just taught in the third. Jews "were held in bondage under the rudiments of the world," until, fulfilling his promise to Abraham, God sent his eternal Son, true man and seed of Abraham however, born of human mother, capable of dying under the law in lieu of the death of actual law-breakers; sent him to be "the end (both aim and the termination) of the law unto righteousness to everyone that believeth" (Rom. 10:4), to redeem men from the status of child and ward, and to promote them to sons and heirs—in short, to lift them out of slavery into acknowledged sonship and liberty.

That Gentiles, who had been strangers to the house, as well as Jews, who had been minors in the house, were so exalted is shown by Paul's again reminding the Galatians that they had received the Holy Spirit, which is the peculiar seal of Christianity: "And because ye are sons, God sent forth the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying, Abba, Father" (4:6). Strangers and minors, having but "the spirit of bondage" could cry only, "Master," never, "Father, Father."

"Rudiments of the World"

Why did Paul call the Mosaic covenant "the rudiments of the world . . . the weak and beggarly rudiments"? Although the law itself was holy and spiritual, the legal system in which it was imbedded was a religion of the flesh. It was addressed to the flesh, which "lusteth against the Spirit" (Gal. 6:17); it made its appeal to the natural man, who "receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God" (1 Cor. 2:14). Religious legal systems are for the morally immature. All of them, Jewish and heathen alike, are built upon the elementary principles that underlie natural religion and civil government—the rudimentary principles upon which the Christless world, religiously and socially, has ever been, and is, run.

The Jews had in written form a much fuller revelation of God's law than did heathen nations, but they broke it, even as Gentiles broke the law they knew. Knowing that his legal anchor would never hold in the mud bottom of the human mind, God was merely using it as preparation for the gospel preached "beforehand unto Abraham" (Gal. 3:8). The Sinaic covenant, though adapted to the minority of the Jews, was too weak and poor to bring to maturity the spiritual, God-like possibilities of men. Something stronger and richer than "weak and beggarly" legalism and ritualism, were all nations to be blessed, was required. Therefore God from all eternity, was graciously building a religion fitted to lead men into obeying his immutable law of life, that they might live abundantly and eternally. Did not Christ tell the woman at the well (John 4), that the time had come for the spiritual religion, promised from of old, that would reach man's inmost spirit, qualify him to "worship in spirit and truth," and "become in him a well of water springing up unto eternal life"?

Legalism Becomes Heathenism

After referring to their former heathen life, Paul says to the Galatians: "But now that ye have come to know God, or rather to be known by God, how turn ye back again to the weak and beggarly rudiments, whereunto ye desire to be in bondage over again"? All Judaizers in the church, ancient and modern, magnify man's side of redemption, works of law, and human merit to the disparagement of God's side, works of grace, and human demerit. Because the Galatians were being led into this deep, beguiling error, Paul very emphatically remind them that their conversion from slavish heathenry began with God's knowing them, rather than with their knowing God. He is amazed and alarmed at their deserting Christian ground, and fears that he has labored with them in vain. He must by all means show them the real nature of the terrible mistake they are making—that religiously to observe Mosaic rites after the cross is to deny the efficacy of the gospel of grace, to relapse into "bondage over again," and to give up Christ altogether. This deceptive tare, if let alone, will supplant Christianity; hence, Paul digs it up by the roots.

What could be more startlingly instructive than this identification of heathenry with the Mosaic system after its tutorship was accomplished? When the Galatians, who had never known Moses, observed circumcision and other "carnal ordinances, imposed until a time of reformation," it was the same in principle as if they had returned to heathen idolatry with its impure rites, abominable obscenity, and demon worship. Both systems were based on the rudimentary principles of the flesh and "the wisdom of the (Christless) world," which can never lift men higher than the flesh and the world. According to Galatians, Moasism after the cross has the same deadly effect on men that heathenism has.

Current Galatianism

The core of the Galatians' default was they thought the gospel Paul preached was "weak and beggarly." They were so spiritually shallow and ignorant that they thought the Christian life could not be attained on the principle of divine grace kindling and working with human faith, love, and hope; that the gospel needed to be bolstered up and made sufficient by adding the principle of law. (A very common error today). It was incidental that they manifested this crass misunderstanding of the power and the working of grace in the human spirit by observing Mosaic rites and ceremonies. The basic error of the Galatians was their thinking that, not grace and faith, but law with its immature, not to say infantile, methods was the dynamics of righteousness. Now, the grand object of the book of Galatians was to show them that it was the other way around—that the principle of law was provisional, "weak and beggarly," while within the church was the full-grown power of God, "wisdom from God, and righteousness and sanctification and redemption" (1 Cor. 1:30).

Of course, Christians today do not show their mistrust of the working principle of Christianity by taking up the ways of Moses, but they may easily show it in other ways. Just to name some: trust in blood, wealth, culture, position, ability to sing or speak, strong character, good works, dead forms, traditions of men, and creeds, written and unwritten. Note how the book relies on the Holy Spirit (3:2-5; 4:6; 5:16-26), a new power inaccessible to men until Pentecost, to counteract the fleshly workings of all these. "Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty" and unity and growth and fruit.

What Does The Bible Say?

The King James Version and the American Standard Version of 1901 will not be replaced by the new Revised Standard Version, but this does not mean that there are no values in versions which put the language of the Bible in modern speech. The new Revised Version should be read and studied along with four or five other versions. The Bible is its own best commentary. One of the best ways to understand a passage is to read it in five or six different versions. In this way we catch shades of meaning which are not available in reading just one translation. In disputed passages we can go to the American Standard for word-for-word accuracy.

The Bible was written to be understood. Living languages are always changing. God has seen fit to lock the original meaning of the Bible in dead languages such as the Greek, so that we can know today just exactly what the words of the apostles and other inspired writers meant when they used them.

However, when God chose to write through holy men of old the words of the New Testament, he chose the Koine Greek rather than the classical Greek. This meant that God intended for the Bible to be understood by the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker. There are some words in the King James Version which are difficult for high school students to understand. This discourages their reading the Bible. As a matter of fact, there were 300 changes made in the first fifty years in the King James Version to modernize spelling and replace words that were already out of common use. Here are some examples of words that have changed their meaning: "conversation," today means talking. As it is used in the Bible it means conduct. "Let your conversation be without covetousness." This is translated in the new version, "Keep your life free from the love of money." "The quick" is used in the Bible to mean "living." We are told that God will judge "the quick and the dead." Again the word "curious," was used in the King James Version to mean "careful." Again the word "careless" is used in the King James Version to mean free from care and the word "prevent" is used to mean "precede." The word "let" is used to mean "prevent" as Paul said, "I purposed to come unto you but was let hitherto." Such words as these are used: "pilled" meaning "peeled," "taches" meaning "clasps," "ouches" meaning "make marks," "nessings" meaning "sneezing," and others that are not familiar to us unless we are familiar with the language of the 17th century.

Most of these archaic words were changed in the American Standard Version and this fact is ignored by those who are pushing the Revised Standard Version. All of the later translations change these words and put them in the modern meaning which certainly makes for a better understanding of the word of God. And that is what God wants us to do. UNDERSTAND his word.

Here are some objections, however, to the handling of the word by the Revised Standard translators in 1952:

1. The changing of the translation in Isaiah 14 from "virgin" to "young woman" is unwarranted. The Hebrew word "almah" could be translated "young woman" or "virgin" but when the word was translated into the Greek 300 years before Christ, it was translated "virgin" into a Greek word which means "virgin" and Matthew referring to the passage also translates it in his quotation as is given in the Revised Standard Version, "Behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son and his name shall be called Emmanuel" (Matt. 1:23). It seems presumptuous not to follow the inspired writers' verdict.

2. The Revised Standard Version is too free in its translation and is often a paraphrase instead of a word-for-word translation. It doesn't hold as literally to the Greek and Hebrew texts.

3. It does not indicate the place where English words were inserted so that we can tell which words were in the ancient language and which words were inserted by the translators.

4. The translators tried to make a distinction in the use of "thee" and "thou" between God and man. This placed them in the position of commenting on the meaning of the scripture rather than translating. Too often the translation is a commentary. It is obvious that those who translated it were definitely of the liberal or modernistic school with one or two exceptions. This revision committee was much smaller than the one that worked on the American Standard Version and did not represent the conservative scholarship of the country.

5. Most of those on the translating committee were from liberal colleges.

BIRTH CONTROL

George Hickey

The Bible teaches birth control but not the way thousands of people are practicing the teaching. It is quite obvious that many preachers' wives are placing more emphasis on being painted dolls than on that which is written (1 Cor. 4:6). To visit the beauty parlor will not take one to heaven or hell but to refuse to visit the baby ward will put one right in a smoking, burning eternal hell. To bear children and keep a chaste home is a command of God (2 Tim. 2:15; 5:14; Gen. 1:28; Titus 2:3-5).

Good women, you may think your preacher husband is pretty clever and knows all the answers but if he has agreed with most of the shallow arguments given for not bearing children he may be pretty ignorant in God's sight. Many are riding over the country, wrapped in furs, in fine cars, practicing birth control and trying to fool man and God that they are doing God a service. In many cases this sort of practice by husband and wife must send up a stifling, obnoxious odor to the very throne of our God.

If your doctor advises that your health or the anticipated health of the child will be impaired, then you must practice birth control until health is restored (1 Cor. 3:16, 17). Possibly a very small part of the common sense arguments will stand in God's sight but most cases of birth control are plain rebellion against God.

Woman's main duties are at home. This is where God put woman. "Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow, and thy conception: in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children: and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee" (Gen. 3:16). Our throats are choked and the tears flow easily because of the thoughts of preaching brethren who have sacrificed for the cause of Christ. The same hearts become as stone to think of women who wear the name "Christian," yet love the beauty parlor more than the baby ward. The man who will praise or pamper this type of woman in public or private life is either a rank hypocrite or does not love God. The above described persons can read their reward in Matthew 23, "Behold your house is left unto you desolate."

G. H. P. SHOWALTER, Editor

THE CAUSE AT FERRIS, TEXAS

I was at Ferris, Texas, last Lord's day, May 3, on a supply engagement for Brother Basil Doran, who was over at Memphis, Tennessee, in a meeting. The attendance at both the forenoon and evening services was good. This is one of the older congregations of Texas and has an interesting history. The Moyers, and the Witherspools are family names that predominate on the pages of the church directory. They are people of substantial qualities of character, constitute the best element of society and of citizenship in the community and hence are of the reliable and desirable material for the spiritual kingdom of our Savior and Lord. That is not to say that there are not of course, others, just as good and useful in the church. Brother D. H. Moyers, "Henry," as he is generally known among his fellow townsmen, is the city's banker and has been for the last fifty years. He is generous in looking after the financial requirements of the farmers, merchants and other needy people, is a good business adviser and is popular in that part of the country with the small and great among the people. With the fine cooperation of Sister Moyers, I am able to present the following interesting history of the church at Ferris.

History of Ferris Church of Christ

This congregation began meeting in 1880 and its first elders were: J. H. Smith, L. Orr, Brother Sweat and Brother Barton. In 1901 there was a division over the instrumental music question. The instrumental group continued for a number of years and then died out. The first building was a two-story one, owned by the Masonic Lodge. Later they purchased a frame building from the Old School Presbyterians. The church met in this until it was blown down in a storm in 1919. After that the congregation met in an old picture show building and then in the City Club Hall. In 1924 a new brick building (the present building) was erected at a cost of $20,000.00. This debt was paid in full in the latter part of 1925. Recently there was installed a $5,200.00 refrigerated air-conditioning system which cools the entire building and provides heat in the winter. Their approximate membership in 1925 was 75 members and in 1928, 101 members.

Brother R. H. McKay (now deceased) served the congregation as elder for a number of years. About the year 1912, Brother D. H. Moyers was appointed as one of the elders. He is still serving in that capacity, together with Brother Dee Witherspoon. Deacons now are: R. V. Luther, Hollis Gregory, E. E. Birdwell and Alfred J. Moyers.

Brother Basil C. Doran is the present minister and is doing a splendid work. The church is growing both numerically and spiritually. Brother Doran's friendliness and love of people has endeared himself, not only to the members of the church, but to the whole town. He is very active in civic affairs in the town and has been honored on a number of occasions, as guest speaker or singer, by such organizations as the local P.T.A., Ellis County Council of the P.T.A., Ferris Public Schools, and the Chamber of Commerce.

The Ferris congregation now has its own radio program, "The Gospel in Song" each Sunday morning from 8:15 to 8:30 over KGKO, Dallas. This church also contributes regularly to the nation-wide radio program, "The Herald of Truth." A beautiful preacher's home has been constructed, of red-face brick to match the church building. This building was erected in 1948 at an approximate cost of $12,000.00.

The church is holding two meetings this year: one in July and one in November. They are sending Brother Doran to the city of New York in September to assist in Brothers Grindley's and Antonio Ochoa's work among the Spanish-speaking people.

The Ferris church is a mission-minded church, having had the oversight of the work in Honolulu, T. H., from September, 1943, to June, 1946. During that time, the present building in Honolulu was purchased.

Since March, 1946, this congregation has had the oversight of Brother Foy Short's work in Bulawayo, Southern Rhodesia. A few other congregations and individuals assist the Ferris congregation in this work at the present time.

Brother Short is doing a wonderful work in Bulawayo with white English-speaking people and also in some native work around Bulawayo. At the present time, they are erecting a nice building. There is a membership of about 35 in Bulawayo now.

Preachers who have held meetings are: A. J. McCarty, A. B. Barret, T. B. Larimore, George Farmer, Charles H. Roberson, T. H. Etheridge, A. LeRoy Elkins, C. R. Nichol, J. W. Chism, W. T. Kidwell, W. P. Skaggs, Gayle Oler, Roy E. Cogdill, Floyd Decker, James R. Cope, Foy E. Wallace, Jr., Homer P. Reeves, Howard White, Basil C. Doran, and O. C. Lambert. G. H. P. Showalter has done some supply preaching.

Regular ministers: T. H. Etheridge, J. W. Chism, W. T. Kidwell, Jim Dunn, C. E. Wooldridge, E. M.

Borden, A. E. Walker, Lynn Browning, H. Osby Weaver, Dan Clark, E. W. Key, Texas H. Stevens, J. P. Johnston, and Basil C. Doran.

There is no good reason why growth and spiritual development should not proceed in a good way in the future, and that through love of the truth and persistent loyalty to God, greater things will be realized. For the many courtesies and the fine hospitality of these good people, Sister Showalter and I are very profoundly thankful to our heavenly Father.

Wendell Winkler, Box 133, Rayville, Louisiana, April 28: I just closed a meeting in Good Springs, Alabama, with seven baptisms and five restorations. Interest was very good. Brother William Woodson of Henderson, Tennessee, labors with them. Brother S. F. Hester directed the singing in an able manner during the meeting. Three have been baptized and four restored here in Rayville since last report. I began at Oak Grove, Alabama, May 7, and at Mulga, Alabama, May 17.

A. H. Kennamer, 504 San Angelo, Midland, Texas, May 1: During the month of April, six were baptized, two were restored, and eight placed membership at the Northside church. Our building, including balcony, is reasonably filled each Sunday; classroom space is exhausted. We are eagerly awaiting the completion of the new building for the new congregation. Since we have been having visitors to sign a card we have been amazed at the number present, each Sunday, both from Midland and elsewhere.

Evan E. Wright, 163 Dean Drive, Grenada, Mississippi, April 29: I have just returned from a meeting with the church at Brunswick, Georgia, where I labored for three years before coming to Grenada. The attendance was exceptionally good. There were many outsiders at every service. The comments received from the half-hour sermons over the larger station, WGIG, showed that the listening audience was very favorably impressed. Among other visible results were six baptisms.

James W. Reynolds, Pueblo, Colorado, May 1: Since my last report, eight have been baptized, four restored, and three identified with the Broadway and Orman congregation. Brother C. E. McGaughey closed a meeting with us the 29th of April. The attendance of non-members was exceptionally fine. The church here was greatly encouraged by this evangelistic effort. I'll be in a meeting in Ft. Collins, Colorado, beginning May 4th. If you are coming this way, worship with the Broadway and Orman congregation, Pueblo, Colorado.

John G. Bills, 4133 Middlesex Drive, San Diego 16, California, April 26: We were blessed with very good services at Linda Vista today. Ten responses in all: four were baptized into Christ, one placed membership, and five were restored to their first love. Today was the first day of daylight saving time, and several missed the services because they failed to change their time one hour earlier. We are so happy the way the Lord blesses our labors at Linda Vista. We have three members in hospitals, and they are very sick. We are praying for them.

E. C. McKenzie, Box 1164, Montgomery, Alabama, April 27: Yesterday I was released from a 12-day stay in one of our local hospitals. My doctor accused me of being a victim of "emotional fatigue." It is difficult for me, a preacher, to believe that I have been working too hard. I am now on the beaches of sunny Florida for a 10-day period of complete rest and relaxation. My bathing suit fits me beautifully and is of the latest design. Of course I shall be delighted to send a snapshot to all who request one.

Douglas Lawyer, Sanger, Texas, April 29: Just finished a meeting here at Sanger with Tommy Shaver from Garland, Texas, doing the preaching. The men of this congregation visited every house in town before the meeting and left literature and announcements. Though this is a small town and only 120 members in the church, there were 25 responses during the meeting. Nine were for baptism. The Sunday following the meeting, two more were restored. Brother Shaver certainly made his preaching plain and convincing. The work here is at its peak.

Neal Marshall, Fort Worth, Texas, May 4: The work here at Diamond Hill is progressing in a most wonderful way. The month of April was a record month in almost every respect. The new records, established just the month before, were shattered. We have been in our new building less than two years and already it has proven too small. Plans for more classrooms are under consideration. We solicit the prayers of all of God's people and ask that you rejoice with us in our good work. I will be with the church in Albany, in a gospel meeting, from May 25th through June 3rd.

A. G. Hobbs, Jr., 3156 Jane Lane, Fort Worth, Texas, April 29: Last week, I closed a meeting with the Bunavista congregation at Borger. Three were baptized and three restored. Dow Wilson is the local preacher. At the present, I am in a meeting with the Azle Avenue congregation here in Fort Worth. From May 10 to 20, I am to be with the 47th Street congregation of Chattanooga, Tennessee, for a meeting. The 4th and 5th Lord's days of May, I shall be in a meeting with the Rosen Heights congregation of Fort Worth. I am devoting full time to meeting work and writing.

B. F. Morrow, Route 4, Box 102, San Benito, Texas, April 27: The church at Rangerville, Texas, located seven miles southwest of San Benito, is anxious to secure a preacher to begin work after June 1. As we are a small rural congregation, we prefer a man who doesn't mind doing secular work to supplement the salary we are able to pay. We have a nice brick building and a furnished preacher's home located across the highway from the school and a store. Anyone interested in the work in this field, please give us your qualifications along with any other facts about yourself that might be helpful in making a selection.

Ernest Highers, 620 Clifton Court, Fort Smith, Arkansas, April 29: Nine baptized and two restored in our meeting at Midland Boulevard church, March 16-25. Brother Delmar Owens preached in his very forceful manner. Four have been baptized since the meeting. One, a man above 60 years of age who said that he heard the truth for the first time over the "Herald of Truth." This is the second baptism that gave credit to this broadcast in the past year.

F. E. Osborne, 1380 15th Street, Fennimore, Wisconsin, April 28: I expect to be in Marinette, Wisconsin, and Menominee, Michigan, holding the first worship service there about the 31st of May. These two cities are twin cities and both are manufacturing towns of about 25,000 people. A little help of about $350 a month would be greatly appreciated, from the brotherhood, to help establish a church in both these cities. Investigation has been made as to the expenses.

Horace W. Busby, Fort Worth, Texas, April 4: For eight days including the fifth Lord's day in March, we were in a very fine meeting in Rock Springs, Texas. This was my fourth visit to Rock Springs, and the crowds were the largest and the interest the best. Brother Ragsdale, the preacher for the church, had everything ready and well advertised. Brethren came from Ozona, Junction, Sonora, Kerrville, San Antonio, Uvalde, Del Rio, Camp Wood and Barksdale. Several obeyed the gospel, and many who were not Christians heard the word.

Sammie E. Swim, 3826 Urban Avenue, Dallas 17, Texas, April 30: The Urbandale Church of Christ celebrates its first anniversary in their new building next Lord's day. During the year there have been nearly 100 responses. New records were set for every phase of our work during the past month. Also, during April there were 15 responses to the invitation: five memberships, three restorations, and seven baptisms. A new systematic program of work has recently been adopted by the brethren here which should help the work considerably. I will soon begin my fifth year with this congregation.

Jack Bates, Broadway and Walnut, Santa Ana, California, April 29: There were two baptisms and one by membership last Lord's day. On Wednesday, April 29th, we began a series of classes to last ten weeks as follows: "Training for Leadership," by Brother James H. Sewell (elder); "A Course in Revelation," by Brother Joe Ed Holly (elder); "A Survey in Church History," by myself; "Problems Facing Youth," by Brother Joe Lyons, and two other classes for younger children. Those within driving distance and whose time of mid-week service will permit, are cordially invited to attend. Bring your Bible and a notebook.

Paul Butterfield, 1093 South 21st, La Crosse, Wisconsin, April 28: Two baptisms in La Crosse since my last report. Both were men. The church has increased very much in interest and faithfulness. The evening attendance and Wednesday night service has been about the same lately. We are trying to get a building of our own this year. We are meeting in the YMCA at present. A lot has been purchased and is paid for. The College Avenue church, Lubbock, Texas, is supporting the preacher and a radio program besides helping with the lot and is to help with the building. Pray for the work in Wisconsin. It is a hard field. Catholic and Lutheran mostly.

F. A. Bailey, Route 2, Box 27, West Fork, Arkansas, April 21: Since last report, I have preached at Sitka, French, and Heart, Arkansas. The Lord willing, I will return to Heart for a gospel meeting beginning May 16. I hope to have some time left for meetings this year.

Foy E. Hall, 914 N. Sylvania, Fort Worth, Texas, April 6: After nearly three years of pleasant work with Brother Claude Gull and the Riverside church, I am now with the new congregation in the Eastridge section of Fort Worth. This new congregation was established under the oversight of the elders at Riverside. The church is growing in Fort Worth as it is in many other places. Brother Joe Malone and I began a meeting here in Paducah, Kentucky, yesterday.

Hugo Allmond, 1530 Cruise Street, Corinth, Mississippi, April 28: The East Corinth meeting resulted in six baptisms, one restoration and two by membership. Richard England, of Freed-Hardeman College, directed the singing in a fine way, while I did the preaching. Visitors from some 20 congregations greatly encouraged us. A large and responsive audience seems to hear the daily broadcast over WCMA, in which Lindsay Allen (Foote Street), Owen Freeman (West Corinth), and I are the principle speakers. I am finding labors in this area most enjoyable.

Homer A. Utley, 12420 Vashti Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, April 19: The work of the Lord at Shaw Avenue is making wonderful progress. We are having overflow crowds almost every Sunday. The weekly contributions are at an all-time high and new records are being set in Bible school attendance. Thirty have been added to our forces since January 1. Twelve have been baptized, 11 have placed membership, and seven have been restored to their first love. Our plans now are to start another congregation in East Cleveland in the near future. When in Cleveland, worship with us at Shaw Avenue.

Adron Doran, 253 East Maxwell, Lexington, Kentucky, April 27: The meeting with the church in Henderson, Tennessee, last week provided one of the most pleasant experiences which I have ever had. It was a particular joy to be associated with individuals in the church and Freed-Hardeman College whom we had not seen since 1930. I spoke in the college auditorium each morning and in the church building each evening. B. B. James is doing an outstanding work as minister of the Henderson congregation and proved to be one of the most helpful individuals with whom I have ever been associated in a meeting. Two persons were baptized and six were restored.

Charles Vining, 1754 Brigden Road, Pasadena 7, California, April 28: It has been some time since I have reported to the Firm Foundation but I am not on the quitting list. I am still fighting the devil and all his agents in high places. I am helping a small congregation here in Pasadena, and also go over in the Mojave desert to be of assistance to a congregation that is doing their best to serve the Lord in a humble way. Both congregations are having some visible results. We ask the prayers of all faithful Christians everywhere. If you know of anyone that is in Edwards Air Base, that is interested in the church or even might be interested, send their name to us and we will contact them and encourage them to come to church.

Paul Butterfield, 1003 South 21st, La Crosse, Wisconsin, April 28: The country church at Romance, Wisconsin, 25 miles south of La Crosse, is doing nicely. A community church building is used with no cost except the upkeep, such as insurance on the building. I drive down in the afternoon Sundays, and do the preaching. Bible study is at 2:30 and worship at 3:15. We have had one baptism this year—a man. He was working for a Catholic and lost his job when he was baptized. The attendance runs about 32. Interest is good.

A. C. Williams, Sand Springs, Oklahoma, April 30: Recently I assisted the church at Gruver, Texas, in a meeting in which seven were baptized, two restored, and two placed membership. Brother Ott Shewmaker of Pampa, Texas, directed the song service and taught a singing drill each evening. There were two services daily. Attendance and interest were both fine throughout the meeting. Brother James O. Wilburn and the church there are doing an outstanding work in that section of West Texas. Brethren from neighboring congregations cooperated much by their attendance and encouragement. Here at Sand Springs, the work moves along in an encouraging way.

Jas. Fry, Box 1255, Goldthwaite, Texas, April 29: I have just returned from a very pleasant meeting with the church at 12th and Indianola Streets in Phoenix, Arizona. Churches in the area cooperated in a fine way. One group came 135 miles to be with us. J. D. Rothwell from Eastside was with us all the way through. Kenneth Engle, minister for the 12th Street church, is a very energetic worker and cooperated in every way. We had visitors present from five states during the meeting. Three were baptized and one restored to fellowship. The kingdom is spreading in Arizona. On my return, I spoke one evening in the special meeting, opening the new building at Pecos. They have a beautiful new building and the church there is doing a very fine work.

Durwood Boggs, 7825 Hillard Drive, Dallas, Texas, March 30: The Pleasant Grove church conducted a meeting March 8-15. Brother Morris Moore did a fine job of preaching. We had three baptisms, one restoration and six to confess sins. Before the meeting one was baptized. Since the meeting two have confessed sins and three have placed membership with us. This totals a gain of seven new members during this month. One of those baptized was my son. Interest on the part of many has greatly increased as a result of the meeting. Some who are not Christians have begun to study the Bible to see just what it really does teach. The future looks very promising, but it always does when God's people work together with him.

Monroe Tharp, El Paso, Texas, April 27: Last week, three of the El Paso churches cooperated together in a very fine teacher-training school and invited other congregations of the churches in this area to attend. The school ran Tuesday through Friday, with a class on personal work each morning, taught by Reuel Lemmons. Teacher-training classes were in session each evening from 7:15 to 9:00 p.m. with Brother Lemmons teaching the class for adult teachers. Brother Alan Bryan, of Lubbock, taught the class for teachers of young people. Sister Bryan taught the class for teachers of juniors and intermediates, and Sister Mary Oler taught the class for teachers of primary and pre-school children. On Wednesday night, Brother Lemmons spoke to all assembled in the auditorium, on the importance of teaching the word of God. Because he had an appointment on the Carlisbad lectureship on Thursday night, one of our elders, Brother J. M. Sewell, taught his class that night. Attendance and interest were exceptionally good throughout the time, and we believe that much good has been and will be accomplished by the school. We highly commend each of the teachers who conducted the classes for their sincerity and ability. The teaching was "tops" in our estimation. The hope that the three churches who sponsored the school: Grandview, North Loop, and Montana Street, in the buildings of the Montana Street church, may engage in similar endeavors together in the future, was expressed by many.

Murray Marshall, 309 South 15th Street, Frederick, Oklahoma, April 27: Our work here at South Side continues to progress. One was baptized last night; recently in the meeting at the other congregation here, we had one baptized who placed membership with us. Our speaker system, due to the generosity of Brother and Sister S. P. Bennett of the other congregation here, was installed this past week. We look forward to a fine summer revival in the City Park here, July 19-29, with Brother Foster L. Ramsey of Tipton, Oklahoma, doing the preaching, and Alvin Bryan of Nashville, Tennessee, leading the singing. The South Side church invites you to come and attend our City Park meeting this summer. When you pass through Frederick, we welcome you to worship with us at 15th and Balsam in southeast Frederick.

J. C. Bunn, Route 4, Box 405, Port Orchard, Washington: From April 5th to the 19th the church at Annapolis, near Port Orchard, was engaged in a series of evangelistic meetings led by Brother Maurice Meredith of Caldwell, Idaho. It was a pleasure to be associated with him because of his congenial nature, kind presentation of gospel truths and sound teaching. The Bremerton brethren helped much with their whole-hearted fellowship. Other brethren were present from Seattle and Tacoma. One young man was baptized into Christ and much good accomplished otherwise. The church here has fellowship in preaching the gospel in Africa, Germany, Japan, and recently resolved to help in Korea. Brother George Scott, whom the church here helps support, recently reported 21 baptisms in his field of labor in Africa.

Bill McCown, 176 Ohio Street, New Braunfels, Texas, April 25: At this writing, I am in the midst of a meeting with the small congregation in Natick, Massachusetts. We have had fine support from sister congregations in Massachusetts and appreciate that. The work in this section is far behind the church in the South and Southwest and has too long been sadly neglected. Men strong in the faith who can compete with tradition and sectarianism are needed in this area to promote the cause of Christ. The churches in Brookline, Malden, Worcester, Roxbury, and Providence, Rhode Island, and Unity, Maine, have all been represented during the course of our meeting at Natick. Brethren Joe Handers, Carl York Smith, William Harrison, Cecil Allman, Roger McCown, Pat Harrell have done and are doing a good work in this area.

David Taylor, Gould, Oklahoma, April 21: Five fine people obeyed their Lord here last Sunday. Gould Church of Christ is a fine church. Our lectureship last week was very fine.

WHAT SHALL WE DO WITH THAT "TEEN-AGER" THIS SUMMER?

Hatton B. Gist

Well, one good thing for him and the church is to send him to the Texas Normal Singing School at Sabinal, Texas, June 7-20. Price $65.00. Most boys can eat that much in that length of time. Write to Texas Normal Singing School, P. O. Box 293, Crystal City, Texas. This is a good school conducted by Austin Taylor, Edgar Furr, and Holland Boring, Sr.

COMMENDATION

One teacher writes: "I am using the Welma Jo Henderson Graded Literature in my class and am well pleased with it. I especially like the series because they give the children something to do. Filling in the missing words helps them so much in remembering the lessons. They do this so much more easily. I find them true to the Bible. My class is using Book Three, Part Two. I can recommend them to anyone for class work."

Lewis Hogue, 2841 Halbert Street, Fort Worth, Texas, April 28: It has been some two years since sending in a report to the Firm Foundation. After leaving local work with the Castelberry congregation in Fort Worth, I served as field representative for Boles Home at Quinlan, Texas, for eighteen months. I learned to love and appreciate the work being done by the Home more than ever. I have been busy preaching the gospel and plan to stay busy, having only missed four Lord's days' preaching since I left local work. I am now preaching for the Irving Boulevard at Delaware congregation in Irving, Texas, and will be until the elders are ready to move in a man to live there. This congregation has some wonderful opportunities before them. Brother Frank J. Dunn of Dallas, Texas, did the preaching in a very fine gospel meeting that just closed with forty responding to the invitation. Brother Dunn is a great preacher and man indeed. Brother Thomas Sullivan works with the Irving church as song director and is very good. The Lord willing, I go to Worth near Canton, Texas, for a mission meeting starting May 4. I will be with the church in Canon City, Colorado, for a meeting and vacation Bible school from June 7 to 21, then to Gordonville, Texas, July 6-15. From there to Doole, Texas, July 31-August 9, and then on to Washington Street congregation in Marshall, Texas, September 13-20. Our membership is with the Handley congregation in Fort Worth, Texas. Brother Roy Deaver is the local preacher for the Handley congregation, and is doing a splendid job. The Handley congregation is now in a building program which will enable them to double their seating capacity. They also have a very fine group of elders. We plan several tent meetings.

U. R. Forrest, Akron, Michigan, April 24: The work at Parsons, Kansas turned out just as we had planned for it to do. And now the two congregations are united and become one again, after twelve years of division. Now reunited and reorganized, with some men from each congregation as elders and deacons. They are now very happy and the future looks bright. I love the brethren at Parsons, and they have demonstrated their love for me in many ways, both congregations have done that. Brother Ed Baccigalupo did a magnificent piece of work in helping bring it to a climax. I am now here with a fine congregation and the future looks bright here too. We have under construction an annex to the building, and will have it ready in time for our vacation Bible school in June, and to take care of our growing class work on Lord's days. I am here at least for the summer. May want to get back south if the weather gets too cold for me here.

R. C. Copeland, Jr., Box 863, Clarendon, Texas, April 13: Three responded in the meeting at Boise City, Oklahoma, which was concluded last night. Brother B. M. Pierce is the efficient minister there. We made about ten calls each day into the homes of unbelievers and sectarians. Attendance records were broken, and I believe that in the remaining part of 1953 the congregation will just about double. Love, peace, harmony and the will to do as God commands characterizes the congregation at Boise City, Oklahoma. The elders there are wonderful men, men who are striving daily to be Bible elders. I was edified and encouraged by their association. Brother Pierce is one of the most effective personal evangelists. He is leading many souls to Christ. An exchange meeting with the congregation at El Dorado, Oklahoma, has been arranged, and Brother George Wilkins started here tonight in his part of this exchange. The meeting at El Dorado will start April 26, Lord willing. Giving God the praise, may we march onward in the advancement of the church of Christ. The church of Christ is on the march. Lord willing, I shall be with the congregations at Irene and Cee Vee, Texas, in July and August respectively. I have time for one or two more meetings.

M. E. Blake, 110 South Lake Street, Carlsbad, New Mexico, April 30: We continue to have additions to the Lord's church here at Fox and Lake in Carlsbad, New Mexico, at almost every service. The church is really on the march in New Mexico. We recently conducted a lectureship here that was well attended, and we were fortunate enough to have some of the best speakers in the brotherhood on the program. At the morning services a question and answer session followed the speech. Members of the audience were permitted to write questions on the subject just discussed and these were read in hearing of the audience and the speaker was then asked to answer the questions. This added much to the interest of the entire lectureship and really caused the morning speakers to be especially up on their subject. I held a meeting at Loving, New Mexico, the first part of this month and my next meeting is in Scottsbluff, Nebraska, June 7 through 14.

Gordon Teel, 613 S. Charles, Pasadena, Texas: I have just finished a meeting at George West, Texas. The church there has around one hundred members, yet they support two preachers without outside aid. Brother J. B. Hudson is in his sixth year with the church there and Brother Beryl Brockman is supported by the church for the work among the Spanish-speaking people. Both works are progressing favorably. Other small churches, as well as larger ones, could profitably imitate the faith and works of this congregation. The work here at Pasadena moves along favorably. We had two baptisms and one by membership yesterday. Plans are being drawn for an eight hundred seat auditorium to be erected on an adjoining lot to our present building. The present structure will be used for an education building. We will have over thirty classrooms in the present structure. Until the new building is erected, we are having two services on Sunday morning.

Hugh M. Tiner, Los Angeles, California, April 24: Closed a week's meeting at Moses Lake, Washington, Sunday evening, April 19, with 19 responses to the invitation, seven of whom were baptized into Christ, seven restored, and five placed membership. I have found no place where the opportunity for the church is greater than here. They have no regular evangelist, but several members of the congregation preach. Omar Bixler, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, and Virgil Jackson, superintendent of the local hospital, fill the pulpit from time to time. They are looking for a full-time worker. The members have a mind to work and the church is an important influence in the community. The church is at peace and great things can be expected in the future. The Lord's work in the Northwest is taking a new lease on life. During the three weeks I spent in Moses Lake and Wenatchee, there were 73 responses to the invitation, 38 of whom were baptisms. I also spoke to a full house Monday evening, April 20, at Sunnyside, Washington, where Brother Buddy Harrison begins work in the near future.

R. M. Grigg, Brownsville, Texas, April 27: Yesterday, a man and woman, formerly Baptists, were baptized into Christ. Their conversion was the result of a sermon preached over Radio Station KRGV in Weslaco, Texas, on the, "Back to the Bible Program" conducted by the churches of Christ in the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas. The sermon which converted them was, "How People Became Members of the New Testament Church," and was preached by the writer. At the same time, another lady who had been reared in a Catholic home was baptized, and in the evening, a youth whose mother is a faithful Christian was baptized into Christ. Within the past ten months, our membership has grown from 123 to 175 although some have moved from our midst. During this time, 32 have been baptized, due in large measure to personal work done by members of this congregation; 15 have been restored to their first love—nine of these had not formerly been in fellowship with this congregation, some coming from the "anti-college, anti-located preacher" group, having renounced their former beliefs concerning these errors, while others were reclaimed from the world; and 14 others have moved to Brownsville and placed membership here. We are now at peace in Brownsville, and working together in the great work of preaching the gospel. Yes, the Lord has blessed us abundantly, and we pray his blessings upon his work everywhere. Pray that we may be faithful unto the end.

Llanwood E. Bishop, Dimmitt, Texas, April 22: Sunday night, April 19, marked the close of the best meeting in the history of this congregation, with 58 responses to the invitation: 23 baptisms and 35 confessions of sins. James O. Baird did a masterful job of preaching and members of the church did a thorough job of advertising. Every house in town was visited from one to three or more times before and during the meeting. When I came here two and one-half years ago, I heard it said, "We can't have a successful meeting," but I feel sure that even the most skeptical are convinced that we not only could but did have a successful meeting. We proved another thing in this meeting, i.e., that personal work pays dividends. I do not think I have ever seen a more enthusiastic group than those who engaged in our recent "personal work program," before and during the meeting. They really enjoyed their work, and now the ladies who have been attending the Tuesday afternoon class have decided to a work-day every Tuesday. They will meet at 9 o'clock in the morning, bring a covered dish, do personal work until noon, have lunch together, Bible class after lunch, then personal work again in the afternoon. The church in Dimmitt has never been in better condition than it is now. We plan to start construction of a new building very soon. The elders and building committee have been studying the tentative plans practically every night this week, working out final details. We believe the cause of our Lord has a very bright future.

C. C. McLarey, Spade, Texas, April 23: We are leaving Spade the first part of June to begin work with the church in Arkadelphia, Arkansas. We have been at Spade for one year and it has been an enjoyable work. The church at Arkadelphia cannot support a man full time, thus I shall teach school if possible and devote as much time to the church as is possible. I labored with the Arkadelphia brethren before and I know their needs are great and the opportunities are unlimited. My wife and I feel obligated to help in that work, though we have no promise of support until I find employment. We have one daughter, ten months of age. We feel confident things will work out for the best. Spade is in need of someone to labor here. The church has a nice home next to the building with all modern conveniences. For further information concerning Spade, contact the elders, Spade, Texas. Arkadelphia's population is approximately 9,000 and is growing. The Reynolds Aluminum Company is now building a new plant there. There are two colleges located in the city; one is State, the other is a Baptist college. The church membership is about 10, with low incomes. The church hasn't enough funds to obtain tracts to distribute for interested people. "The church is strong in the South" we say, yet a real effort has never been made at this place. Yes we have mission fields in our "back door" and are looking over them. Arkadelphia is located half way from Texarkana to Little Rock on Highway 67 and presents an opportunity and a great challenge. The church there needs support. I am not asking anyone to send money. I want you to investigate the situation and see how so many places here in the Southwest have and are being neglected. I will furnish you with more information if you desire, or I would be willing to discuss the situation personally with you. Until June 1, my address will be Box 405, Spade, Texas. After that, write in care of the church of Christ, Arkadelphia, Arkansas.

Marvine Kelley, Raymondville, Texas, April 22: Here is my report for the year: I moved from Shadyvale in Dallas, to Raymondville in January, 1953. Last year we were blessed with 231 responses and a profitable year with the church in Dallas. Of course, there were some losses at the church as there always is, but we feel that much good was accomplished to his name's honor and glory. Since January we have conducted three debates. I met L. L. Brown, Baptist, in Terrell; Isaac J. Smith, Baptist, of Pueblo, Colorado, twice. Once at Raymondville and once in Colorado. We feel like much good was done as the result of the debates with these men. We learned that one was baptized as the result of the discussion with Mr. Smith. We have had 12 responses since coming to Raymondville: six baptisms and four restorations and two memberships. The elders have agreed to send me on one mission meeting. I also have time open for a fall meeting. If interested in a mission meeting, please contact the elders at the Raymondville Church of Christ. If you have not arranged your fall meeting I would be happy to conduct same. I will be with the church in South San Antonio in June. When in Raymondville, worship with us.

After August 1, I will be with the Northeast Church of Christ in Ardmore, Oklahoma. By that time we will have completed eighteen months of work with the good church in Bentonville, Arkansas. We are leaving the Bentonville congregation with the greatest respect and love for the brethren. There is no faction, neither is there any dissatisfaction either on my part or the elders. Our work has been pleasant and the church has grown in numbers, we feel, especially spiritually. Following the conviction of my heart I am moving to Ardmore to work as their first regular preacher. The work there will be hard and challenging, but the elders of the Northeast congregation have the utmost faith that in my working together with them and the Lord that the possibilities there are unlimited. Selfishly I would like to have stayed with the Bentonville congregation a few years longer, but believing that the Lord needs us more badly in Ardmore we have decided to move August 1. We earnestly ask the prayers of all the saints.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Jesse M. Kelley has labored with this congregation for approximately the past two years. We heartily recommend him as a faithful and loyal gospel evangelist. He is zealous in denunciation of error, both in and out of the church, without consideration of personal unpopularity or consequences; yet in the spirit of love and the fear of the Lord. He is sound in both life and teaching, and while here with us has conducted himself as a Christian gentleman. To those who may wish to consider Brother Kelley for local work elsewhere, we recommend him without reservation. He will be leaving us with our good will and that of the congregation.—Signed, elders, Church of Christ, Jacksboro, Texas, L. S. Faires, J. L. Shook.

"MAJESTIC HYMNS" NOW ON THE PRESS

This great hymn book will soon be ready

Great care has been taken by the compilers (G. H. P. Showalter and Austin Taylor) to provide for the churches a selection of songs, hymns, and spiritual songs not inferior to anything that has been published. It has some special points of merit.

1. The book will contain approximately 25 new songs, direct from the MSS that have never before been printed.
2. Special attention has been paid to secure and use the very choicest selection of late years composed by members of the churches of Christ.
3. Every reasonable effort is put forth to secure all the best of the grand old hymns that will never die, those sweet old songs used in the childhood days of those who are now stalwarts in the churches.
4. We have used great care to see that all the songs are scriptural and at the same time avoid some ludicrous verbal modifications and substitutions that with good intentions have been made by some who are trying to make everything "scriptural," and in their zeal have made errors in the actual meaning of words substituted, and in versification.
5. Finally, we believe that we are needing a new song book now—that the churches are needing a new and better book—they need at the present quite a large number of changes and corrections. There is need to drop some songs, and there is a great need to enter a good list of new or nearly new songs that are teachable, practical, and more worshipful—songs that are suitable for the regular services of the church in an eminent degree, and as well, for the singing schools and song drills.

We believe that our new songs and many late songs especially, will stimulate and arouse, a much-needed interest in singing.

Prices: We will have two bindings: Full Cloth Board, $1.00; Heavy Leatherette Flexible, greatly desired by many, 80 cents. In either binding, send 10 cents per copy additional for postage and shipping expense.

We are anxious to receive from all the churches an order for at least one copy of this new book for examination. If you are not ready for a new book now, you might well desire at least one new copy to examine the new songs. PUBLICATION DATE IS JUNE 1, 1953, Send all orders to

PORTER-CAUSEY DEBATE

Dr. B. A. Tate

The debate between Curtis Porter, church of Christ, and John Causey, Little Rock, Arkansas, March 24-27 inclusive, was well attended. John Causey tried to establish the Missionary Baptist church by false reasoning and putting his private interpretation on each Scripture he used and also on the Scriptures Brother Porter used.

By his private interpretation he said Acts 2:38 meant baptism applied to the saved was to manifest his salvation. John Causey and Peter, the apostle, who knew nothing of a Baptist church, spoke differently. Peter said, "Repent and be baptized for (eis) unto the remission of sins." John Causey was not satisfied with the plain reading of the English and Greek; so he must use his private reasoning. All do that who want to substantiate false reasoning on baptism. Peter in 1 Peter 3:21, said baptism saves. John Causey again in his false reasoning and private interpretation, says, No, No—Wrong. Baptism does not save. Peter said baptism was a like figure (saves us) like a shadow. You cannot destroy a shadow unless you destroy the true object, person or substance making the shadow, figure.

So the unsaved must repent and go thru the figure (baptism). To destroy baptism (the burial, figure of Christ's resurrection) makes you deny Christ's resurrection. Christ is the true one, making a form, figure, for the unsaved to go through to completion after true repentance (change of life, heart) to reach that new life, remission of sins.

Causey, in denying the Identity of the True Church, denied the true death, burial, and resurrection of Christ, which shed blood of Christ, enabled the New Testament in A.D. 33 to come into force, as Peter proclaimed on the first Pentecost of Christ.

Death, burial, and resurrection must be gone through in baptism to complete that figure, and receive remission of sins and new life. All denominations that deny baptism to a penitent believer, deny the Christ (death, burial, and resurrection). A large number of brethren of the church of Christ are fearful of discussions contrasting truth and error. The apostles were not afraid to contend, dispute in the temples, preach daily.

Curtis Porter is ailing, but it really puts something into him, therapeutically, teaching, defending, contrasting error with the truth. In psycho-therapy, it has been definitely shown that it puts something into the therapist as well as the patient, to treat, train, lead him out.

Let's arrange for Porter, Bales, Guy N. Woods and many others to debate.

IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

A. R. Holton

It was my privilege, together with Mrs. Holton, to teach special courses in the Sixteenth Street Church of Christ in Washington, D. C., April 5 to 10. J. M. Houston, one of the elders, was the leader in this school. Brother Billy Hood, minister at the Annacosta Church of Christ, presided at all the meetings. The school increased in interest from the beginning. Most of the congregations in the Washington area attended some session of the school. It is interesting to note that there are nine congregations in this area now, where there was only one a few years ago. And the good part of it is they are housed in buildings in keeping with the community in which they are located, which means that they all have good places to work and worship.

Brother Burton Coffman at Sixteenth and Decatur was away in a meeting at Corpus Christi, Texas. He had helped plan the whole meeting and everything was in readiness and ran along as had been planned in his absence. Washington, D. C., represents a great open door for New Testament Christianity. The whole Atlantic coastline and all the states adjoining have been influenced by the work of the churches in the District of Columbia. One feels, even in a brief stay in Washington, D. C., that it is indeed at the crossroads of the world. The cherry blossom festival was held during our stay. The public schools were not in session and many children attended our school.

PREACHER WANTED

The church in Honey Grove, Texas, is in need of a minister for regular work. Prefer a man in his late thirties or early forties with several years' experience.

Don Byler

There will be a debate between the writer of Olton, Oklahoma, and Mr. A. J. Wall, Missionary Baptist, from Turley, Oklahoma. It will be held in the Olton meeting house on May 21-22, on the subject of "baptism." Brother Jack Meyers will hold a gospel meeting for the church in Olton beginning May 24.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

It has been brought to our attention that certain statements have been made relative to digressive leanings of some of our preaching brethren; and have specifically named among others, Brother J. Emmett Wainwright.

It has been our pleasure and privilege to have had Brother Wainwright with us for meetings for the past several years, and we have always found him a contender for the truth in every instance.—Signed: Elders, Church of Christ, Oildale (Bakersfield), California.

BIBLE TEACHER WANTED

The church at Nolanville would like to know in advance of the camp meeting date, certain men available for Bible class instruction, August 3 through 7. There will be such men attending the meeting, but we desire to have the names of some planning to come who are "apt to teach." Please do not consider yourself as bidding for the job, but as volunteering for a needed service. The church has asked me to secure such teachers. I desire a class in the New Testament church, one in the Sermon on the Mount, maybe one in the Epistles. Classes to run concurrently. Capable teachers, please write F. L. Paisley, 204 South 29th Street, Temple, Texas, if you plan to attend the meeting.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Working With God

In one way the world is divided into two classes—workers and shirkers. Some people do not want to work with the Lord, neither do they have a desire to work with other people. If they do anything it must be single-handed. These individuals are freaks by virtue of their self-esteem. Being wise in their own conceits, they think that what they would do under the direction of someone else is not worth doing. So they do not work with God, nor do they work with other men. Egotism looks like a small sin, but we cannot see how an egotist can fit into heaven.

Enoch and Noah were commended for their walk with God. Much is implied in such a service. First, if they walked with God, then they worked with God. They went the way God wanted them to go, and did the work God wanted them to do. They walked and worked with God, and no higher service can be performed by man. In building the ark, Noah walked with God by working with God. This patriarch did not follow his own wisdom, nor did he follow the counsel of other men. He built the ark the way God told him to build it. It was really God's ark instead of Noah's ark.

Paul says, "We then as workers together with him beseech you that ye receive not the grace of God in vain" (2 Cor. 6:1). According to this, man's duty consists in (1) working with the Lord, (2) working with other men. We must work together, and we must all work with God. By their unrighteous conduct some of the Corinthians represented Paul, Apollos and Cephas as working against each other. To correct this error Paul said, "For we (Paul, Apollos and Cephas) are laborers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building" (1 Cor. 3:9). These three men did three parts of the same work. So their converts, instead of being Paulites, Cephasites and Apollosites, were God's husbandry and God's building.

And this is a lesson that should be taught repeatedly because religious people are still inclined to be followers of men. This is the cause of sectarianism. When three men preach three kinds of doctrine, it is plain that they are not working together. It is also plain that they are not working with God, but rather they are working against him.

Why Read The Bible?

The Bible has always been the best seller among books. This fact is pleasing to God-fearing people. But it is evident that the Bible is not always read for the right purpose. The mission of the Bible is to make men wise unto salvation. No one should ignore this purpose when they read the Bible.

If we have no intention of obeying the Lord, we derive little benefit from studying the Scriptures.

Some read the Bible to criticise its teaching. Some read it to find fault with other people. A few read it to learn what the will of God is. The Pharisees were very religious, but many of them did not read the Scriptures to learn the will of God. They rejected the teaching of the Bible when it did not coincide with their way of thinking. It is an abuse of God's holy word to use it the way the Pharisees did.

Obedience to God is the theme of the Bible. We subvert it when we read it for amusement, or to see if the stories it tells are not absurd and incredible. The only way to understand the Bible is to be in an obedient attitude when we read it. Jesus said, "If any man will do his will, he shall know the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself" (John 7:17).

Mode of Baptism In The New Testament

Cecil N. Wright

(Sermon preached over Radio Station KFEL, Denver, Colorado, April 19, 1953).

Our lesson at this time is, "The Mode of Baptism in the New Testament." It is a review of an article under that title, written by a Denver minister, and published in a Denver paper that declares itself to be, "Devoted to the Interests of the Protestant Churches of the Rocky Mountain Empire," and no doubt is read by thousands of people. Said article was written to condemn the practice of immersion for baptism, and to uphold sprinkling and pouring instead. It charges that immersion is "uncomfortable, unnatural, unconventional, and undignified," and that the "belief in immersion is harmful." However, should immersion be of God, as we believe the New Testament Scriptures to teach, then these charges amount to no less than blasphemy and sacrilege against God's holy ordinance, and should not go unchallenged and unrefuted. It is, therefore, in defense of immersion that we now speak.

Baptism Is Immersion

That baptism, as taught in the New Testament, is immersion, is certain for a number of reasons. In the first place, according to Webster's New International Dictionary, our English word "baptize" has its origin from the Greek word baptizein, from baptein, which Webster says means "to dip in water." Therefore, since the New Testament was originally written in Greek, and the very Greek word translated "baptize" means to dip or immerse, the word "baptize" in our English Bibles should itself always be understood to signify immersion.

This is also corroborated by Thayer's Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament and by all other standard works in that field as well. But we now use Thayer for two outstanding reasons: First, his lexicon has for many years been generally recognized as unsurpassed in the field of New Testament Greek and is probably more widely used than any other. Second, his religious affiliation could in no wise prejudice him in favor of immersion, as he was a member of the Congregational church, which practices sprinkling and pouring. So please note his definitions of the New Testament Greek words bapto, baptizo, and baptisma. Bapto and baptizo are verb forms of the Greek words used by Webster; and baptisma, or sometimes baptismos, is the noun. Thayer defines them as follows: bapto, "to dip, dip in, immerse"; baptizo, "properly, to dip repeatedly, to immerse, submerge; to cleanse by dipping or submerging, to wash, to make clean with water"; and baptisma, "immersion, submersion." Of baptizo, he comments that, "In the New Testament it is . . . by Christ's command received by Christians and adjusted to the contents and nature of their religion, viz., an immersion in water, performed as a sign of the removal of sin." And of baptisma, as used of Christian baptism, Thayer also says, "This, according to the view of the apostles, is a rite of sacred immersion, commanded by Christ."

But suppose we had access neither to Webster nor Thayer nor to any other comparable authority regarding the Greek word for our English New Testament word "baptize." We still would have our English translation of the Bible. And it tells us precisely what is done in baptism. In Rom. 6:3, 4, it says: "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death." So, in baptism there is a burial. Yet the candidate is not left buried. And Col. 2:12 tells us so, saying, "Buried with him (Christ), in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through faith in the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead." This means, then, beyond any shadow of the possibility of a doubt, that New Testament baptism is immersion. Where is there any burial in connection with sprinkling or pouring? Where is any resurrection? Any pretended evidence against this New Testament testimony must be discounted. There is no higher authority as to what New Testament baptism is, than the New Testament itself. This needs to be borne in mind as we examine so-called "facts" which the writer of the article under review says "prove" that baptism in the New Testament "was not immersion."

Paintings and Drawings

So-called "fact" number one (quote): "Paintings and drawings of the baptism of Jesus by John the Baptist show them standing in the water about a foot deep, and John pouring the water on the head of Christ. . . Nothing is said in the scripture accounts of going under the water but merely of going into the water and coming out of the water." (Unquote.)

Now, isn't that something? Using paintings and drawings of uninspired men of post-New Testament days to disprove what the inspired writers of the Bible say takes place in baptism! Sure, there are such pictures. We have seen some of them. But they were not made by any contemporaries of Jesus and John, nor during any of the time the New Testament was being written. They were drawn in later centuries, after sprinkling and pouring had begun to be used by some as a substitute for immersion. They prove exactly nothing as to what the Bible says baptism is.

And as to nothing being said in the Scriptures about going "under the water but merely of going into the water and coming out of the water," that just is not true. Remember that the Scriptures say that in baptism there is a burial. And we read in Acts 8:36-39 that when Philip and the Ethiopian eunuch had come to a certain water, and had gone down into the water, Philip baptized the eunuch, and then they came up out of the water. How much plainer could it be stated that while they were "in" the water, Philip put the eunuch "under" the water, before they came up out of the water? How could he have buried him in baptism, as the Scriptures say is done, without putting him under? But enough for that.

Baptismal Fonts

So-called "fact" number two (quote): "Early Christian churches in Asia Minor, built in the first century have baptismal fonts that will not hold a gallon of water showing that they did not immerse and the mode would not have been changed so quickly." (Unquote.)

With no proof offered to substantiate that statement, we are compelled to question its accuracy, because it is out of harmony with recognized authorities on archaeology. For example, Cobern, in his book, "New Archaeological Discoveries and Their Bearing Upon the New Testament and Upon the Life and Time of the Primitive Church," page 444, says, "The earliest well-preserved Christian churches date from the fourth century." And Finnegan, in "Light From the Ancient Past," page 416, says, "The baptistery was usually a small, separate building in the center of which was a round or octagonal pool, entered by a flight of steps, for the act of immersion."

But just suppose there were churches as early as the first century having baptismal fonts that would not hold a gallon of water. What does it prove? Not a thing, except that even at that early date, as well as later, there were some who departed from the practice taught in the New Testament. But such a departure can in no wise prove that the New Testament does not mean what it says when it declares that in baptism we are buried. It only proves that some people are willing to ignore scripture teaching, and substitute something else instead.

Latin Translation

Now, so-called "fact" number three (quote): "The New Testament was translated from the Greek into the Latin very early and never once is the Greek word to baptize (baptizē) translated into the Latin immerge (to immerse) but into a Latin word meaning to pour." (Unquote.)

This statement contains both perversion and outright falsehood. It is utterly untrue that the Greek word for baptize is translated into the Latin New Testament by a word meaning to pour. The Latin for "pour" is fundo. And never is the New Testament Greek word for baptize translated into the Latin New Testament by any form of the word fundo. It is true that neither is it translated into the Latin immergo. Instead, it is translated by the Latin verb baptizo or the Latin noun baptisma. And the Latin baptisma is defined as "a dipping in, dipping under, washing, ablution." Harper's Latin Dictionary, thus defining it, says that it is used especially of Christian baptism. It is the grossest of misrepresentations, therefore, to say that the Latin translation of the New Testament teaches pouring for baptism.

Ethiopian's Baptism

Again, so-called "fact" number four (quote): "When Philip and the Ethiopian were travelling the desert road from Jerusalem to Gaza, the convert said 'here is water, what doth hinder me to be baptized?' It would be extremely unlikely to find water deep enough to immerse one on this desert road." (Unquote.)

This statement not only discredits the Bible statements that Philip baptized the Ethiopian eunuch and that in baptism there is a burial, but also displays a woeful ignorance of the topography of that region. According to books on the Holy Land, though this road went through some desert country between Jerusalem and Gaza, the area was not without water. Being rainless seven months out of the year, it abounded with artificial pools for storing up water during the five rainy months for the flocks and herds and for irrigation in the summer time. Besides, this road also crossed two streams. One was a brook in the valley of Elah, a mountain stream that goes dry in the summer but flows with a strong current through the winter and spring. The other was the Wady el Hasy, which is a stream flowing the year around and is said to be suitable for baptizing at any season of the year.

Jailor's Baptism

And now, so-called "fact" number five (quote): "When the jailor was converted by Paul at Philippi and was baptized with his family, it would have been unlikely that water would have been there in which to immerse." (Unquote.)

This is another statement that certainly betrays an immense ignorance, or something! Why would it have been unlikely for there to be enough water somewhere in the city of Philippi in which to immerse? But, if so, the New Testament, as well as geography, tells us that near the city there was a river (Acts 16:13).

Washing or Bathing

So-called "fact" number six (quote): "In Luke 11:38 and Mark 7:4 the Greek word Baptidze is translated 'wash' (the only time it is not translated to baptize) and the Jewish method of washing their hands ceremonially was by pouring water on them." (Unquote.)

All that needs to be said in answer to this is that the American Standard Revised Version, in order to express the "washing" under consideration, says "bathed." And, of course, bathing includes more than the pouring of a little water.

Cloud and Sea

Now we come to the final so-called "fact," number seven (quote): "The phrase in 1 Cor. 10:3, 'And they were baptized with Moses in the cloud and in the sea,' has been used by some as an argument for immersion. Moses as they came to the Red Sea stretched out his rod and the wind blew the water back and the Israelites crossed in a delightful sprinkling while the immersion was the privilege reserved for the Egyptians who were not the people of God at all." (Unquote.)

This is simply a piece of sophistry. The Bible says the Israelites crossed on "dry ground" (Exod. 14:22), not in a "delightful sprinkling." Their baptism, though not an immersion in water, was not by means of drops of water either! The Bible says they were baptized "in the cloud and in the sea"—that is, by walls of sea water on either side and the cloud over them, as described in Exodus 14, so that they were completely enveloped by cloud and sea, just as one is completely surrounded by water when immersed in it.

Conclusion

Thus we have disposed of all the so-called "facts" given by the article to prove that the mode of baptism in the New Testament was not immersion, and have demonstrated that they furnish no such proof at all. But in concluding, the article makes this other most reckless assertion that should be noticed, namely, "Immersion was not practiced by any of the churches until the last few centuries and is a take-over from heathen cults and not founded on the New Testament"—an assertion so wild that it is contradicted by scholars and historians of all faiths alike. Even scholars of the Roman Catholic church, which was the first to formally legalize sprinkling, in the Council of Ravenna, in 1311, tell us that immersion was practiced in the earlier centuries of the church. For instance, Cardinal Gibbons, in his book, "The Question Box," page 240, says: "Catholics admit that immersion brings out more fully the meaning of the Sacrament (Rom. 6:3, 4; Col. 2:12; Titus 3:5; Eph. 5:27), and that for twelve centuries it was the common practice." Time prohibits saying more now. But surely it is evident that immersion for baptism is of the Bible and God, and that attacks upon it are both sacrilegious and blasphemous.

"God, Man, And Money"

Clifton Rogers

Liberality in giving is a fundamental part of Christian stewardship—as important a part as anything else. Realizing this, elders are devoting real thought and planning toward the edification of the church in this respect. Too, sincere brethren everywhere are considering anew their responsibilities in this particular. They want to do what is right, they want to be pleasing to their Lord in this as in all else.

Right here is where earnest and sensible teaching plays such a large part in congregational planning and individual purposing. It is my personal belief that the booklet, "God, Man, and Money" (special edition of the April issue of the 20th Century Christian), will serve a real purpose in the teaching program of any congregation. You may order copies singly or in bundles from the Firm Foundation, Box 77, Austin 61, Texas, at ten cents per copy.

Examples Of The Past Should Teach Us

R. L. Roberts, Sr.

The saddest chapters in the history of the church of the Lord are the ones that tell of its apostasies. If another sad chapter is to be written, it will be on the same theme.

The Lord established his church. He built it in perfect harmony with the prophecies and promises that had been spoken concerning it. It was made just as God had conceived it in his mind and purpose. It, with its law of life, the New Testament, was designed to completely meet the needs of man in bringing him back to God. Had it never been corrupted and its laws never been altered, the world would have been converted to Christ.

But, the church is composed of human beings, that are constantly making mistakes. "The way of man is not in himself; it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps" (Jer. 10:23). When he has turned from the word of the Lord and followed his own way, he has ever been found in a state of corruption and apostasy.

Since the beginning of the church, man has been trying to improve upon God's arrangement for the salvation of man. Even before the end of the Apostolic age, and in less than thirty years after the church began, Paul predicted its apostasy and said, "The mystery of iniquity doth already work" (2 Thess. 2:1-7).

This apostasy brought a complete departure from the teaching, practice, and organization of the New Testament church. When fully developed, it gave to the world the Roman Catholic church. Its teaching and practice continued to grow worse through the "dark ages" and finally grew so bad that men rebelled and started the reformation movement. Failing in their effort to reform, their effort resulted in the establishment of denominationalism.

When the evils of denominationalism were finally realized, and men saw that division and strife among them were contrary to the teaching of Christ the "Restoration movement" had its inception. Simultaneous movements, in different parts of the country, were made in an effort to unite all believers in Christ, and to restore the church to the apostolic order. The final result was a combining of forces and the success of the purpose of the efforts. The church was restored to its initial purity in organization, teaching, and practice. The church had a period of very rapid growth. Denominationalism declined, and the history from then might have been written differently had this purity been maintained.

But, becoming dissatisfied with the simplicity of the order established by Christ, men set about to improve upon that order. Educational institutions were established through which to teach the Bible. Missionary societies were organized through which to preach the gospel. Instrumental music was brought into the worship. In an effort to attract people to the church, quartets, choirs, and choruses were introduced. They even brought in drama and dancing. Their preachers began to be exalted above the common people. They were called reverend, pastors, and doctors of divinity. Boards and committees were appointed to replace and do the work of the elders. The result was the present Christian church with no likeness to the church of the New Testament. I believe this departure had its beginning in, and emanated from, the educational institutions of the day.

It seems strange that Christians of today will not profit by past experiences and heed the lesson taught by them. I think that few would deny that the trend today is in the direction of another apostasy, and by the same methods, at least in part, that all but wrecked the church in the past. We have our institutions through which to do the work of the church. We have our choruses and group singers. We have our boards and committees. We have our doctors of divinity, and in many instances our pastors—except in name. If the trend is not arrested, we probably will have that also. Our institutions are draining the church of its money. Men are being persuaded to leave great sums of money to them, that ought to have been given, or to be given to preach the gospel. Our located preacher system has created the idea that the church cannot prosper unless we have a minister present at all services. It is hindering the developing of local men, so they would be able to do the teaching and let the preacher, "Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Much is being said about the lack of qualified elders in the church. It is my firm conviction that here is one of the causes.

Brethren, it seems from where I sit, that we need to call a halt and look for the "old paths" and walk therein. The Lord surely knew what was necessary to convert the world to him. He established the church through which to work. He established no other institution, or authorized any other. He gave us the gospel, "God's power to save." He authorized no schemes of attraction to draw men unto him except the attraction of the cross of Christ. He placed all men on an equal as members of the church—they are brethren. He forbids the exalting of one member above another (Matt. 23:5-12). Reverends, doctors, and pastors, in the modern use of that term, were unknown in the New Testament church. Wouldn't it be fine if men would just leave things as the Lord has fixed them?

Wanted: Names Of Christians In Venezuela, South America

Mack Kercheville

A fine young man from Venezuela, South America, was converted recently in Los Angeles, California, by Brother Bill Stivers. This man, Carlos Huerta, is now on his way back home. He would like to contact any members of the Lord's church living in his country. Please send me the names and addresses, and I will forward them on to him as soon as he sends me his new address.

Also wanted: Some congregation willing and able to support a good gospel preacher in Mexico to the amount of $100 per month. This man is living in Torreon, and has been studying with Brother Pedro Rivas. He was converted here some time ago, and we recommend him as worthy of support. His name is Marcelino Ramirez. Write me or Brother Pedro Rivas in Torreon for more information.

Mena, Arkansas, Deserves and Needs Help

Doyle Banta

Recently it was my privilege to visit Mena, Arkansas. I found a nice town of some 6,000 people located in southwest Arkansas. The church in Mena is weak in numbers, but strong in faith. They have about 57 members. Through faith, vision and much hard labor on their part, they have erected a very good building. It is large enough to take care of their growth for several years. A great part of the labor was given by the members. Their building is not yet complete. A few classrooms are yet to be finished. We are acquainted with the Mena work, because two of our very good families from West Helena, Arkansas, now live at Mena.

To meet their monthly expenses the church at Mena needs at least $145.00 per week. Those 57 members are now giving between $90 and $100 per week. At present they receive some $95.00 per month from outside help. They need at least $125.00 per month to carry on their work. There is a good radio station at Mena, so they have a good opportunity to reach many that way. They will not need this support for long, but they urgently need it for the next twelve months.

Brother W. K. Cunningham is to move to Mena the first of June. What congregation or congregations will come to their rescue for a few months? With some additional help now the church at Mena can grow to be a strong church in the next two or three years. I know Brother Cunningham and know that he will do a good work in Mena.

This is urgent brethren, so let's come to the aid of Mena, Arkansas. Send all contributions to C. Y. Blakeney, 1315 Reeves Street, Mena, Arkansas.

Embarrassed?

Glenn L. Wallace

Recently I listened to a man tell of his experience in one of our eastern states. He told of the small number in his city who contend for the New Testament pattern of religion and the great numbers of Catholics and others who dominated the religious influence of the community. He said that a Roman Catholic asked him: "How many members are there in the church of Christ?" He answered: "I confess with great embarrassment that the number is very small." The Catholic pressed him further: "Have you any great hospitals?" My friend said he had to answer with great shame: "No, we have no hospitals." He told of being embarrassed when pressed to tell that we do not own any great newspapers, radio stations, theological schools and no international benevolent organizations.

I, too, was embarrassed when I listened to the story, but I was not embarrassed because the answers to the Catholic were in the negative. I was embarrassed that a preacher of the gospel would show such little knowledge of the church of our Lord as to think that there is any place in the church for the multitude of denominational machines that swell the Catholic with pride. The ignorance betrayed by that preacher from the East is becoming far too common today. The church of our Lord has no place for hospitals, international welfare organizations, world-wide charity programs and theological seminaries. The New Testament furnishes us with the complete pattern of Christianity. Any casual reader of that plan cannot help but be impressed with the simplicity of the program and of the machinery to carry out that program.

The church, which we read about in the New Testament, has a clearly defined mission and it has all the necessary machinery to carry out that mission. It may not be able to do all that some modern-day visionary organizer would like to do, but it can do all it is commanded of God to do. That will be enough. I'm embarrassed at the ignorance shown by many people about the mission of the church. They would have us take over everything from the government to the United Nations.

Report On Waco, Texas, Tornado

Trine Starnes

The tragic toll of loss in human life in the Waco tornado disaster of 4:40 p.m., Monday, May 11, is steadily mounting. It may be days before debris can be removed and an accurate accounting of total loss determined.

Thus far we have learned of no members of the church reported dead or injured physically. However, several of our brethren have suffered loss in business and residential property.

Many citizens lost their homes in complete or partial destruction. Calls are coming in over the radio for clothing and household items.

The Columbus Avenue building has been damaged considerably in the basement by water from torrential rains following the tornado which have now amounted to seven inches in a few hours.

The downtown scene of devastation defies either description or imagination. One of our deacons, Brother L. L. Stone, and his wife, were eye witnesses of the collapse of the eight story R. T. Dennis Furniture Company building just across the street from their cleaning establishment. They were not injured, although debris fell into the front windows and door of their building.

Immediate needs for rescue workers are apparently being fulfilled as rapidly as they become known. Heroism abounds everywhere.

We shall be glad to aid in receiving and distributing donations which interested congregations and individuals may desire to send to assist the homeless, unfortunate and injured. Our sister congregations will join us in this great relief work.

Studies In Galatians (No. 12)

R. C. Bell

"Men spake from God being moved by the Holy Spirit" (2 Peter 1:21). Even without this personal impact of the Holy Spirit upon his own spirit, Paul would have been a very superior man. With his large natural and acquired gifts, wealth of experience, and devotion to God, he was capable of holding more of the mind of God than were others. Consequently, when moved, filled, and possessed by the Spirit, he not only taught some things more fully than other inspired men did, but withal became the most vital and fruitful man in history.

The biography of a good man, from Christ down, is always profitable. When others know a man's motive is right, they like to hear him tell his own life story. Paul, knowing that the narrative of a Christian's conversion and subsequent life was good argument for Christianity, on two occasions related his own experience (Acts 22:26). To make and to develop Christians there is no better preaching and exhorting than what the Spirit "moved" Paul to write about himself.

Paul's "Little Children"

Paul feared that the Galatians might misconstrue some of the plain, frank things he had written, and even misjudge his motives. Apparently the Judaizers had maligned him and caused them to think he was their enemy, purposely depriving them of necessary rites. When he thought of how the simple Galatians were being imposed upon by the designing Jewish partisans, memories of their unprecedented reception of him, a very sick man, when he first came among them, compassion for their distressed state under hireling shepherds, and perplexity concerning their future filled his heart, and he grew tender and tearful.

Probably what he wrote Corinth about the same time, under similar circumstances, "Out of many afflictions and anguish of heart I wrote unto you with many tears" (2 Cor. 2:4), would be appropriate in a second letter to Galatia. Or perhaps, what he said to Philippi, "Many walk, of whom I told you often, and now tell you weeping that they are the enemies of the cross of Christ" (Phil. 3:18), he might have said to Galatia. Contrary to Paul's custom, no thanksgiving is found in Galatians, but it contains one of the tenderest passages in all his writings: "My little children, of whom I am again in travail until Christ be formed in you—but I could wish to be present with you now, and change my tone; for I am perplexed about you." Note that the connection between the two verses of this emotionally drenched passage is broken as if by sobs.

This introduces a side of Paul and a basic element in Christianity, also, that we today know none too well. If Christ could weep in human sympathy over the broken image of God in the Jews, with the sisters at the tomb of their brother, and pronounce a blessing upon those who mourn, there can be nothing wrong or weak about tears. Paul, whose commission was signed, "I will show him how many things he must suffer for my name's sake" (Acts 9:16), became a man of profound feeling and many tears before his martyrdom. What better reveals a man's size than that which moves him to tears? As the foundation of the church was cemented in Christ's blood, and the superstructure built in the persecutions and afflictions of the saints, so must the building be finished in the sufferings and the sacrifices of Christians.

Love and tears have a ministry peculiarly their own. What can be more eloquent and moving than the tears of a strong man, like Moses or Paul, who does not weep till he has something to weep about? A wayward son can withstand the arguments of his father longer than he can the tears of his mother. If Euodia and Syntyche could have got off to themselves somewhere and had a good cry together, probably, their difference would not have seemed so important (Phil. 4:2). When Christ (Matt. 22:37-40) and Paul (1 Cor. 13) so certainly give dominant centrality in the kingdom of God to love, it is hard to see why Christians consider it, as compared to intellect and learning, inferior. The church, leaving hearts unexercised and trying to do God's work with only heads and hands, breaks step with Christ and Paul. The only fault Christ found with the church at Ephesus was that she had left her "first love" (Rev. 2:4).

Paul's Allegorizing

After closing his argument for the all-sufficiency of the gospel with a touching reminiscence, Paul, feeling that more written doctrinal matter would be useless to the Galatians, tells them that he would like to talk things out with them face to face and heart to heart. Wondering whether or not they really understand how promise and law differ in nature and workings, and realizing how easy it is to confess Christ, yet rely on self, Paul, knowing the value of parabolic illustrations to clarify doctrine, decides, before taking up the hortatory part of the book proper, to use Abraham again to allegorize the difference.

"Tell me, ye that desire to be under the law (legal system), do ye not hear the law (book of the law)?" Very skillfully, Paul commits the Judaizers to their own Bible before he shows that it is against them. "Moved by the Holy Spirit," Paul says of Hagar and Sarah, "These women are two covenants." He teaches that Ishmael, Abraham's natural son by Hagar, symbolizes and allegorizes the Mosaic covenant; and that Isaac, Abraham's supernatural son by Sarah, the Christian covenant. As Ishmael, because he mocked Isaac, was cast out, so Jews, because they reject Christ, mocking and persecuting his people, must be cast out. These women with their respective sons were no more incompatible than are the two covenants. Sons of the flesh cannot abide sons of the Spirit. No one hates grace like those who try to save themselves by self-effort. The point of the allegory contained in this bit of history is that God casts out the legal mode of earning justification, and freely bestows it upon "Abraham's seed, heirs according to promise." The prophecy Paul quotes, since it shows Isaiah as well as Moses is against them, further embarrasses Judaizers. Furthermore, it gives Christians of all time assurance that they are on the growing, winning side. Paul proves himself to be an elegant, effective allegorizer.

Galatians is the Act of Emancipation for the slaves of law in all ages. It defends the gospel against any invasion of the principles of law, works, and flesh, which would modify its character of pure grace. It is the Magna Charta of Christian universalism and liberty and freedom.

IF—THEN

W. W. Otey

If Matthew was inspired by the Holy Spirit when he wrote: "Now all this is come to pass, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, Behold the virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Immanuel, which is being interpreted, God with us" (Matt. 1:23). Then Isaiah 7:14 is a specific prophecy of the birth of Jesus, and that prophecy should read "virgin" not "young woman." The question at issue is not one of "scholarship," but a question of Matthew's inspiration.

What Does The Bible Say?

The New Translation

Is the new Revised Standard Version the most accurate translation of the original languages used by the inspired writers of the Bible? If you mean by this question the most literal, word-for-word translation, then the scholars will definitely answer, "No." It is a freer and more liberal translation than the American Standard Version of 1901.

As a "modern speech" version the new revision will cause many thousands to read the Bible who have not read it before. For this we are thankful. But we strongly object to its acceptance as a "standard" version replacing the King James and American Standard Versions. The translating committee was not representative of the conservative scholarship of our time. The overwhelming majority of them are "modernistic" or "liberal" in their view of the Bible. This means that they reject the concept of verbal or plenary inspiration of the Bible. When there was any textual problem they naturally leaned to the "modernistic" viewpoint. We regret very much that they did not include a number of outstanding conservative scholars on the committee and bring forth the most accurate as well as a most readable translation. Other versions will undoubtedly be forthcoming which will be more accurate. God has providentially preserved the Bible so that today we can be more certain of what the inspired writers said than at any time since the third century after Christ. Keep reading the Bible!

The wonderful thing about the inspired word of God is that in nearly any reasonably accurate version the glorious meaning of the message shines through. Take five or six of the most widely used versions and read them carefully. In 98 per cent of the passages you will find basic agreement as to what the original writers actually said. The sinner can learn what to do to be saved in each one. Matthew, Mark, Luke and John will tell him about Jesus' life. He will be told to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as the Son of God (John 3:16), to repent and be baptized for or unto the forgiveness of sins (Acts 2:38). The book of Acts will teach the new Christian about the founding of the church and its early growth. The letter from Romans through Jude will tell him how to live as a Christian and Revelation will hold out the promise of eternal victory for the church through Christ.

Truly, "The word of the Lord endureth forever" (1 Peter 1:25).

"Lord, give us the Bible
Everything else has failed,
Only thy word prevailed,
Lord, give us the Bible!"

A Christian Journal In Every Home

Although there is evidence to support the estimate that there are at least 1,000,000 members of the church in the United States the combined circulation of all the gospel papers would not exceed 175,000. In fact that would be a liberal estimate of circulation and does not show the real picture for a large number of active members take two or three papers. Thus, not more than 125,000 homes actually receive any type of Christian journal.

On the other hand the Roman Catholics have recently announced that the combined circulation of their journals has reached 15,038,000 or roughly 48 per cent of the total Catholic population. Since the Catholics have set out upon their program to make America a Catholic nation they have not hesitated to pour millions into advertising and especially into the printed page.

Again the Southern Baptists state publications have reached the 1,000,000 mark recently. Other independent Baptist journals reach several hundred thousand more people. The Baptists have been working for 12 years upon a program to have a Baptist journal in every Baptist home.

These two denominations simply show how effective the printed page is in spreading ideas, whether true or false. These publications have helped make these two denominations grow rapidly in recent years.

Should this information not arouse those of us who are pleading for simple New Testament Christianity to the need for using the printed page. Why not use your influence to see that a gospel paper is put into the homes of more members of the church and a suitable paper put into the homes of non-members. Send gift subscriptions to the journal you have found helpful, scriptural, instructive. Get up a club for the monthly or weekly paper you prefer. Some congregations send a year's subscription to a good monthly and weekly to new members. Let's see that a Christian journal goes into every member's home!

WORK HAS BEGUN AMONG SPANISH-SPEAKING
FOLK OF ALBUQUERQUE

G. F. Mickey

For years a burden as respects preaching Christ's gospel to the Spanish-speaking population of Albuquerque, New Mexico, has lain heavily upon many Christian hearts. Finally, along about the first of January, 1953, the Eastside Church of Christ, Trumbull and Mesilla S. E., resolved to do something about the matter.

Consequently, after much prayer and earnest consideration, it was decided to contact Brother Mack Kercheville, El Paso, Texas. This was done. He suggested that a Spanish brother be asked to join him in this initial effort. After some correspondence, and some disappointments, Brother Pedro Olivas, Las Vegas, New Mexico, a preacher of much experience, and one who has a good knowledge of God's word and a profound love for the truth, consented to come.

So then, on March 23, 1953, Brother Kercheville arrived in Albuquerque. Brother Olivas came over on March 25. These two were joined by Mrs. Eleanor Maddux, 1023 La Font Road, S. W., Albuquerque. Together these workers visited many homes. They talked freely of gospel truth. Some thirty sincere people responded favorably, and are becoming subjects for further conversations.

Brother Mack Kercheville returned to his duties in El Paso. Brother Olivas has been retained for further work. He has working with him Sister Maddux, and Brother Frank Kercheville, language professor of State University, Albuquerque. There are some four or five others among these Spanish folk who are Christians only. These form a splendid nucleus for the beginning of a New Testament church among these long-neglected people.

Finally, the burden of financing properly this effort will rest heavily upon those who are already loaded with undertakings of aggressive work, but this new service is too great a challenge to let it pass lightly. Therefore, should anyone who reads this, be moved to assist in any way, that help will be most thankfully received, and will assuredly bring forth an abundant harvest. Address all communications to Eastside Church of Christ, 536 Mesilla S. E., Albuquerque. May we ask to be remembered before the throne of his infinite grace?

G. H. P. SHOWALTER, Editor

UNCONSCIOUS OF HIS FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS

The following story comes to us from an old source but seems to have been fairly well authenticated:

A man in the state of New Jersey fell heir to a large family Bible in the year 1874. His aunt, who had died, left this instruction in her will: "To my beloved nephew I will and bequeath my family Bible and all it contains, with the residue of my estate after my funeral expenses and just, lawful debts are paid."

The estate amounted to only a few hundred dollars, which soon vanished, and the Bible was laid on a shelf, where it lay for thirty-five years, unappreciated, unopened. The gentleman became poverty stricken, and in his old age decided to go to his son's home to spend the remaining years of his life.

In packing his trunk for the journey, he had occasion to get down the family Bible. As he leafed it through, he found hidden among its leaves $5,000.00 in bank notes. All these thirty-five years they had lain hidden between its covers, and he had lived in want and distress!

There may not be bank notes hidden away in our Bibles, but there are treasures within the covers which money cannot buy. Shall we live in spiritual feebleness and want, and then, at the end of life's journey or in old age, perhaps, find that we had vast treasures at our command which have lain unused, neglected? Shall we not take the Bible from its resting place each day and leaf it through, searching for the treasures which have been left there for you and for me?

FROM HOT SPRINGS, ARKANSAS

Foy E. Wallace, Jr.

Since "A Word To Our Friends" was published several weeks ago, many have asked to know more of the progress toward the recovery of my mistress, who sustained last November a cerebral attack resulting in paralysis.

After leaving the Scott & White Memorial Hospital and Clinic at Temple, Texas, we sought to restore her activity by physical therapy prescribed by physicians. Some response resulted from these treatments, but the paralysis persisted, and we have come to Hot Springs seeking the remedy her ailing body needs. Here in these hot mineral waters she is receiving physical therapy under the supervision of government approved therapists, and we await results in hope.

During these six months my entire attention has been devoted to this task, which no other could perform. I attend her constantly. She has never failed me; I shall not fail her.

As before explained, attention to other affairs of mine which have had to remain suspended must wait while we continue this fight with determination to win it.

Mail from Box 1804, Oklahoma City, will be forwarded, but, our direct address for an indefinite time is 214 Fountain Street, Hot Springs, Arkansas.

We thank our friends for their inquiring interest, trust the providence of God, and take courage.

His many thousand admirers and friends, brethren and sisters in Christ, will read these line from Brother Wallace with sympathetic interest. As his father did in his day, and several other members of the family have done, Brother Foy E. Wallace, Jr., has devoted his entire life thus far to the proclamation of the gospel of Christ. He has done nothing else and Virgie has stood bravely by to help, sustain, and encourage. She has taken care of the children, and kept the home fires burning, as Foy studied, traveled and served the church and our Lord as a preacher and debater, author, editor and special writer. He has left behind him already, a very unusual service for which he is loved and appreciated, and for which the churches owe him a debt of gratitude, and for which he is and will be very highly and justly esteemed. We certainly sympathize very deeply with Brother and Sister Wallace in this affliction. Let us all remember them in our prayers, and with card messages and any other possible ministration.

BARTON DAVIS, 447 W. ROSS
FARMINGTON, NEW MEXICO

The only active work being done among the American Indians is carried on by Jesse W. Hampton under the oversight of the Northside congregation of Farmington, New Mexico. Brother Hampton has spent several years working among these people. For some time his efforts have been centered around Manuelito, New Mexico, on the Navajo reservation. About 100 meet each Lord's day and their building will be completed within a few weeks. A great opportunity seems to be afforded at the present time among these primitive people.

Brother Hampton will be away from the work during the summer while attending school. He is anxious to make appointments to tell of this work during these summer months. He will be available to speak in Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, and Tennessee. If any in these states would like to have him visit with you, please contact the elders of the Northside church in Farmington. We are anxious to work out a schedule for Brother Hampton as soon as possible. It will do you good to hear of this important and interesting work being done among these "first Americans."

This periodical would be pleased to know that members and churches would communicate with Brother Hampton and as far as practical visit this reservation and get acquainted with these people. We have received favorable reports from work that some have done on a small scale among the Navajo Indians. It would seem that an attendance of 100 or so is encouraging, and the work should receive the interest, attention and support that it would seem to merit.

Central Christian To Hold Third Annual Camp La Quinta

W. Harold Fletcher

Camp La Quinta will be held at Central Christian College with the first session from May 31 to June 10, and the second session from June 14 to June 24. W. Harold Fletcher of the college music department will be the director of this third annual session of the camp.

The camp is for boys and girls from eleven to sixteen years old. The schedule of activities will include Bible classes, handicrafts, swimming, chorus, tennis, softball, volleyball, chapel, croquet, badminton, and horseshoes. The expense for one session per person is $25 including room and board.

For the past two years the camp has received more applications than it could accept. Each session of the camp will be limited to 100 children. If you are interested in attending the camp make your reservation now by writing to: Camp La Quinta, Central Christian College, Post Office Box 921, Bartlesville, Oklahoma.

Blue Ridge—A Camp Of Fellowship

A. R. Holton

Blue Ridge Camp Meeting, Blue Ridge, North Carolina, July 18-24, will furnish a great opportunity for fellowship. The young people will all be under direction of Brother L. E. Cranford, minister of the University Church of Christ, Nashville, Tennessee. There will be periods of fellowship for old and young each day. People come from many states of the nation and this makes the fellowship a period of inspiration. This meeting is for those who love the Lord and his cause and for those who like to associate with God's people at a time of vacation. You should begin now to plan your vacation for the dates of this camp meeting. We are looking forward to a meeting that will result in strengthening the faith of people in the church of the Lord Jesus Christ and its mission on earth. Those who believe the gospel will be teachers. The atmosphere will be conducive to prayer and study.

This meeting will be on the plan of protracted meetings that we have held across the country for many years. In other words it will be an occasion of preaching and teaching. It will be held in a section of the country with which you need to get acquainted. Our churches in this area are few and weak compared to other places in the nation. The Carolinas afford a great opportunity to preach the gospel. The people are receptive. In a few years the churches in the Carolinas will be among the strongest we have in the nation. It affords now a great open door. Come and visit in this great scenic wonderland of mountains and forests.

Pepperdine Lectureship

Joseph W. White

We are well pleased with the recent lectureship at George Pepperdine College. Brother Burton Coffman, of Washington, D. C., was the principal speaker, speaking on the theme, "The Christian Approach vs. The Collectivist Approach." Brother Coffman could easily have handled his subject in a sensational and inflammatory manner. However, he gave a sober, thoughtful and powerful indictment of communism and similar ideologies. His chief interest was not in political or social implications, as such, but in the determined attack which communism is making upon some basic tenets of Christianity.

Brother Coffman has given a great deal of study to these questions and is planning to publish a book in the near future. We feel that he did us much good and wish to recommend that others use him to speak on this theme. His broad study and powerful presentation ought to have a wide audience.

These night lectures were the best attended of any in recent years. The audiences grew steadily larger from Monday to Friday nights, each evening showing a greater attendance than the preceding one.

The daily sessions were built around a practical workshop. A number of brethren ably presented various aspects of "Public Relations for Churches." We expect to make this Christian Service Workshop an annual feature of our lectureships.

Church Needs Help

M. Norvel Young

The following letter from Brother Tom Byers is self-explanatory. Brother Byers is worthy of our cooperation. Those who would like to give to help make this down payment should write to him at Box 444, Poughkeepsie, New York.

The church in Poughkeepsie, New York, needs help. We do not know which way to turn. None of us have any strong connections with any church that would be able to help us.

We have been offered a house for fifteen thousand dollars. It is located on the main thoroughfare of the city and is on a corner lot. The house is just the thing we need for the next two or three years. It is necessary for us to pay five thousand dollars down. We will be able to meet the payments thereafter by ourselves, but we do not have enough money to make the down payment. We have twenty-five hundred dollars raised already. We had a lot which we paid sixteen hundred dollars for and we figure we can sell it for at least fifteen hundred dollars. We have a thousand dollars in the bank that we have saved over the past year.

We must get the full five thousand dollars before the fifteenth of May. Any kind of help will be greatly appreciated.

The work in Vermont is coming along nicely. I was up there not long ago and there were seven baptized while I was there at Barre. I started working with the congregation last October and I really love the church here in Poughkeepsie. I got married last December to Betty Foster from Lawrenceburg, Tennessee. We really love the work here and if we are able to purchase this house the congregation here will be self-supporting soon. The church numbers twenty-six at the present time and we have the responsibility of reaching more than a million people in this area.

Write me and let us know if you know of any place that will be able to help us some. Pray for us that the Lord will use us to his honor and glory.—TOM BYERS, Box 444, Poughkeepsie, New York.

FROM THE HARVEST FIELD

W. S. Wylie, 503 E. Huisache, Kingsville, Texas, May 1: Four have been baptized and two have placed membership here in the last three or four weeks. We begin a vacation Bible school June 1.

Wiley W. Johnson, (colored), Gen. Del., Lubbock, Texas: The work in Slaton, Texas, is moving on in a nice way. One young man from the Methodist church was baptized in Christ May 3rd. We will begin our summer meeting July 15, 1953.

H. T. Steadman, 3206 Knox Drive, Fort Worth, Texas, May 4: The work at Linwood moves along nicely with several being baptized and restored lately. At present Brother Guild of the Riverside congregation of this city is engaged in holding us a meeting in which thus far four have been restored and two baptized.

Joe Lomax, Vega, Texas, May 2: April was indeed a good month for the saints at Vega. There were five responses, one baptism and four restorations. Bible Class attendance reached its peak with 110 persons the second Lord's day. Our lowest attendance was 72. We expect to do better during the month of May.

George Tipps, 211 W. Grand Avenue, Jackson, Tennessee, May 5: Two were baptized and consistent outside interest prevailed in the mission meeting at Marvell, Arkansas. Allen Vann is preaching for this and two other churches in Phillips County, Arkansas, and is off to a good start in his work. Doyle Banta has done an enviable work in that section.

B. G. Dobson, Box 529, Vivian, Louisiana, May 4: Good attendance yesterday. One restoration and one baptism. The lady who was baptized had been reared a Pentecostal. Our contribution was an even $300.00. It is understood that the first Sunday contribution applies on our indebtedness. We are meeting our obligations nicely. We are really thankful for our new building.

H. L. Matheny, Goldsmith, Texas, May 4: The church here enjoyed a good gospel meeting. Brother J. P. Crenshaw did the preaching and fourteen obeyed the gospel during the meeting. Since the meeting one confessed faults, and one transferred membership. Our next gospel meeting will be in August. Brother Audy Moore, Claude, Texas, will do the preaching in this meeting.

Horace W. Busby, Norman, Oklahoma, May 3: We began with the Central church in Norman, Oklahoma, this morning, with a full house and one restored. The Ardmore meeting with the Central church closed April 28 with seven confessions and seven restored the last service. There were seventeen baptisms and about twenty restored or identified. Large crowds attended, and fine interest at all services.

David Allan, 2022 Vincent, Brownwood, Texas, May 3: Our meeting came to a close tonight, with twelve additions; ten baptized, and two restored. Brother Frank Pack of Abilene Christian College gave us some very fine lessons, and Brother Earnest Steele led the singing in a very fine way. I personally was happy over the success of our meeting, because one of the baptized was my own son.

Tillman B. Pope, Box 217, Alma, Arkansas, May 7: I have time for a meeting in June and one in August. Should you want my services. I am at this writing in Duncan, Oklahoma. There are two fine congregations in this city.

Gussie Lambert, 3220 West Caperton St., Shreveport, Louisiana, May 8: Guy N. Woods of Memphis, Tennessee, did the preaching and Bill Cook of Carthage, Texas, led the singing in our spring meeting which closed April 23. Nine were baptized and one restored. Our day services, held at 7 a.m., averaged 150. Brother Woods will be back with the church here in 1956.

Everett Huffard, Box 155, Idalou, Texas, May 6. It will be homecoming day for former members of the church of Christ in Idalou on May 24th. A big dinner and a day of fellowship is planned. Our meeting with O. H. Tabor doing the preaching closed about a week ago with one baptism and two restorations. Three were baptized the week before the meeting. The work in general progresses in peace and harmony.

J. C. Clifford, Route 1, Box 1618, Roseburg, Oregon, May 4: Brother W. E. (Bud) Irvine held our spring meeting with good results. There were 11 responses to the invitation. The church was strengthened and the gospel was preached without compromise. After June 1 my address will be Box 203, Goldendale, Washington. We are looking forward to working with this congregation.

Otha D. Fikes, 726 West 26th Street, Houston 8, Texas, May 4: We have had five baptisms and two confessions of fault, in the last few weeks at 26th and North Shepherd. Interest and attendance is very good. Brother Roy Stephens of Burnet, Texas, was with us in an excellent meeting in April. Roy is a great preacher and a true yokefellow.

Levoy Bivens, P. O. Box 734, Gadsden, Alabama, May 4: One baptism and one to be identified with the congregation yesterday; our attendance continues to be excellent. Brother Willard Collins, Vice President of David Lipscomb College spoke to approximately 200 at our most recent fellowship dinner. The address was a masterful presentation of the "Work of the Church."

Ben West, Lampasas, Texas, May 7: One woman was baptized and her husband restored Wednesday night. 263 at prayer, 258 in Bible School last Lord's day, 400 at worship, $555.00 regular offering. May 31 we have opening services in the new rock church building, seating capacity near 600. It will be home-coming day with basket lunch in the Hancock Park. June 15, P. D. Wilmeth will begin our gospel meeting. Services daily 7:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m.

J. F. Doggett, 1001 Meadow Lane Street, Tyler, Texas, May 7: On the night of April 29 Brother Ray F. Chester of Vernon, Texas, closed a fine meeting with the Crescent Heights congregation of this city. Visible results were eleven baptisms and two restorations. This congregation is in better spiritual condition than it has been in years. The future looks bright for a continued good work with these fine people. When coming our way, worship with us.

Claude Robertson, Haskell, Oklahoma, April 30: Five were baptized and one restored during April. The meeting at Coweta, Oklahoma, in which I did the preaching resulted in one being baptized. When you come our way, visit with us.

George Tipps, 211 W. Grand, Jackson, Tennessee, May 6: Within the past month we at Highland established a new record for prayer meeting service attendance. I spoke at Irvington in Indianapolis one night during their lectures. One was baptized at that service.

Otis H. Moyer, 402 Carroll Street, Sunnyvale, California, May 7: I closed a meeting with the church in Porterville, California, April 22. Nine were baptized. The meeting was well attended from the beginning. This congregation is working. Brother Edward A. Broulette is doing a fine job of preaching for this congregation.

Pfc. Johnie Simpson, 289B NCO Qtrs, Camp Stoneman, California: On March 1, 1953, a new congregation was established here at Pittsburg, California. We have a membership of 32 at present and we are all working. We are meeting in the CIO Union hall at 7th & Cumberland. Please notify your servicemen that there now is a place for them to worship near Camp Stoneman. Those who desire may call Extension 722, Camp Stoneman, or write to me.

K. M. Kelly, Box 436, Alice, Texas, May 4: Yesterday was a good day for the church here in Alice. We baptized a fine young man, uniting the family in Christ. His wife and others confessed wrongs. Our midweek Bible study reached an all-time high last Wednesday night with one hundred seventy-five in attendance. The church here is supporting two preachers full time and over half the support of another. Some of the Lord's best are to be found in the church at Alice.

A. E. Findley, P. O. Box 403, Refugio, Texas, May 5: Since our meeting in April three more have been added to our forces, two by restoration and one by membership. One man gave us 150 lbs. of choice beef and furnished a locker to put it in, so we will not have to worry about something to eat for a while at least. We plan on a two-weeks vacation about June 1. Should a pulpit be vacant anywhere in east Texas the first and second Sundays in June, address me as above or phone 769-J.

Edward J. Craddock, 1714 Cass St., Nashville, Tennessee, May 7: The meeting in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, resulted in two baptisms and forty restorations. W. Ray Duncan and J. B. Cox of Miami gave much assistance. The meeting in Cullman, Alabama, with E. L. Flannery is off to a good start with one restoration, seven baptisms, and four services a day. I begin with Richard Weaver and the church in Smyrna, Tennessee, May 17, and McGehee, Arkansas, May 31.

Lee Jacobs, 1115 Egmont Street, Brunswick, Georgia: The work of the church here is on the upgrade. We have just closed a meeting with Brother Evan E. Wright of Grenada, Mississippi, who preached for us some three years before going to Grenada. The meeting was a great success in every way. The sermons were preached kindly, plainly and to the point in the regular services and on the air. The plain gospel is powerful and six souls were added by baptism. We have invited Brother Wright to be back with us at an early date.

do, singing for meetings, helping in Vacation Bible Schools and teaching song drills. Any congregation needing young men for this service should contact me immediately. My son, Tommy, has some time in June and August. Every congregation needs a good song drill. The boys need the experience—the church needs their services. Tommy has had three years in ACC and six years of experience in teaching many successful schools.

M. A. Mansur, 1405 Richardson, Columbia, Missouri, May 4: The work of the Lord continues to progress very nicely with the Paris Road Church of Christ in Columbia. A University student and his wife were baptized into Christ at the morning services yesterday. One came to be restored and one to be baptized during our recent meeting, which was ably conducted by Brother Walter C. Billingsley; and another came to be baptized the Sunday preceding the meeting; making a total of five responses to the gospel in the past three weeks. For all we give thanks to the Lord. When in Missouri we cordially invite you to come and worship with us.

Joseph W. Baker, 4147 Loma Alta, San Diego, California, May 3: The church at Imperial Beach is continuing to grow. In the past two weeks we have had eleven baptisms. Three people confessed they had sinned publicly and asked the forgiveness of the church. We are growing spiritually as well as in numbers. God is indeed blessing the efforts of those who are zealously and tirelessly working to spread the gospel at this place. Soon we will have outgrown the building in which we meet. We have a lot in a very fine location bought and paid for and we hope—with the Lord's help—and not too far in the future to have a building erected upon it. The building was filled this morning and we will again have to purchase more seats to accommodate those attending. We ask the prayers of Christians everywhere as we work to save souls in this community.

L. Arnold Watson, 7350 Chase Road, Dearborn, Michigan, May 6: April 22 closed a ten-day meeting with the Northside church, Wichita, Kansas, with two baptized. Gene Hancock, Jr., a building contractor, preaches for this congregation. During the meeting an all time record of attendance was set on Sunday. Following this meeting, April 23-May 1, a meeting was conducted at the Twin City church, Kansas City, Kansas, with five being baptized. Wm. K. Anderson is the capable evangelist here. C. Roy Bixler is one of the bishops and is paid for full-time work with the church. This was my first meeting at Twin City and my third at Wichita. May 11 I begin with the Taylor Center, Michigan, congregation. Our Bible School expansion program is developing satisfactorily and construction will begin soon. When travels bring you to Detroit over the Lord's day, visit and worship with us.

Timothy B. Crews, 105 Hardy Avenue, Corsicana, Texas, May 6: Since last fall the N. Beaton church has suffered some heavy losses but attendance holds up well. Truman Spring is to be with us June 22-July 1. I am to be at Bassett July 5-12; Cayuga July 17-26 (this meeting may be changed to June 5-14), and at Groesbeck August 6-16. All these in Texas. It will be my second successive visit to Cayuga and Groesbeck.

Robert Goodman, Box 308, Overton, Texas, May 6: Robert F. Turner of Prescott, Arizona, closed a good meeting here April 26. The brethren say that we had more in attendance at this meeting than any previous meeting. The church was strengthened. A former Methodist was baptized and his wife is now identified with us. One young lady from a neighboring congregation confessed her sin in attending a dance. She knew it was a bad influence and hurt the church at Overton. Interest is good.

Joe H. Morris, 2707 Ky Avenue, Paducah, Kentucky, May 4: I closed a good meeting with the Center Street church in Owensboro, Kentucky, April 30. Interest and attendance was good throughout. Two were baptized. Largest Bible school attendance and contribution were enjoyed in the history of the church there. Jim Cannon is the preacher and is appreciated by all. He and the brethren have done a fine work. The other congregations and preachers of the city cooperated fully and faithfully. Our work at Clements Street enjoyed greatest attendance and contribution last week, 301 in Bible school, 201 in Mid-week classes, with $488.00 contributed. Our new radio program is attracting much attention. The program may be heard daily Monday through Friday at 11:15 a.m. over radio station WPAD, Paducah, Kentucky. During the first third of the year we have had 21 added to the membership list, twelve baptized, seven by membership and two who confessed wrongs and were identified.

Hartsell Johnson, Hutchinson, Kansas, May 5: The work at 14th and Adams congregation is in the best spiritual condition after a splendid gospel meeting which just closed. Brother Wilburn C. Hill did his part in preaching the gospel in an exceptional way. Nine additions during this effort together. Five were baptisms. One has been restored since the meeting. The congregation underwent a new experience, on the trial basis, that is having day services. At first, no one thought of having 25 but on the last day our attendance reached 100. The work in the Lord's vineyard of Kansas is growing, but the field is truly ripe unto harvest. Many cities of considerable size have no congregation at all. We ask you to pray to the Lord of the harvest, to send forth reapers into this needy field. At present, we are working in an effort to start a congregation at Haven, Kansas. Should you be morally and spiritually qualified to work with the small band of disciples there, and desirous of doing mission work of this type, please contact the elders of 14th and Adams congregation here. We solicit your prayers.

A. R. Holton, Nashville, Tennessee: Blue Ridge Camp Meeting, Blue Ridge, North Carolina, July 18-24, is near the Great Smoky Mountains, National Park, one of the most largely attended parks in the country. Write J. W. Brents, Woodmont Boulevard, Nashville, Tennessee.

Barton Davis, Farmington, New Mexico, May 4: The Northside congregation here just closed a good meeting with B. C. Stapleton of Durango, Colorado, doing the preaching. Four were baptized and records in attendance and contribution were broken. Six have been identified since last report. I begin a meeting in Kim, Colorado, May 11.

Clyde C. Corner, 208 North John, Holdenville, Oklahoma May 4: Frank L. Smith of Shawnee, Oklahoma, preached in our meeting recently. Five were baptized. One was baptized and two placed membership before the meeting began. Records were set in Bible study both Sundays of the meeting. Interest and attendance were good."

John H. Gerrard, P. O. Box 735, Aurora, Illinois, May 4: Had good attendance at both services yesterday. One was restored at the morning service. Help us locate members of the church who have moved to this section by sending us their names and addresses. We will be glad to look them up.

C. C. Jones, Box 692, West Memphis, Arkansas: Two weeks ago my wife had a blood clot to get loose and hit her brain and left her paralyzed on the left side. We have cancelled some appointments on account of her illness. Those who know us will want to write her a card.

H. V. Hendry, Jasper, Texas, April 21: Ira B. Sandusky of Beaumont closed an eight-day meeting with the Jasper church. Three were baptized and good was done otherwise. The preaching was first class, neighboring congregations visited, the faithful in Jasper came, but the careless, indifferent and unfaithful stayed away as usual.

R. Leonard Owens, P. O. Box 446, Atoka, Oklahoma, April 24: Since my last report we have enjoyed ten responses to the Master's invitation. There were four baptisms, four restorations and two placed membership. We have an average of 175 for Bible study. Plans are in the making for a new building in the near future. Please note my new address.

"MAJESTIC HYMNS" NOW ON THE PRESS

This great hymn book will soon be ready

Great care has been taken by the compilers (G. H. P. Showalter and Austin Taylor) to provide for the churches a selection of songs, hymns, and spiritual songs not inferior to anything that has been published. It has some special points of merit.

1. The book will contain approximately 25 new songs, direct from the MSS that have never before been printed.
2. Special attention has been paid to secure and use the very choicest selection of late years composed by members of the churches of Christ.
3. Every reasonable effort is put forth to secure all the best of the grand old hymns that will never die, those sweet old songs used in the childhood days of those who are now stalwarts in the churches.
4. We have used great care to see that all the songs are scriptural and at the same time avoid some ludicrous verbal modifications and substitutions that with good intentions have been made by some who are trying to make everything "scriptural," and in their zeal have made errors in the actual meaning of words substituted, and in versification.
5. Finally, we believe that we are needing a new song book now—that the churches are needing a new and better book—they need at the present quite a large number of changes and corrections. There is need to drop some songs, and there is a great need to enter a good list of new or nearly new songs that are teachable, practical, and more worshipful—songs that are suitable for the regular services of the church in an eminent degree, and as well, for the singing schools and song drills.

We believe that our new songs and many late songs especially, will stimulate and arouse, a much-needed interest in singing.

Prices: We will have two bindings: Full Cloth Board, $1.00; Heavy Leatherette Flexible, greatly desired by many, 80 cents. In either binding, send 10 cents per copy additional for postage and shipping expense.

We are anxious to receive from all the churches an order for at least one copy of this new book for examination. If you are not ready for a new book now, you might well desire at least one new copy to examine the new songs. PUBLICATION DATE IS JUNE 1, 1953, Send all orders to

FIRM FOUNDATION PUBLISHING HOUSE

Post Office Box 77, Austin 61, Texas

J. D. Boyd, 1500 McArthur Drive, Mansfield, Louisiana, May 6: Beginning April 20 and closing April 27, I did the preaching and Frank Cook, McLeod, Texas, led the singing in a meeting with the church in Oil City, Louisiana. Five were baptized, one was reclaimed, and nine placed membership. Carl Johnston, Bossier City, preaches regularly for this thriving young congregation, and is doing a good work. The church in Mansfield is currently engaged in a singing school with E. T. Brazzell teaching. He preaches for the Bilbo Street church in DeRidder, Louisiana. C. A. Buchanan, Waxahachie, Texas, is to preach in a meeting here beginning June 1.

Elders W. E. Brown, G. W. Messenger, B. O. Black, Nelson Pearce, Broadview, New Mexico: Brother G. Dudley Stout of Belle Plaine, Kansas, conducted our meeting April 10-19. Three were baptized and four were restored. Two of the baptisms and two of the restorations were accomplished by his personal work during the meeting. This congregation never had better interest or larger crowds to attend a meeting. We asked him to return for a meeting next year. We take this opportunity to recommend Brother Stout to any congregation needing personal work and wanting to hear the gospel, with force, in its purity and simplicity.

C. D. Crouch, Box 117, Dyess, Arkansas, May 4: The church at Dyess seems to be making some progress. Our attendance has become better with the advent of spring. The contributions are about as good as could be expected in a credit-cotton farming sector. Practically all the male members here will render any public service when called upon. We have had three restorations lately, and we baptized four yesterday. Prospects are very good for others to render obedience to the Lord in the immediate future. I still have time that I could give to a series of meetings in June; also one in July and one in August, should my services be required in that capacity.

Nelson Stark, Box 94, Anton, Texas, May 6: The work of the church at Laurence Street progresses very nicely having had fifteen responses since January 1. W. R. Jones was with us in a gospel meeting March 23-29 which was enjoyed by the church here and a large number of visitors of this town and surrounding areas. Brother Jones does his work well and is appreciated wherever he goes. The meeting was followed by a ten night singing school which was conducted by Leroy Carver. This was the first singing school conducted by the church here in some time, but was attended so enthusiastically that the elders have asked Brother Carver to return next year for another singing school. Our Bible school attendance is running consistently above that of the membership of the church here and we are especially edified by the interest which is being made manifest by the young people. When passing this way stop and worship with us.

Floyd A. Decker, 2811 Creswell St., Shreveport, Louisiana, May 4: A group of brethren here are conducting an encampment for the children and young people of the Ark-La-Tex area. It is called "The Ark-La-Tex Christian Encampment." The encampment was held last year and will be conducted this year at Caney Lake, a beautiful lake six miles north of Minden, and about thirty-five miles from Shreveport. The encampment area is leased from the government for a period of two weeks. We have modern cabins, private swimming pool and recreational features "built in." Emphasis will be placed upon Bible teaching. Counsellors and teachers of highest Christian character are used. This gives an opportunity for our young people to have a vacation of the right type under Christian environment. June 14-26 is the time. Several from other parts of the country were with us last year. No mixed bathing. This is not "sponsored" by the church as such but rather by brethren who are interested in the betterment of our young people. It is non-profit—however, we did come out thirty-eight dollars ahead last year. The cost this year will be twenty-five dollars for the two weeks. For further information write or call Hugh L. Fuller, 635 Robinson Place, Shreveport, Louisiana. The work at Creswell goes well to date.

Nolan N. Wallace, Box 546, Tishomingo, Oklahoma, May 5: I haven't sent in a report since moving here on the first of January this year but we have been enjoying a very good work and excellent cooperation from all the members of this congregation. This congregation is just a little over a year old and is the result of an old trouble that had existed for years in another building with another preacher that had been their preacher, elder and dictator for about forty years. He had held down all progress of the church and since he was also a lawyer he had so arranged the papers on the church property that the congregation had to secure another place to meet. They left the preacher, the building and about five members and began trying to grow. At present, we have around seventy members and much growth has been observed in the past year. Six persons have been baptized into Christ in the past two weeks. One had been a Baptist for many years. This lady and her son and daughter were baptized last Sunday, thus making a complete Christian home as the husband and father was already a member. There was much sadness in the congregation last week because of the sudden passing of one of our beloved elders, Brother A. T. Evans. His death brought much sorrow but we believe it will serve to increase our zeal and faith and make us try to become more like he was in life. He was a devout and sincere Christian. At present we are in the process of selecting more elders and deacons. We are also to begin soon to stucco the outside of our meeting house which is already debt free in one year. The church at Durant is helping with the work here to the amount of $40.00 per month. I am preaching at three other small congregations through the week. There are about seven congregations in Johnston county and I am the only preacher in the county. Pray for us that we may continue to grow.

THE GREAT SALVATION

JUST OFF THE PRESS

BY A. C. HUFF

This little tract of 40 pages has just been revised and enlarged. It should be in the home of every Christian, and is a most wonderful piece of literature for distribution among your friends, both saved and unsaved. Read what Brother Max B. Crumley, Minister of the Central Church of Christ, Temple, Texas, has to say about it: "I wish for your book a wide circulation and heartily commend it to the church for their use in teaching the Gospel."

CONGRATULATIONS TO HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS!

No doubt you have been congratulated and commended many times in the past few weeks. You have been told that you are embarking on a pilgrimage—through life. You have seen older people stop and look at you, with a strange look in their eyes. Maybe you remind them of their youth—and the opportunities they passed by. They are hoping that you will take advantage of even greater opportunities. They realize the future will soon be resting on your shoulders, and they wonder if you will be ready for it. You can prepare yourself for your responsibilities to your fellowman and to God, if you are willing to grasp your opportunities now.

One of your greatest opportunities is that of attending HARDING COLLEGE, where the emphasis is on Christian ideals and on preparing young people for their responsibilities.

The Twentieth Century Christian will soon publish a special issue on "Giving." Such men as Tim O'Shanahan, F. W. Mattox, Gus Nichols, E. R. Harper, Clifton Rogers, John Banister, B. C. Goodpasture, Jack Meyer, Dean Brookshire, and Norvel Young will bring clear, concise lessons on this important New Testament subject. Well-known elders like Robert Bell and Dr. John G. Young of Dallas, and Otto Foster of Cleburne, Texas, will also be featured in this special issue. Churches can order these papers at ten cents each through the Firm Foundation, and distribute them to the members for their edification. Roland Dale Fry, Box 746, La Pryor, Texas, May 4: I am starting my work with the church at La Pryor with a meeting. The interest and attendance are starting out fine. I feel that everyone here is interested in seeing the church grow, and there is a fine opportunity to do a good work here. I enjoyed the work at Junction, Texas, for the past year and a half, and feel that I am leaving behind a group of fine Christian people and very dear friends. There were 18 additions to the church during my stay with them. I feel that the College Street Church of Christ is growing and that there is a good opportunity for a good gospel preacher to do a good work for the Lord. I will be in a meeting with the church at Can Can, Texas, the last of this month, and another at Batesville, Texas, the first two Sundays of June.

Clyde G. Smallwood, Woodward, Oklahoma, April 27: Three teen-age boys were baptized into Christ last night at the Hillcrest Church of Christ in Woodward, Oklahoma. The baptism took place in our new building which is not quite finished as yet.

Happily, the baptistry had been installed and was in working order. We intend to start meeting in the new building next Sunday, May 3, the Lord willing, even though it is not finished. Our attendance has grown steadily from about 65 to just over 100 in the year that we have been meeting in the rented hall. We are confident that we shall grow even more now that we have a meeting place that can be found. Success to the Firm Foundation. We solicit your prayers.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

A Kingdom of Righteousness

The Roman Empire was very unrighteous. No earthly kingdom is conceived for the purpose of promoting righteousness. Jesus said his kingdom was not of this world. It was not established after a worldly fashion. It is not promoted in a worldly fashion. A kingdom of this world could not last long, if it was established and promoted like the kingdom of heaven.

Paul says, "For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost" (Rom. 14:17). It is not a sin to simply eat and drink, but if the kingdom of God tries to attain distinction by offering fine food and drink to the public, that is a sin. Jesus drew a big crowd when he provided free food for the people by working miracles, but when it was apparent that the people were following him for loaves and fishes, he made it plain that his work was not just to furnish food for the people. He said, "Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled. Labor not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you; for him hath God the Father sealed" (Jno. 6:26, 27). And when Jesus expounded the meaning of this, it is said, "From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him" (Jno. 6:66).

And so the kingdom of God is not meat and drink. It was not established for that purpose. When anyone tries to use the kingdom of Christ to promote selfish and worldly ends, they do not walk worthy of the Lord. Rather the kingdom is righteousness, and peace, and joy. Christians now should not try to use the church to gratify worldly lust. It is a strange thing when people try to do evil scripturally—when they try to use the kingdom of God in a worldly way.

Righteousness means that the kingdom of God is a place to do right. In God's sight no one can do right outside of his kingdom. It is a place for Christian living. Then the kingdom is "peace"—it is not a place to fuss. And again Paul says it is "joy"—a place to be happy. When the features of God's kingdom are duly considered, everyone wants to be a citizen in it.

Sons of God

All who are in God's kingdom are children of God. It is hardly necessary to say that God has no children outside his kingdom. The purpose of being "born again" is to enter the kingdom of God. Jesus said to Nicodemus, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God" (Jno. 3:34). Explaining this to Nicodemus, Jesus said, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (Jno. 3:5).

In another place it is said, "He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name; which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God" (Jno. 1:11-13).

Those who are the children of God are heirs of God—"And if children, then heirs; heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ" (Rom. 8:17). Those who wish to please God must be loyal citizens of his kingdom. It is a disgrace in the eyes of men for one not to be loyal to the nation where he is a citizen. And it is a sin in the sight of God for one who professes to be a Christian to be disloyal to God's kingdom.

A Report On Efforts To Aid The Work In Germany

By the Elders, Broadway Church of Christ,
Lubbock, Texas

We are happy to report that the kingdom is spreading in Germany, that dozens of independent churches of the Lord in America are supporting and supervising their evangelists in that land and that there have been 13 German and nine English-speaking congregations established since the war. The Lord be praised for the power which the gospel has had in Germany. We are deeply grateful for having had the privilege of encouraging brethren to go to Germany, and churches to send them, and to help furnish tools for them.

We are constantly endeavoring to keep the brotherhood advised of what is being done in the German mission efforts. We publish and distribute "Germany for Christ" which is a report on the progress of the work. About two years ago the elders here published a complete detail of how the work was being done in a statement entitled, "Facts Regarding the Work in Germany," to which attention is again called. (If you would like a copy of it write us.) However, since unfounded accusations have recently been made, it seems expedient that this further statement be made at this time.

First, let us state emphatically that we have had absolutely nothing to do with the recall of any missionary from Germany. As elders of one local congregation, we have supported and supervised the work of three workers in Germany who have been perfectly willing to accept our supervision and advice. Although one of our workers returned from Germany, it was strictly a voluntary action and without any unpleasantness whatsoever. Other American congregations have supported and supervised other workers in Germany and the overwhelming majority of those workers have accepted the supervision of the elders without question. One or two, we understand, have rebelled against their elders and those elders, in proper action which we believe all Christians will acknowledge correct, have asked the workers involved to come home. We elders at Broadway had no knowledge whatever of any such action until it was announced, but we do stand firmly on the scriptural right and duty of the elders to exercise such authority.

What is the nature of the Bible training school conducted in Frankfurt? This seems to be the real basis of criticism that most recently developed. What is being done in Frankfurt is to train men to become preachers, elders, leaders, to lead singing, and young women to become Bible class teachers. Also training is offered to any person who has a desire to study the Bible intensively each day to better prepare himself for work in the Lord's kingdom. It is not a college in the sense of our Christian colleges in this country. If a person there needs further academic training he can enroll in the University of Frankfurt, which is just across the street from the church building in Frankfurt. Some have done this, while studying the Bible with our brethren. This is strictly a Bible training program for service. The brethren in and near Frankfurt teach these classes, in addition to their regular work as evangelists.

Some have made the argument that each church should train its own preachers. Certainly we agree that any church should be encouraged to do all it can to train preachers, but to say that one congregation cannot have such a Bible training program and allow any from other congregations to attend this training is to make a law where God did not make one. One or two have not only opposed these Bible training classes, but in order to be consistent have recently come out in opposition to Christian colleges as they exist in the states. This question of Christian colleges was thoroughly discussed and largely settled years ago by those who answered Sommer's arguments.

To further correct certain false impressions and statements that have been circulated, we will state that we do not have the oversight of the work in Germany, nor of the workers in Germany! The Broadway congregation at this time is supporting and supervising Brother and Sister Otis Gatewood, and no others in Germany. We supported Sister Helen Baker, a registered nurse, for four years in Germany, but she has now returned to the U. S. We will soon send another preacher from our own congregation.

Neither does Brother Gatewood have the general oversight of the work! He is only one of several preachers who have gone to Germany because they are interested in preaching God's word to that nation, according to Christ's commission, and they are all on an equal plane in the same way as are all the preachers for the different congregations in any American city. Each church which sends a worker to Germany makes the decision as to who is sent, where he works, and all other matters pertaining to the work of their evangelist in Germany. It is the intention of the Broadway church, and we feel sure the same is true of all the other churches who are sponsoring any of the work in Germany, and also the workers over there, to so train and teach those Christians to qualify themselves as elders, preachers, leaders and Bible class teachers, and also to contribute, so each congregation can become self-supporting as soon as that is possible. The workers would then move on to other fields.

Each of the congregations in Germany has its own business meetings, works out its budget, spends the funds from its collections, and handles all its own congregational affairs. The Broadway church has accepted a special obligation of helping the four congregations in Frankfurt until they are able to carry on their own work and become self-supporting. A different church in America has assumed a similar obligation in regard to each of the other congregations in Germany. A list of the other German congregations and the American church that sponsors it follows:

Hanau, Bob Helsten, evangelist, Berkeley, California, church; Mannheim, Dieter Alten, evangelist, Charlotte Avenue church, Nashville; Heidelberg, Richard Walker, evangelist, Herring Avenue church, Waco; Heppenheim, Fred Casimir, evangelist, Lewisburg, Tennessee, church; Wiesbaden, Loyd Collier, evangelist, 12th & Drexel Streets church, Oklahoma City; Karlsruhe, Reiner Kallus, evangelist, St. Elmo church, Chattanooga, and Grove Avenue church, San Antonio.

Stuttgart, John P. Hadley, evangelist, Pasadena, Texas, church; Munich, downtown, Jack Nadeau, evangelist, Skillman Avenue church, Dallas; Munich, Laim, Bob Hare, evangelist, Marietta, Ohio, church; Augsburg, Ted Nadeau, evangelist, Slaton, Texas, church.

In each instance the American church is supporting their evangelist, who works with the above congregation (or, in some cases other churches help supply the support). Money for use of individual congregations for such items as expenses beyond what the German congregation can pay, is sent directly to that congregation by the various sponsoring churches in America, or by others. Each of these efforts is as wholly independent of the Broadway church as is any church of the Lord in any city. We believe in the autonomy of each congregation of the Lord's people, whether it consists of a dozen members, or of hundreds.

Other workers not listed above, and their sponsoring church follows:

Weldon Bennett, Jackson Avenue church, Memphis; Russel Artist, Gladewater, Texas, church; Don Finto, Lamesa, Texas, church; Hugh Mingle, Strathmoor church, Detroit; Keith Coleman, Walnut Street church, Sherman, Texas; H. L. Schug, Lampasas, Texas, church; Roy Palmer, Culbertson Heights church, Oklahoma City (to return from America in June); Irene Johnson, 16th and Decatur Streets church, Washington, D.C.; Georgia Carver, 10th and Broad Streets church, Wichita Falls; Betty Raemer, Waxahachie, Texas, church.

Other full-time German workers are: Hans Nowak, Central church, Nashville; Rudi Walzbueck, Seymour, Texas, church; Dieter Fritsche, Central church, Denison, Texas; Gunter Rockstrau, English congregation, Wiesbaden, Germany; Klaus Goebels, English congregation, Frankfurt, Germany; Otto Miller, English congregation, Munich, Germany; H. Breighaupt, German congregation (Westend) Frankfurt, Germany; Gottfried Reichel, Harris and Irving Streets church, San Angelo, Texas (to return from America September 1).

Rene Chenaux-Repond, Fox and Lake Streets church, Carlsbad, New Mexico; Brother Kneist, a Christian brother in Utah; Dieter Goebels, Springfield, Tennessee, church; Margaret Dunn Goebels, Haldeman Avenue church, Louisville, Kentucky; Marjorie Rogers Casimir, Columbus, Ohio, church, 28 E. 7th Avenue.

Many other churches are helping these supply support for a worker. Still a large number are contributing liberally to supply these workers with tools to do a better job, such as buildings, tracts, Bibles, tents, paying for tent meetings, supporting the training program of training preachers, etc.

Although money may be sent to a missionary, if you send a check to Germany with a 15c airmail stamp, it still takes about three weeks to get credit for it there. The check must clear your bank before the German bank gives the church credit. If one sends an International money order a fee is deducted and the church receives German money. Often the brethren need American money. We can transfer any amount of money for immediate credit through the bank here in one day with no cost but a telegraph fee. Then, too, money contributed in the United States to a church is a deductible item on the income tax report. Money sent by an individual to any church or individual outside the U. S. is not legally deductible.

Most of the money sent to us is sent to be used on a certain project or building. Appeals are made for a given need such as purchase of a tent, buildings, etc. Certainly in all instances the contributors have a choice in saying how their funds are used. Some is sent with instructions to be used where we see the need is greatest, but all money is sent for use in Germany. Raising money to supply these buildings (in many cases), tracts, literature, tents, etc., has been undertaken by the Broadway church. For money not designated for a certain use, someone must decide how it is spent and for what purpose. When a group of elders undertake any project, whether the funds are contributed solely by the local congregation or others participate also, such as an effort to establish a church in a neighboring city and erect a building, conducting an orphan home, etc., certainly they assume the obligation of wisely supervising the expenditure of all funds contributed for such a project. Thus we have accepted the responsibility of forwarding funds which are earmarked for a specific work and of seeing that these funds are used wisely in harmony with the wishes of the contributors. When funds are not earmarked, but are given to be used where they are most needed in Germany we have accepted the responsibility of using them in supplying the tools for the workers as listed above. When another tent is needed, or more literature, if the money is available we authorize the expenditure of the money. If money is not available we may make appeals for contributions for that given purpose.

In our supervision in the supplying of these things for the use of the workers, we do not decide such details as who will use a tent that has been provided on a given date, what tract will be printed, how many or what printer will do the work. We have asked some of the brethren over there to make the decisions about details in providing these things which are made available to every worker in Germany. Sometimes an individual has been asked to look after such details. From time to time certain men have been sought out for the benefit of advice from the men on the field to give counsel on such problems as erection of buildings, publishing of tracts, work of the Bible training school in Frankfurt. Their function has been to give advice and consultation, not to control funds and not to oversee any missionary or church. Any such group is temporary in nature. For example, two of the men who are now serving in this capacity are moving to other cities to work and so this particular group as such is automatically being dissolved by their moves.

We do not believe that it is right or proper to set up a committee in Germany or some other country to act as a board to receive and disperse funds sent to them. We believe that the local church is God's organization for carrying out the great commission. We believe that independent, autonomous churches of Christ may cooperate without in any way losing their autonomy. It is clear that the churches did so cooperate in collecting money over a long period of time to be taken to help the poor saints in Judæa (2 Cor. 8, 9).

As stated previously, the support of every worker is supplied by (sometimes with the help of others) and sent to him by his sponsoring church. Also, the various needs for ordinary expenses above what the German congregation is able to contribute is supplied by the various churches in this country. We have no more connection with such funds than we do with the funds of any one of the thousands of churches in America. But who gets the use of the tracts and tents? Every worker in Germany does, either American or German. All anyone has to do is to ask for tracts and all that are needed are supplied for the asking (if the money is available to print what is needed). To be sure no one is to prevent any one of the workers from printing any tract he chooses in any quantity desired, nor to purchase a tent for their exclusive use. Some do print bulletins and other literature. We are only anxious to help through encouraging Christians everywhere to be generous in their giving so as to supply the things to make the missionaries' work more effective, when we are able and such help is desired.

Many in this country have printed tracts in large quantities which are sold to churches for distribution, at a cost much lower than anyone could print smaller quantities for their use only. In Germany, tracts are supplied to each worker without cost to them, made possible by contributions of Christians in America who are interested in teaching a nation of people through the printed word whom they have never seen.

What should be the relationship between an evangelist and his elders? Do elders have any obligation to oversee the work of an evangelist they support? Certainly an evangelist should be accountable to the elders of the church that supports him, whether he be in the same city or 5,000 miles away. With airmail, cable and telephone facilities, elders may oversee an evangelist who is working several thousand miles away, the same as if he were only 25 miles distant. When an evangelist refuses to submit to the elders and denies they have anything to say or do about what he does, where does that place him? Does that not place him above the elders, of bishops?

Let us further consider where such false teaching leads to. An evangelist could (and some have) depart from the true doctrine, engage in practices and teach contrary to doctrine the elders would permit at home. If the evangelist does not acknowledge his responsibility to the elders, who is there to recall him? Elders who are truly shepherds under the Great Shepherd will not allow departures in doctrine or in practice of an evangelist they support, whether he be working with the home congregation or in some distant city.

We have always maintained that money can be sent directly to a field, or sent through some church. But let us consider what it can lead to "require" or "demand" that all money be sent direct. In the first place it is unscriptural to "require" or "demand" that all funds must be sent directly to an individual in the field, since we have examples in the New Testament of funds being sent in other ways. In the second place it is unwise for any one man to be responsible for large sums of money, to spend as he desires, without supervision or consultation (the Lord knew best in setting a plurality of elders over a church). If a man should be successful in raising considerable amounts it immediately places him under suspicion and criticism, and a good and honorable man may thus be ruined, as far as his usefulness is concerned. Brother Gatewood did not want to accept the responsibility for all the money that was contributed. In this he was following the example of Paul. Even though he was an apostle, he would not accept a similar responsibility in handling the funds contributed by the churches to be sent to Jerusalem, but another was selected to travel with them "for we take thought for things honorable, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men" (2 Cor. 8:21).

We wish to state further that every dollar sent to Broadway church is sent to Germany without one dollar being taken out to pay any kind of expense, such as travel expense for Brother Gatewood in raising money, printing of reports, postage, secretary's salary, etc. All such expenses are paid by the Broadway church so every dollar sent to us is forwarded on to Germany. The Broadway church is interested in mission work everywhere and has been active in encouraging others to do more. As for ourselves, we are supporting missionaries in the U. S. as well as in Germany. Without any desire to appear to be boastful, for we, too, are falling short of our own capabilities, our 1953 budget calls for $100,000 to be contributed by members of Broadway church for work outside our own congregation, for mission work, for orphan homes and for benevolence. Of this amount, $18,200.00 is to be spent in the German work for salaries of the missionaries we send, the above expenses, and the balance to apply on a building there. Our total investment in the German work to date is about $100,000. So we are not asking others to support something we ourselves are not supporting liberally.

To be sure, great things have been done by the Lord through the brethren working in Germany in less than six years, when compared to our past accomplishments. But just how big are they? Some may say we should not try to do such big things, we should be content with establishing another congregation occasionally, and baptizing a few people each month. Christians now living have the opportunity, the money and the talent to carry the gospel of Christ into all nations in the next 25 years, if we put these to full use, coupled with zeal. But suppose we of today are content to use only a small amount of our resources, establish the church in a few new places as we go along, and thus take another 100 or 500 years to do as Christ commands in preaching to every nation, then who is responsible for the loss of multiplied millions of people who would go into eternity unsaved, but who might have accepted Christ if they had only had a chance? Let no one be guilty of inferring that anything "too big" is being done, when we stop to consider our potentials, and also the scope of Christ's commission.

We solicit the prayers of brethren everywhere for the work in Germany, and for all the workers and churches who are helping to further the cause in that country. We are determined to press on in this work which the Lord is greatly blessing. To God be all the glory in the church. It is our earnest desire that multiplied thousands of Germans will obey the gospel and many hundreds of churches will be established in our time!—Elders, Church of Christ, Lubbock, Texas.

Try Expository Preaching (No. 1)

A. H. Kennamer

(Note: This is the first of several articles written by invitation. We believe preachers will especially benefit from them, and others as well.—M. Norvel Young).

We gospel preachers have long been noted for scriptural preaching. This observation is frequently made by unbiased and open-minded unbelievers who are somewhat interested in the truth. Especially is it made in contrast with denominational preachers who find it more convenient to tread lightly around certain texts.

The positive benefit of adhering closely to the Scriptures in preaching is, it proclaims the truth of God as it is in Jesus. We have a definite advantage over sectarian preachers in that we do not fear the texts that give the name of the church, describe its organization, the name of its members and its doctrine. We readily accept such terms as "churches of Christ," "church of God," "body of Christ," "general assembly and church of the firstborn," as applicable to the New Testament church. We don't hunt in vain for such names as "Methodist," "Baptist," "Presbyterians," but rather rejoice in being called "Christians," "brethren," "disciples," "believers," "saints." We don't have to try to justify the offices of "stewards," diocesan elders or bishops and deacons without elders or bishops, but readily acknowledge that each church had its own elders and deacons (Phil. 1:1). There is great comfort in being able to find the doctrine one preaches in the New Testament. It imparts great boldness in its proclamation. How does one continue to palliate his hungering desire to read about the church of which he is a member in the New Testament? How do pedo-Baptists content themselves when they read about baptism being a burial (Rom. 6:4; Col. 2:12), but never find even an intimation that it could be sprinkling? I do not envy the preacher that has the task of substantiating sprinkling before the scrutinizing eyes of a sincere seeker for truth. He can read of "burial" from the divine oracle. He must learn of "sprinkling" from a human source.

This preaching directly from the Scriptures imparts unlimited confidence to the preacher in the assurance that Christ is with him (Matt. 28:19). It still has the authority of heaven and earth, and "no man shall set on thee to harm thee" in the polemic field.

Another advantage of expository preaching is its freedom from sensationalism and catchy and misleading subjects. The sensationalist, however, will try to embellish every truth, whether simple or profound, with his particular brand marks. Such is an abuse of the expository method; nor does it lend itself so easily to such as does the topical method. A divine cure for sensationalism and showmanship is the admonition of Paul: "Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer each one" (Col. 4:6). To a preacher he wrote: "But speak thou the things which befit the sound doctrine"; and again, "in all things showing thyself an ensample of good works; in thy doctrine showing uncorruptness, gravity, sound speech, that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of us" (Titus 2:1, 7, 8).

What Is Expository Preaching?

F. M. Meyer defines expository preaching as "the conservative treatment of some book or extended portion of the Scriptures, on which the preacher has concentrated head and heart, brain and brawn, over which he has thought—and prayed, until it has yielded up its inner secret, and the spirit of it has passed into his spirit." Dr. M. E. Dodd says "it is the unfolding, opening up and laying out before the people the Holy Scriptures." He adds a wise comment: "Reading a chapter and commenting upon it verse by verse with vain repetitions of pious platitudes is not expository preaching."

Dr. Dodd recommends highly that such be used in gospel meetings or revivals. Being a Baptist he naturally suggests a study of the book of John. It would be interesting to note the results of his using the book of Acts in one of his revivals, if he truly "unfolded, opened up and laid before the people the Holy Scriptures contained in this book of conversions!" How eloquently he could expound on the establishment of the church from Acts the second chapter; and also the conversion of the Pentecostans from the same chapter, even showing that baptism is "for the remission of sins." Would he have Paul looking for the First Baptist Church in Damascus or for those "that were of the way"? What emphasis he could give on the jailor's being baptized "the same hour of the night" instead of waiting until the end of the revival or until Easter Sunday. In Acts 22 he would need plenty of running room so that undue attention would not need to be called to the fact that Paul arose, was baptized "and washed away his sins," instead of confessing to Ananias that he believed that God had for Christ's sake had forgiven him, perhaps along the road.

Baptist preachers as well as Presbyterians and all others who are Calvinistically inclined would find expository preaching difficult in Acts 8 in the case of Simon. That he was saved cannot be hidden, for the text says, "And Simon also himself believed: and being baptized, he continued with Philip; and beholding signs the great miracles wrought, he was amazed." Even if they would deny his baptism had anything to do with his salvation, they still must accept him, for he believed, and according to their doctrine, that was all that was necessary. But, if one can't sin after believing so as to be lost, how do they account for the fact, that, after attempting to buy the Holy Spirit with money, Peter said: "Thy silver perish with thee, because thou hast thought to obtain the gift of God with money. Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter: for thy heart is not right before God. Repent of this thy wickedness, and pray the Lord, if perhaps the thought of thy heart shall be forgiven thee. For I see that thou art in the gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity." I do not wish to spend eternity with one who is perishing, who is filled with the gall of bitterness, and kept in the bond of iniquity.

From this, however, I am the more convinced that expository preaching from the book of Acts, really would be suitable for gospel meetings. For instance, suppose nine days in a meeting were devoted to the book of Acts. One could take three chapters each day and four on one day and complete the entire book. Thinking of the book in divisions of three chapters such subjects as the "Conversion of the Pentecostans," "The Benevolence of the Church," or "Having All Things Common," "Restoration of the Erring," the several cases of conversions, "Is Your Baptism Valid" (Acts 19), Cases of non-conversion: Felix and Agrippa, readily come to mind.

To these general themes that lie on the surface can be added a number of other themes that are familiar to every preacher: "The Worship of the Church," Acts 2:42; "What I Have, that Give I Thee," Acts 3:6; "The Baptism of the Holy Spirit," "The Way," "Cleaving Unto the Lord" and many more. These themes can be made to fit almost any need of any church or an audience of unbelievers.

Let it not be thought that we would need to restrict expository preaching to the book of Acts. We could readily go with Dr. Dodd to the book of John. No other text, perhaps, is more familiar than John 3:16. Linking that with the 36th verse one could expound on the love of God on the one hand, and faith and obedience on the part of man on the other hand. One could weave the purpose of the whole book around the text of John 20:30, 31. Suitable lessons are likewise to be found throughout all the gospel records. For a sinful church 1 Corinthians could hardly miss them. Ask such a congregation to read the portion of scripture that will serve as the lesson. They will thereby receive more fully its impact of truth.

It occurs to me, that if denominational preachers would restrict themselves to expository preaching that they themselves would forget their creeds and the members certainly would allow them to perish.

A Schedule of Reading

It will foster great interest in the lessons, when preaching a series of expository sermons, if the preacher will announce each week in advance the portion of the Scriptures from which he will take the sermons for the following Lord's day and ask the congregation to read that portion. Make it at least two or three chapters a day of reading so they feel some challenge; then check on them to see how many have co-operated. Be loyal to them too by sticking to expository lessons actually taken from the assigned Scriptures. Most Christians realize they should have regular habits of Bible reading, but they let other duties crowd it out usually. This will be an added inducement. We all are gregarious enough to want to get along with the crowd. Reading large portions consecutively gives real meaning and has a cumulative effect. As one has observed, "nothing but the preacher's laziness could make the thing monotonous."

Lessons are much better received when the congregation is prepared for them. They invariably take greater interest if they have had a previous acquaintance with the text, one that is still fresh in their minds. The pulpit, as far as we know, is the only institution in the land where nothing is required by way of preparation for the teacher's message. From elementary school to the University, the student must prepare lessons. Educators must have found that it is better, else the professors would try to pour the knowledge into the minds of the students. Whether the preacher's sermons are more powerful or not, if he fastens their truths in the minds and hearts of his auditors, they will be more effective. What could be accomplished if we experienced a wide-spread movement of searching the Scriptures?

Majestic Hymnal

1. This Hymnal has been published at a time most opportune among the churches.

2. This call for a new song book is emphasized in the fact that so many thousands of persons have been added to the churches of Christ and that so many new congregations have been established during the recent years.

3. The older hymn books have been used a long time and not all of them have been satisfactory. Some are too large and contain too many songs that are never used; others are too small to provide a sufficient variety of singable songs for all occasions.

4. In recent years far too few new songs have appeared. Among the churches of Christ there are many capable song writers whose compositions have received too little notice. Some of our younger composers have supplied some material and "Majestic Hymns" is publishing a large number of new songs. These will satisfy a demand of many churches and will be a merited recognition of the efforts of several young song leaders and writers.

5. Calls for new songs for special drills have too long passed unnoticed. Young people especially have been anxious for this new feature.

6. This book provides an exceptionally large number of invitation songs, funeral hymns, and for other special occasions.

Studies In Galatians (No. 13)

R. C. Bell

In the last two chapters of Galatians especially, Paul exhorts his readers to apply his teaching by giving the doctrine of sanctification (personal, practical righteousness) by grace an honest trial. In effect he says something like this: "Your false teachers tell you that, unless the principle of law is woven in with the principle of grace, the moral standards of the church will suffer, and the highest type of Christians will not be produced. But I, Paul, (with all my apostolic knowledge and authority, which was proved in the first of this letter), tell you that the workings of grace alone will sanctify as well as justify men; and that any admixture of the legal principle will fatally pervert it." Paul insists and warns that the two systems being "contrary, the one to the other" will not coalesce, but that pure, unmixed grace will sustain standards, fulfill the law, and make Christians of the highest order.

Christ the Emancipator

"For freedom did Christ set you free." "Everyone that committeth sin is the bondservant (slave) of sin . . . If therefore the Son shall make you free, you shall be free indeed" (John 8:34-36). If men are left in Adam's sin and their own sins, being slaves of sin by nature and by practice, imprisoned in themselves their doom is eternally sealed. The story of the Negro slave who, upon being sold by a brutal master, heard his new master graciously say, "My purpose in buying you is to set you free," illustrates Christ's freeing men. Christian freedom is not incidental; Christ's purpose in buying enslaved men is to make them free. "For ye, brethren, were called for freedom" (Gal. 5:13). "I am the door; by me if man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out (freedom of a child in and around the house of its parents), and shall find pasture . . . I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly" (John 10:9, 10). In these simple words, Christ offers men, in the language of another, "freedom, fodder, and fullness."

"Be not entangled again in a yoke of bondage." Could the Negro man, after being free for a time, return to his former, hard master? Yet, this is what the Galatians were doing. Their being circumcised and building hope on the law, nullified grace as though "Christ died for naught," and made them debtors "to do the whole law." Thus, they were being ensnared again in the network of legalism, for Judaism, like the heathenism from which Christ had delivered them, was also a legal system—a "ministration of death." To be thus circumcised was to reinstate law, which was powerless either to prevent or forgive sin. It was to be "severed from Christ" and "fallen away from grace" altogether.

Christians today without falling into Judaism, heathenry, or gross sins, may nonetheless fall "away from grace" into an entanglement of dead formality, Pharisaic self-righteousness, and Christless human merit, "holding a form of godliness, but having denied the power thereof"—form without power. In principle, this is the same deadly perversion of the gospel that filled Paul with apprehension for his "little children" in Galatia, and led him tearfully to warn them that "a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump." May not this powerless form of religion be a termite, now eating out the inner, spiritual life and strength of the church, leaving a hollow, outer shell to collapse later? Christ said to his church in Sardis: "I know thy works, that thou hast a name that thou livest, and thou art dead" (Rev. 3:1). Sardis must have been bustling with committees, programs, and various activities, a church much alive and gratifying to the flesh, but dead to Christ. Could his church today be drifting into such a state?

Freedom and Obedience

Freedom is not free; nor can it ever be had at a bargain price. It may be possessed only at the same, original, high price. Like peace and happiness, it is not to be sought directly, but as a by-product. Obedience, not freedom, is the primary law of life. When a carnal man seeks freedom by flouting law and authority and by living as he pleases, he soon finds himself physically and morally enslaved. But when men live in obedience to the laws of life, freedom follows as a shadow follows its objects. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God . . . and all these things (including freedom) shall be added unto you." Seek freedom first, and it escapes. Men are free only within bounds—within the frame of law. They are chained back in freedom by law; and the more lawful, the freer men are.

Christian freedom has both a negative and a positive aspect. Men are freed from some things and freed for other things. Christ liberates men from the yoke of traditional, creedal and ceremonial law, for it chokes the freedom he proposes to give. He frees men from the curse of the moral law—from the penalty, power and practice of sin; and from the fear of self, the world, death and hell. Men who fear God rightly, know no other fear. On the positive side, Christianity brims with freedom. Christ gives men the liberty to search the Scriptures with open, yet cautious mind, and in free conscience to accept what they find. Christianity is on the way to dissolution when Christians are afraid to follow their conscience. In Christ men have liberty and privilege to worship, to work, to ponder, to wonder, to wait and dream, to do the right thing, to grow and ripen, to "press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus," and to go on endlessly with God unto perfection even as he is perfect. Verily freedom, unto speechless wonderment, "above all that we ask or think!"

The secret of Christian freedom is that a Christian chooses to go Christ's way. He believes that since Christ's and his own interests are identical, either both are served or neither is served; that Christ's will for him is his own will at its highest and best. Therefore, when he chooses Christ's way, he also has his own way. And what is this but freedom? It is the blessed freedom of a Christ-captivated soul—a new kind of slavery, to be sure. But inasmuch as man by purposive creation is a dependent being, the more dependent, the more fulfilled and freer he is. God has worked out a unique plan by which Christ's slave becomes his own master! Christ gets the essential law of life obeyed, human nature fulfilled, and his slave in possession of life abounding—all this without slavish drudgery or "dragging of feet" on the part of the slave. "To him be the glory forever." "In willing chains and sweet captivity," a Christian is the only free, fulfilled happy man. Who could be a lukewarm Christian?

What Does The Bible Say?

"I Have Much People In This City"

Have you ever become discouraged while trying to do right? Have you ever wondered if others are interested in the gospel or in being saved? If you have, you have had an experience similar to that of Paul's in the city of Corinth.

Paul came to Corinth and began to make his living by making tents. He preached every Saturday seeking to persuade the Jews and the Greeks that Jesus was the Christ. The Jews opposed him and he turned to the Gentiles.

Paul's failure to win many of his own people was one of his greatest sorrows. He once said that he was willing himself to be accursed, if he could win his own nation. He did win many of them to Christ.

When he turned to the Gentiles, "many believed and were baptized." Paul evidently needed some encouragement, however, for the Lord spake to him by vision and said, "Be not afraid, but speak and hold not thy peace, for I am with thee and no man shall set on thee to hurt thee, for I have much people in this city."

Paul stayed in Corinth a year and six months teaching the word of God to those people. He was encouraged by the Lord and by knowing that the Lord was with him. I believe that the Lord has many people in the city of Lubbock. People, who today care nothing for Christ and the church. In the last decade it has been my privilege to witness the name of Jesus Christ confessed by hundreds of people in this city and to see them put the Lord on in baptism. One of the great encouragements to any Christian in seeking to spread the kingdom of God is the fact that many people do change.

May I make a special appeal today to those who read this message from week to week, and who have not yet obeyed the gospel. May I urge you to seek to know the Lord's will by reading your New Testament and then to have the courage to publicly confess your faith in Christ, to turn from sin and will to do God's way, and to let faith lead you through the act of baptism and day by day through a Christian life. The Lord has much people in this city. We are praying that in our time we may see thousands in the city of Lubbock deny themselves and take up their cross and follow Jesus.

College Station

Church of Christ

The A&M Church of Christ, College Station, Texas, opened their new building May 10 with an overflow crowd of over 425 people. This is over twice the seating capacity of the old building. A number of parents of Texas A&M College students were present and the opening service was largely in the hands of students, which make up two-thirds of the College Station church membership. The church was founded primarily in the interest of students, and this is still the chief mission of the group.

Following the morning worship the group went to the Bryan Country Club for a basket dinner. At this period of fellowship, many of the parents of students were able to get better acquainted with the resident members of the church. At 6 P.M. the Central Church of Christ, Houston, Texas, presented its chorus in a very fine program of religious song. This chorus is under the direction of Brother Paul Easley.

Though the chorus is only three months old, it presented a program that thrilled the hearts of all who heard.

At 7:15 the same evening Brother Carl Spain, evangelist of the Central church in Houston, preached the first in a four-night series of gospel sermons. The meeting was well attended considering the rain storms and the simple truth of God's word was proclaimed with power and love.

The repaired and enlarged building was designed and supervised by Brother A. M. Martin, son of the late A. D. Martin—founder of the College Station church in 1922. Brother Martin has contributed all his services without charge and has done an outstanding piece of work. The beautiful simplicity of the old building has been maintained and many improvements have been made as to the building's utility.

EDITORIAL

G. H. F. SHOWALTER, Editor

"THE CHURCHES HAD REST . . .
AND WERE EDIFIED"

The inspired historian drops in a rather casual statement in Acts 9:31 as he details some of the progress of the gospel of Christ and the strength, influence and power of the truth as exemplified in the lives of those who constituted the membership of the churches of Christ at the time at which he wrote. He says: "Then had the churches rest throughout all Judæa, and Galilee, and Samaria, and were edified; and walking in the fear of the Lord, and in the comfort of the Holy Ghost, were multiplied." They had been persecuted. Referring to this the divine penman had just said that there was a great persecution in Jerusalem, and that with the exception of the apostles they were all scattered abroad in these very regions of Judæa and Samaria, and, of course, including Galilee.

There are times when the brethren need a rest. These brethren in the provinces of the whole of Palestine, and particularly at Jerusalem were being persecuted, the Judaizers were opposing them, not with sound argument, nor with safe and scriptural reasoning, but rather with an obstinate spirit of criticism and faultfinding that was neither agreeable to the writings of the Hebrew prophets, nor compatible with the teaching and miracles of Christ. But Paul was converted, persecution subsided, and the Jews were confounded as their strongest leader in the person of Saul, turned all the force of his natural and acquired intellectual resources to the support of a cause he once opposed with all the power of his education, mental training, and his consistent, persistent, conscientious life.

Think of what Paul meant to the cause of Christ at such a time! Paul was a man of honor and good conscience. Not all of his associates in the persecution of Christians could boast of these lofty and key qualities of character. As a result of these elements of success in any good cause, he "mightily convinced the Jews, and that publicly, showing by the Scriptures that Jesus was Christ." He and his associates turned the world upside down, at least in the minds of his excited hearers. Paul's work in the gospel, at the time he carried on for the glorious cause of Christ was marvelous for its transformations in the hearts and minds of men, and its resultant extension of the faith and of actual multitudes being led to the obedience of the faith. And the whole known world recognized this great work, life and influence for a worthy cause. The unbelieving Jews were bewildered as they listened to his fervor in his quotations from the Hebrew prophets, and pointed out their fulfillment not only in the birth of Christ, but in his teaching, the signs, wonders, and miracles which he performed; his crucifixion, death, burial and resurrection; his numerous appearances to many of his followers alive, after his passion, and finally, his glorious and triumphant ascension to the right hand of God, in majesty in the heavens, where he must rule till all the enemies of truth are subdued by the power of the gospel, and are made submissive to the authority of the exalted Ruler of the everlasting kingdom through the countless cycles of unending ages.

To this good day, the Jews have been unable to explain the life and love and power of Paul on any reasonable hypothesis, except that Jesus Christ is indeed the divine Son of God, and the peerless Sovereign of the everlasting kingdom foretold by Daniel the prophet. I frequently think of what the late Dr. Rosenbaum, an eminent and scholarly Rabbi of Cincinnati, once said to me in regard to Paul. He said in substance, that the ideas of Christianity—that Jesus was the Messiah—would never have survived had it not been for the conversion of Saul of Tarsus, and what he did in his preaching of Christ as the Messiah. Too much credit and too much honor for Paul, of course, but the Jews who reject the gospel are still seeking an explanation of the life of Christ—the life that is unparalleled in the history of the world.

But the churches had "rest," a relief from persecutions without, and wrangles and troubles within; there followed next the edification with its strength, power and influence. This "edification" was accomplished because the churches worked together in love, and marvelous results were accomplished in the expansion of the great work of the Lord in the salvation of the lost through Christ. Edification means spiritual growth for the body of Christ. Its results were that by walking in the fear of the Lord, and the comfort of the Holy Ghost these churches were "multiplied." Study this word; note its meaning as shown in the lexicons and dictionaries. It is an increase, but it is a large increase. Addition increases, but multiplication greatly increases. If there are four congregations, and four more are added, that will make eight, and that is addition; but if the same four congregations are multiplied by four that will make sixteen. These churches were "multiplied," and this is a strong term in the Greek and in the English, alike. The reason they were multiplied is that they were edified, built up on their most holy faith and in all the Christian graces, and the lofty benevolences of heaven that were brought to earth and exemplified in the life of Christ Jesus our Lord. If we could secure a genuine rest and relief from all the wrangles and disturbances originated and introduced by designing and selfish men who suppose that gain is godliness, and who care more for the fleeting things of time, and the pleasures of this life, that soon are to perish, than for all the sublime philanthropies of heaven—if these could be and were eliminated from the churches, by faithful and godly elders and evangelists, the churches would increase, not by some small additions here and there, but would register an increase by the multiplication table as in the days of the inspired apostles, and the results would be great, grand and glorious in the exaltation of the worthy name of Christ, the adorable Redeemer of the recreant race of man. There are lots of good people in the world, people who would make good Christians, if the gospel is preached to them in love, and the churches were living up to the high standard of the law of Christ, in purity of life, a 100 percent abstinence from all the evils that are abhorred in the law of Christ under which we live, and in all our behavior toward people in the church and out of it, exercise that patient forbearance and love which are conditions of our final entrance into the unutterable and everlasting joys of the upper world. But so poorly informed are many in the church that they go into a real case of excitement if they learn that large numbers are becoming obedient to the faith. They are so accustomed to seeing so little done and doing nothing themselves, that they think there is surely something wrong when they see multitudes baptized and churches multiplied.

"Africa Is Our Future"

Frank J. Dunn

A few days ago W. H. Stone, one of the elders of the Peak and East Side church, arranged a loan through one of the Dallas banks to enable our sending $21,000 to Pretoria, South Africa, for purchase of church property. When told of our purpose, the president of the bank commended the plan and stated, "We all know that Africa is our future." Financial interests, foreign governments, religious groups—all are looking to Africa as the future center of the world's wealth and civilization.

On May 4, Life magazine brought out a special issue devoted exclusively to "Africa: a Continent in Ferment," the introduction being "an eloquent dispatch from Alexander Campbell, chief Time-Life correspondent in Africa."

"Largest of the continents after Asia, Africa is where some five million whites rule some 175 million brown and black people on a quarter of the earth's surface . . . This year . . . the flames of nationalism scorched into wakefulness the native African's long lost pride, licked at the flimsy framework of white mastery. The split in Africa between rulers and ruled widened and became part of the split in the world . . . The rising tide of nationalism—and perhaps communism—seemed to take the whites by surprise" (p. 9).

"Africa is capable of producing a great supply of food and minerals. The world gets 70 percent of its palm oil and 68 percent of its cocoa from Africa, and large areas of Africa could produce quantities of citrus fruits, sugar and cotton. Minerals are abundant, Africa already supplying 22 percent of the world's copper, 55 percent of its gold, and 98 percent of its diamonds. Capital to develop this wealth, which Africa has always lacked, is beginning to pour in from many nations. The U. S. government alone has contributed directly and indirectly $356 million to regions plus $392 million to specific countries, and by 1950, U. S. private investment had reached $349 million" (p. 12).

Every type of people from the most primitive native bushmen to the most highly civilized Afrikaners (Dutch settlers) are to be found there. Of the 37 countries of Africa, only five are free. One of these is Egypt, whose civilization goes back more than 4,000 years. Another is Liberia, Africa's only Republic, founded in 1822 by emigrants from the U. S.—freed Negro slaves returning to their ancestral continent.

The problem of Africa is that of finding for the black man a definite place in his rapidly developing civilization—a place which will recognize his equality. An editorial in the May 4th issue of Life states, "Africa is coming to birth . . . In working toward decent race relations in America, the white man's problem has been to remain true to his own best lights, such as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence, acceptable to whites and blacks alike. By the same token, no white definition of African civilization will come true without a universal idea (emphas mine—FJD) that commands black assent" (p. 178).

No idea—no way of life—offers to the problem of Africa the correct solution except the simple gospel of Christ. No group or agency other than the church can so effectively and impartially inculcate this system. We have the answer, the means, and the opportunity. Do we also have the conviction and the desire to lead Africa out of darkness, savagery and pestilence into light, freedom and life in Christ? The countries of Africa are our future; we are their only hope!

The Union of South Africa offers the greatest opportunity for launching a long-range program of evangelization in Africa. It is a country twice the size of Texas, one of the continent's five free lands, where in the last three years, four white, English-speaking churches have been established by our American brethren. There are at least 30 native and mixed congregations there also.

The largest of the white congregations is at Pretoria, the administrative capital of the Union, where the Prime Minister, Dr. D. F. Malan, and other officials have their offices in the Union Buildings, the most beautiful Capitol in the world. Just one block away the Pretoria church has purchased property on which they hope to erect a small auditorium.

The Peak and East Side church fully supports Brother Martelle Petty in Pretoria and we have agreed to raise $17,000 to make possible the erection of their church building, in addition to $10,000 which we have given to it.

A contribution from you NOW, in this early, crucial hour of Africa's rapidly developing frontier, will be an investment in the saving of souls, eventually for the entire continent. Send contributions to A. D. Jones, treasurer, Peak and East Side Church of Christ, Dallas, Texas, or to Martelle Petty, Box 1861, Pretoria, South Africa, (postage 5c; Airmail, 25c).

FROM THE HARVEST FIELD

William O. Hall, 306 W. Taliaferro, Madill, Oklahoma, May 5: Two baptisms at Milburn, Oklahoma, May 1.

R. L. Yancey, 1816 Harrington Avenue, Fort Worth, Texas, May 5: After nearly three years' work with the Saginaw church I am now ready for meetings or regular work anywhere I can be of service in the work of the Lord.

J. Pat Salyer, Lincoln, Arkansas, May 7: Work continues good. Our new building will soon be completed. We will have the finest meeting place in town. Brother and Sister Black, formerly of Raton, New Mexico, have moved here. They are fine help. When you come this way, visit with us.

S. C. Kinningham, 814—30th Avenue S. W., Calgary, Alberta, Canada, May 2: Four were baptized in our services this week, one of whom was formerly a Catholic. Our weekly newspaper articles serve as a means of getting the truth before thousands of people who would not hear it otherwise. L. J. Anderson of Kalispell, Montana, will do the preaching in our meeting which begins Sunday.

Thitt S. Teddie, Box 336, Ennis, Texas: One placed membership with the Ennis congregation May 3. Our audiences are increasing each Lord's day. There were 200 in the Bible classes yesterday. Our vacation Bible school begins early in June. I will teach in the Normal Music Institute at McLean, Texas, June 22, through July 3. I am to hold a gospel meeting at Buffalo, Texas, July 5-10.

Frank Traylor, Tokyo, Japan, April 20: I arrived safely in Tokyo and from here I go to Korea shortly. I spoke yesterday (through a fine interpreter) for the Yoyogi-Hachiman congregation (where Geo. Gurganus preaches). More than 100 were present, and such an inspiring service. At 4 p.m. I spoke in the New Kaijo chapel. A sailor from Tennessee was restored at that service. Our members in the armed forces are holding fast for the Lord.

B. C. McCarley, San Angelo, Texas, May 4: Yesterday we began a gospel meeting here at Santa Rita with Brother Paul Southern of Abilene doing the preaching. We had good crowds and fine services. April 29th I closed a good meeting with the Central congregation in Denison with five restored and four baptized. Brother Wm. H. Parsons is an untiring worker and doing a good work with this church. April was the best month in our Bible school work in the history of the congregation. Our Vacation Bible school begins June 1.

M. C. Cuthbertson, P. O. Box 6343, Tucson, Arizona, May 9: Our work goes well at the Country Club Road Church of Christ. Three placed membership and three came from the Christian church last Sunday. A lady was baptized Monday evening, another Wednesday evening. Audiences good at all services. Held a meeting with the Hayward Church of Christ, Hayward, California, during the last half of April in which I did the preaching. One man was baptized and one restored. The Hayward church is a good one. Brother Erven Harris is the preacher and is doing an excellent work there. He came from the Christian church some years ago, but is strong in the faith.

The churches and preachers of that section were nice to us during the meeting. I spoke once on Thursday evening, on our way to Hayward, at Culver City Church. They are doing well with Bob Melear as their preacher. A fine audience was present for this service. Please note change of mailing address to P. O. Box 6343, Tucson, Arizona.

Wm. H. Parsons, 1327 W. Chestnut, Denison, Texas, May 4: From April 5-15 I preached in a meeting at Bonham, Texas. Nine were baptized and six restored. Brother Jack King will soon begin his seventh year at Bonham. He was a fine co-laborer in the meeting. Recently B. C. McCarley conducted a ten day meeting for us here at Central. Four were baptized, five restored and one placed membership. Prior to the meeting one was baptized and three restored. Our work here continues to prosper and remains pleasant. Yesterday seven were restored.

Otta Johnson, 720 W. Hull, Denison, Texas, May 4: We had two baptisms and two restorations here at Armstrong Avenue yesterday. We have had several others in the past few weeks. We are having to use extra chairs at all of our morning services. We have recently installed a nursery and a loud speaker system. We have a fine young peoples chorus. They sing over our radio program every Sunday. They have also been putting on programs in other cities. We now have our radio program on the air every Sunday morning from 8:40 to 9 o'clock over KDSX on your dial. If you visit Texoma Lake during the summer, we would like for you to stop and worship with us. The Armstrong building is on Hiway 75.

Ted Norton, 2701 Avenue F, Snyder, Texas, April 28: Last Wednesday, April 22, was a great day for the church here. One hundred five adults and twenty-seven children were present for the ladies Bible class. We had been "shooting" for one hundred. That evening, a lady who is in her eighty-third year was baptized. She had been formerly a member of the Evangelical Church. Her daughter has been patient and faithful in teaching her mother. Following her baptism it began to rain! One inch and a quarter fell in this dry country that night. It was a day of rejoicing for all. The new building for another congregation is rapidly going into the finishing stage. This new building should be ready for occupancy by early summer or sooner.

J. Emmett Walnwright, 547 East Walnut Avenue, El Segundo, California, May 4: More than thirty names have been listed for membership, and an attendance of more than seventy-five at the new location, 406 East Grand Avenue, El Segundo. Qualified teachers are at work; capable leaders are serving, and personal workers are contacting the people of our immediate vicinity. We expect a constant healthy growth free of dangerous extremes; but hope to fortify against the usual threats of human weaknesses. I am happy to dedicate my services during the formative period. Financial expressions of confidence in my work in barren fields by the El Cajon Boulevard church in San Diego, and 1330 South 3rd Street, Las Vegas, Nevada, assists me in this contribution of time and talent. We are very grateful.

Max L. Johnson, 410 South College Avenue, Tahlequah, Oklahoma: I have resigned from the work here and am to begin laboring with the Andrews Avenue congregation in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, the first week in July. During my 43 months stay here, the work with the elders and other members has been pleasant. The congregation has grown substantially in numbers, liberality and spirituality. The present membership is 176. It has just completed an addition, consisting of vestibule, nursery and additional auditorium space. The entire interior has been redecorated. Whoever succeeds the writer here should have a pleasant and profitable work. Anyone interested in moving to this, the "capital of the Cherokee nation," should write the elders at the above address.

R. Ervin Driskill, 2509 Gould St., Columbus, Georgia, May 4: I will be leaving the work at Rose Hill this summer. I have not made arrangements for local work and will be glad to correspond with any church needing an evangelist. I think the work will make more progress, if I move on and someone new comes in. I am in my fourth year and the Lord has blessed us and the church since we came. This is a fine congregation of the Lord's people, and we leave with their good wishes and prayers. Any church desiring to know of my character and ability as a gospel preacher, may write the elders of the Rose Hill church of Christ, Hamilton Road, Columbus, Georgia. W. Douglas Harris, of Anniston, Alabama, begins our summer meeting Wednesday night to continue through May 15. We are expecting to have one of our best meetings; he preceded me in the work here.

V. E. Howard, 1128 Commerce Highway, Greenville, Texas, May 5: I recently concluded a very good meeting with the church in Bastrop, Louisiana, where Paul D. Murphy is the regular minister. There were 17 additions. Previous to this meeting I was with the church in Monroe, Louisiana, where A. W. Johnson is the minister, with ten additions. Crowds reported to be the largest to have attended a meeting there. The meeting at Guymon, Oklahoma, where Jimmy Campbell is the regular preacher, was also attended by large crowds. There were 19 additions. I am now in a meeting in St. Jo, Texas, where W. C. Cooper is the regular preacher. The Gospel Hour broadcast, heard each Sunday night, 9:30 to 10:00, Central Standard Time, over XEG, 1050 kc., is being received in more than forty States, parts of Canada and Mexico. Hundreds of requests for copies of the sermons are being received.

Troy M. Cummings, 1090 Allen Avenue, Prineville, Oregon, May 2: Last August the congregation here numbered twenty-three members. Two were baptized in the meeting in August, and thus we began with twenty-five members when I moved here in September. Now we have fifty-nine members. Nineteen have been baptized in all, sixteen of the number being mature adults. Also two have been restored from the Christian Church, and one other has been restored. Four adults were baptized in April. Contributions are exceedingly good. There are more prospects for obedience which we believe will respond soon. Our twice-weekly broadcast over the local station, with mimeographed copies of the lessons, is doing good. It is a rich and joyful experience working in this fruitful place. We are doing systematic personal work. I am due to begin a gospel meeting at Shallowater, Texas, June 12 through 21st. I also plan to be at Southeast church in Portland, Oregon July 13-22.

Gordon L. Downing, City Park Church of Christ, Floydada, Texas, May 3: Last Lord's day evening a mother was baptized into Christ who had formerly been a member of the Christian church when just a girl. Our young people's class, which meets after our evening preaching service, had 46 present at the last meeting. The work with the young people throughout the brotherhood presents a challenge and an opportunity that we must not overlook.

Melvin J. Wise, 4216 Stanhope Avenue, Dallas, Texas, May 4: Brother Oscar Ellison did the preaching in a masterful way in our spring meeting at the Preston Road Church, which closed on April 26th. Two were baptized. One was baptized and seven placed membership yesterday. The Lord willing, I shall do the preaching in a gospel meeting with the McLemore Avenue Church in Memphis, Tennessee, May 17-27. I look forward to working with that good church and their faithful preacher, Brother Stoy Pate.

Abilene, Texas, May 7: J. D. Thomas, professor of Bible at Abilene Christian College, has been appointed by the elders of the College Church of Christ in Abilene as director of the church's educational program. Brother Thomas will be in charge of directing a class in personal work and will work with Brother Glenn L. Wallace, regular preacher, in other duties. Brother Thomas has been at ACC since 1949. He teaches courses in Bible, Greek, and church history, including courses of Bible and Archaeology and Bible versus Modernism.

Geo. B. Curtis, 321 S. Wright, Siloam Springs, Arkansas, May 4: Will W. Slater closed a fine singing school with the congregation here last Wednesday evening. Students attended from Westville, Stillwell, Jay, Colcord and Kansas in Oklahoma. From Fayetteville, Rogers, Lincoln, Johnson, Hiassee, Gentry, Gravette, Springdale and Siloam Springs in Arkansas. Brother Slater knows vocal music and has the ability to impart that knowledge to others. You will not go wrong in using Brother Slater for a singing school.

W. T. Hamilton, Gainesville, Texas, May 5: The first Sunday in June will bring to a close our work in Gainesville. For almost three years we have labored with the Commerce Street church here, and enjoyed it very much. During that time, much growth, physically and spiritually, has occurred in the church. The building was improved and enlarged at a cost of $50,000, the membership has grown, and the contributions have increased considerably. It is hard to leave the good people here, but we are looking forward to a more challenging work with the fine church in Lamesa, Texas.

Oliver W. Cruise, Burlington, Oklahoma: I have just returned from Herington, Kansas, where I, with Brethren C. E. Wilson of Cambridge, Kansas, Ray Wright of Wellington, Kansas, David Fultz of Winfield, Kansas, Arthur P. Davis of Pratt, Kansas, and James R. Greer of Liberal, Kansas, all labored with the little band of 12 disciples in that city of 4000 people. Each minister was sent and supported by his home congregation. The meetings were each evening from April 22nd through May 3. June 1st Brother and Sister Mitchell Greer of Tulsa, Oklahoma, will move there temporarily to preach and work with the Christians there. The Herington church still lacks $100.00 per month support for this couple. He is a graduate of Central Christian College of Bartlesville, Oklahoma, and plans to resume study in Abilene Christian College the first of 1954. At that time the church hopes to be able to secure the assistance of a minister who has some years of experience behind him. Will you who read this do what you can to help this little church to secure and support the man for the field. The church owns property 100 x 150 feet without a building. Write for further information as to how you can help in this virgin field.

Rufus R. Clifford, Box 232, Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, May 9: I did the preaching in a meeting, April 16-26, for the church in Christiansburg, Virginia. A Lowell Altizer has accomplished a remarkable work in that entire area. Attendance was good, many visitors attended, and one was immersed. Two have been immersed here recently. I will begin at Hohenwald, Tennessee, May 31. The work here is pleasant and prospering.

L. F. Mills, 156 E. Baker Street, Batesville, Arkansas, May 6: Our spring meeting resulted in three baptisms and one restoration. Brother L. O. Sanderson did an excellent job of preaching. I baptized one Sunday night at home and one was baptized in a recent meeting at New Liberty congregation, Larkin, Arkansas. We have a widely heard radio program over the local station at 8:30 each Sunday morning. Many sectarians are becoming interested through this broadcast.

Clarence A. Price, Bryson, Texas, May 7: I have labored with this good congregation since November 11, 1949. After this pleasant work together I have resigned my work with them to accept the work with the Lakeview church in Waco, Texas. I shall begin there the latter part of this summer. I am looking forward to a very wonderful work with these fine people, who come highly recommended to me. My successor at Bryson has not been selected as yet. I wish to thank each and every church and the many calls that came to me relative to change of work. I would like to be able to help all.

Jesse W. Stephens, 537—25th Street, Oakland, California, May 7: The work is moving forward here at Central. Another one was baptized here last night, making a total of sixteen baptisms so far this year. We have worked with this congregation for about two years and six months. During this time, there have been sixty precious souls baptized into Christ. We plan to leave this work here on or shortly after July 1. No one has been selected for this work as yet. Those interested should write the church here at the above address. This is a good church—one of the best. Worship with us when passing this way.

Robert C. (Bob) Copeland, Jr., Box 863, Clarendon, Texas, May 6: The meeting at Eldorado, Oklahoma, was concluded May 2. Two were baptized and the church edified. Brother George S. Wilkins is the capable minister there. I have two more meetings scheduled for the months of July and August, and I have time open for some more meetings if any congregation needs me. My work here will terminate soon. Any congregation wanting a gospel preacher who stresses the importance of personal evangelism may contact me. The elders here endorse my work and Christian living. Let us press onward, giving God the praise and glory.

L. J. Keffer, 1666 W. Intendencia St., Pensacola, Florida, May 4: Since last report, we at Central have had one more baptism and two have confessed wrongs.

Walter Mackoy, Route 4, Whitesboro, Texas, May 4: We are in need of a preacher here at Whitesboro. We have a preacher's home and can pay for full time work. This is a good field as Whitesboro is a growing oil center.

R. F. Cook, Hebbronville, Texas, May 5: It was very edifying to have two added by restoration on May 4th, my first Lord's day with this church. This congregation is very small, as the town is mostly Catholic, therefore the support is small, and we need much help to spread the truth here. I am a former Catholic, having studied for priesthood. I feel sure I can do much good here with some help.

C. E. Wilson, Cambridge, Kansas, May 5: I have accepted work with the Stafford, Kansas, congregation. We will be moving there some time after May 17. It is with regret that we leave the good people and congregation here at Cambridge, but we are looking forward to a wonderful work with the good people and congregation at Stafford. My address after June 1 will be: C. E. Wilson, Broadway and Keystone, Stafford, Kansas.

E. R. Watson, 826 East North 13th St., Abilene, Texas, May 4: We are making plans for our vacation Bible school which begins the first of June. Brother Jack Nadeau, just back from Germany, has been invited to do the preaching in our meeting that begins June 5. Two have been born into the kingdom in the last two weeks at 12th and Chestnut. I recently spoke one night at Pecos. The occasion was the opening of a new building. The church has made great progress both materially and spiritually since I lived among them some years ago. They have a splendid building which will serve their needs well. More power to them.

Gus Eoff, 2354 E. Lindsay Street, Stockton, California, May 6: We have just concluded a good meeting with Brother Elbert Garretson from Fullerton, California. He did a fine job preaching the gospel and delivered some outstanding lessons. There were eight responses during the meeting. Four were baptized and two placed membership and two confessed wrongs. Brother Don Hinds of Manteca, California, and I began a meeting May 11th in Ridgecrest, California. Brother Hinds, besides being an excellent preacher, is an outstanding song director and he will lead the singing and I will do the preaching in Ridgecrest. Brother Loran Biggs is the preacher at Ridgecrest and we look to a fine meeting.

Norman Matthews, Asher, Oklahoma, May 5: We are still keeping house for the Lord here in Asher. Attentive audiences at each service. The congregation here is unusually large considering the size of the community, is under a good leadership and is blessed with qualified teachers. Certain hindrances have been removed and the way is open for some good work in the future, for which we give God all the praise. The Lord willing, I shall be in California the first three Sundays in June, and will be glad to "fill in" for any congregation whose minister will be absent at that time. After the first of June contact me at Porterville, California, 400 Worth Road. The Firm Foundation continues to do a good work. It ought to be in every home.

Frank L. Cox, Box 104, Mineola, Texas, May 11: It was my privilege to speak on the Kilgore Lectureship, also on the Fort Worth Lectureship. On the evening of April 29, I closed an 11-day meeting with Dillard Thurman and the Highland Park congregation in Fort Worth. Interest and attendance increased until the last service; one baptized, two placed membership. I have been invited to deliver the baccalaureate address for the senior class of the Mineola High School on Sunday evening, May 24.

J. Willard Morrow

J. Willard Morrow, 2303 Azle Avenue, Ft. Worth 6, Texas: I resigned as local minister of the great church at Rosen Heights in March. My plans are to devote all my time to conducting gospel meetings. I have been with Rosen Heights eight years. For some time I have intended to do this. Now I am in position to arrange meetings and shall be glad to hear from the congregations who may desire my services in this work. I have conducted meetings throughout the years I have been doing local work. I assisted in fifty-one meetings last year. These have been from Monday night through Saturday night. Now I can give one or two Lord's days in each meeting as the congregations may desire.

WANTED—To get in contact with any church that has some used seats. Please state the number of seats that you have, the length of them, style, and color. Also the price. Please send this information to: Post Office Box 116, Crowell, Texas.

Paul T. Dumm, 35 Piedmont Avenue, Charleston, South Carolina, May 11: One was restored and one placed membership yesterday. The work moves on and we find a great opportunity in Charleston.

Arthur L. Golden, Box 365, Perryton, Texas, May 14: Since moving here to work with the church April 1st, there have been five baptisms and three restorations. Of this number, two came from the Christian church.

Glenn L. Wallace, 733 E. N. 16th, Abilene, Texas, May 14: Seven baptisms, thirteen restorations since my last report. J. D. Thomas is now associated with me in the work here at the College church, serving as education director.

Doyle Banta, Box 205, West Helena, Arkansas, May 12: Interest is high. Six memberships, two baptized, and five restored since last report. We hope to establish a congregation in downtown Helena (12,000 population) this year.

Chas. E. Parker, 711 Blackworth, Miami, Oklahoma, May 10: Closed at Cushing, Oklahoma, tonight: two baptized into Christ and two restored to their first love. Brother Thornton Crews leaves there May 24th and Brother Ted McElroy begins May 31st.

Virgil Bentley, 201 West 6th Street, Cordell, Oklahoma, May 12: One was baptized here last week. We have just concluded an unusual and profitable lectureship, and are now making preparation for our vacation Bible school and summer camp.

Eldridge B. Linn, Denver, Colorado, May 21: I am back home from the meeting in Oklahoma City. It was great. There were seven baptisms, two restorations, and three to identify themselves with 12th and Drexel Streets congregation there. Brother J. B. Kinney is a great co-worker.

Ben West, Lampasas, Texas, May 11: Yesterday was a full day at the First Street church here. One was baptized, 252 in classes, 350 at worship, 250 at night, regular offering $455, 263 present Wednesday night. Gospel meeting June 15-23. Perry Wilmeth will preach.

Elmer L'Roy, 901 S. Broadway, Springfield, Missouri, May 11: Cleon Lyles of Little Rock, Arkansas, will preach in a gospel meeting at Broadway and Madison church in Springfield, Missouri, June 1-10. I shall be with the church at Spring and Delta Streets in West Long Beach, California, for a meeting June 21 through 28.

Elmer L'Roy, 901 S. Broadway, Springfield, Missouri, May 18: Three persons were baptized at Broadway and Madison Church of Christ in Springfield, Missouri, on May 17th. Two of these were formerly members of the Baptist denomination.

Tom Walker, 1135 Hollywood, Dallas, Texas, May 18: On May 10 the church at Mt. Tabor had their first homecoming. It was wonderful to see the large crowd of old-timers and the bountiful noon-day spread of everything good to eat. I have the third and fourth Sundays in July open for a meeting.

Claude A. Guild, 2701 E. Belknap Street, Fort Worth 11, Texas, May 18: The Linwood meeting, Fort Worth, closed with 13 restorations and two baptisms. Four elders and five deacons are being added to our officership in Riverside, May 24. My next meeting is with the Eastside church in Lubbock, Texas.

Murrey W. Wilson, Mountain View, Oklahoma, May 13: I have just closed a good meeting with the church in Memphis, Texas, where Brother Bascomb Litton and Brother Palmer Wheeler are the local workers. There were four baptized. These men are untiring workers in the church. If I can assist your congregation in a meeting, contact me.

A. L. Harbin, 109 14th Street, Vallejo, California, May 14: The church here closed a meeting last Sunday. Roy E. Cogdill did the preaching and Kenneth Hunting directed the singing. We had increasingly good attendance and interest throughout the meeting; three were identified and one restored. Brother Cogdill is to be with us again in 1954.

Bill Cavender, 7724 Mohawk Drive, Dallas 19, Texas, May 18: Reginald A. Ginn of Meridian, Mississippi, did the preaching in a meeting at the Love Field church recently; four became Christians. Six others have obeyed the gospel too. Of this number, three were Baptists and one was a Jew. We will begin a new building as soon as the city gives us a permit to build.

Floyd Embree, 1203 Merchant, Artesia, New Mexico, May 17: Several have been identified here of late and a few have been restored. I go to Medford, Oregon, June 7-14 for a meeting. Brother Maurice Tisdell is the preacher there. I look forward to working with him and the good church there. I hope to spend the month of June in the Northwest.

J. O. Jones, 1014 Beck Street, Little Rock, Arkansas: April 3rd was truly a good day for the Pulaski Heights church. Three were baptized and one was restored. Brother Raymond Kelsey will be with us in a gospel meeting beginning June 4th, to continue through the 14th. Our vacation Bible school will begin on the 12th, and continue through the 20th of June.

Fred A. Talley, Kingman, Arizona, May 14: Since last report there have been three baptisms here. We have the "Herald of Truth" over the local station and a weekly program of our own. We start in a two-week vacation Bible school here the 25th and then go to Winslow to aid in one there. My wife and I plan to be in Kansas from June 21 till about the 8th of July. Churches desiring my services during that period, write me at General Delivery, Kingman, Arizona, at once.

Polytechnic Church At Fort Worth, Texas

The Polytechnic Church of Christ, 3501 Avenue I, Fort Worth, Texas, will have on May 10th the formal opening of their auditorium. The complete plant has been constructed in installments over a period of years. A two-story wing of classrooms was completed four years ago. The new auditorium has indirect lighting, four foyers, a glassed-in sound-proof nursery. The auditorium will accommodate 1,390 people in its present seating arrangement. There are forty-four rooms in the building and a junior auditorium that will accommodate 200 people. The entire plant is air-conditioned for both summer and winter. The Wilson and Patterson architectural firm designed the auditorium. Mr. J. A. Gibbons was in charge of construction.

A homecoming of former members is planned for this day. Bible school will be at 9:45 a.m. and worship at 10:45 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. There will be a special service at 3:00 p.m., after which there will be open house. Reuel Lemmons of Cleburne, Texas, will begin an evangelistic meeting on that date, which will continue throughout the week with services at 10:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m. Leroy Brownlow has preached for the church for the past ten years.

886 ATTEND EIGHT ALUMNI MEETINGS

Eight hundred eighty-six alumni, friends, and prospective students of Freed-Hardestman College have attended the first eight sectional alumni meetings this year. This is by far the best attendance in the history of these meetings. Chattanooga had 75, Memphis 143, Kentucky Lake 88, Reelfoot Lake 177, Columbus, Mississippi, 89, Florence, Alabama 125, Athens, Alabama 100, and Cardwell, Missouri 89.

This was the first meeting in Chattanooga and Kentucky Lake. A meeting will be held in Detroit, June 5 and Parkersburg, West Virginia, June 11.

We are indeed grateful for the wonderful cooperation received in all of these meetings.

WHO WROTE THE BIBLE?

John W. Hedge

The Bible is here and somebody wrote it. The question is, who wrote it? We have heard much about the Catholic church producing the Bible. If it is a Catholic production, is it not passing strange that the writers did not mention the Catholic church and the many and varied teachings and practices of that institution? Have you ever read a history of the Catholic church written by a Catholic but what he mentioned the Catholic church and her practices on almost every page? Moreover, is it not passing strange if Catholics wrote the Bible, that they condemned themselves in the things which they allow? Mr. Harry Truman, ex-president of the United States, proposes to write a book of his accomplishments while he served as president. Will he write such for the purpose of condemning or upholding the administration in which he served? Will he write such a book and yet not mention the democratic administration by name? Catholics as well as many protestant denominations would have us believe that the members of their organizations wrote the Bible, and yet the writers of the Bible never once mentioned "protestant churches" nor "Catholic churches." Both the Catholic church and "denominational churches" are condemned by the simple teachings of the Bible, hence those who wrote the Bible were not members of such institutions. When the Bible was written there was "but one body"—the church of Christ—hence the writers of that sacred document were members of that divine institution. They could not have been members of any other religious body because Paul said, in A.D. 64, "There is one body" (Eph. 4:4).

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION PAYS

J. P. Gibson, M.D.

Christian education pays spiritual dividends. Let me speak of only one phase of this theme.

There are a few great decisions in the life of an individual; 1. The decision to become a Christian; 2. The decision to take a mate. By the time most young people are ready for college, they have probably already decided to be Christians, especially if they have come from a Christian family. The next important decision is to take a mate. Upon this decision can rest the spiritual welfare and the happiness of the individual.

Since so many young people choose a mate during college years, it therefore becomes very essential that one be in the right place to choose a Christian mate, with similar ideals and background. And that place is a Christian college. Abilene Christian College is justly proud of the multiplied thousands of happy Christian homes that have resulted from the marriage of a Christian boy and a Christian girl who first met on the campus of Abilene Christian College. Not only are most of these homes happy, but they are zealously working in the church, and bringing up their children in the nurture and the admonition of the Lord.

Having found my own wife on this campus, and two of our daughters having found their husbands there, I feel that this is one of the greatest values that one may obtain from Christian association during college years. When we add to this a college education of above standard, and a diligent study of God's word under godly men, we realize that no school of a secular nature can offer anything that approaches this wealth of values for a Christian.

Elvin Bost, Box 333, Allen, Oklahoma, did the preaching in our spring meeting April 9-19. The attendance was unusually good, the preaching was superb, and the results were gratifying. Ten were baptized and two restored to fellowship. We are in the middle of an expansion and remodeling program which will make our building much more attractive and add nearly 50 per cent to our seating capacity. I should like to spend two to four weeks any time this year in vacation Bible schools, singing schools or singing for meetings. Anyone desiring my services, please address me at above address.

O. J. Russell, Durant, Oklahoma: After three and one-half years of a very pleasant and fruitful work with the church in Durant, Oklahoma, we have accepted the invitation of the 2nd and Whaley Street church in Longview, Texas, to labor with that congregation in the ministry of the word. While deciding to leave Durant was one of our hardest decisions, we rejoice that the condition of the church and the opportunity for doing good are the best in its history. The unusual radio program, "The Religious Question Hour", the work with Southeastern State College students, and the program of evangelism furnish great opportunities for spreading the truth. Brother Dean Bullock, who preaches for the church in Grand Saline, Texas, has been invited to work with the Durant church and is scheduled to begin his labors here June 28. We anticipate for him a very pleasant work. Our work in Longview will begin May 24 and correspondence will reach me at Box 1606, Longview, Texas. Brother James Adams has done a very commendable work with this good church and is held in high esteem.

Richard Weaver, 110 Division Street, Smyrna, Tennessee, April 28: We have a very fine group of faithful members of the church from many states stationed here at Stewart Air Force Base who are attending regularly. Also, many visitors from Sewart and from Smyrna have resulted in record attendance this past month. I have preached at Sand Hill colored church, four miles from Smyrna, three Sunday afternoons this month and will continue to preach there on the second and fourth Sunday afternoons when Brother A. J. Vanleer, from Nashville, their preacher, cannot be with them. This is due to his work at Woodbury growing to where he is remaining with them to conduct an evening service these two Lord's days. Last fall these colored brethren invited me to preach in their meeting and I am scheduled to conduct another for them in June. The other Sunday afternoon, I preached at Glorianna, a relatively new work in the county. I am to preach in their fall meeting when they hope to be in their new building. Brother Edward Craddock is to preach in our spring meeting beginning May 17. Services daily: 10 a.m. and 8 p.m.

Irvin B. McFadin, Box 1164, Taylor, Texas, May 4: We continue a pleasant and profitable work with our former home congregation at Bartlett. Brother Maurice McFarland of Lubbock, Texas, begins our meeting at Bartlett June 7. All nearby are urged and invited to attend. Brother Hester of Holland will preach at Bartlett next Sunday morning. I will preach at Holland in his stead. The congregations in this vicinity all have fellowship in a monthly singing. Our next meeting will be at Holland the fourth Sunday at 2:30. All are invited.

W. S. Boyett, 1416 North Hudson, Altus, Oklahoma: The month of April was a good one for the congregation here. There were ten added to our number. A new membership list is being made which reveals that we now have a total membership of about 780. We are constantly increasing our program of preaching the gospel outside of Altus. The elders just recently agreed to underwrite the support of Brother Ward Stevens, who is moving to Buffalo, Oklahoma, June 1st. We are also helping in the support of preachers at Laverne, Headrick, and a colored preacher in Altus, Oklahoma. Beginning June 1st we will be spending about $735 per month in this type work. I did the preaching in a ten-day meeting at Headrick recently. The interest was excellent throughout, but none obeyed the gospel during the meeting. Our daily vacation Bible school will be June 25-30.

W. L. Baze, 417 Welch Street, Denton, Texas, April 28: Beginning Sunday, May 3, I took up my labors with the church meeting at Welch and Chestnut in Denton, Texas. Although we have had a very pleasant work with the Quanah congregation through the past three and one-half years and, therefore, leave with a certain measure of reluctance, we look forward with keen anticipation to our new work. It bids fair to being a good and pleasant work from the beginning and its possibilities appear unlimited. We need and solicit the prayers of saints everywhere as we enter our new field of labor. Our thanks go to all those churches and individuals expressing interest in our laboring with them or assisting us in any way. While we could not go everywhere that it appeared we might serve well, it was good to learn that we were well enough thought of to be the subject of such interest on the part of many. May God bless his saints everywhere, is our prayer.

E. Paul Matthews, 4823 E. 60th Place, Maywood, California: The Maywood church continues to show improvement. Attendance is on the increase, and several have been baptized since our last report. This congregation is sending me to hold several mission meetings this summer. Arrangements have already been made for my going to Bowers Corner, Oklahoma, in June, and to Reno, Nevada, where I labored for more than a year in 1950-51, in August, but some time is yet open. If the brethren of some congregation with limited means feel that a meeting would be profitable in their community, please write to the elders, church of Christ, 5950 Heliotrope Circle, Maywood, California. We should like to hear from those who would not otherwise be able to have a meeting.

Seth E. Rebkop, 235 Okanogan Avenue, Wenatchee, Washington, April 24: The greatest meeting in the history of the church in the Northwest closed April 12, with 54 additions: 31 by baptism, 23 by transfer. Brother Hugh M. Tiner, president of Pepperdine College, Los Angeles, California, assisted the congregation here in a series of meetings March 29 through April 12. Brother Tiner's plain and forceful messages on New Testament Christianity were received by large and interested audiences. Following the messages with personal visitation each day, he and I were well received into many homes for interviews and Bible study. The results are self-evident. Brother Tiner is an outstanding personal worker and is untiring in his efforts. The church is greatly strengthened by his work here. He labored with the Moses Lake church following for one week with 19 being added there.

George A. Bennett, Box 216, Lexington, Oklahoma, April 25: The work at Lexington continues to increase, with interest growing at every service. Records reveal that contributions, Lord's day Bible classes, and mid-week Bible classes have doubled since July, 1951. To the Lord be all the praise. Lexington is a town of 1,300 located 17 miles southeast of Norman, Oklahoma; 37 miles southeast of Oklahoma City. Many of our residents are employed in Oklahoma City and at Tinker Air Force Base, driving back and forth. At the present, Lexington is without a cafe, and the only one in town is for sale. It has been out of operation for about three months. The folks who owned it closed it because of their health. It could be purchased very reasonably and would be a good source of income. It has never remained open on the Lord's day. We would be happy to have some faithful Christian to come our way and purchase this cafe. Lexington would also afford a good opportunity for a good "cash grocery and market." I enjoy the Firm Foundation more as the years go by. May God bless you with many more happy, successful years.

Reginald Beaver, Box 263, Sayre, Oklahoma, May 5: June 1 I will move to Delta, Colorado, to work with the small congregation there being supported by the church at Tipton. My address will be Box 184. There has been no series of meetings planned for this summer at Delta; therefore, if any church would be willing to send their preacher for one during August or September, they may contact me at the above address or write L. G. Anderson, Box 115, Delta, Colorado. Brother Currey of Lefors, Texas, will begin at Sayre when I leave. Several baptisms here recently. If you are vacationing in Colorado, try to arrange it where you can worship with us in Delta at 12th and Grand.

ELDERS' TRAINING COURSE

Melvin J. Wise

The need for a more efficient leadership in the Lord's church has been keenly felt for sometime in many localities. Not much has been done to encourage or train men for the eldership. A training course is planned to help develop brethren for this capacity of service, and will be conducted in the auditorium of the Preston Road Church of Christ, 6409 Preston Road, Dallas, Texas, on the evenings of June 1, 2, 4, and 5, beginning each evening at eight o'clock.

There will be a lecture each night, followed by a question and answer forum, conducted by a panel made up of two elders and two preachers. We urge all congregations located in driving distance from Dallas to make proper announcements of this training course and urge brethren to come. This meeting is not to be confined to brethren serving as elders, but men, women and young people alike will be welcome, for all in the church need to know about the duties, qualifications and work of elders and the proper relationship and responsibility that the church sustains toward them.

Below is a schedule of the subjects and speakers:

Monday: "Responsibilities of the Elders to the Church"—Dr. S. H. Crawford, elder, Pearl and Bryan Church.

Tuesday: "The Elders as Overseers"—Hulen L. Jackson, preacher, Trinity Heights Church.

Thursday: "The Qualifications of the Elders"—John H. Banister, preacher, Skillman Avenue Church.

Friday: "Responsibilities of the Church to the Elders"—Stanley J. Lovett, preacher Shamrock Shores Church.

William C. Morton, P. O. Box 139, care of Tipton Home, Tipton, Oklahoma, April 28: On Sunday, April 12, I had the pleasure and privilege of preaching to the church at Marlow, Oklahoma, where they are in the process of changing preachers. Brother James E. Laird has been with them for four years and has done a very effective work, I am told. Marlow has one of the finest bodies of disciples it has been my pleasure to serve. Then, on Sunday, April 19, I was invited to speak to the church at Shamrock, Texas, and here we had one addition by baptism. Shamrock is also one of the very fine churches of the Lone Star State and, they, too, are changing preachers. Brother Stanley has been with them for some time and is moving to Wellington, Texas, to be succeeded by Brother B. R. Tittle of Hollis, Oklahoma. Shamrock has great possibilities for service and from my observation, I should say that they will not neglect any of their opportunities. I am invited back for the first Sunday in May. The work I am trying to do at Lake Creek, near Granite and at Hess, Oklahoma, is moving right ahead to greater things. I shall be happy to occasionally fill other appointments within reach of Tipton.

"MAJESTIC HYMNS" NOW ON THE PRESS

This great hymn book will soon be ready

Great care has been taken by the compilers (G. H. P. Showalter and Austin Taylor) to provide for the churches a selection of songs, hymns, and spiritual songs not inferior to anything that has been published. It has some special points of merit.

1. The book will contain approximately 25 new songs, direct from the MSS that have never before been printed.
2. Special attention has been paid to secure and use the very choicest selections of late years composed by members of the churches of Christ.
3. Every reasonable effort is put forth to secure all the best of the grand old hymns that will never die, those sweet old songs used in the childhood days of those who are now stalwarts in the churches.
4. We have used great care to see that all the songs are scriptural and at the same time avoid some ludicrous verbal modifications and substitutions that with good intentions have been made by some who are trying to make everything "scriptural," and in their zeal have made errors in the actual meaning of words substituted, and in versification.
5. Finally, we believe that we are needing a new song book now—that the churches are needing a new and better book—they need at the present quite a large number of changes and corrections. There is need to drop some songs, and there is a great need to enter a good list of new or nearly new songs that are teachable, practical, and more worshipful—songs that are suitable for the regular services of the church in an eminent degree, and as well, for the singing schools and song drills.

We believe that our new songs and many late songs especially, will stimulate and arouse, a much-needed interest in singing.

Prices: We will have two bindings: Full Cloth Board, $1.00; Heavy Leatherette Flexible, greatly desired by many, 80 cents. In either binding, send 10 cents per copy additional for postage and shipping expense.

We are anxious to receive from all the churches an order for at least one copy of this new book for examination. If you are not ready for a new book now, you might well desire at least one new copy to examine the new songs. PUBLICATION DATE IS JUNE 1, 1953, Send all orders to

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

Walking In the Truth

The apostle John says, "I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in the truth" (3 Jno. 4). It makes Christian parents happy to hear that their children walk in the truth, but it grieves them to learn that their children have gone astray. The apostles had keen anxiety concerning their converts. Paul and John especially gave expression to this sentiment. Paul called Timothy his son, and admonished him to follow his teaching faithfully.

And John was emphasizing the same thought when he said, "I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth." Walking in truth meant a lot at the time John wrote this message. It meant sacrifice, hardship, trials and dangers. Polycarp is an example of what John's children in the faith had to experience. Polycarp was one of John's converts. John was exiled for walking in the truth, and many of his converts were beheaded or burnt at the stake. At Smyrna Polycarp was apprehended by the officers in an upper chamber, and as he came down the stairs, he said, "The will of the Lord be done." The stake was driven and kindling wood gathered from a carpenter's shop. The flame soon enveloped the body of Polycarp. But wind blew the blaze away, and a Roman officer beheaded him with his sword. That was what it meant for John's children to walk in the truth.

If Christians are stigmatized with unhandsome epithets for walking in the truth now, they think they are undergoing great persecution. The afflictions of God's people now are very light compared to the early ages of the church. We should earnestly pray to God that such adversity may never return.

Doing God's Will

In the sermon on the mount Jesus said, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? And in thy name have cast out devils, and in thy name have done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity" (Mat. 7:21-23).

From this it is apparent that men may do wonderful works without doing the will of God. True religion consists not only in doing something, but in doing the right thing. It is very unfortunate that so many people will look at God's commandments, and decide that they are not worth doing, then do something of their own choosing, and call it obedience to the will of God.

When Naaman was commanded to go and wash seven times in the river Jordan to recover from leprosy, it looked like foolishness to him. Another course of action seemed wiser. Why not wash in the streams of Damascus? They were nearer his home, and much more convenient. Something convenient and expedient in the eyes of men lures them from the path of duty. "The wisdom of the world is foolishness with God."

With Jesus the will of God was supreme—"not my will, but thine be done." Men do the will of God by following Jesus. He said, "I must work the works of him that sent me while it is day: the night cometh when no man can work" (Jno. 9:4). If we follow Jesus, we will do the works that God has appointed for us to do. "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have a right to the tree of life, and may enter through the gates into the city."

"The Wages Of Sin Is Death"

Dick Powell

"For the wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23).

"Everything has its price." The truth of those words is taught everywhere in the Bible, and by reading it we learn that man has paid great prices for his successes and failures. Therefore, I wish to present the wage mankind will inevitably receive for his failure to obey God's commands.

There is nothing arbitrary in the principle announced; however, numbers of people do not like the doctrine of there being a hell. They feel that such teaching is contrary to the goodness of God, but we must remember that the wages of sin is death, here and now, in this world (Rom. 5:12). Hence there is no reason for anyone to think the spiritual world is organized on any different principle from that of the natural world. Proof of this idea is recorded in Matthew 25:46. Therefore, Paul says in Rom. 6:23 that the thing that sin has earned—that is due to sin as a matter of right and justice—is death—nothing short of that.

The text teaches three things—viz: (1) Nature's invariable logic, (2) Nature moves along downward lines, and (3) Nature tends to permanency of character.

1. Nature's invariable logic. Upon the words recorded in Matt. 7:16-18, 20 Jesus grounded his greatest utterances of the first principle named. Hence we comprehend that every word or deed carries with it its own legitimate consequences and has bound up with it its own inevitable issues. So the principle named is not arbitrary but is grounded into the very nature of this universe.

"The ethics of the Bible are true, not because they depend on the will of God, not because God says they are true; but God says they are true because they are true; they depend on the nature of God, not on his volition." Thus by the merciful nature and will of God we have his divine law—the Bible. It is one of his perfect gifts to man (Jas. 1:17, 18). But still, "The wages of sin is death" is a sentence that is written upon the face of this universe.

The Old Testament had very little to say concerning immortality and a future life, but the wise men of old, inspired of God, had much to say about the subjects of sin and death—viz: (1) "Evil shall slay the wicked" (Psalm 34:21). An individual does not have to call on God to do it. "Evil will react on the evildoer, and he shall be held down with the cords of his own sin." (2) "Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, and be filled with their own devices" "... for whatsoever a man soeth, that shall he also reap" (Prov. 1:31; Gal. 6:7). There is no suspension of this law. "The wages of sin is death." That profound statement takes in everyone, whether or not he claims the name "Christian." Christianity is not an insurance policy that we may escape from our sins. No indeed! Proof of this is recorded in 1 Cor. 9:27 and 1 Cor. 10:12 thus substantiating Matt. 7:21.

Even the Old Testament corroborates this teaching. It says, "... be sure your sin will find you out" (Num. 32:23). This does not necessarily mean that you will be found out, for possibly you may not, but your sin will find you out, and it will work havoc in your spiritual nature.

II. Nature follows downward lines. The breaking up of a character is along lines of least resistance. Js. 1:13-15 brings forth this teaching by describing sin as a birth. The sinful desire is the conception; the sinful deed the birth; and moral and eternal death are the final results. In acquiring a bad habit we follow this law. The disintegration of a character goes on slowly, steadily, noiselessly but surely. Consider pensively Psalm 19:12: "Who can understand his errors? Cleanse thou me from secret faults." Each person should realize that in reality we know not the character of our natures. For instance, when a man who has been a well respected resident in his community for some time suddenly shocks everyone by some misdeed, his fellow citizens say, "It was so sudden." In reality though it was not. The truth is that the end came suddenly. The finished product had been slowly accomplished through a period of years.

Thus I implore each and every individual to search his heart and to search it well. Unknown to you, there may still be lurking in your character tendencies that you are not aware of. If these should break loose, what then? Would the sins bring ruin upon you suddenly? Remember, even while life is integrating along some lines, that same life may be disintegrating along some line that may crush it.

III. Nature tends to final permanence of character. For application of this thought read Rev. 22:11. Here, through warnings, the angel of God pronounced judgment on the souls of men. From this reading then we learn that our life is what we choose to make it.

One of the terrible characteristics of sin is that it hardens the heart. Jesus once said of the Jews that their eyes were blinded that they could not see, their ears deafened that they could not hear, and their hearts were hardened that they could not understand (Matt. 13:15). They had closed every avenue by which Jesus might have reached them. Have we? Everyone of us is tending toward final permanence of character. What shall yours and mine be like? "The grooves, the lines and the marks that we are constantly making on our spiritual nature constitute our character, and these characters are all we shall take into the next world with us." Therefore, let us remember that character is setting its seal upon us each minute of every day, and that we are expressing in our characters every day the law that, "The wages of sin is death."

Old Preachers Don't Die, They Just Fade Away

J. Porter Wilhite

From my childhood days I have watched preachers come into prominence and fade away because of age. It has caused me to wonder if the church of our Lord is doing its duty toward the old true and tried men, who have given of their time, energy, and means to help humanity, then be forced into a poor house, Old Age Assistance, or on their children, grandchildren, or on some one who cares less for them than either of the above. This has been a problem to me, and I am now asking others to help me solve it scripturally.

It might be remembered they have no Social Security, and as a rule they were not permitted to accumulate anything for their old age, because they were not paid more than a bare living, and many were not paid that well. Of course in these days they are all paid much more than when I began to take cognizance of these conditions, yet there are many old preachers who are not getting the calls they once did. You may ask why do they not go preach any way? No doubt many of them do, as they are permitted, but at that they are not paid much, because they have to go where others refuse to go. In other words they can only preach where the younger men cannot get to, or where they refuse to go because of the financial condition of said congregation, or community.

I am going to venture a way of settling this all important matter. If any reader finds a scriptural fault to it, please let me hear it, or if any one wishes to endorse it, I will also appreciate hearing about it. Here it is: We have many congregations well able to support foreign mission work, which is deserving. I am for it. They also hire singers, as well as assistant preachers, some of whom are just out of college and who have had no, or very little experience in such work. Neither am I condemning that work. It is a work that must go on. The young men need encouragement, and I am for it. But many places need just such a man as some of our faithful men who have been "laid on the shelf," so to speak, for no other reason, only that they are getting old. They can't help getting old. No doubt they hate it more than you do, but maybe for a different reason. They hate to know they are getting to where they cannot do as much for the Lord as they once did, or that they have lost their ability to do the work, as a local preacher, they once did. They think of Paul's experience recorded in Galatians 4, where as he says there was a time when they would have "plucked out your own eyes, and have given them to me." So he asks, "Where is then the blessedness ye spake of?" Such things reach the very heart of that faithful old preacher and his devoted wife. What are we to do about it? I say each one, if able and deserving, should be taken up by some of the churches, pay them a living wage, so they will be independent of others, or of charity, have them teach a lesson or two a week, because their experience and ability is worth much. Let them fill the pulpit when the regular preacher is out in meetings, thus save the natural slump that comes under such times. Let him and his wife do local work. They can do much visiting, teaching in homes and elsewhere, such as hospitals, etc. In fact, while still active, as some of the leading preachers with whom I have discussed this say, a young fluent speaker many times would give any thing to sit down with one of experience and take counsel. Brethren, it is surely a good work, very deserving, and will be hailed as a happy day to many old preachers.

Young man, 'tis fine to preach the word.
The gospel is the power of God.
I'm thankful that I started young
To preach till laid beneath the sod;
But this one thing please bear in mind:
The road is rugged, hard to climb.
You'll be in want and talked about
Until you reach the shore sublime.

Yet many joys will come your way,
If true and faithful you should be.
The gospel preacher's happy here
As on he goes with conscience free.
He may not have much gold or land,
As to this life his body clings,
But he'll rejoice exceeding much,
When to the Lord his sheaves he brings.

The persecution he'll endure
Prepares him for a better life,
And there with all the saved and blest,
Be free from all this worldly strife;
And all the while preparing for
The summons from eternal day.
Old preachers never die you know,
The poor old things just fade away!

A Lesson On Forgiveness

Claude B. Holcomb

"If thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him; and if he repent, forgive him. And if he trespass against thee seven times in a day, and seven times in a day turn again to thee, saying, I repent; thou shalt forgive him" (Luke 17: 3, 4).

"Then came Peter to him, and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? till seven times? Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times: but, Until seventy times seven" (Matt. 18:21, 22).

Forgiveness originated in the mind of God. The embodiment of all that pertains to grace and mercy is found in his provision for the forgiveness of sin. The conditions of pardon set forth in the New Testament make forgiveness consistent with divine justice. One of those conditions is our willingness to forgive those who sin against us (Matt. 6:15).

The passages cited above show that there is to be no limit to the number of times we forgive one who repents and seeks forgiveness. It is a common human fault to say, "I will forgive him this time, but if it happens again, I'm through!" This is not the Christian attitude. Jesus said we are to forgive "seventy times seven," which is figurative language denoting an unlimited number of times. The spirit of forgiveness in the heart of the true Christian has no limit nor terminating point. It is an attitude woven into the texture of his mind that is ready and anxious to forgive any offender who repents of his wrong doing.

When God forgives, he treats the one pardoned as though he had never done any wrong (Heb. 10:17). He expects the same of us. In fact, this is the only way in which we can truly forgive. A woman was heard to say, "Very well, I forgive her, but I never want to have anything more to do with her." Is this the way you want God to deal with you? Suppose he did!

"How oft shall thou forgive thy brother?

That depends:

How often has thy Lord forgiven thee?

Thy debt was great; it could not greater be,

And yet thou art forgiven and set free!"

Teachers Wanted - $250,000 Worth

Levittown, Pennsylvania, one of the best opportunities for the church in the entire Northeastern United States, needs public school teachers. This community of 70,000 which has sprung up in two years' time has had a painful school problem. All school systems in the area are crying for teachers of any level or kind. Teacher salary budgets have increased $250,000 for this year. We have names of superintendents and principals available. The church needs teachers who will move to Levittown, take positions in the school system and help the church grow. So far, there is no more than a nucleus of Christians living there, but a full-time evangelist will arrive in July to begin work, and plans are under way to build a strong congregation there. If you are a Christian teacher and interested in such an opportunity, write us for further details. Salaries start at $3,000. Full particulars are available. Write in care of: Church of Christ, Box 5486, Philadelphia 43, Pennsylvania.

Try Expository Preaching (No. 2)

A. H. Kennamer, Midland, Texas

Of all who have given expository preaching a genuine trial there seems to be no contrary voice as to its merits. No group of preachers have ever been more noted for their "scriptural preaching" than preachers of the church of Christ. Expository preaching, therefore, could not be more useful to any than to us. Knott speaks without reservation as to what expository preaching will do for the preacher when he says, "there need be no hesitation whatever in saying that a good expository development of his sermons will make each man the greatest success it is possible for him to be in his pulpit work. This is not an exaggeration; it is the calm, reflective judgment of every specialist in preaching, and, so far as the writer knows, there is no voice to the contrary."

It is said that Bro. Moses E. Lard, one of the most brilliant preachers of the Restoration Movement, whose genius is reflected in his commentary on Romans, used to say, preachers should get full of their subject and then tell the people about it. Such is an expository approach. Certainly the preacher who thus prepares himself to nurture the souls of his auditors will not be depending upon some fantastic theme to captivate the attention, some unique arrangement or peculiarity of elocution to hold the interest. Rather, his confidence will be vested in his being able to divest himself of the Word with which he has burdened his heart and which he knows is food for perishing souls.

The preacher is further benefited by expository preaching in that he is led into a new method of study. He no longer is hunting for an appropriate subject and then hopes to find enough material to expand it sufficiently (usually 30 minutes) between the introduction and the conclusion to be called a sermon. Rather, when he expounds on a consecutive portion of Scripture he is unfolding God's Word contextually—the setting in which it was cast by the Holy Spirit. Continuity of thought and meaning is maintained. Groups of parables at times can be centered around some question or some incident that called them forth, as the parables of Luke 15 are called forth by the incident mentioned in verse 2. One then does not have to develop his sermon around what may be possible meanings of texts, or around platitudes that can be derived therefrom but around the exact truth they were intended to convey. Such imaginary applications as may characterize some of our preaching is eliminated and what God intended for his message is given instead.

Are you insulted because someone stigmatizes you as a "narrow preacher?" If by "narrow" they mean one who knows but few sermons along the most common topics, then it should be accepted as a stigma of which we can be justly ashamed. But, if by "narrow" is meant, he does not depart from the Bible in preaching, then glory in it. Higher theological training seems to emphasize knowledge about the Bible, rather than knowledge of the Bible itself. Because some denominational preacher has attained great success by his psychological treatment of all scripture, his perverting prayer by making it a substitute for obedience or by using it as a psychological approach to daily problems, let us not think we must imitate them. Such men are highly acclaimed but they rarely if ever lead men to gospel obedience and real salvation. The power remains in the gospel and it reaches the sinner through obedience.

Lecturettes, sermonettes on passing events, glib utterances about the social aspect of the gospel don't satisfy the hungry soul that is sincerely seeking the truth. Perhaps this is one reason why so many reject the husks of denominationalism for gospel teaching.

Perhaps every preacher welcomes the multitude of books of sermons that come from the press, and this welcome is expressed in the good sales that they enjoy. In many cases preachers are hunting for "new ideas," "a new dress for an old sermon" (he can preach it again in the same place then), or for something the brethren haven't heard. They serve their purpose. In many cases they give another the profit of one's intensive study. They save much time in preparation. But, with few exceptions, these are all sermons of the topical type. There have been but a few that expounded some book. This field is still unworked. The books of Acts and First and Second Corinthians are about the only ones that have been so treated.

Dean Brown of the Yale Divinity School says, that after spending one or two hours of daily intensive study of individual books of the Bible, after four months he never spent fifteen minutes hunting for a text.

Every preacher experiences a need for a certain type of sermon where he preaches, as for instance, periodic sermons on "giving." At first one might think, if he is preaching regularly on a consecutive portion of Scripture, he might not be able to fit in the "needed" sermons at the right time. Recently, when in a series of expository sermons, a need for a sermon on "giving" was evident. Furthermore, it was more appropriate on a certain Lord's Day. A portion of several chapters had been assigned the congregation for reading with the promise that the sermons would come from

1. This Hymnal has been published at a time most opportune among the churches.

2. This call for a new song book is emphasized in the fact that so many thousands of persons have been added to the churches of Christ and that so many new congregations have been established during the recent years.

3. The older hymn books have been used a long time and not all of them have been satisfactory. Some are too large and contain too many songs that are never used; others are too small to provide a sufficient variety of singable songs for all occasions.

4. In recent years far too few new songs have appeared. Among the churches of Christ there are many capable song writers whose compositions have received too little notice. Some of our younger composers have supplied some material and "Majestic Hymnal" is publishing a large number of new songs. These will satisfy a demand of many churches and will be a merited recognition of the efforts of several young song leaders and writers.

5. Calls for new songs for special drills have too long passed unnoticed. Young people especially have been anxious for this new feature.

6. This book provides an exceptionally large number of invitation songs, funeral hymns, and for other special occasions.

that portion. In somewhat overlooking the general teaching of that portion and in looking for lessons relative to the desired subject, material was found for THREE sermons from the assigned portion. If it is true, as has been claimed, that one out of six verses in the New Testament is related to "giving" we need never fear finding material at the right time for such a sermon. Most of the other "needed" sermons will likewise come in due time.

Usually when a preacher preaches on giving, the congregation at once decides that they are being worked for more money, or they are being sold on another "program" of work that requires more money. Such lessons are related to current needs of the church, which within themselves may furnish a good incentive for giving. But, if such a lesson comes naturally from an exposition of the Scriptures, one can't help but see that God is addressing his soul about this duty. The preacher is not to blame for it.

If the portion of Scripture from which the exposition is to come has been assigned to the congregation, and, if they have read it, they are better prepared for any message it contains. A small amount of seed on soil that has been prepared brings a more abundant harvest than scattering seed profusely over large areas of hard soil.

Shall we list a number of advantages to the preacher in expository preaching:

1. He is never lacking in material for sermons. The Bible is his sermon outline book. Every time he covers a book he finds new sermons. While you preach a series, try listing additional sermons that could come from the same source. It is amazing!
2. It prevents a preacher from getting in a groove or rut. It also prevents him from riding a hobby. Such a wide variety of lessons come rushing to his mind in his study and he is attracted away from his "pet" subjects.
3. His sermons are perennially fresh. There is no substitute for intensive study in expository preaching.
4. As someone has remarked, there are always two in the pulpit: the impassioned preacher and the living Christ (Matt. 28:19).
5. His spirit is true. When his simple motive is to impart a knowledge of God's word, he then is accomplishing his God-given duty. The mere selection of an expository sermon is not a guarantee of a pure motive but is conducive to it.
6. One will soon learn in preparing expository sermons that he needs to develop a keen exegetical or analytical mind, to condition himself to get into the spirit of the writer, and express with conviction and enthusiasm the application. These are the qualities necessary to success as outlined by Harold Knott. Preach the living word!

Conversions Of Today (No. 1)

"A BLIND COUPLE SEES"

Claude A. Guild

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Aycock have worked for the Light House for the Blind many years. They are almost completely blind. She has done counterwork in the downtown post office, also other public buildings. He has been a broom salesman.

They boarded the city bus in Fort Worth one day. The bus driver, Brother Herman Knowles, is vigilant in his propagation of the gospel. He would carry tracts in his pocket and give them to passengers on his bus. When the Aycocks received their tracts, they read them with great interest; both had association in the Baptist Church.

Next, Brother Knowles invited them to hear our local broadcast, KCUL, 1540, 8:00 to 8:30 a.m., Sundays. In a few months, they came to the meeting house and at the conclusion of the first service, made the good confession and were baptized into Christ. Truly, their conversion is a fulfillment of the prophecy by Isaiah 9:2, "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwelt in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined."

Sister Aycock's letter speaks for itself as to her convictions in the truth and for New Testament Christianity. This letter was prepared without any prompting, purely from her own study in the scriptures. It is addressed to the preacher of the church she had formerly attended.

Dear Sir:

Through a careful study of God's word, I have learned that all spiritual blessings are in Christ, and in order for one to receive these blessings, he must put on Christ. This is done through baptism (Gal. 3:27). Therefore, to be affiliated with a group who teach contrary to this is a dangerous thing, and one cannot hope to receive such spiritual blessing.

A person who has become a child of God, through obeying the pattern God has laid down in his word, and then, joining himself to a group who would accept part of this pattern, which contains faith (Heb. 11:6); repentance (Acts 17:30 and Luke 13:3); confession (Romans 10:10), and baptism (Mark 16:16, Acts 2:38 1 Peter 3:21, Gal. 3:27), and does not accept and teach all, has committed spiritual adultery.

Such has been my case, and therefore, in order for me to be accepted by Christ and the church which he purchased with his own blood (Acts 20:28), I must sever my connection with such as cannot even so much as find their name anywhere in God's word. I can nowhere find the name of the Baptist church written in the Bible. Search though you may from Genesis 1 through Revelation 22:21, it just isn't there! Christ has only ONE body (Eph. 4:4-6), and he is the saviour of that body, which is the church (Eph. 5:23).

You plead with people to make a choice for Christ and you teach everyone may choose his own church, never giving a thought at all to the fact that there is only one church and that church was Christ's choice. Therefore, to teach that one may join the church of his choice is to utterly reject Christ's own word, when he said he would build his church (Matt. 16:18).

To teach that baptism is not essential to salvation is to reject Christ also, because Mark 16:16 says, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," Acts 22:16 says "to be baptized to wash away thy sins."

To believe these things—that baptism is not essential to salvation, that there is more than one church, and that salvation is by faith only—is a very dangerous thing, but to lead innocent souls in this way is a more dangerous thing.

Would you please give careful and prayerful attention to these things and change your way of teaching to Christ's way of teaching?

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) Mrs. Frances Aycock

The Located Preacher (No. 2)

J. W. Roberts

In a former article I offered some comments on the position taken by Brother Leroy Garrett in his paper, Bible Talk on the scripturalness of a preacher's staying in one place and working with a church as a regular minister. In this article, I would like to notice a few things of a practical nature concerning this matter.

Brother Garrett's position is that the preacher should "go about preaching" and let the elders "stay at home and teach the congregation." The work the located preacher does "to the church is teaching (or should be) and it is the work that God has given the elders. Evangelistic work is primarily among the lost" (Bible Talk, February, 1953, p. 69).

Now where is the scripture which says that the "work of teaching is the work which God has given to the elders"? Where is the scripture which teaches that the teaching of the church is exclusively or even mainly the duty of the elders of the church? Let us examine this point.

Brother Garrett admits (as we have shown) that Paul taught in the churches (1 Cor. 4:17). I have shown that Timothy's work as an evangelist with the church at Ephesus was to "teach" and set forth duties "to the brethren" (1 Tim. 4:6) and to show men how to behave in the house of God, the church (1 Tim. 3:15). At Antioch, Paul and Barnabas "gathered together with the church" for a whole year and "taught much people" (Acts 11:26). Many other Scriptures could be given to show that preachers of the New Testament churches taught churches as well as groups of alien sinners and that they taught churches which were supplied with elders.

"The elders are to be 'apt to teach.'" This is true, but what does this word mean? Brother McGarvey once wrote:

"'Apt to teach'—This expression is the rendering of the single Greek word didaktikos. This word is difficult to render for want of an English equivalent. If we had a correlative of the word 'teachable,' to represent the disposition of the teacher, as this word does that of the person willing to be taught, it would render didaktikos with precision. In the absence of it, our translators have done the best they could by using the old adjective apt with the infinitive to teach. It does not mean skillful in teaching, as some seem to understand it; but the readiness, promptness, willingness to teach. This is made clear by the context in the only other occurrence of the word in the New Testament, 2 Cor. 2:24, 'The Lord's servant must not strive, but be gentle towards all, apt to teach . . .' Here it expresses a disposition which is to be maintained toward opponents; and it requires Timothy, in contradistinction from strife, to be ready to teach. It would of course, be vain to require a man to be ready to teach, if he were not able to teach. Consequently, while the idea of capability is not expressed in the word, it is implied" (Missouri Christian Lectures, 1899, p. 493).

My point in quoting this extract is to show that the word didaktikos lays down the qualification of a readiness to teach, but does not necessarily imply that this is the main work of an elder or that teaching is his exclusive work.

Paul told the elders at Ephesus they were to "feed the flock" (Acts 20:28). This verb here is poimaino, which means to "act as a shepherd." A glance at a Greek lexicon will show that the main idea in the verb is not that of "feeding," and Paul's instruction here consequently does not make teaching the main work of the elders. Again may I quote from a sermon by Brother McGarvey on the work of elders:

"'Act as shepherds'—The chief duty of the shepherd, as known to the Jews, was not to feed his flock; for they lived almost entirely by grazing. Our translators made a serious mistake, when instead of rendering poimaino, be shepherd, they rendered it feed the flock. . . . It would have been far nearer the truth to have rendered it rule the flock, as it is so rendered in Rev. 2:27; 12:5; 19:15 (an allusion to the rod with which the shepherds controlled their flocks, and their representation of this rod as a rod of iron compels us to understand the leading term in its severer sense alone).

"This fault in our translation has not only obscured the office of the shepherds, but has propagated the idea which led the translators to adopt it, so that the feeding the flock by religious teaching is very generally supposed to be the chief duty of the elder's office. The result has been that elders have been appreciated according to their aptness to teach and have striven to acquit themselves well in this respect to the almost total neglect of the discipline of the congregation" (Lard's Quarterly, Vol II, p. 315).

In 1 Tim. 5:17, Paul shows that some elders taught publicly and some did not. He specifically taught that those who did so "labor in words and teaching" should be paid for their labors. It is the ruling, the admonishing, the shepherding, the overseeing of the congregation which is the main work of the elders; this is shown both by the definition of the words used to describe their position and by the words used to describe their work. The bishop is to be able to exhort in the sound doctrine and convict the gainsayer (Titus 1:9). But no scripture indicates that this is his main work, or that the church is wholly dependent upon the elders for the work of edification.

Thus I think Brother Garrett's basic assumption that "the work of teaching is the work that God has given to the elders" is unproved and unprovable from the New Testament. The epistles of Titus and Timothy lay every duty upon the preacher that is laid upon the elder of a congregation, with the exception that the minister is nowhere given the authority to rule and oversee the congregation. It is my contention that the example of Timothy proves that in the duty of teaching the congregation the elder and the preacher have parallel responsibilities, and if any pre-eminence is to be discerned it is to be given to the preacher inasmuch as this is his main forte. Under such circumstances the preacher is not a pastor or elder, unless he qualifies as an elder and the congregation should so select him. The preacher is still under the elders and must not rebuke them.

Brother Garrett thinks the "good old days" were the best. I doubt this. He says, "In earlier days preachers actually did evangelistic work and churches edified themselves. And that is when we made our greatest growth. . . . Then it was the old Jerusalem gospel preached under a brush arbor, in a school building, a home, or a simple meeting house. In those days, brethren knew something" (p. 79).

But this also may be wistful thinking. Does he mean the practice of a preacher preaching a series of sermons under a brush arbor, baptizing a group of hearers, appointing some elders over them, and going off to leave them to meet once a week, or sporadically, until he returns for the next "protracted meeting" the next year produced a more informed group of disciples than our present churches with their full week of classes under qualified supervision and adequate teaching and preaching produce? Who believes it? Let him prove it by observing the country congregations which still maintain such a program of work. Let him prove it by the remnants of the congregations in some parts of the nation who still believe in the "mutual edification" theory, which is essentially what his contention amounts to. It is my opinion that the church has developed more preachers, and is doing more mission work under its present system than it did in the "good old days."

In closing may I quote once again from McGarvey:

"On a moment's reflection it is easy to see that such an arrangement (as the preacher working under an eldership, JWR) as this is wise at times, if not even a necessity. Any church, with even a good and efficient eldership, is liable to have enemies in its vicinity too strong for its elders; it is liable in the vicissitudes of its career to have less efficient elders at one time than another; it is likely to have in reach of its ministrations a large number of the ungodly who can be won to Christ more easily by powerful preaching than by the teaching of its elders; and for any or all of these reasons, it may scripturally have in addition to the work of its elders that of an evangelist. Even a young evangelist, with neither the experience nor the age required for the eldership, may do an excellent work under such circumstances; but let it be borne in mind that he does not, by such labor, become a pastor or shepherd of the flock. He is still an evangelist; he is one of the flock; and the pastors have rule over him. Such was the case of Timothy at Ephesus" (Missouri Christian Lectures, 1899, p. 200).

If Brother Garrett will use his paper to combat professionalism and to condemn an usurpation of rulership and oversight on the part of the local preacher, we will wish him God-speed in his work. But at present he is doing an injustice to his brethren and denying the plain teaching of God's word.

Studies In Galatians (No. 14)

R. C. Bell, Abilene, Texas

"Not having a righteousness of mine own, even that which is of the law, but . . . the righteousness which is from God by faith" (Phil. 3:9). This half verse, written by Paul a few years later than Galatians, is a distillment of Galatians. Had Paul possessed legal righteousness, it would have been his own because he had earned it as a deserved wage for his perfect law-keeping. Instead, when he believed on Christ he received gospel righteousness from God as a gift.

"Ye are severed from Christ, ye that would be justified by the law . . . for we through the Spirit by faith wait for the hope of righteousness." Note the contrast between legalists and Christians. Christians being already clothed in Christ's righteousness do not wait for righteousness itself, but for its fulfillment, "the crown of righteousness," after earth-life. While they wait, their hope and "faith working through love" fill their lives with patient, joyous work. By grace, through faith, in love, unto crowned hope. Inasmuch as Christians find in Christ every need for life, death, and beyond richly supplied, legalists who desert him for a "weak and beggarly" religion of the flesh are foolish indeed.

If Paul doubted the Galatians, he found hope for them in Christ and wrote: "I have confidence to you-ward in the Lord" "that you will not fall away into the entanglements of legalism. He did not judge indiscriminately, but distinguished between the leaders and the led. Out of tender, fatherly love for the Galatians, he spared not the troublemakers, wished they would sever themselves from the church, and warned that they could not escape the judgment of God. It is evident (v. 11) that these "evil workers," wilfully forgetting that Paul refused to circumcise Titus because to do so would have compromised essential Christian doctrine, took his circumcising Timothy when only expediency and Christian liberty were involved, and twisted it into the malicious, damaging lie that he was an unprincipled man, who preached circumcision when it suited his purpose to do so. Behold, religious partianship, prejudice, and bigotry at work!

Men Are Triune Beings

The natural man has a fleshly nature and a spiritual nature living within his body. When he experiences the spiritual birth, the Holy Spirit so identifies himself with and so indwells the man's spirit that a new order of life, the Christian life, which eventuates in eternal life, comes into being. Instead of this spiritual life extirpating "the mind of the flesh," which "is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can it be" (Rom. 8:7), the two live in perpetual strife within the man until his death. At the resurrection when Christ comes, a Christian's body, which was "sown a natural body" and "is raised a spiritual body" (1 Cor. 15:44), shall be his again to live in forever. Wholly spiritual then, "spirit and soul and body" (1 Thes. 5:23), he is forever free from strife.

During this struggle between flesh and spirit throughout the Christian's life on earth, the arrogant flesh is only counterworked and kept in subjection, never eradicated. "That which is born of the flesh is flesh" (John 3:6); it remains flesh in a regenerate man, and cannot become humble and spiritual. The best a Christian is promised, before death and resurrection deliver him from his fallen fleshly nature, is that sin shall not dominate him, and reign over him. (See Rom. 6:12-14). A Christian is still pursued, but no longer ruled, by Adam's sin.

This world-old conflict heads up in God and Satan, who are deadly, personal enemies. God works through the spirit, and Satan through the flesh of men, "created half to rise, and half to fall." With the passing of time, Christians should increasingly become less sinful, carnal and worldly, and more saintly, spiritual and other-worldly. (On this background, Galatians 5:12-26 may mean more to us.)

"A New Commandment"

"For ye, brethren, were called for freedom; only use not your freedom for an occasion to the flesh, but through love be servants to one another" (Gal. 5:13). Satan is man's resourceful, stubborn, wily foe. One stratagem he uses to trick Christians into the indulgence of their flesh is to prompt them to reason: "Where sin abounded, grace did abound more exceedingly"; therefore let us "continue in sin that grace may abound" (Rom. 5:20; 6:1). Paul calls such as this "Turning the grace of God into Lasciviousness."

But Christian liberty may be abused in many other ways. Satan was beguiling the Galatians into making their freedom a pretext for uncharitable treatment of their brethren. Apparently, they thought they were as free from moral law as from Mosaic ritualism, and had license to be lawless. Paul tells them to serve one another in Christian love, and they will discover: "That the whole law is fulfilled in one word, even in this; Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself"; that God has perfected a way of making men, without their becoming legalists, lawful. As the character of Christ proves, law itself and love are not incompatible; Pharisaic legalism, not law, is what contradicts gospel grace, truth, and love.

Codified law is not necessary for Christians, because their "faith working through love" leads them into doing even more than codes can specify. A servant under law, after meeting all requirements, may be off duty for a time; but a servant under love, being unable to do all he wants to do, can never find a stopping place. A Christian often sins more than he pleases, but he never can love and work enough to please himself. His creed is: "Since I am at best only an unprofitable servant, I must ever be going onward, outward, upward, and beyond." Only this attitude can account for the incomparable lawfulness, labor, love, suffering, and success of the author of Galatians. To human merit and all other forms of "confidence in the flesh," Christian love is as dangerous as an atom bomb is to a city.

Just before he went to the cross, Christ said to his apostles: "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; even as I have loved you . . . By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples" (John 13:34, 5). In giving the prime and pivotal place in his coming kingdom to love, he was launching a strange, new religion that would distill the Mosaic law into an eleventh commandment, so to speak, and create an immeasurably better social order than any order built on law could ever be. A wonderful King this, who loves men, without their being sensible of law, restraint, and duty, into lawful living plus! Verily, a strange, new religion then, and alack a strange, new religion yet. "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and the knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past tracing out!"

THE SPIRIT OF RIVALRY

Those who serve God in the spirit of rivalry fall far short of what God requires. "Nothing should be done in a factious spirit or from vanity" (Phil. 2:3, 20th C. N. T.). It is not infrequent that those who are making effort to raise large sums of money for religious purposes appeal to ignoble motives in those whom they would influence to liberality in that line. Persons are persuaded to give much in order to excel others. When a man makes a large donation, his name is heralded abroad and the amount he has given is made known in order to stimulate others to competition. It is well to have a friendly interest in what others are doing, but the controlling purpose of the heart must rise to a more exalted view. We must not give merely because others are liberal, but because of the worthiness of that which we endeavor to sustain, the worth of souls, and the good pleasure of our God.

But men do sometimes become rivals in the church of the living God. When the spirit of faction and rivalry obtains, there is little hope for the prevalence of the good Spirit of God. This is the real cause of the decadence of zeal, piety and divine growth in many of the churches. Moreover, it is not always apparent that such a spirit prevails for its exercise is silent, and thus the baneful work of ruin is effected before the members are fully aware of it, or of its cause. Beware of church leaders who pout and pull away and fail to meet because they are not "honored" as they suppose they ought to be. A good soldier must be willing to endure hardness even if not sufficiently honored by those whose spiritual interests he seeks. If he must be patted and petted and boosted by men, in order to keep him in the service of God it is manifest that the adulations of men weigh more with him than the approval of God. Such characters are selfish. They desire prominence and preferment above the Lord whose we are and whom we serve. The damage wrought by such men can hardly be expressed in words. They will work in and for churches, for years, and leave them in a condition far worse than when they began, unless there are other powerful counter-acting influences that impel the members on in righteousness and the fear of God. They usually complain much because the church has done and is doing so little for them. They become jealous if another brother succeeds where they have failed, and all the malicious influences of back-biting are turned loose. Sinful thoughts and hasty words and godless deeds follow in quick succession. Love is dethroned; hatred reigns; God's name is reproached; the church becomes a by-word; saints bow their heads in shame while demons rejoice and unbelievers stalk boldly forth to soothe a troubled conscience and urge their deceptive doctrine on the strength of another "failure" of religion. The only acceptable worship is that which is impelled by an abiding faith in God, a love of truth, and a profound respect for divine revelation. We should go to the place where the divine service is held and love to do so because God requires it. This is sufficient reason with those who are strong in faith and pure in heart.

Report Of The Work At Northside - Austin

H. I. Taylor

It has been my pleasure to be associated with the following churches in meetings thus far this year: Fredericksburg, Rockdale, McAllen, Second Avenue, Dallas, Strickland Grove, and the church for the Deaf in Austin. All of these churches are in Texas. There were about thirty baptisms. I am to be in West Memphis June 1, Llano, Elgin, Brashear, Cumby, Kerrville this summer.

The work here at Northside is growing right along. We have had fourteen baptisms, four restorations, and twenty-three to place membership thus far this year. About fifty to seventy-five members from here have gone to the new congregation, Brentwood, and are doing a good work. Brentwood is destined to be a very fine congregation. Brother Leathel Roberts is preaching there and is liked by all.

On May 20, 1953, ground was broken for our new auditorium and addition to the Bible Class Building. The auditorium will seat between 900 and 1,000. We are meeting in the auditorium of the Baker School, 39th and Guadalupe, while the building is under construction. This is just three blocks south of the present location. When you are in Austin we invite you to worship with us.

We are continuing with a daily radio program over KTBC, 590 kc, Austin. The time of broadcast is 6:45 a.m. Monday through Friday and 7:15 a.m. on the Lord's day. We invite you to listen. May the Lord help us to be truly grateful for his blessings and to be careful to ascribe all the glory to his precious name.

More Than Fifty Years Ago

G. W. Austin

When I turned the front page of the Firm Foundation of the 14th, there was my old classmate, "Charlie" Roberson, looking me in the eye, much the same in appearance as he was more than fifty years ago. It was my good fortune to be with him in the Georgia Roberson Christian College from the spring of 1900 through the year ending June 2, 1902.

"Charlie," as he was familiarly known, was loved and respected by all who knew him. He was big-hearted and sympathetic, always for the "underdog." I can never forget his taking my part, when some more favored by culture and material possessions, slurred my uncouth mien.

He was the most brilliant member of our class. If he had an equal on the campus, the fact never came to my knowledge. In his classwork he was outstanding in Latin and Greek, and not excelled in any branch of study.

In his passing, the church has suffered loss, as well as society in general.

CHURCH OF CHRIST, TALLULAH, LOUISIANA

J. W. Howell

About the year 1931, four members began meeting in their homes, which was the beginning of the church of Christ in Tallulah, Louisiana. Soon they moved their meeting place to the Court House and it was there for some time. The work grew and they next moved to the Book Club. After meeting there for a time they began the erection of a nice brick structure on the corner of Elm and Oak Streets, which was completed in 1943. Now, in the year 1953 they have a new Bible School Annex. This new building has approximately the floor space of the first one, and adds much beauty and appearance to the whole setting. This new addition is modern throughout; the hallway was built for about $3,800.00. We did most of the work ourselves. On January 2, 1953, the foundation was poured, and on May 3, 1953, the opening day was held. Our entire property is now valued at $15,000.00. This addition is modern throughout; the hallway is finished in natural color, with white trim work and pastel walls in four of the classrooms, and two rooms finished in natural color. Beautiful hardwood floors throughout. Two rest rooms in natural color, and a drinking fountain. The future of the church here looks brighter, and we thank God that he has so abundantly blessed us.

Brother Walter M. Mann

L. W. Mayo

Brother W. M. Mann was born June 22, 1879, at Bethany, Texas. He obeyed the gospel in 1908 being converted by Brother Sheldon. Soon after he obeyed the gospel he was brought to realize the necessity of preaching the word, so he began to study to prepare himself to preach. This he began to do in 1911. His work as a preacher began in Van Zandt County, Texas, preaching monthly at such places as Hanley, Newark, and Keeder. He received much of his help at the first from such men as A. W. Young, W. P. Richardson, Joe S. Warlick and others.

In August, 1915, he was married to Mary Ellen Palm at Wetumpka, Oklahoma. To this union were born six children. Two girls died in infancy and one boy, Marcus, died at the age of 15. Three daughters still live: Jane B. Osborn, Nora Ellen (Jacky) Murphy, and Dorothy Mae Mann. Brother Mann, with the assistance of his good wife, instilled into these girls such principles as to make them into such women that the country does not afford any finer.

Brother Mann did church work in the states of Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana and California. His work in California began at Portersville. Other places he labored in California were Pixley, Bakersfield, Tulare, Hanford, Woodlake, McFarland, Santa Maria, and Corona. He also worked with the Ontario Orphan Home.

Brother Mann was far from the mercenary type. At least seven-eighths of the time he earned his living elsewhere and preached for small congregations enabling them to "get on their feet" and go ahead with the work. He often worked as a carpenter, sold insurance, worked as a ginner, sold stock and taught school four years. Those whom he helped will never forget him.

To this writer Brother Mann was more help than could be expressed. We worked together in meetings, debates, and in local work. His conversation was predominantly about the church. His mouth knew no guile. His wisdom and advice was always useful and good. It is hard to imagine a closer friendship than we had.

Brother Mann was untiring in his work until he suffered a stroke on January 8, 1950, at Woodlake, California. This came on him as he was preaching. From that time on he was never too strong any more, though he did preach a few times. The last places he preached were Woodlake, two sermons at Yosemite; Lindsay, Porterville, and Pixley. The last year his health had been going down hill all the time. About 5:30 a.m., January 14, he had another attack and passed away at 6:50 p.m., January 16.

Funeral services were held in the church building at Porterville, where he had gone to church for the last four or five years, with this writer preaching the funeral, assisted by Brother Edward Brouellette. A great host of friends from miles around came to pay him the last tribute of respect.

He is survived by his three daughters already mentioned, and his faithful wife, Sister Mann.

"A great man of Israel is fallen." He is gone but his work lives on. One of Brother Mann's favorite verses of scripture was Psalm 116:15: "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

San Jose, California.

Raymond Cook, Box 452, Hebronville, Texas, May 20: The work is progressing here in spite of extremely hot weather. The Episcopalian minister is converting scores by use of printed matter. It could be a conversion to the true church of Christ in many cases, if I had tracts to hand out.

W. E. Kirk, Waxahachie, Texas, May 20: We have just closed a meeting here with Foster L. Ramsey of Tipton, Oklahoma, doing the preaching. The results were two baptisms and one placed membership. There were four baptized in the month immediately preceding the meeting. The meeting accomplished much good here.

B. B. Harding, 437 S. Thompson, Vinita, Oklahoma, May 18: There were four more baptisms yesterday and two were brought from Timber Hill to be baptized. Contributions are $26 a week higher than the usual average. We are in urgent need of more auditorium space and more classrooms, construction of which has begun.

W. S. Wiley, 503 E. Huisache, Kingsville, Texas, May 11: Two were baptized here yesterday. Good audiences at all services. We are now supporting a native preacher in Italy, and have promised $500 toward a building in Pavda, Italy.

A. R. Holton, Nashville, Tennessee, May 16: Reservations are coming in for Blue Ridge Camp Meeting at Blue Ridge, North Carolina, July 18-24. Send reservations to J. W. Brents, Woodmont Blvd., Nashville, Tennessee.

Dan J. Ottinger, Box 214, Florence, Alabama, May 16: I was at Rogersville, Tennessee, April 28 to May 10—29 sermons. One was baptized and two restored at the day services. Joe Poston is greatly loved there for his good work.

Claude B. Holcomb, 633 W. Collin, Corsicana, Texas, May 11: Oscar Ellison of Springfield, Missouri, has just closed a very fine meeting with us here at Fifth Avenue; six were baptized, two restored, and two identified.

A. R. Holton, Nashville, Tennessee: Plan a week of study and recreation at Blue Ridge Camp Meeting, Blue Ridge, North Carolina (near Asheville, North Carolina), July 18-24, in the heart of the Great Smoky Mountains. Write J. W. Brents, Woodmont Boulevard, Nashville, Tennessee.

Max T. Neel, Waco, Texas, May 11: We have been encouraged by our increased attendance in nearly every department of our work, and same high interest. Yesterday, we had two baptisms, and two the Sunday before with two others placing membership. Our vacation Bible school begins June 1, and our next meeting is with Carl Spain beginning June 14. Pray for us!

O. M. Reynolds, Box 242, Leakey, Texas, May 15: I closed my work with the De Leon church the first Sunday with two restorations and moved to this place to become the first regular minister of the church and it is fifty-one years old. We are having a fine start. We will have a meeting with Brother Louie White and Vacation Bible School May 31-June 7.

A. G. Hobbs, Jr., 3156 Jane Lane, Fort Worth, Texas, May 12: Last Lord's day I closed a meeting with the Azle Avenue congregation of Fort Worth; two were baptized and one restored. At the present writing, I am in a meeting in Chattanooga, Tennessee. From May 24-31, I shall do the preaching in a meeting for the Rosen Heights congregation in Fort Worth.

John H. Gerrard, P. O. Box 735, Aurora, Illinois, May 19: Our meeting closed last Sunday night with Joseph H. Cox of Louisville, Kentucky, doing very excellent work in preaching the gospel. Don Moyer of Blue Island, Illinois, directed the song service in his usual able manner; seven were restored and one baptized. Visit us at 529 Clark Street, when coming our way.

B. B. Harding, 437 S. Thompson, Vinita, Oklahoma, May 11: Enjoying my second labor here and having record crowds for Bible study and morning and evening Sunday services. Two baptisms, one restoration, and five identified in recent weeks. Fellowship of congregations in Northeast Oklahoma is splendid. Let's help to set many free in 1953. There are entirely too many inactive and worldly members everywhere.

Ward Hogland, 1900 Jenny Lind, Fort Smith, Arkansas: The West Side church in Corinth, Mississippi, just closed a meeting in which I preached. Capacity crowds attended the night services including eleven gospel preachers from a three-state area. Owen Freeman is doing good work in that community. The work here at Park Hill is encouraging, especially since we moved into our new plant. Jim Cope of Tampa, Florida, will preach in our fall meeting.

Forrest D. Moyer, 1502 South 3rd, Tucumcari, New Mexico, May 14: I am now engaged in a meeting in Alamogordo, New Mexico, which will continue through May 20. Rollie Rankin is now the local preacher for the church here. The meeting in Spearman, Texas, in which I preached and Troy Thurman directed singing, closed May 3. Nine confessed wrongs, three were baptized and three placed membership during the meeting. H. Alton Wimbish is doing a fine job as local preacher.

Johnny Richter, Cleburne, Texas, May 11: I have not reported in some time of the work here at East Side, Cleburne. I have been here nearly five years and we have had over one response per Sunday during that time. We have averaged baptizing one every two Sundays. We built a preacher's home and it is paid for. The church seems to be stronger physically, morally, and spiritually. We give God all the praise and pray that he will forgive us for the things we come short in.

Reeder Oldham, Box 26, Gainesboro, Tennessee, May 18: Four confessions of sin at East Mountain, Texas. Roy Emberlin was the very efficient song leader. Norman Whitehorn is doing a fine work there while "making tents." Three were baptized by Robert Fox, an elder here, while I was away. Filling the pulpit both Sundays was Bob Plunket, David Lipscomb College. One was restored in a Sunday afternoon service at McCoinsville, this county. After the first day, our vacation Bible school is running well ahead of last year.

Oliver C. Cunningham, 406 Chestnut, Cookeville, Tennessee, May 12: Willow Street had 190 for Bible School last Sunday which is an all-time record. Our contributions for 1952 averaged $168.00 per week; for 1953, $177.66; and since March 1, $190.10. I teach or preach 16 times a week, including a daily radio program. Our vacation Bible school will be June 1-6. We are sending an invitation to each school child in Cookeville. Our meeting with Brother Robert Oz of Ypsilanti, Michigan, will be July 5-15. Two have been baptized and one restored since last report.

Ernest McCoy, who has been with the church in Berger for the past four years has resigned. Plans for future work have not been made. The congregation has made a rapid growth. At the present time they are having two worship services on Sunday morning to take care of the crowds and the building is well filled on Sunday night. Since January of this year there have been fifteen baptisms, thirty-nine restorations and thirty-two to place membership.

J. Porter Wilhite, 6717 Lyons Avenue, Houston 20, Texas, May 11: We closed one of our best meetings at Lyons and Majestic congregation in Houston, with H. A. (Buster) Dobbs, Cleveland, Texas, doing the preaching. He did a wonderful job, which resulted in 46 responses all together: ten baptized, three restored, and three placed membership. Most of them were adults. The three Sundays before the meeting started, with local forces, we had ten additions. We think the work goes well here at Lyons and Majestic.

Horace W. Busby, 2225 W. Hawthorne, Ft. Worth 4, Texas, May 15: The meeting with the Central Church in Norman, Oklahoma, closed Sunday evening, the 10th, with a large attendance throughout. Fourteen were baptized and several others were identified or restored. Howard White is the regular minister for the church and is a wonderful helper in a gospel meeting, both he and his wife. Many visitors were present from Oklahoma City, Chickasha, Ardmore, Pauls Valley and Purcell, also other places near by.

W. T. Garnett, Box 142, Portales, New Mexico, May 13: Since last reporting, I have moved from Henrietta, Texas, to Portales, New Mexico. We had a very pleasant work in Henrietta, some of the very best are there. We are enjoying good fellowship here. We are with the East 2nd Street church. I could assist in two meetings in August and September, if you could use me, let me hear from you. When passing this way, visit us. Our meeting with Brother Joe L. Banks doing the preaching, will begin the 21st of June.

Jessie Brookshire, Box 273, Morton, Texas, May 11: Another good day here yesterday. Three confessed their faith in Christ and were baptized into him. Since our last report, we have had seven additions: five by baptism, one to renounce the errors of the Christian church and one to confess faults and be restored. In planning for the needs of the church here the elders see the need for more classroom space in the very near future and we hope to get under way with them in the next few days. Peace and harmony prevails throughout the congregation for which we are very thankful. To the Lord be all the honor and glory.

C. E. McGaughey, 2407 W. Lincoln, Springfield, Missouri, May 20: Warren Morris of Atlanta and I closed at Valdosta, Georgia, with Central Avenue church with 14 baptisms and three restorations. This church does a great amount of mission work and sends out Lawrence Habelip, its faithful evangelist, to help build up the cause in many of the neighboring towns. Central Avenue supports two other preachers in that area full time and plans to send out another. Georgia is a great field for the gospel with 101 of its 159 counties without a church. I began here at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, last Sunday. Go next to Baltimore, Maryland, then to Highlands, suburb of Houston, June 10-19.

Sister U. G. Wilkinson, Box 192, Comanche, Oklahoma, May 10: Lord's day another good day for the church here. Brother G. W. Allison preached one of the very best sermons heard in many years. His subject: "Lest We Forget Old Jerusalem." Many heard him. I am feeling better. Love to the Firm Foundation writers and readers.

Arnold Hardin, Lancaster, Texas, May 20: In the last three Sundays, we have had 15 responses, including three baptisms. During this time we enjoyed a fine meeting with Joe L. Banks of Denver, Colorado. My fifth year with this good church is now beginning. Our greatest need just now is a larger auditorium as the present one will seat 300 and we are having more than this number present on Sunday mornings. We set a new record for Bible study last Sunday as 281 were present. When you are coming toward Dallas from the south we would be happy to have you worship with us.

J. Ed Uland, Box 622, Cody, Wyoming, May 17: We want to extend a cordial invitation to all tourists to stop over and visit with us this summer. Cody is the eastern entrance to Yellowstone, and we are meeting in the Union Hall, at 956 12th Street, at 10:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. We will be leaving this section around the first of August due to a lack of support, and we trust that some congregation will see fit to send a man into this area. Elders, preachers, and others are invited to come into this section and investigate the work. Pray for us, and may God help us all to see the need right under our noses.

M. A. Mansur, 1405 Richardson, Columbia, Missouri, May 20: We had another wonderful day for the Lord last Sunday, at the Paris Road Church of Christ, here in Columbia. A university professor and his daughter were baptized into Christ at the evening service. This makes six baptized and one restored in the past six weeks, bringing our total responses to the gospel up to 20 in the last nine months, all for which we give credit unto the Lord. If you are interested in a good place to live, do not overlook Columbia, Missouri, the educational center of this great state. When in Missouri, stop over and worship with us.

Joe W. Crumley, 500 South Roberts, El Reno, Oklahoma: Max R. Crumley of Temple, Texas, held our spring meeting; four baptized, two returned to duty, capacity crowds. Representatives from many sections of the state came great distances to hear Max. This attests to his exceptional ability as a preacher. No other meeting held in El Reno has had such wide drawing power nor has had so many come from so far. Had it not been for the 27 baptized in the months just preceding the meeting, the number baptized during the meeting would have been more impressive. Will Slater of Fort Worth led the songs. This made every worship period the best possible.

Albert Holland, 151 South Marne Street, Memphis, Tennessee, May 15: G. C. Brewer, minister, assisted by B. G. Sweeny, song director, both of Jackson Avenue church of Christ, Memphis, Tennessee, closed a good meeting May 3rd through the 10th, with the Highway 61 South Church, this city. The congregational singing, under the direction of Brother Sweeny, was enjoyed by everyone. Brother Brewer's sermons were both timely and fruitful. There were 26 additions to the new congregation in the meeting. Twenty responded the last day of the meeting, May 10th. Nine were baptized, one restored, and sixteen by transfer of membership. The first services conducted in this new building were May 3rd at 11 o'clock, followed with dinner spread on the ground from 12:30 to 2:00. There was city-wide singing from 2:30 to 4:00 with services at 8 o'clock each evening through the week. This new church is located five miles south of the Memphis city limits, two miles north of the Mississippi state line in the "Old Home Town" new subdivision, 5165 Highway 61 South. When passing this way, visit us.

Cornelius C. Abbott, 401 N. Park Seminole, Oklahoma: Six have responded to the invitation since last report: three baptized and three restored. Cled Wallace and Glenn Boyd will be with the church here in a meeting and vacation Bible school May 31 through June 7. I begin with Brother J. A. McNutt and Berclair church in Memphis, Tennessee, June 17; McCloud, Oklahoma, July 13; Little, Oklahoma, July 26; Stroud, Oklahoma, August 10; then to Riverdale church in Dayton, Ohio. My son, Cornelius C. Abbott, Jr., enters Lipscomb College June 8, to prepare himself to preach the gospel. We averaged 320 each Sunday in Bible study during April.

Grover C. Ross, Portales, New Mexico, May 11: I assisted the church of Salem, Illinois, in a meeting recently. This is where Brother Jesse Wiseman preaches. The meeting was well attended by the brethren throughout southern Illinois, and we had from one to five visiting preachers daily. But very few outsiders attend meetings in southern Illinois. I found the church young, yet energetic and willing to make a great sacrifice that the church might move along. One man was baptized as a visible result. Brother Wiseman is doing an outstanding work not only at Salem, but as an evangelist in southern Illinois. Our work in Portales is moving along in a fine way. Recently seven were baptized, two restored and several identified.

O. H. Tabor, 1506 24th Place, Lubbock, Texas: It gives us much joy to be able to report that the Southside congregation here in Lubbock continues to grow in numbers and in faith. Five new members were added last Lord's day making a total of thirty additions to the congregation since the second Sunday in March. Since that time thirteen have been baptized, thirteen have been restored and four have placed membership. More lots were purchased recently for parking space and plans are now under way for a new building. We are looking forward to the time when Southside will be strong enough to keep several preachers in the mission field full time. When in Lubbock, worship with us at 23rd and Avenue N.

Elmer Shackelford, Leedey, Oklahoma, May 17: Brother George B. Curtis did the preaching in our spring meeting. Brother Curtis delivered fine lessons each evening. During this meeting and the week that followed, 27 were added to the forces here: 18 by baptism and seven restored. We have the best interest in the history of the church here at Leedey. I am to begin work with the congregation at Gage, Oklahoma, the first Sunday in June. The last Sunday of this month will bring to a close six and one-half year's work with the church here at Leedey. One could not find a better group to work with than here. Brother William L. DaVee will begin work here the last of July. My son will preach here until that time. After June 1st, address all mail to Gage, Oklahoma.

Bill McCown, 176 Ohio St., New Braunfels, Texas, May 13: I am currently in the midst of what promises to be a very good meeting with the church at Nixon, Texas. Brother W. H. Hahn is the capable minister here and it is a pleasure to be associated with him in this work. My next meeting will be with the church at Gonzales with Brother C. L. Maxwell, July 5-19. Local brethren carry on in my absence at New Braunfels and are doing a good work. Our work in New Braunfels is progressing and for that we are thankful. Roy H. Lanier of Bartlesville, Oklahoma, is to be with us in a meeting November 1-11 and Brother Jim Bill McInteer of Nashville, Tennessee, will be here February 28-March 10, 1954. These are capable men and we are fortunate in being able to secure their services.

F. S. Harper, 384 East Chestnut Street, Lisbon, Ohio, May 11: I have recently conducted meetings at Charleston, West Virginia, and with the East End congregation of McMinnville, Tennessee. The attendance and interest were good during both meetings. At Charleston there were ten baptized and two restored. At McMinnville five were baptized and two restored. The work here at Beaver Street is going along in a fine way. Hobart Ashby of Flint, Michigan, closed a good meeting here Wednesday night, April 29. I will terminate my work here after school is out in May. The first of June my address will be Woodbury, Tennessee. For the past four years I have worked with the Beaver Street church here in Lisbon, Ohio. This is a good congregation to work with. Just before I moved here four years ago the church had erected a nice brick meeting house and also bought a nice house for the preacher's home. Ray D. Beggs of Akron, Ohio, has been secured for the work in Lisbon.

WORSHIP WITH US

Ted Norton, 2701 Avenue F, Snyder, Texas, May 15: The new building for another congregation, on 37th Street, in this city is now in the finishing stage. Tentative plans are to launch this new work around July 1. Warder K. Novak will serve as evangelist for the new work. A vacation Bible school will be conducted here at 1511 25th Street, June 1-12. A meeting follows with Paul Foutz of Sweetwater, Texas, doing the preaching, June 19-28. Then in August a meeting will be conducted with the congregation on 37th Street. Raymond Keley of Oklahoma City will do the preaching. One man was baptized here last Thursday morning. He formerly was a Methodist.

Lawrence Hazelip, 1509 William St., Valdosta, Georgia, May 18: Nineteen were baptized, three restored and three placed membership since last report. Fourteen of these and the three restored responded during our meeting with C. E. McGaughey doing the preaching and Warren Morris leading the song service. We truly had a great meeting. Both men were at their best and have been invited to return. We reached an all time high in Bible study during the meeting. The church has been strengthened. Our Vacation Bible School will be June 8-19. I begin in a tent six miles north of Valdosta tonight. I will go to Albany, Georgia June 21 where Forrest Chapman labors.

O. R. Perkins, Ruston, Louisiana, May 11: We began work with the good church in Ruston, Louisiana, March 1 of this year. The brethren have worked hard and have a fine new building with plenty of room for growth and a nice preacher's home. We are located on Highway 80, two blocks from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. It is good to have the opportunities that a state college offers any church. Lord's day, May 10, was a wonderful day for the church here. Four answered the call of our Lord: two to be baptized and two restored to their first love. We rejoice and give God the glory. I leave tonight for a short meeting with the brethren at Rocky Branch near here. Worship with us, if you come our way.

A. F. Thurman, Electra, Texas, May 19: In our recent meeting, Brother M. R. Phillips, Victoria, Texas, did the preaching. His was preaching of the sort that measures up to the New Testament brand—no speculations, no hobbies. He is just that sort of a preacher and he does it in a most becoming manner. We enjoyed him and his preaching very much. There were six additions: three restored and three baptized. The work here moves along in a splendid way. It's the Lord's work! Success to the good old Firm Foundation. It's a friend and helper to all who will read it. It's dear to me. All along the way it has served as a companion. A faithful, helpful, unfailing friend. For 49 years it has been a most welcome visitor into our house and home!

B. F. England, P. O. Box 241, Grandfield, Oklahoma, May 17: The work of the church in Grandfield continues to make progress. Since last report we have become an organized body. We now have four good men as elders and three very fine younger men as deacons. Eight have been baptized and five have placed membership since last report. We have lost two members by moving away. We are contributing to a number of works outside our own congregation and city. We are in the process of building the colored brethren a church house. We are waiting for title to lots and when that is secured, we will proceed with the building. This congregation has a mind to work, and contains some of the best people I have ever been associated with. The leaders are men of good standing and are very willing to do the things that will make the church grow. We have our vacation Bible school June 8-12. Our summer meeting is July 10-19. A. B. Harper will preach.

Tice Elkins, 4428 Gresham Street, San Diego 9, California, May 13: If there is any congregation of Christians that desire a real good preacher of somewhere in the thirties, able and loyal, and not a lazy bone in him, to hold a meeting for you, if you will write me what you need, I will give you his name and address. I personally guarantee that he will come and that you will be satisfied. He will bear the best recommendation you can ask for. I might as well say right here that his name is "Bud" Watson, a brother of Sterle Watson of St. Louis, which is a good recommendation in itself. Brother Bud lives here and if you will write to him at the address above he will get your letter. I hope many will write, for he wants some work in meetings in Texas, New Mexico, or Oklahoma.

Morris Moore, Hubbard, Texas, May 18: Since our last report of April 7, eight more precious souls have been baptized into Christ, and one more has placed membership. This makes a total of fourteen who have been baptized in the past three months. Of the number baptized three came to us from the Baptist church, and two from the First Christian. The total on membership has been three. The church here is very small. After God has blessed us with these additions we have a membership of 49. New records have been made in Bible classes, mid-week classes, and contribution. For these and many other blessings we humbly thank God, and give him the glory for it all. We sincerely ask the prayers of Christians everywhere. When passing through Hubbard, we would be happy to have you worship with us.

P. D. Wilmeth, 808 Hamvasy Lane, Tyler, Texas, May 21: I have concluded interesting meetings with the churches at Henderson where Bob Waller is the preacher, and at Magnolia, Arkansas, where Luther Savage labors, and recently with Lewis Case and the good church at Hearne. My next meeting will be at Lampasas and Ben West June 15-23. We are anticipating a great meeting with these groups. The work at Glenwood continues to grow and we are now in an expansive program in our evangelistic endeavors. Three good elders and four excellent deacons are doing a fine job in leadership. Our next objective is a vacation Bible school, June 8-13, with Luther Self of Nashville, Tennessee, assisting us. Several have been baptized and added to our forces recently. When in our city, worship with us.

B. C. McCarley, San Angelo, Texas, May 15: On last Monday afternoon a tornado destroyed about three hundred homes in the Lakeview area of this city. About twenty-six families of the church suffered heavy loss, and some total loss of houses and furnishings. The Santa Rita congregation was the least affected of the four congregations. However, we began immediately doing what could be done with food, clothing, and money. On Wednesday evening the four congregations decided upon a plan of cooperation in helping those who had been victims of the storm. This is proving to be a fine thing in reaching these people, and I have never seen better cooperation. The 9th and Main and Fairgrounds Road congregations suffered the heaviest loss. Many congregations have had part in our efforts to relieve the needy and suffering. We are grateful to them for this fellowship.

W. J. Shackelford, Neosho, Missouri, May 18: Guy N. Woods of Memphis, Tennessee, preached in our best meeting in recent years, May 8-17. Brother Woods is certainly among the most able gospel preachers of this generation. His great scholarship, his clear logic, and his supreme love for God and man, combine to make his work unusually effective. The entire congregation worked together with high interest throughout the meeting. The good influence of this meeting will be felt throughout the future years. Existing records for Bible study attendance were broken. Exceptionally large, and deeply interested audiences were present for every service, both morning and evening. Homer W. Walden, one of our elders, and regular song director, had charge of the singing. Two were baptized and one placed membership. Brother Woods has kindly consented to return in October, 1956.

W. L. Baze, 417 Welch Street, Denton, Texas, May 19: We are enjoying our work with the Welch Street congregation. It is a splendid group to work with. Our present building has been outgrown and plans are in the beginning stage to construct a new auditorium. At present, it is necessary to have two services each Lord's day morning. Our proximity to N.T.S.C. results in our having a great many students attending our services. Many of them are very interested in and active in the work of the congregation. We are thankful that this is so and congratulate the parents of these young people. Brother and Sister C. A. Buchanan are to assist in our vacation Bible school, which begins June 1st. Brother Buchanan formerly preached for this congregation. We anticipate a fine school. The future looks bright for Welch Street and we believe that the brotherhood will hear more and more from this alert congregation.

F. B. Shepherd, 1732 Keeaumoku, Honolulu, T. H., Hawaii: When I agreed to come to the island for a period of service, I promised twelve months, no more, no less. One-third of that time has gone with so much speed I can hardly realize it. One-fifth of the members who were here when I came have already left. Some have come to take their places but we are fewer than on January 1st. Service people make up nearly 85 per cent of the congregation. Parents and friends having sons or daughters coming here, please send us their names and addresses and we will do our best to locate them and encourage them to attend the worship. The building is easily reached from downtown. Take the Punahou-University bus that comes within one and one-half blocks of the house. Worship hours are the same as on the Mainland. There could not be better cooperation among the members than there is here. At least five races are represented, yet all Christians and all Americans.

D. H. Perkins, 2070 South Grant, Denver, Colorado, May 13: It was my privilege to do the preaching in two meetings in Tennessee recently. At Alamo, nine were baptized and two restored. Clovis Caudle, local preacher, led the singing and helped in many ways to make the meeting a success. Interest and crowds were good throughout the meeting. At the Fuller Avenue church in Dyerburg, fifteen were baptized and two restored. New records were set in attendance. The last night, more people were present than could get inside the building. David Davidson who preaches regularly at Friendship, Tennessee, assisted much as song leader and otherwise. I promised to return to both places, if the Lord permits, in 1956. We baptized a very fine young married man here last Wednesday night. He was reared in a strong Baptist home. When in Denver, you are invited to worship with the church in South Denver, at 2005 South Lincoln Street.

John Bullock, Box 484, Lewisville, Texas, May 21: We are enjoying a very profitable work here at Lewisville. The last two weeks two have been baptized, three restored, and three have been identified as Christians. This congregation contributed $100 to the storm-stricken areas at Waco, and San Angelo. We also have a part in the "Herald of Truth" program heard on NBC; then over 100 names are receiving a gospel paper sent to them by the brethren here teaching the truth through this medium, besides a general distribution of tracts to the interested ones. Our vacation Bible school date is from June 22-27. Brother John Bannister comes to us for a meeting July 20-29. We are looking forward to a good meeting, and too, we are anticipating record attendance at this series of sermons. Let this announcement serve as an invitation to all who can come and be with us in this special effort to preach Christ. We press forward with renewed zeal and determination, giving the Lord all the glory.

SUNSET ENCAMPMENT AT THORP SPRING

Holland Boring, Jr.

The Sunset Church of Christ, Dallas, Texas, is sponsoring an encampment at Thorp Spring, Texas, June 20-30. Holland Boring, Jr., is the director of this camp, and Brother Wyatt Sawyer, minister of the Church of Christ at Madisonville, Texas, is to be the guest speaker.

This encampment is set up to provide a wholesome retreat for Bible study, crafts, and play for young people from 10 to 18 years of age.

The Sunset Church of Christ is trying to bring up its young people in the knowledge of Christ. We are trying to demonstrate that Christianity is practical; that it can be lived and enjoyed.

Because of the limited facilities at the former Texas Christian University grounds, we are restricting enrollment to approximately seventy-five. This means that we will not be able to reach out beyond the Sunset community.

The Sunset Church plans to make this encampment an annual affair, and by next year we hope to be able to accommodate many more young people.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Alamogordo, New Mexico,
March 26, 1953

This letter will introduce to you Brother Tice Elkins and Sister Elkins. It is our desire to state to any one in particular and to all the brotherhood in general that they are members of the church in Alamogordo. We wish to further state that the reason for their leaving here was the health of Brother Elkins and the doctor's orders.

Brother Elkins needs no introduction to the brotherhood, and he has spent more than fifty years in proclaiming the gospel, and until his broken health forced him to stop he was actively engaged in preaching for the congregation here. He is an able preacher and an excellent teacher of the Bible, sound in doctrine and zealous in the Lord's work. We recommend him to you as such, and know that if God will grant him the health, he will be very useful to you in the work of the church.

Sister Elkins is one of God's own people, and we know that if you learn to know her, you will love her as we do.

We did not like to lose them from our midst, but God knows best. And our prayers go with them always, that God will bless them with health and strength, and crown their every effort in the service of the Master with success.

(Signed) Rollie B. Rankin, Evangelist at Alamogordo; Elder James R. Cooper; Elder E. A. Robison.

Appendix by Tice Elkins:

May 19, 1953

I send this letter to the papers for the sole reason of letting every one know that my health is improving, and that Ma Elkins and I have not transferred our membership to any other place than Alamogordo, nor will we do so until it becomes evident that I cannot return to the high altitude of our home town. It has been our home for twenty-seven years and we will not renounce it nor our membership in the church there until there is no further hope of being well again. Our address will be 4428 Gresham Street, San Diego 3, Calif., until you are notified of a change.

Thanks to God and the-brethren,

TICE ELKINS

J. T. McCauley, Sweetwater, Texas, May 11: Four were baptized at Fourth and Elm Sunday. Since December first we have had 87 responses. Forty of this number have been baptized. During this same period contributions have increased more than two hundred twenty-five dollars per week. Bible School attendance has increased around one hundred. Our midweek attendance has doubled. The Lord willing I leave again for the Bible Lands June 8. This time I am conducting a tour. We shall return through Europe.

John T. Smith, 2519 Colgate, Lubbock, Texas, May 11: The Colgate Street church closed a good meeting last evening. Brother Archie L. Waldrum of Palestine, Texas, did the preaching and did it to the entire satisfaction of every member of the congregation. While the results were not as great as in some former meetings, we count it one of the very best meetings which has been conducted here. Four were baptized and one was restored and identified. I have recently assisted the church in Seminole, Texas, in a good meeting. Brother W. H. Neill is the preacher for the church there, and is doing a good work and is highly esteemed by the whole church.

Glenn B. Bishop, O'Donnell, Texas, May 6: My work with the church at O'Donnell will terminate not later than August 1. We have labored with the brethren here for some four years and have enjoyed every minute of it. The church has grown in every phase during these four years, and we are happy to have had a part in it. My successor has not been named yet. The membership here is about 150. They have a very nice building. The church has a new three bedroom home. The salary is eighty dollars per week plus house and utilities. Any one interested in the work here should contact the elders, R. O. Lane, L. D. Parker, and R. O. Miles, Box 481.

St. Pierre H. Hoge, Barnwell, South Carolina, May 15: I moved to Barnwell April 17 to work with the Lord's church here. One was baptized just prior to my moving here and as a result of personal work. Co-operation and love for God are prevalent in this congregation. This is the first time that this group has had a full time minister. Between sixty and eighty attend on Lord's day. Each issue of local weekly newspaper carries a sermon—paid advertisement supported by the church; new song books and a new mimeograph machine have been ordered; private teaching going on each day. As a congregation we want, and as the minister I want, the prayers of the church everywhere that the church might be firmly established in this community and that much good might be done here.

Thornton Crews, Box 411, Cushing, Oklahoma: Yesterday morning, Friday, I baptized a lady just past her eightieth year in this world. She was married just sixty-one years ago. Brother Charles E. Parker of Miami, Oklahoma, closed a good meeting here Sunday May 10th. Two were baptized and two confessed wrongs. I will close my work here one week from tomorrow and will move to Pensacola, Florida, to begin work with the new Bellview congregation the first Lord's day in June. I have bought five acres of land in the environs of that expanding city, and will erect a house on it as soon as we get there. The folks here secured the services of Brother Ted McElroy. He will begin here May 31st. May the Lord bless him in this work and may peace and harmony always prevail among the Lord's people.

D. D. Woody, 127 Oakwood Dr., Baton Rouge 9, Louisiana, May 12: The church here is steadily growing and making progress. Last Lord's day one of our fine young men came forward and confessed wrongs. On the previous Wednesday evening a man was baptized. These fine people are showing a great deal of interest in the Lord's work. Brother Carroll Ellis of Nashville, Tennessee, is to be with us in a series of meetings beginning June 7 and running concurrently with our vacation Bible school. We are expecting much good from these efforts. We hope to begin work on our new building within the next few months. We have one of the nicest and most valuable lots in the city.

Joyce Hendrix, Brandsville, Missouri, May 13: After I have been with the church here about a year the cause is stronger and the people have changed to a more favorable attitude toward the church here. Their future plan is to get a visiting minister to preach for them twice on Lord's days since I did quite a bit of personal work. Will another church who needs a full time minister, write me real soon? I am middle aged and have a wife and five children. These children are helping in associating with others of their own age by inviting them to church. I am a Freed-Hardeman graduate and preach the gospel without compromise. Let me hear from you if you need a preacher now.

Raymond DeSpain, P. O. Box 172, Blanco, Texas, May 11: The church here continues to show increased interest. Two were baptized at the morning service yesterday, and two placed membership the Sunday before. We are planning a Vacation Bible School to begin the first day of June, to continue through June 5th, from 9 to 11 A.M. each day. This is an invitation to all who can be with us. I am to do the preaching in a meeting at Jollyville, Texas, to begin June 7, and continue through June 14. I will be at Dripping Springs June 19-28. All in driving distance of these places are invited to be with us. We will be expecting you. May the Lord bless the efforts of the church everywhere.

ATTENTION, YOUNG PEOPLE!

A. R. Holton

L. E. Cranford, Minister of the University Church of Christ, Nashville, Tennessee, will be in charge of classes for young people at the Blue Ridge Camp Meeting, Blue Ridge, North Carolina, July 18-24. We are very happy to have the services of Brother Cranford in this great meeting. His experience in working with young people qualifies him for the work we have asked him to do in the meeting. Young people should write at once to J. W. Brents, Woodmont Blvd., Nashville, Tennessee.

Our Departed

SPINKS—Homer G. Spinks, 82, a native of Georgia, died March 30, 1953, in a hospital at Brady, Texas. He had lived in Menard, Texas, 38 years. He made a very real contribution to his community. Five sons and other kinsmen mourn their loss. The funeral service was held at Menard, Texas, with J. H. E. Willman, J. C. Wade, and myself officiating.

WALTER W. LEAMONS

CARROLL—James W. Carroll was born August 8, 1877, at Roanoke, Virginia; died at Ozona, Texas, April 4, 1953. He had lived here in Kimble County a long time. A few years ago, when he was about 70 years old, he was baptized by this writer. Three sons, two daughters and numerous other relatives survive him. After a funeral service in Smith Funeral Home, we laid the body to rest in Junction cemetery on April 5.

WALTER W. LEAMONS

JOHNSON—Ollie McLain Johnson, of Newark, Texas, died in the Harris Hospital, Ft. Worth, Texas, February 15, 1953, at the age of 78 years. She was a faithful member of the church of Christ, was baptized at the age of 14 by Brother Elmore, in the Trinity River near the old Harmon crossing (now Eagle Mountain Lake). She is survived by a son, Claud Johnson, of Fort Worth; a granddaughter, Wanzelle Teeters, of Gotebo, Oklahoma; two grandsons, Woodie Haley, Lexington, Oklahoma, and Barton Haley of Oklahoma City, and several great grandchildren; two sisters: Mrs. Maggie Chafin of Sulphur, Oklahoma, and Miss May McLain of Gunter, Texas. Funeral services were held at 10 A.M., Tuesday, February 17, in the Newark church. Ministers Webb Fry and Vernon T. Simpson conducted services. Burial was in Dido cemetery.

Fort Worth, Texas

E. H. BEESON

JORDAN—Funeral services were conducted at the College Street Church of Christ in Junction, Texas, by Brother Harrison Matthews, assisted by Roland Fry, for Brother James Nick Jordan, Jr. He was born in Williamson County near Granger, August 22, 1906, and died March 24, 1953. He moved to Plainview, Hale County, when six weeks old. He married Grace Fisher of Junction February 2, 1928. They lived in the Panhandle of Texas near Plainview and Amarillo for ten years. They moved to San Angelo in 1937; to Kimble county, near Junction, in 1946, where he was engaged in ranching and P.M.A. Field inspector until his death. He was baptized into the church of Christ in October, 1928. He continued as a faithful Christian until his death. He has served as an elder for the church here in Junction for the past five years. Brother Jordan's faithful work with the church will certainly be missed.

Surviving him are his wife, two daughters: Mrs. Lynn Jacoby of Sonora; Mrs. Nancy Hasse of Junction; two grandchildren: Mark Jacoby and Judy Hasse; his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Jordan of Plainview; one sister, Mrs. W. M. Hale; and two brothers, H. B. and R. C. Jordan, all of Amarillo; also seven nieces and nephews.

HAMILTON—On March 23, Brother J. H. Hamilton passed away at the home of a daughter here in Muskogee, at the age of 82 years. He was born July 16, 1870. For sixty-one of those years, he preached the gospel, mostly in Arkansas and Eastern Oklahoma, where he formed many lifelong friendships. For the last thirteen years Brother Hamilton lived in Stigler, Oklahoma. During his fatal illness of some three months, it was my good pleasure to visit with him and hear him speak of his readiness to go to his eternal destiny. With fondness he recalled the part he had in teaching and converting two of today's better-known gospel preachers. During his last illness, one person obeyed the gospel whom Brother Hamilton had been teaching for several months. He was busy to the end. He is survived by his wife of Stigler, Oklahoma; three daughters: Mrs. Bess Sellers, Mrs. Anita Brandon, Mrs. Louise Smith of Muskogee, and Miss Orene Hamilton of New York; and two sons: H. G., of Ada, Oklahoma, and J. H., Jr., of New York. Funeral services were conducted by the writer on March 24, in the building of the West Side church here in Muskogee. Interment was in Memorial Park Cemetery of Muskogee.

EUGENE BREWER

EVANS—Arthur Thomas Evans was born February 14, 1886, at Gallatin, Missouri, and parted this life April 28, 1953. He died of leukemia, a bad heart condition and a brain hemorrhage after an illness of one week. He was married to Miss Augusta Draper in 1910 and they lived in Tishomingo, Oklahoma, all their married life except for a short period spent in Weatherford, Oklahoma. Brother Evans was a pioneer railroad man and worked at that vocation until his retirement in 1946 when he returned to Tishomingo. Besides his good wife he is survived by three sons and a daughter, who are all faithful members and workers in the Lord's church, and seven grandchildren. One of his sons, Sam Evans, is a preacher of the gospel and lives at Chickasha, Oklahoma. Another son, Gene Evans, is our song director, Bible teacher, and a deacon in the church here in Tishomingo. Another son, Arthur D. Evans, lives at Hutchinson, Kansas, and the daughter, Mrs. Harold Wilkinson, lives in Lamesa, Texas. Brother Evans was a very faithful member and an elder of the church here and was loved by the entire town. We all mourn the passing of this great man of faith. Even though he was retired from his railroad work he secured another job and worked diligently in order to help the church he loved financially. Thus another great "soldier of the cross" passes and we press on with great strength and courage because of his life with us. I assisted Brother George Bailey of Oklahoma City, a close friend of the family, with the funeral services. A quartet from the church at Weatherford furnished the music. It was the most perfect funeral that I have ever attended with every word and scripture fitting the occasion. Interment was in the Tishomingo cemetery.

BOWERS—Robert Lee Bowers, 82, died at Fredericksburg, Texas, April 28, 1953. He was born June 22, 1870, at Augusta, Georgia, and lived here in Kimble County forty-eight years. His wife, six sons, one daughter, and fourteen grandchildren and five great-grandchildren survive him. B. W. Mantooth and I conducted the funeral service here at the Smith Funeral Home.

In his declining years he returned to the United States and took up residence in Los Angeles where he chose to pass along his life's heritage, gleaned from faithful service in the field, to the students of Pepperdine College. Failing health has forced him from active work, but his influence lives on.
8. E. W. McMillan, Visiting Professor of New Testament Literature: Brother McMillan has been Head of the Bible Department of Abilene Christian College, President of Ibaraki Christian College, and President of Southwestern Christian College. He will join the Religion Faculty at Pepperdine in September.

The College was founded in 1937 by Brother George Pepperdine. He invested his entire life's earnings that a Christian college might be established on the growing and expanding West Coast. His work has been fruitful and today the Religion Department of the College stands as a vital factor in the growth of Christianity, not only in California, but the world.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

The Gospel of God

Peter writes, "For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God: and if it first begin with us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God?" (1 Peter 4:17). Gospel of God here means the gospel of Christ. God sent his Son into the world to suffer and die for the sins of men; to be buried and raised from the dead, to ascend into heaven to become King of kings and Lord of lords. This is the gospel of Christ or the gospel of God.

"Gospel" means good news. "Gospel of Christ" means good news of Christ. Christ dying for the sins of the whole world is good news. His being raised from the dead is more good news. His resurrection gives assurance of a universal resurrection. His ascension to heaven to intercede for us as our Mediator and Advocate is more good news. So the gospel of Christ signifies a lot of good news.

Before it is personally good news to anyone, it must be received in faith, and its commandments obeyed. It may be contended that the only condition of salvation revealed in the gospel is faith—"it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth" (Rom. 1:16). But Peter says, "What shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God?" He does not ask what will be the end of them that do not believe it. And the apostle Paul says, "And to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ" (2 Thess. 1:7, 8). In these two passages of scripture we learn that the gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation only when it is obeyed.

Concerning this gospel, as to its source, it is the gospel of God; as to its channel, it is the gospel of Christ (Rom. 1:16). As to its purpose, it is the gospel of salvation (Eph. 1:13). As to its nature, it is the gospel of the grace of God (Acts 20:24).

Simplicity of the Gospel

A great many people say the gospel is a mystery. What is wrong with people who say the gospel cannot be understood? Paul says, "But if our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost: in whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them" (2 Cor. 4:3, 4). The god of this world is a substitute for the God of heaven. The world is full of them.

Anything that gets between man and God, and obscures the truth, is a god of this world.

The gospel of Christ, which is the power of God unto salvation, in its practical aspects is simple. This was demonstrated on the day of Pentecost when it was first preached. Three thousand people, who were not familiar with the gospel, heard it one time and obeyed it. It was certainly plain to them.

The gospel must have been simple to the people of Samaria. They had no knowledge of it when Philip went to that city and preached Christ unto them. They believed Philip's preaching and were baptized. The Ethiopian eunuch was confused as to the meaning of the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah, and requested Philip to explain it to him. Philip commenced at the same scripture, and preached unto him Jesus. The eunuch forthwith requested baptism. The gospel must be something simple when the uninformed can hear it one time and learn enough about it to obey it and be saved. We repeat with emphasis, that the gospel in its application to man is something simple.

God's Generosity

Hoyt Bailey

The memory selection suggested for our lesson is that given by Jesus Christ in which he says: "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33). And the lesson text says: "For the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, which went out early in the morning to hire laborers into his vineyard. And when he had agreed with the laborers for a penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard. And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the marketplace, and said unto them: Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you. And they went their way. Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise. And about the eleventh hour he went out and found others standing idle and saith unto them: Why stand ye here all the day idle? They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He saith unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive. So when even was come, the Lord of the vineyard saith unto his steward: Call the laborers, and give them their hire, beginning from the last unto the first. And when they came that were hired about the eleventh hour, they received every man a penny. But when the first came, they supposed that they should have received more; and they likewise received every man a penny. And when they had received it, they murmured against the Goodman of the house, saying, These last have wrought but one hour, and thou has made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day. But he answered one of them, and said, Friend, I do thee no wrong: didst not thou agree with me for a penny? Take that thine is, and go thy way: I will give unto this last, even as unto thee. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Is thine eye evil, because I am good? So the last shall be first, and the first last: for many be called, but few chosen" (Matt. 20:1-16).

We note that "an householder" was the head of a family. "A penny" was a "shilling," or a silver Roman coin called "the denarius." "The marketplace" was the place where men and masters met for bargaining, and the "steward" was the one who served as manager or overseer of the work. He was the agent who acted for the householder.

Jesus said: "The kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is a householder"; that is, some of the things which happen in the kingdom of heaven are parallel to the case of the householder. The kingdom of heaven is the church of Christ. This parable is closely connected with our Lord's remarks in describing the rewards of the kingdom, and it may have been intended to convey a mild rebuke, or at least a gentle warning to Peter who had asked, "What then shall we have?" This parable should be held in strict connection with the circumstances in which it was originally spoken. When the rich young man turned away sorrowful, our Lord, sympathizing with the severity of his temptation, said, "Verily I say unto you, That a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven." Peter, seeing that he appreciated the difficulty of giving up property and detaching one's self from the world, suggests that those who overcome that difficulty are peculiarly meritorious. Peter says: "Behold, we have left all, and followed thee; what shall we have therefore?" But in so speaking, Peter revealed precisely that disposition which most thoroughly vitiates all service for Christ—the disposition to bargain, to work for a clearly defined reward, and not for the sake of the work itself, and in generous faith in the justice and liberality of the master. It is obvious that the parable directs attention to the fact that in estimating the value of work, we must take into consideration, not only the time we have spent upon it or the amount accomplished, but the motive that has entered into it. An hour of trustful, loving service is of greater value to God than a lifetime of calculating industry and self-deceiving zeal. God regards the unnoticed worker, who feels he is doing little, the one who regrets that he cannot do more, but who is assured that the Master he serves is well worth serving.

The Jews divided the days into twelve equal parts. The day in Palestine at longest consisted of fourteen European hours and twelve minutes, and at shortest, of nine hours and forty-eight minutes, so that the difference between the longest and shortest division of the so-called Jewish "hour" was twenty-two minutes. It is usual to consider the Hebrew day as lasting from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., the sixth hour corresponding to our noon, the first hour being 7 o'clock and the third 9 a.m. The four periods mentioned in the parable are quarters of the working day, in which a proportional part of the day's wages might be earned.

Let us note the general scope of this parable, and not lay too much stress upon details. The explanation of this difficult parable has greatly exercised the minds of commentators in all ages of the church. Two brief expositions are here presented for consideration. The first considers it as of individual application—the call of God coming to the soul at different ages of life. Thus the householder is God, the marketplace the world, the vineyard the church, the laborers are men who have to do their work therein, the steward is Christ, who superintends and rewards the faithful workers. The hours of the day represent the various periods of men's life in which they hear the gospel and are converted to Jesus Christ. Some, at the first hour—so soon as they reach the age of accountability, some at the third hour—before youth passes, others at mid-day, in full maturity; others at the ninth hour when old age is creeping on them; and lastly others obey the call only at the eleventh hour, when they are fast approaching death. And all who have labored at all without regard to the length of service, receive eternal life, which in a general sense is the same for all.

The other exposition of the parable allows the proper importance to be given to the details of the parable. The only one that does this is that which gives a national, not simply an individual, bearing to the parable. According to this exposition, it applies to the calling of the Jews and the Gentiles, though there are still particulars which do not entirely or without some violence suit the application. The "penny" which all receive is the favor of God, the privileges that crown and reward the citizens of his kingdom. God's ancient people were first called to work in his vineyard. The various hours of the day cannot be accurately explained. Many follow Gregory in defining the first hour as extending from Adam to Noah, the third from Noah to Abraham, the sixth from Abraham to Moses, the ninth from Moses to the coming of Christ, the eleventh from the coming of Christ to the end of the world. During all the day, up to the eleventh hour, the call was confined to the Jews and their progenitors; in the eleventh hour the Gentiles are called, and, accepting the call, receive the same privileges as the Jews.

It is better to forego attempts to interpret the various hours and the various sets of laborers definitely, except to observe that the first called, with whom a covenant was made, plainly represents the Jews, the people called under the covenant of works, who were to be rewarded according to their service; the other workers are not paid stipulated wages; they receive reward of grace in accordance with God's appointment. That the Jews murmured at the admission of the Gentiles into the kingdom of God and the Father's favor, we are taught in many places. In Acts 13:46, 47, the Jews are filled with envy that the word should be spoken to and accepted by the heathen. From 1 Thess. 2:16, we learn that the Jews forbade Paul and his fellow-apostles "to speak to the Gentiles, that they might be saved."

Our Lord looked forward to and prepared his disciples for this envious and ungenerous behavior, as he continually taught that the gospel is for all men everywhere, confined to no people or country, but is to be made as accessible as the air of heaven or the light of the sun. These Gentiles are the last in time, but by their willing service and obedience in the faith are made first; while God's ancient people, once the first, became, by their jealousy and hatred of others, the last. This momentous change in the relation of the peculiar people to the rest of the world was thus foretold and prepared for. Though virtually all the Jews were called, yet but a small remnant will accept the gospel.

There is work to be done in winning the world for Christ, and in training the church that its fruit may be brought forth in abundance. For this work our Lord requires laborers. Christ's servants are not to be satisfied with merely receiving his grace, because his grace is given for the express purpose of its being used in his service. Christ calls individuals that they may serve him. The Jews believed themselves secure in rejecting Christ. They overlooked the conditions of their promises. They missed the lessons of their history. They filled up the measure of their iniquity in rejecting Christ. The Jews rejected Christ in person, and they rejected his gospel offer of salvation. Christ rejected the Jews after their rejection of him.

Every child of God should consider the lesson of the marketplace. God is ready for every sinner regardless of his age or station in life to be converted from sin to his service. Everyone who enters the Lord's service should do so with the consciousness that he must grow into a useful servant. Those who continue to stand idle respecting spiritual things are not doing so because there is not plenty of work in the Lord's church or vineyard. The gospel of Christ continues to call men into the service of Christ, but men will not heed the call. The loud noise and bustle of the world drown the call of the gospel. Men's deafness to the gospel is wilful; though the call comes again and again, they will not heed. It often happens that the gospel call is unheeded to the end. However, in some instances, the thoughtless are roused to repentance. Yet, alas! even in so-called Christian countries there are many millions who are brought up among evil surroundings, in all the misery of godless training and wicked examples, without instruction in righteousness, and without appropriating the means provided in God's grace for salvation, of whom, if they were asked why they are not serving God, they might reply: "No man hath hired us." Though the householder calls, he calls by means of those who are to serve him. God did not call individuals to be saved apart from Christ. All are taught to believe in Christ or perish. Those who reject Christ cannot be saved, but they will die in their sins (Jno. 8:21-24). Those who die in their sins cannot go where Jesus is. Christ chose men, the apostles, to begin the preaching of his gospel after his church was established. But the apostles were only servants to bear the words of salvation to the lost of earth. Their being saved was always conditioned upon their obedience to the gospel of Christ. None can hope to be saved now who reject the gospel.

Christ is the Steward, as a Son over his own house (Heb. 3:6). All power is given unto Christ, and it is Christ who will say to the redeemed: "Come, ye blessed of my Father; inherit the kingdom prepared for you." All the blessed of God will be admitted into his home for the blessed. That vision of love and glory will fill every heart with unutterable gladness; the saints will be changed into the same image from glory to glory, drawn even nearer, received into an ever-closer nearness, and ever-deepening blessedness, increasing in proportion to the powers, the love, the fervor, the devotion of each glorified spirit. All the faithful ones will receive the blessed promise—eternal life.

I Don't Want To Be A Pastor!

Bob Craig

We hear much nowadays accusing preachers of acting as pastors. The "pastor" system, it is called. In many cases we find this to be a just accusation. Some preachers among us seemingly "desire the office of a bishop (pastor)." My reason for saying this is because of their attitude toward the selection of elders (pastors). They try all the old schemes, and devise some new ones, to get out of selecting elders. Many and long have been the controversies concerning the eldership and far be it from me to introduce the subject again, but there are some things we need to think about in connection with the eldership; and in considering those things we will see why a church needs pastors and not a pastor; and why so many congregations are using a preacher as a pastor.

1. The scriptural organization of the church of the Lord is elders and deacons; that is, as far as officers are concerned.
2. The Lord intended for the church to have some kind of leadership and that leadership was to be in the form of elders. "Feed the church of the Lord" (Acts 20:28). "Taking the oversight thereof" (1 Peter 5:2).
3. The church without elders is as a flock of sheep without a shepherd.
4. Without elders we have no one "to watch for our souls" (Heb. 13:17), for this is the obligation of the elders.
5. The Lord gave a perfect set of qualifications for the eldership. No man can live up to them perfectly, unless he is a perfect man. I have heard men say, "I can disqualify any man you suggest for the eldership." This is a wrong attitude, first of all, but secondly we need to think a little about the situation. The Lord also gave a perfect law for Christians to live by (Jas. 1:25). What one of us lives up to the law perfectly? (1 John 1:8-10). So, "I can disqualify men and women for Christianity just as fast as you may call their names." Does that mean there can be no Christians?
6. The church of the first century had elders in just a little while; why can't we?

Article after article has been written in connection with the eldership on qualifications, duties, number of wives, number of children, married or single, etc., but I think it is time we, as preachers, and the membership of the church as a whole, were a little more fully instructed in the duties and "works of an evangelist." Many preachers, ignorantly or wilfully, are doing the work of elders. Many of them are young, inexperienced, unmarried, childless; but the people are willing to accept them to do the work of elders. Make a "pastor" out of them. Why do we draw such a strict line with whom we can use in the settled men of the congregation and have NO line drawn at all when it comes to turning everything over to the young preacher, or the old one either, as the case may be? Many people have the idea that the preacher is the one "who watches in behalf of our souls." Or that the preacher should have the oversight of the congregation, its teaching program, its evangelistic program, its building program; just about everything under the sun is turned over to the preacher, regardless of his qualifications and regardless of the fact that they are creating, aiding and abetting, "the pastor system."

Preachers are at fault as much as anyone else. They are afraid to preach on the subject. Afraid someone will think they are trying to get out of something. Afraid they'll displease someone. It seems to me like preachers are going more and more to the idea that they must please everyone, and in so doing are straying from the Scriptures and are not pleasing God. "Shall we please God or man?" Many preachers are willing to accept these responsibilities; in fact, in many instances, the preacher seeks after this kind of authority, and sometimes even takes it from others, who are probably more fitted for it. I find preachers who are ready, willing, and anxious to plan every step in the church program and then, personally carry it through to completion, or sometimes, failure. They become the counselor for the young people, for the old, for those who need a psychiatrist, for those who have marriage difficulties, for the care of babies and the raising of children; they become errand boys, taxi drivers for the members, housekeepers, yard tenders, hand holders; they do all the preaching, the teaching, make all the contacts, do all the visiting of the sick, the erring members, the new-born babes in Christ, those who are not members; they become the publicity department of the church and the public relations man, etc. Many are the preachers among us who are anxious to do all these things. There are several objections to this:

First: there is no man under the sun who has the wisdom or the ability to be and do all the suggested things. Now, perhaps you know one. I don't. Second: it is detrimental to the congregation for which you labor. It is taking the work that should be theirs. It destroys the very structure upon which the church is built; that is, that the members, all working together, go to make up the perfect body of Christ. Third: all of those things are not the "work of the evangelist" in the first place.

Well, you may be thinking, if he doesn't like what he's doing or what he's called on to do, why doesn't he get out of it? That wouldn't solve what I'm talking about. We have a situation in the churches of our Lord that needs to be remedied. Preachers need to start doing what they're supposed to do, preaching the gospel, and let the elders and the members of the congregation start doing what they're supposed to. Preachers need to quit hindering the selection of elders with every silly little whim they may think of. They need to start helping in the selection, instead of holding back in the selection of good men to the eldership. Now don't get the idea that I think we ought to select any and all kinds of men as elders. That isn't what I believe, neither do I advocate any such thing. But a lot of men are idle; good men, highly qualified men, not perfect, but highly qualified men, because we have a group of preachers who evidently don't want elders. They "desire the office" for themselves.

Now as long as I am working in my present capacity, that of a gospel preacher, I do not want the duties of an elder thrust upon me. There are several reasons and they have already been suggested. I am not wise enough, by myself, to decide what is best for a congregation of people. I can help. I can advise. But my wisdom alone is not sufficient to direct the affairs of a congregation. Neither is my ability of such nature, whereby I could shoulder that responsibility. God recognized that there was wisdom and strength (and safety) in numbers, therefore the Bible teaches a plurality of elders. I don't want to be THE pastor!

But what is the work of an evangelist? We can use the elimination system to arrive at the answer to that question. First of all we need to look into the Bible and find out what the duties of elders are. We'll find in our search that the elder is to be the shepherd of the flock (Acts 20:28). He is to watch for false teachers (Acts 20:31). He is to be a ruler of the congregation (Heb. 13:7). He is to set the proper example. He is to watch in behalf of our souls (Heb. 13:17). He is to have the oversight (Acts 20:28-1 Peter 5:2). Perhaps other things. But then, what is the duty of the deacon? Why the deacon is just what the name implies. He is a servant. He is to relieve the elders in any way they see fit to delegate duties to him. But what are the duties of the membership as a whole? Right here another article could be written, but we'll notice a few of the things the membership must be doing: They must teach (Matt. 28:20; Heb. 5:12). They must set a proper example (Matt. 5:16; 2 Peter 3:11-14). They must bear one another's burdens (Gal. 6:2). They must pray one for the other (Jas. 5:16). They must feed the hungry, give drink to the thirsty, care for strangers, clothe the naked, visit the sick, care for the persecuted saints in prison (Matt. 25). They must care for the orphans and widows. (This is directed to the individual, not the church as a whole. Please read the scripture: Jas. 1:27). Perhaps other things. What then, are the duties, the work of an evangelist? Read all of 1 and 2 Timothy. There we have instructions to the preacher (2 Tim. 2:11), the man of God (2 Tim. 3:17), the servant of the Lord (2 Tim. 2:24), the minister of Jesus Christ (1 Tim. 4:6), the evangelist (2 Tim. 4:1-5). All these terms are used in reference to the same person. And that person is what is commonly called the preacher today. You will notice that the specific job of the preacher, the evangelist, is to preach the word. Paul tells Timothy to give himself to study, to meditation, to preaching. His preaching is to include reproving, rebuking, and exhortation. He is to preach the word, the truth, the gospel.

Go back and study the Scriptures given. When we boil it all down and come to the proper conclusion, the preacher's definite task, consists ONLY of preaching the word. Preaching, of course, includes the preparation that necessarily goes with it. When we suggest that a preacher's work is only to preach, we are not suggesting just a Sunday job. Not by any means. We are to preach as we have opportunity and we need to be helpful in the making of opportunities. When a preacher is preaching as he should, he has a full-time job; a full-time responsibility. We remember that even the apostles taught that their most important work was preaching. There were others just as able, or perhaps more so, to serve tables, or to do the menial tasks preachers are sometimes called on to perform.

Preacher friends, let's give the responsibility of each individual member back to him. Let's let the elders do what they're fitted and selected for. Let's let the deacons take care of whatever the elders have in mind for them. Let's insist more strongly than ever that every individual Christian accept his part of the responsibility for the carrying on of the work of the Lord. Let's not usurp authority that God has not given us. Let's not take the jobs that will relieve people who are able to do those jobs.

Let me make this clear. I am not saying that the preacher is not supposed to visit the sick, clothe the naked, feed the hungry, provide for the orphans and widows. He has exactly the same responsibility toward them that everyone else in the congregation has. But you haven't hired him to do those things. He does them because he's a Christian. The same reason for the same reason you should be doing them also.

Elders, deacons, members, don't allow your preacher to spend his time in doing all the tasks you can perhaps perform better than he. Put him to work preaching the gospel. That's his job and if he does it like he should, that's all he'll have time for. Souls are being lost because the preacher doesn't have time to preach to them. Opportunities are being by-passed because the preacher is trying to do the elders' work; being a pastor. Let's all learn what the Lord expects of us, what our job is, what we're fitted for, and then with the qualifications we have let's all begin to work together to get that great job done. "Behold the field is already white unto harvest, but the laborers indeed are few."

New Policy In Children's Home

ARTICLE ONE

F. E. Hayes

One day before Christmas the little daughter of a famous American novelist was taking a car ride with her mother. They passed by a large orphan home.

"That's a place where little girls and boys live who haven't any fathers and mothers," the mother said. "Would you like to go some day and see them and take them something nice for their Christmas?"

The little girl looked hard at the building and the few children playing outside in the cold. "Yes, I'd like to do that," she said.

"What would you like to take them?" her mother asked.

The little girl pursed her mouth and said, thoughtfully:

"I think I'd like to take them some fathers and mothers."

For several generations, Christian parents have helped support children's homes operated by Christians. They have been generous. The homes have expanded. But a chance to do greater service has been pointed out recently in an article in the Tipton, Oklahoma, Home Messenger.

On the back cover of the paper, the management requests volunteer homes for foster care of children. Superintendent Byron Fullerton asks: "How many Christian homes could and would take a child or children?"

It has not been clear to Christian homes that they could find a child to whom they might give care, right in their own Christian orphan homes. Now Brother Fullerton, in an admirable statement, explains that the homes are in position to provide such children and that doing so will serve two purposes: one, giving real homes to deserving children, and,

A.C.C. Graduate To Go To France

Brother Claxton E. Wilson, a 1952 mid-term graduate of Abilene Christian College, has agreed to go to France to assist the workers already on that field, and he hopes to sail about the middle of September with the Maurice Hall

Family. Brother Wilson is 32 years old, and has a wife and two small children, six and three years old. He has been preaching since graduation, for the church at Woodson, Texas.

This decision came so suddenly that there has not been time for anyone to arrange all the practical details of such a move, and the Broadway congregation in Houston, which is responsible for Brother Melvin Anderson's support in the north of France, is trying to help this young man all it can. His needs are threefold in nature:

1. A congregation here in the states to be responsible for him, and to assist by assuming responsibility with the French government.

2. Emergency support during the interim period from June 1 to September 15. (This should be at least $300.00 per month, and although Broadway is very heavily burdened, it will provide $100.00 per month of this amount until September 15).

3. Permanent support after he reaches France, and funds to get him, his family, and his household goods on the field.

The Broadway congregation will be glad to send a representative to discuss the practical problems involved with any congregation that would be interested in assuming responsibility for Brother Wilson's work in France, since we are familiar with many of the problems. We will also be happy to do all we can to assist any such congregation in any way possible either before or after Brother Wilson sails.

Any congregation or individual wishing to assist Brother Wilson in the matter of support during this interim period may send funds direct to him at Woodson, Texas, for the time being, or since he may move from that place before many weeks, they may address such funds in our care, and we will see that same are transmitted to him.—C. two, making room for others who are pleading for admission into the institution.

What makes his plea especially poignant to those who know both sides of the story is that there are actually more Christian parents wanting such children than there are children to provide. We have on one side hundreds of Christian homes anxious to care for children. On the other side we have Christian children's homes eager to supply them. The problem is to get them together.

It is a more acute problem now than ever before. Dependent children of today are different from those cared for fifty and one hundred years ago. In the past, many needy children were really orphans. Now only a small percent are. They are, instead, the confused and heartsick products of broken homes. Their parents fought. The children lost.

The actual orphan many times could remember the security and love of a normal home. His parents, loving each other and him, were emotionally stable. Despite their death, he knew how to trust adults.

But today's dependents, puzzled by the tensions of a broken home, present a more touching picture. They have lost faith in adults. They need a medicine which only individual love and attention can fully provide.

The management of Tipton Home believes that a Christian institution is far better for these children than a wrecked home which no longer wants them. But it knows that a good Christian, private home is a better place than the best institution on earth. Modern authorities on child welfare agree.

Some have wondered whether we might so decrease our children in the homes that it would make it unprofitable to maintain the homes any longer. On that point, W. B. Richter, Superintendent of Tennessee Orphan Home, says: "We are continually receiving requests to help more children, but until more room is provided we are helpless to take them."

This means, brethren, that as quickly as we can place all suitable children in the private Christian homes, we can open the door to hundreds of others who need our help. It takes little thought to see what that means: twice as many children getting the love and care they need, twice as many children getting Bible training from Christians.

This is a task that cannot be taken care of by writing checks and sending groceries and clothes. This need is too deep to be filled from the deepest pocket. Only the Christian heart, hungry to share its blessings, can meet this challenge.

Brethren, our homes are ready as never before to help Christian parents find children. We know that hundreds of frustrated Christian parents are looking for them. Let's get these two groups together—for the glory of God.

Claiborne To Florida Christian College

James R. Cope

Winford Claiborne, native of Portland, Tennessee, will join the teaching forces of Florida Christian College in September. His work will be primarily in the field of Christian Evidences. Brother Claiborne is a graduate of Freed-Hardeman College and holds both B.A. and M.A. degrees from Murray State College. For three years he taught in the high school at Benton, Kentucky, and in Georgia Christian Institute for one year. He began teaching in 1943, and has worked with churches in Niles, Michigan, and Lynn Grove, Kentucky. His latest work has been with the Dasher church, near Valdosta, Georgia.

We believe that the addition of Brother Claiborne to our faculty is a definite asset to the work Florida Christian College seeks to do. His particular interest lies in the field wherein he will teach. His coming our way is but another step in making Florida Christian College a genuine "friend to youth."

Studies In Galatians (No. 15)

R. C. Bell

"If ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one of another" (5:15). The Galatians had ceased "running well" and were biting and devouring each other as a result, apparently, of their having "fallen away from grace" into legalism. Paul, who knew from his own least how loveless, bitter, and cruel the legalistic mind could be, and who wrote, "The power of sin is the law" (1 Cor. 15:56), warned, "Take heed that ye be not consumed one of another"; and advised, "Walk by the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lusts of the flesh." This declension of the Galatians refutes the theory that the addition of the legal principle increases the power of the gospel to make superior Christians.

The Galatian Heresy

As an antidote for a righteousness of their own according to the law unto which the Galatians were sinking, Paul prescribes in this epistle pure, complete Christianity, which comes to a climax and focus "in the power of the Holy Spirit." God the Father planned Christianity before the foundation of the world, and worked toward its realization some 4000 years after he created Adam, before God the Son became man in order to add the human element; after this, God the Spirit, fulfilling Christ's promise to his apostle, "Ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit is come upon you" (Acts 1:8), with a burst of power on Pentecost brought it to perfection as the divine instrument redemption. Christianity is, therefore, the grand total of the combined workings of God in these three aspects. God is for, Christ is with (Immanuel), and the Spirit is in Christians.

God the Spirit through Peter on Pentecost preached perfect Christianity for the first time, promising pardon and that he himself would dwell in Christians as his temple. Under Paul's preaching, the Galatians accepted this same Christianity in its entirety, but were persuaded later that they did not need it all. Consequently, they substituted a dead religion of the flesh for the spiritual, crucial, crowning part of living Christianity. Christianity thus devitalized and shorn of its power to save men from the practice of sin is not the religion that God created. It is the fatally perverted gospel that aroused Paul to his depths and led him, "being moved by the Holy Spirit," to write a dateless, "living and active" book, which could bless all men for all time.

It is significant that Paul, who had led the Galatians out of heathenism into Christianity, nowhere in this book feels the need to prove that Christians possess the Holy Spirit, but takes for granted that the Galatians knew the Spirit indwelt them. In 3:2, he asks, "Received ye the Spirit by the works of law, or by the hearing of faith?" In 4:6, he reminds them that "God sent forth the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying, Abba, Father." Now, in 5:18, he admonishes, "If (since) ye are led by the Spirit, ye are not under the law," and closes the chapter with, "If we live by the Spirit, by the Spirit let us also walk." Paul could not see how the Galatians, who still believed that in Christianity justification was graciously given, could be, concerning their sanctification, so foolish and inconsistent as to supplant the climactic, character-forming portion of Christianity, in which God personally contacts, vitalizes and renews man's fallen spirit, with the "weak and beggarly" fleshly religion of human merit.

What wonder that Paul is "again in travail" for his Galatians? They must be saved from deadly heresy! He insists that Christianity, being an indivisible, must be accepted either all, or none; that to think they do not need in their stern struggle against "the flesh" to be "strengthened with power through his Spirit in the inward man" (Eph. 3:16), is to challenge the wisdom and integrity of God, who fashioned Christianity; and that to refuse the deep, inner workings of the Spirit is to counteract the whole of Christianity.

Does Paul really teach all this? It behooves us, by reading the Bible honestly, to find out. It will be well, if new wine bursts old skins. But we do not understand everything. Are we required to do so? Will Christianity fail to work unless we know all of its infinite workings! When we understand how Satan works in man's flesh, probably we can understand better how the Holy Spirit, without overriding man's will and depersonalizing him, works in his spirit.

Flesh Versus Spirit

Having discussed uncharitableness as one way of abusing Christian liberty, Paul proceeds in the last of Gal. 5 to discuss uncleanness as another way. "The flesh" is not merely the human body. Bodiless angels have committed some of the sins listed here in Paul's "works of the flesh." As Adam, before he sinned, and Christ prove, flesh itself is not sinful. Satan makes his attack on men through their flesh. When they yield, he makes the flesh the seat of further operations against the whole man, "spirit and soul and body." "The flesh" is man's fallen, sub-human nature, with its inbred sin. Individual man, with his nature maimed and his flesh already invaded by the enemy, is doomed in this unequal struggle unless he gets divine support. And Christianity, all of it, is this imperative divine support. Blind and foolish indeed, ignorant of himself, of Satan, and of God, is he who dares this warfare without putting "on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil" (Eph. 6:11).

The responsibility of Christians is to make the ideal crucifixion of their flesh a reality in their lives. They are not promised exemption from temptations of the flesh, but that, seeing they are not under law, but grace, superhuman aid shall be supplied according to their need (See 1 Cor. 10:13), thus assuring victory over "the flesh." Probably, if we Christians could but realize how miserably we fail to live up to Christian standards, we would not be flesh-sufficient and self-righteous. When we realize what it means really to love our brethren as ourselves and to fulfil the lofty requirements of love as defined by Christ, Paul and John; realize how unruly our tongues, how envious (not to mention our secret joy at the setback of a rival) of the success of others, how touchy of our "rights," reputation and position; and realize, finally, how self-centered we actually are, lifted up when praised and honored, cast down when slighted and set aside, and how little we really love and care for others. When we realize that all of this, and more, is of the flesh, which is ideally dead, is it not time to ask ourselves whether or not we have "fallen away from grace" into the flesh and legalism, trying to lift ourselves by our own boot straps.

What Does The Bible Say?

An Eloquent Preacher Mistaken About Baptism

Many God-fearing, Bible-believing persons have been mistaken about baptism. One of the first of these was Apollos of Alexandria. He was an eloquent man, a man mighty in the Scriptures. Also he was "instructed in the way of the Lord," and was "fervent in the spirit." He "spoke and taught diligently the things of the Lord," but he was mistaken about baptism (Acts 18:25).

He knew only the baptism of John the baptizer, and had not learned of the baptism into Christ. Paul explains that John baptized "with a baptism of repentance" telling the people that they should believe on the one who was to come after John; that is, "on Christ Jesus." Apollos was living up to the best light that he had. He was telling people to be baptized, but he didn't know the baptism into Christ "unto the remission of sins" (Acts 2:38), "into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit" (Matt. 28:19).

He and those whom he taught in Ephesus had been immersed or baptized, but without a proper understanding of the act. Their immersion had not been "into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit." What should they do? What should honest believers in Christ do today when they find out that they have not completely conformed to the teaching of Christ in this regard? Should Apollos become offended when Aquila and Priscilla bring this matter to his attention? Should he shrug his shoulders and say that "baptism doesn't make any difference anyway?"

Of course not. Aquila and Priscilla took him aside and "taught him the way of the Lord more perfectly." He accepted their teaching humbly. Later Paul taught twelve disciples at Ephesus who had learned only "John's baptism" and they "were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus" (Acts 19:5).

It is just that simple. Study the book of Acts closely and see if you have obeyed the command to believers in Christ to "repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins . . ." (Acts 2:38). Goodspeed translates the last phrase "in order to have your sins forgiven." If you have not done this then don't hesitate to make sure that you have obeyed the Lord in this respect. Baptism is not a church ordinance or command. It is a command of the Lord Jesus Christ. It is a personal matter. Who baptizes you is not important, but the important thing is that you are "buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection . . ." (Rom. 6:4, 5).

If you are not certain you have been scripturally baptized, we urge you to follow the example of Apollos and the twelve disciples at Ephesus who were immersed the second time to be sure that they did exactly what Jesus wanted done. Any command of Jesus is important.

B. L. WHITE PLANS TO PREACH IN NORTHWEST; NEEDS HELP

Claude A. Guild

Brother B. L. White, evangelist, plans to move to Portland, Oregon, to the Southeast congregation. This congregation is young and small, however, they are willing to support Brother White with a place to live and fifty dollars a week. He needs more support than this.

We would like to find a church that would be willing to do some missionary work. Brother White is a sound and able gospel preacher. Brother A. G. Hobbs recently conducted a meeting with the Southeast congregation, and recommends it wholeheartedly.

There are 750,000 people in the greater Portland area, and only five small congregations. Please take an interest in this worthy work and able man, at least to the extent of $100 a month.

Write Brother White, 1503 N. E. 37th Street, Fort Worth, Texas, or the Church of Christ in Riverside, 2701 E. Belknap Street, Fort Worth, Texas.

CATHOLIC BISHOP IN SAARBRUECKEN SPEAKS OUT AGAINST RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

Otis Gatewood

A few weeks ago we announced to the brotherhood that our broadcast on Radio Saarbruecken had been stopped through the influence of the Catholic church. We thought for a time that perhaps through government channels in Saarland that we would be able to continue with our broadcast. But now that is hopeless. The government officials have backed the Catholic church in stopping our program.

A short time ago I received a very nice letter from one of the radio officials who has been helping us. He told about a conversation with a Catholic bishop that is quite revealing about the way the Catholic church feels about religious freedom. Some of the letter reads as follows:

"I had a long conversation in the presence of the secretary general of Radio Saarbruecken with the Catholic bishop. Just to see the reaction I said to the bishop that your feature would continue pretty soon. He was furious and we had a big debate on the topic. He said that he believed in the truth of the only God and that he was convinced that the only way to God was to go through the Catholic church. And this conviction obliged them to prevent other religious groups from action. As a father would control the books he would give to his children to prevent them from bad influence, so he was to intervene that none of his religious children could be influenced by bad and other than Catholic influence. He admitted not to have heard any of your programs but that the Prior of the Abbey of Tholey had listened to them and had stamped them as 'balivernes et choses qu'il ne faut pas dire' (commonplace and things not to be said)."

There you have it in black and white. The Catholic church, if they have the power, would deny to all others the right to worship as they please. Communism is no worse in this respect. The program that we gave that they objected to so severely was the "Authority of the Word of God" showing that we should accept the word of the Lord as authority in religion. Such preaching is branded as "commonplace and things not to be said." That is how much respect the Catholic church has for the Bible. Beware of what will happen in America if the Catholic church gains political power. With such an attitude it is easy to understand why our brethren have had so many difficulties in Italy.

FORTY-SEVEN YEAR OLD ARTICLE
WHAT IS BAPTISM?

There has fallen into my possession a copy of the "Bible Student" bearing the date of March 1, 1906, Vol. 3, No. 9, published at Gunter, Texas. The "Bible Student" was a five-column, 13 em slug, 8 pt. hand set type, size 13x20 and was published weekly, all of which goes to indicate plenty of interest and lots of work. Moreover, the 20 18-inch columns of printed matter constitute some of the finest essays on the great themes of the gospel. A. C. Huff and E. A. Bedichek were the editors and publishers, with a staff of four Associate Editors: W. A. Schultz, A. Alsup, G. A. W. Fleming, U. G. Wilkinson; also four Field Editors: W. K. Rose, W. P. Skaggs, D. D. Rose, L. M. Vaughn. Of these ten, only three I believe, linger on the shores of time. The rest have gone to be with Christ, which, Paul says, "is very far better." Very few of the numerous other preachers whose names appear on the Student's pages are still with us. On page one, appears an article from the pen of the late Brother J. W. Denton who for many years was a contributor to the Firm Foundation, and whose articles were always clear, incisive, forceful and convincing on the great themes of the gospel. Many of our older readers who knew Brother Denton will find special pleasure in reading this 47-year-old article on "Baptism," which we herewith reproduce:

"Baptism" is a noun; baptize is a verb. Verbs express action; nouns name things; adverbs express manner or modes.

"Baptism," being a noun, is the name of the action expressed by the verb "baptize." The whole is equal to the sum of its parts. Hence, the sum of the parts are equal to the whole. If the verb "baptize" is equivalent to "sprinkle," "pour," and "immerse," then "sprinkle," "pour," and "immerse" are equal to "baptize." Hence, "baptized" would stand as the sum of the whole, while "sprinkle," "pour," and "immerse" constitute the parts of the whole or sum. It follows, therefore, that no one could say he was baptized unless he had all the parts that it takes to constitute the whole, or baptism. If "baptize," a verb of action, carries with it the idea of sprinkle, pour and immerse, it follows, then, that one word can convey the idea of three separate and distinct acts at the same time; and while each act differs from the other, yet each one is right. Any school boy can see the fallacy of the reasoning. First, there never was a word that conveyed the idea of three distinct acts pertaining to the same thing, and each act be right.

To illustrate: Here is a Methodist preacher. He has five converts to baptize. He sprinkles water on two of them and tells them they are baptized. He pours water on two of them and tells them they are baptized. He then immerses one of them and tells him he is baptized. Now look at this thing—look at it straight in the face. He sprinkled water on two of them, and told them: "I baptize you"; hence says: "This is baptism." Next, he pours water on two of them and says:

"I baptize you." All know the last act differs from the first. If the first act was baptizing, the last act differs from the first; hence, differs from baptizing. That which differs from baptizing cannot be baptizing, can it? You say: "No, of course not." Is not the act performed the baptizing? You say: "Yes." Did you not perform a different act the second time to what you did at the first? You must answer, "Yes." Then if the first act is baptizing, and the second act differs from it, the second act certainly differs from baptizing. Again, he immersed one. Was this one baptized? You say, "Yes." Did not this act differ from the former acts? All say, "Yes." Then if the last act is baptizing and the name of it "baptism," how can you name the former acts "baptism," seeing they differ from the last act, which is baptizing, and its name "baptism"?

Again, is sprinkling water, as an act, in obedience to the command to "baptize," right? If you say, "No," then you ought to quit it; if you say, "Yes," then, when you poured water on the two, was that right and in obedience in the same command to "baptize"? You say, "Yes." My! Did you not say that sprinkling was (is) right? "Yes." Then does not "pour" differ from "sprinkle"? "Yes." Then does not "pour" differ from that which you concede to be right? "Yes." Can any act differ from the right and still be the right act? No one but a lunatic would thus reason. Remember, the baptizing is the act performed. Then when he sprinkled water on the first and told them they were baptized, and poured water (a different act from the first) on the second and told them they were baptized, if he told the first the truth, he told the second that which differed from the truth. That which differs from the truth cannot be the truth. Just so with the third candidate. If he told him the truth when he told him, "I baptize you," and immersed him, then he told the others the opposite of the truth when he said, "I baptize you," and sprinkled or poured water upon them. God's word is truth. All truth harmonizes. These acts, supposed to express the idea of God's word, do not harmonize. Therefore these distinct acts are not expressions of God's truth.

Jesus says: "Go teach the nations, baptizing them." I throw down the gauntlet here. The language shows that in baptizing, you are to handle the object to be baptized and not the element. "He baptized him." The language shows that he handled the object "him," and not the element. In sprinkling, the preacher handles the element and not the object, hence he does not baptize "him"; he does not touch him; he does not handle the object; hence does not baptize at all. Then, what does he do? Answer: He makes a monkey of himself, a burlesque of common sense, and violates the laws of language and the command of God.

But the cap-sheaf of foolishness is in the next act—pouring. In this they handle neither element nor object, but handle a cup or glass and touch neither element nor object, and then, look up to heaven and say, "I baptize you!" He did not do it, he never touched him; neither did he touch the element. In this case he neither baptized the element nor the object; but when a man is immersed, the object is handled and you do what God says do—"teach, baptize."

Ben West, Lampasas, Texas, May 28: The Lord's day 263 in Bible classes, 400 for worship, near 300 at night, regular offering $548.00. Wednesday night 236 were present to hear the deacons talk. One man was restored and his wife baptized. Our gospel meeting June 15-23. Perry Wilmett will talk daily at 7:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m. Homecoming and opening of our new church building May 31.

Clyde S. Smallwood, Post Office Box 3104, University Station, Enid, Oklahoma, May 29: Three more baptisms at Hillcrest Church of Christ in Woodward, Oklahoma, on May 10. We opened our new building May 24 with all day services. 135 were present for worship service at 10:45. One erring sister restored. Brother William Boaz, preacher for Independence and Wabash Church of Christ in Enid preached the sermon for the afternoon service. We are off to a great start in the Lord's work.

H. Alton Wimlish, Box 468, Spearman, Texas, May 21: The church in Spearman recently closed a very good meeting in which Forrest D. Moyer of Tucumcari, New Mexico, did the preaching, and Troy Thurmon of Canyon, Texas, directed the singing. Both young men did their work exceptionally well and gained the love and respect of the brethren. There were about fifteen who responded to the invitation during the meeting, and the others made a confession of faults. All attendance records were broken during this meeting.

O. C. Lambert, 1309—9th Avenue, S. E., Decatur, Alabama, May 29: I have received many anxious inquiries from friends since my short stay in Foundation hospital, New Orleans, recently. Beginning more than ten years ago I had a series of nine serious operations through four years. Since that time I have enjoyed excellent health until recently when it was found I had peptic ulcers, not related to my old trouble. I am glad to report that my trouble has been corrected and I am in a few days to begin a busy schedule of lectures and meetings throughout the remainder of the year.

Hoyt H. Houchen, 2110 Lipscomb, Amarillo, Texas, May 29: After three years and eight months, I have resigned from the work with the Central church in Amarillo. The Lord blessed us with a fruitful labor, the visible results being 665 additions. Of this number 203 were baptized, 147 restored, and 215 transfers of membership. I have accepted the work with the Highland church in San Antonio, Texas. I am to begin there on July 5th. I am looking forward to a very pleasant labor with this church. After July 1, my address will be 1403 Hicks, San Antonio, Texas. My correspondents will please take notice.

Rufus R. Clifford, Box 282, Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, May 25: Our work here is progressing nicely. One was baptized into Christ. I will preach from May 31-June 7 in a meeting with the church in Hohenwald, Tennessee. Alvad Dunkleberger and N. B. Hardeman will preach here.

John H. Banister, 3014 Skillman Avenue, Dallas, Texas, May 23: During the month of April thirty-six were added here at Skillman Avenue church. There were thirteen baptisms, one restoration, sixteen identified, and six restored who also were identified. Eight have been added thus far in May of whom two were baptized, two restored and identified, and four identified. I assisted Lamar Avenue church in Paris, Texas, in a meeting May 3-10. Ten were added with four baptisms, four restorations, and two identified. Perry B. Cotham has for over six years faithfully preached there and Lamar Avenue is one of our best Texas congregations. Jack Nadeau, whom we support in Munich, Germany, preached here the two Sundays I was in Paris.

Robert P. Cooper, 2201 Gordon Street, Hopewell, Virginia, May 22: I was with the church at Elton, West Virginia, May 10-17. Interest and attendance were fine. Cooperation on the part of surrounding congregations was very good. Many who were not members of the church visited the services. Two married women were restored. The Lord willing, I will be with them again next year. Charles G. Lemons of Louisville, Kentucky, will be with us at Hopewell June 7-14. We anticipate a good meeting. After three years with the church here I am moving to Parkersburg, West Virginia, the first of August to begin work with the Marttown Road congregation. I will follow Lawrence Gardner in that work. We are looking forward to a pleasant and profitable work.

Arthur W. Francis, Jr., P. O. Box 924, Sioux City, Iowa, May 21: Bill Hearn began his labors as co-worker in this city with an eight day meeting that closed May 17. Interest and attendance was fine throughout and one lady with a family was restored to the fellowship of the congregation. We are happy to welcome Brother Hearn and his family. They come to us with the support of the good church at Nocona, Texas. Pray for us that we may have an effective ministry together at this mission point. We are looking forward to the special effort in July when Roy H. Lanier and John McCoy plan to be with us for two weeks. We were glad also to have the help of Brother Frank Clark of Lipan, Texas, who led the singing for the meeting with Brother Hearn. He did his part well.

C. W. Scott, 301 N. W. 52nd Street, Miami, Florida, May 28: Three restorations, one confession of public sins, two placing membership and six baptized during the past month at 7th Avenue. W. Ray Duncan is nightly meeting D. L. Welch of Pentecostal Church this week with approximately 400 in attendance each night. Brother Duncan is doing a great work in setting forth New Testament truth. I leave today for services in west Tennessee and Alabama and to begin a meeting with the Brownsville church and Lewis Casey in Pensacola, Florida, June 7. I return to Miami June 28th to begin my fourth year with this good congregation. Peace and harmony prevails and we anticipate still greater things in our labors here. It is a great experience to enjoy the confidence and support of the elders and whole church evident at this time.

Paul S. Gray, P. O. Box 573, Bowie, Texas, May 30: The meetings at Beckley, West Virginia, Columbus and Beallsville, Ohio, were all well attended with many non-members included. The total results were two baptized and two restored. The associations were very pleasant and we trust much good will result therefrom. We are now entering into the second year with the church here. Some encouraging signs have manifested themselves; nevertheless the overall results are not at all satisfactory. During the year thirty-six responded to the invitation as follows: four baptisms, five restorations and twenty-seven transfers of membership. Attendance and contributions have increased some; the basement was remodeled and repainted and some new equipment added. We hope the accomplishments will be much greater in the year ahead.

Raymond L. Copening, Duke, Oklahoma, May 26: Due to the Public School System here I am almost forced to make a move. (we have three school age children). This is my second work with the Duke congregation. It is very pleasant, no unrest on the part of any one that I know of. The elders have said that I could remain here therefore it is with most reluctance that we make this announcement. Those congregations that need an experienced local preacher will please let me hear from them. I will gladly exchange references with any congregation. You may contact the elders here in Duke. They have known me for eight or nine years, and during this time we have lived here two times. I have held one spring meeting for them while I was living elsewhere, so they will be able to tell you my weaknesses and if I have any ability. I am in position to move most any time. In the daytime, you might call 31; at night you might call 57, or write me at the above address.

Joseph C. Malone, 1930 Forest Park Blvd., May 30: Under the able leadership of its elders, the church of our Lord at West Berry in Fort Worth has assumed the full support of three more native preachers in Mexico. They are Brethren Agustin Sanchez of Torreon, J. C. Saucedo of Rio Grande, Zacatecas, and Epigenio Zuniga of Las Esperanzas, Zacatecas. Thus the church at West Berry is now supporting seven preachers on a full time basis and is assisting in the support of another. In addition to those named above are its local preacher, and Brethren Walter L. Bostick at Glenwood Springs, Colorado, Pablo Villa in Matamoros, Mexico, Juan Villa in Brownsville, Texas, and it is contributing to the support of Hulen Masters in Springfield, Vermont. Last year the West Berry church built a $13,000.00 meeting house in Matamoros, Mexico, and at this time it is erecting a church building in Glenwood Springs, Colorado, that will cost about $20,000. It has purchased four lots in southwest Fort Worth on which to erect another building later.

Johnny Ramsey, Box 109, Neenah, Wisconsin, May 27: I have just finished preaching in a gospel meeting in Rolla, Missouri. While there we had the opportunity and privilege to preach at Fort Leonard Wood on Sunday afternoon, May 24. Through the tireless efforts of some of the Christian boys in the service there, arrangements have been made to conduct services each Lord's day afternoon at 3 o'clock. Brother and Sister Lyric Beck have been very instrumental in acquiring this permission. Forrest Magness, preacher at St. James, Missouri, is a tireless worker with the boys. It is very touching to realize the joy of these servicemen as they have the opportunity to worship God as he has prescribed in his blessed word. If any who read this know of boys at Fort Leonard Wood who need to be contacted, please write to Pfc. Edward L. Beck, 237 Richland, Post Trailer Park, Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. The services are conducted in Chapel No. 5 every Sunday at 3 p.m. Pray for these brethren. The challenge is great. May God be with us all as we strive to do his will.

S. C. Kinningham, 314—30th Avenue S.W., May 21: Sidney G. Roper arrived in Alberta May 9th from Water Valley, Mississippi, to begin his efforts in trying to establish a congregation in the city of Edmonton. He lost no time at all after his arrival in getting right into the work. He succeeded in finding a place to live the second day and began immediately trying to locate as many members as possible who may have moved there from other places. Some were found and they had their first meeting Sunday in the YMCA where they will continue to meet until a more suitable place can be obtained. The South Parkway church in Memphis, Tennessee, has assumed the direction of his work and various churches are contributing regularly to his support. But there will likely be need of other funds yet for a while for operating expenses until they can be taken care of locally. Even the moral support of brethren where the church is already established will be worth a great deal. The Ropers' address is 10723 107th Street, Edmonton, Alberta.

W. E. (Bud) Irvine, Baytown, Texas, May 30: After almost four years of most pleasant work with the Pruett and Lobit Streets church, formerly Murrill and Ashbel, in Baytown, Texas, we leave tomorrow night for Long Beach, California, where we shall work with the Central congregation. Our work with the brethren here has been most enjoyable and we trust pleasing to the Lord. During our stay a preacher's home was erected as well as a new church building. Brother A. Hugh Clark of San Antonio is to begin work here July 1st. We wish him every success and I know the cause of Christ will prosper at this place. Last year I was in meetings at Bellflower, Wasco and Ontario, California, and Big Spring, Texas. This year I have been in meetings at Salem and Roseburg, Oregon, and South Park in Beaumont, Texas. I go back to South Park next year as well as Roseburg. I have meetings in Shafter, Wasco and Delano, California yet this year. Please pray for us in our new work. Our new address: 501 Atlantic Avenue, Long Beach, California.

Basil C. Doran, P. O. Box 186, Ferris, Texas, May 25: We are happy to report that yesterday was truly a day of rejoicing here, when two were baptized and three placed their membership with us. We are expecting many more soon. At last this congregation is as free from gossip and backbiting as any congregation to be found anywhere. For that everyone is rejoicing. The town is now looking with favor upon the church. It was my good pleasure to deliver the Baccalaureate Sermon at the local high school last night. The school officials told me the audience was the largest ever to assemble for this particular service. Our radio broadcast, "The Gospel in Song", may be heard each Sunday morning over station KGKO, 1480 on your dial, from 8:00 until 8:15. My next meeting will be with the Northside church in Mayfield, Kentucky, beginning June 29. If you chance to pass this way, pay us a visit.

The Church of Christ at Ogden, Utah, is seeking the services of an evangelist. Anyone interested should address their correspondence to Church of Christ, Box 1364, Ogden, Utah, in care of Robert Halfacre.

Carl D. Wills, 106 W. 9th St., Scott City, Kansas, May 22: I am resigning from the work with the church in Scott City, after four years of labor in western Kansas. If you are interested in a young man with a family, considerable experience in preaching the gospel, and a willing worker to share the Lord's work with you, please contact me at the above address.

Jimmy Campbell, 101 N. Lelia, Guymon, Oklahoma, May 22: There have been five responses to the invitation since my last report. Three have been baptized, one restored, and one to place membership. We are happy over the continued growth. Three families have been going to the small congregation of Goodwell, Oklahoma, in an attempt to help them for the past month or more. All things considered, the work is exceedingly better now than it was a year ago. A meeting was concluded last week at Wickett, Texas. David Dart is the faithful evangelist there. There were no responses but the elders stated that it was the best attended meeting in the history of the congregation. I have time for two or three more meetings this year. Write me if I can serve you.

Dean Bullock, 312 N. Waldrup St., Grand Saline, Texas, May 29: For the past two years I have served the congregation here. During this period of time we have enjoyed a very pleasant and fruitful work. In addition to the regular program of teaching and preaching, we have erected an adequate church building. I have accepted the invitation to begin with the church in Durant, Oklahoma, June 28. The opportunities for evangelism there are great. I shall be the speaker over radio station KSEO on "The Religious Question Hour", heard each Sunday morning at 8:15 o'clock, 750 on your radio dial. This program has a large listening audience in Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, and other states. I shall also teach the Bible to students of Southeastern State College. Brother J. F. Doggett of Tyler, Texas, has been selected to succeed me here. I anticipate for him an enjoyable ministry. I am scheduled to be with the church at Mineola, Texas, for a meeting June 8-17. I begin a similar effort in Crockett, Texas, July 15.

L. C. Chaplin, 2707 Pebble Drive, Friona, Texas, May 12: The small congregation (25 to 30 members) of the church of Christ in this very, very needy gospel field is definitely going forward, even if much slower than we wish it would. Brother J. Hollis Roberson of Opp, Alabama, is to do the preaching in a meeting for us beginning June 29 and closing July 7. Though it is not certain, we may have a vacation Bible school in conjunction with the meeting. We considered our effort at our first vacation Bible school last year a real success. Our crowds and contributions, too, are much improved over a few months ago. Yet, we are still meeting in an unfinished basement. We hope to grow more substantially when we get into our superstructure. We are receiving regular assistance on our building fund from two churches and occasional assistance from several individuals. We are in real need of further help, though, to erect walls, roof, and glaze, thus enclosing our superstructure by cold weather this fall.

W. J. Price, 2458 Grape St., Abilene, Texas, May 8: My last work was with the North Side congregation in Farmington, New Mexico. I came to Abilene to further my study at Abilene Christian College. I have attended two years at Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tennessee. I have been a proclaimer of the gospel eight and one-half years in mission fields and with local congregations. It is my desire now to work full time with some congregation. If any church would like to learn of my faithfulness and ability to preach the gospel, write to the elders of the North Side congregation, Farmington, New Mexico, or I shall be glad to supply you with names of preachers with whom we were mutually acquainted who are known throughout the brotherhood to be sound in the faith.

Walter E. Bankes, 2 South Tasmania, Pontiac, Michigan, May 28: My meeting at Alliance, Ohio, resulted in two baptisms and one restoration. Richard Brewer, the local preacher, was most cooperative. This is as it should be. I have wondered why preachers do not want the local preacher at home to assist in the meeting and know best how to follow the meeting. Some attended from other churches who had never heard the pure gospel or a church of Christ preacher. The work in Pontiac moves with impetus. Several have been baptized since last report. Ten city lots, in good location, have been paid for a few days ago, and we plan to build soon. Our congregation is one of the best, but we must build soon or impair the Lord's work. People have walked away who could not enter the building for lack of seating space.

B. G. Yount, 1132 East 38th Street, Tulsa, Oklahoma, May 21: The church at Lee and Walnut Streets in Sapulpa, Oklahoma, conducted a gospel meeting in which I did the preaching from May 11 through May 20. There were four baptisms. Brother V. L. Johnston is the local minister and he ably directed the songs during the meeting. The Brookside church here in Tulsa has just completed a new addition to our building, the second unit in a three unit structural plan. There have been nine baptisms and sixteen added by restoration and by identification in recent months. Four additional deacons and two other elders were appointed three weeks ago. The congregation is growing in all phases of the work. Our vacation Bible school is scheduled for June 1-12. I am to do the preaching in a gospel meeting at Kosciusko, Mississippi, June 21-30.

Rollie B. Rankin, Box 465, Alamogordo, New Mexico, May 21: We have just closed a good meeting at 9th and Texas Avenue, with Forrest Moyer of Tucumcari, New Mexico, doing the preaching. A lot of interest was shown throughout this meeting, and the results were that often our seating facilities were taxed to take care of the crowd. Four were baptized and three confessed wrongs, and we feel that besides these visible results, the church was strengthened in many ways. We look forward now to greater achievements. There is much work to be done here, and we earnestly solicit your prayers for this congregation. When passing our way, stop and worship with us.

O. C. Lambert, 1309—9th Avenue, S. E., Decatur, Alabama, May 29: A. H. Maner recently conducted a fine meeting for us. We are beginning a new building and our congregation will hereafter be called the Somerville Road Church. I am to begin a meeting at Port Arthur (Groves), Texas, June 21. I lecture on Catholicism at Lometa, Texas, July 4 and 5, and at Spur, Texas, July 6. I begin a meeting at Long Beach, California, July 12. Beginning August 9 I will deliver a series of 16 lectures on Catholicism for the church at Santa Rosa, California. Beginning Monday night, August 31, I begin a series of lectures on Catholicism which will continue through the next Lord's day with the church in Haynesville, Louisiana.

Luther G. Roberts, 2110 W. Second Avenue, Corsicana, Texas, May 30: Recently five have been baptized and one restored at West Side Church. We plan a Vacation Bible School for June 8-12. June 1-6, we are to teach in a school conducted by the church at Stephenville, and I am to preach daily on the radio station there during the time. Ralph Starling, who is the regular preacher for the Stephenville church, will be with the West Side church in Corsicana to teach singing and direct the singing in the Vacation Bible School. We are to engage in a gospel meeting August 9-16 with Jack Hardcastle of Lubbock, Texas, to do the preaching. My next meeting is to be with the Pursley church, July 26 to August 2.

Conard Hays, 2701 Reagan Street, Dallas, Texas, May 28: Brother A. C. Huff preached for us Sunday night and Wednesday night of this week. He is in his 69th year of preaching the word. His thinking is still clear and his lessons forceful. It was a real inspiration to hear a man preach who has been proclaiming the gospel nearly seventy years. He is anxious to keep busy in the Lord's vineyard. You may contact him for work at 905 W. 7th St., Plainview, Texas. One baptized and one placed membership here at Oak Lawn so far this month.

A. Chester Grimes, 1548 Heights Blvd., Houston, Texas, May 25: Two were baptized at Heights yesterday, a Lutheran lady and her daughter. The work at Heights has been most encouraging all of this year. Several new Bible school attendance records and contribution records have been established. Our fourth annual Vacation Bible School is to be held June 8-13. We are expecting to enroll 500 this year. Brother C. Ray Wood of Muskogee, Oklahoma, is assisting us in the singing this year. I will be in a meeting in Rochester, New York, the last half of June, during which time I will assist them in conducting a Vacation Bible School there.

Harrell H. Dame, Panama Church of Christ, Route 1, Box 96A, Poteau, Oklahoma: The work of the Lord is progressing in a most pleasant way in the church at Panama. We have had record attendance at all services the past few months. One was baptized during April and two so far in May. I am also preaching each second Sunday in the afternoon at the Rosedale school house, where a small group of Christians meet regularly. So far we have had good attendance at these services and there is good interest among the denominational people there. Pray for us in this work that we may teach the word in such a manner as to lead men and women to obey the commandments of him who died for all of us.

Sam Medford, Route 1, Box 456, Creswell, Oregon: Two baptisms and one confessed wrongs recently at the London Church of Christ. Grover W. Hollon of Ft. Cobb, Oklahoma, is scheduled to be a full time minister here beginning about June 18th. L. D. Webb, minister of the Central Church of Christ in Portland and President of the Columbia Bible School did the preaching at a very successful gospel meeting at Springfield Church of Christ, Twelfth and C Streets, with twenty additions, sixteen baptisms, which makes thirty-eight baptisms at the Springfield church since the first of the year. Virgil L. Leach is the regular minister of the Springfield church. Bob Guild was the song leader in this meeting and he did fine work.

F. A. Livingston, 2128 Amanda Street, Ft. Worth 5, Texas, May 26: I closed a fine meeting a few weeks ago in northwest Fort Worth (Worth Hill) with two baptisms. One was a Baptist preacher. One member was restored. This meeting was encouraged in a fine way by the members of the churches of Christ, and especially by Brother S. T. W. Gibbs, the minister for the New York and Leuda Street church, and other ministers. I am now in a fine meeting in Electra, Texas. If the Lord wills, I will go next to Haskell, Texas, to begin a meeting. I am grateful to God for the fine way in which the white churches of Christ are helping and encouraging the work among the colored brethren. This will be my third successive meeting with the church at Haskell with visible results in every meeting.

HENDERSON-KETCHERSIDE DEBATE

Obert Henderson, evangelist of the Walnut Ridge, Arkansas, church is scheduled to meet L. E. Ketcherside, of Peoria, Illinois, in a four night discussion, June 30 through July 3. The discussion will be held in the building of the Jefferson Street church, 1915 North Jefferson, Peoria, Illinois. Four propositions will be discussed. They are The College Question, The Local Preacher Question, The Evangelistic Oversight and Authority Question, and the question as to Women's Place in the Public Worship.

REUNION AT THORP SPRING

A. R. Holton

Young men and young women from over the southwest have been coming to Thorp Spring, Texas, since 1873. Thorp Spring has been a youth center every year since that opening day and this year will be no exception. Camp Klebit will be the gathering ground for young people this summer. The camp meeting of the church of Christ at Thorp Spring will be held July 19-31. The ex-student's reunion will be held on Sunday, July 26. Rich Garrett, president of the Ex-Student's Association, has announced that invitations will be sent to ex-students of Add-Ran College and of Thorp Spring Christian College. Both of these schools use the old campus that is now being used by the Encampment and Training Association of Thorp Spring, Texas.

R. C. Holton, president of Thorp Spring Christian College in 1911, will be the main speaker. A. R. Holton of Central Church of Christ, Nashville, Tennessee, is president of the Encampment and Training Association. If you know of an ex-student of Thorp Spring or a former resident of Thorp Spring, please invite them to this homecoming. Remember the dates, the ex-student's reunion on Sunday, July 26, and the camp meeting July 19-31.

COMMENDATION

The congregation at Corona, California, has just closed a fifteen-day meeting with Eliwood A. Page preaching. Brother Page is a Christian Hebrew who came to the truth from the Baptist church a few years ago. We have found him thoroughly sound in the faith, energetic in his work, and most forceful in the pulpit. Five were baptized in the meeting (one a former Catholic), and one confessed wrongs. The congregation was greatly strengthened in zeal and Christian living. On the Lord's day before the meeting started, one who had been contemplating joining Catholicism, was baptized, and a naval officer was restored.

FREED-HARDEMAN COLLEGE

W. A. Bradfield

The sixty-seventh session at Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tennessee, came to a close on May 27. The commencement address was delivered by Alonzo Welch, Educator and Evangelist of Memphis, Tennessee.

Dean C. P. Boland presented diplomas to the seventy-three graduates. Other awards were presented by President H. A. Dixon.

William Woodson of Jasper, Alabama, was awarded the Nannin Dungan Wallace Memorial Scholarship for next year. James Burns of Detroit, Michigan, received the E. G. Prosser Memorial Scholarship. The Faculty-

Scholarship Medal went to Foy Lisenby of Jackson, Tennessee.

At the semi-annual alumni meeting Tuesday night in the college cafeteria, A. C. Dreaden of Columbus, Mississippi, was elected Alumni President for next year. William H. Hull of Memphis, was elected Vice-President and Mrs. James Williams of Henderson, was elected Secretary. For a three year term on the Board of Directors were Charles Williams of Trenton, Hugo Allmond of Corinth, Mississippi, and Frank Van Dyke of Henderson.

A. H. Bryant, 1445 Nogales, Del Paso Heights, California, May 25: I closed a week's meeting last evening with Brother B. U. Baldwin and the church at Lodi, California. One young man was baptized. Members seemed to be encouraged to greater usefulness. The work here in Del Paso Heights seems to be moving along favorably. Work on our new building has begun last week. The spirit of fellowship is good, and with adequate auditorium and class rooms we feel sure the church in this community will grow in numbers and in zeal. There are great possibilities here. Churches in California are making progress, and could use many more preachers who have a mind to work and a vision of accomplishments. We have plans for a meeting the last week of June.

ANOTHER PREACHER CHANGES VIEWS ON THE CLASS QUESTION: LET'S GIVE HIM A CHANCE

L. W. Hayhurst

The following letter from Brother Solon Bailey who worked with the anti-class brethren for about thirteen years trying to work an unworkable theory, speaks for itself. I hope that some congregation will give him a chance to go to work. It should be remembered that many of their preachers have changed in the last few years, and are now doing well with churches that have Bible classes. They are good people, but have been misguided on this question. They imagine that we have a big super-organization that dictates to us the lessons that we are to have each Lord's day. We have no such thing. They imagine that 1 Cor.

14 requires the church to do all of its teaching by one male member speaking at a time; that is, according to rule of the prophets: "when" and "if" the whole church be assembled. Of course, they don't think that the Lord will get offended if their congregations have radio programs, and use a different plan or picture. But here is the letter:

11654 Harry Hines Blvd.
Dallas, Texas
May 11, 1953

Dear Brother Hayhurst:

After much study and deliberation I have reached the conclusion that it is both scriptural and desirable to teach the Bible by the class method using women to do some of the teaching. If this is not in complete harmony with the teaching of the Bible, then I am at loss as to what it does teach. I wonder now why it required so much time for me to see this. One reason is I never did give the question a serious consideration until some two and a half years ago.

At the present time I am living in Dallas and working for Sears Roebuck and Co. However, my desire is to preach the gospel. I hope to have the opportunity to work with a group that is using a plan that will work. I spent some thirteen years endeavoring to promote an unworkable plan. Now I would like to spend the remainder of my life promoting one that will work.

I was preaching for the congregation in Farmers Branch when I decided that Bible classes would be a valuable asset. I made my announcement to them, and wife and I came to the Letot congregation in Dallas and there publicly made our stand known; also placed our membership with this congregation.

Some of the brethren here in Dallas are making arrangements to announce my change through the papers. If you would like to make some statement it would be highly appreciated by me. Also if you should know of some congregation that wants a preacher I would be glad if you put me in contact with them. Hope to see you one of these days.

Yours in the preaching of the gospel

(Signed) SOLON BAILEY

"Jesus and Jonah." By J. W. McGarvey. DeHoff Publications. Murfreesboro, Tenn. 1952. pp. 72. $1.50.

J. W. McGarvey was a copious writer—a defender of the Word. He believed in its inspiration, its integrity, and that it was an all-sufficient guide from earth to heaven. This little Volume presents McGarvey at his best in defense. It is "tops" on the subject. It has been out of circulation for a long time. Brother DeHoff has rendered the brotherhood a distinct contribution in bringing it out in print once more. We commend it to every Bible student's library.

"Outlines of Sermons" and Inspirational Talks. M. C. Kurfrees. Edited by James R. Cope and Wm. G. Thompson, Lufkin, Texas. 1953.

These outlines and addresses were prepared by Brother Kurfrees while preaching for the Campbell (Haldeman Avenue) church in Louisville, Kentucky. They were delivered at the old Campbell Street church, with the exception of the talks which were delivered at the old Nashville Bible School.

In the introduction, the editors tell us that the notes are taken from his original long-hand, verbatim, and sent forth with the sincere desire that they will receive wide usage.

The writer of these lines holds with deep reverence the name of M. C. Kurfrees, and has read this little volume of 62 pages with profit. There are things in this volume that will add to a preacher's library—it is a preacher's book. The outlines are brief, and will demand a careful reading.

This is a volume of resource units in sex education. It supplies a compelling need which has been felt for some time. It includes both teaching materials and methods in these units which have been tested in a number of schools.

Your editor came across the volume the first time while auditing a class of juniors and seniors in a city high school. It seemed then, and more so now, that it ought to be in the library of teacher, preacher and others interested in this age group. One of the singular things about the book is that no special training is needed for the teacher who presents the material. Very detailed yet flexible directions are given, along with suggestions on how to best work out the materials in any sort of curriculum.

Paul Popenoe of the American Institute of Family Relations, says of this book: "The book is a landmark, and I only wish that it could provide part of the compulsory education of every child in the country."

The units deal with personal health and human relations for the kindergarten. For grades 6, 7, and 8 there is a unit on How Living Things Reproduce. The units progress on through courtship, marriage, and family life.

"Sermons by Pickup." By Harry Pickup, Sr., Phillips Publications, Clearwater, Fla., P. O. Box 535. pp. 214. 1953. $2.75.

This is a volume of sermons delivered by Harry Pickup, Sr., in the church building at Clearwater, Florida, from February 25-March 6, 1952. They were recorded and transcribed and now appear in this written form. The book is neatly bound, and the mechanical make-up is excellent.

Brother Pickup has presented some excellent materials in this volume which will profit a larger reading public as they secure and read this volume of sermons. He has some wonderful sermons with his characteristic approach. Some of the sermon topics are:

- The Battle-ground of Those Who Build The Spirit of Christ
- What the Church Needs
- Seeing the Difference
- Spiritual Heart Trouble
- Old Fashion Religion and others.

"Sermon Outlines." By T. Q. Martin. Compiled by Morris M. Womack. Religious Book Service, 34 N. Layman Ave., Indianapolis 19, Indiana. 1953. 143 pages.

Those who knew and loved Brother T. Q. Martin will be pleased to know that some of his best sermon outlines have been preserved and are herewith published. We are indebted to Brother Morris Womack, preacher for the Brightwood church of Christ in Indianapolis, who collected and prepared the material for publication. We also are indebted to Brother Earl West for writing the biographical sketch and printing the material.

The author suggests two reasons in the preface for sending this volume forth. "First, it is the hope of the compiler that it will serve as a living monument to a truly great preacher. Second, it is the fulfillment of a promise made by me to Brother Martin some few weeks prior to his death." These are two laudable reasons.

Cautious care was made to preserve the outlines as they were in the original copies. Some few deletions were made, and a few additions in words to complete the sense, etc. There are about a hundred twenty-five outlines, full enough to be useable, and pungent enough to be read. All young preachers will relish having this copy on their book shelf. Older preachers will find it most suggestive, and helpful in adding to sermonic materials already on hand.

"Homes That Last." By Arthur B. Rutledge, Broadman Press, Nashville, Tenn. 1952. pp. 134. $1.00.

This is a book on the Home. It is designed for class work in Baptist Training Unions. There are eight chapters. Each is filled with excellent material. Those who may wish to preach on the home will find valuable suggestions in this little volume. The chapter headings are: The Need for Christian Homes; Foundations for Christian Home Life; Marriage and the Christian Home; Some Marks of a Happy Home; The Privilege of Parenthood; The Partnership of Home and the Church; Enemies of the Home; and The Abiding Strength of the Home. The book may be purchased in either the cloth or paper binding by writing the Firm Foundation Publishing House, Box 77, Austin, Texas.

MAJESTIC HYMNAL -- Well Received

GREATLY PLEASED, but not surprised we are noting the reaction of those who have received copies of our first edition of "THE MAJESTIC HYMNAL." Sample copies called for have been sent, and examined, and already orders, large and small have reached our office. Some were so certain that the book would please them that they placed orders for their full requirements in advance, to be shipped as soon as the books were from the bindery and these orders have already been filled. We appreciate this confidence, and are glad of course, when we receive a message that "we are more than pleased" with the book.

You will note that "THE MAJESTIC HYMNAL" is different. It is not just like the common run of song books. You are entirely correct in this; and we are glad that you take notice of it. And we want to add that this is not at all unintentional on our part. For example you will find quite a number of songs that are designed and intended to be used for special occasions, a line of composition for which we have frequent calls, and which are very much in demand among our singers, specially among the younger groups in many of the larger congregations, and are of the very first importance in musical training and song drills, which are greatly needed to revive the proper interest in singing in most of the churches.

Boost the song service; practice singing frequently and also have a real Singing School at frequent intervals. Nothing will build up interest in the congregation more than really good, enthusiastic singing; and excellent singing will do more than any other one element in leading souls to obey the gospel. No matter what song book you are now using, you will make no mistake if you order a supply of "THE MAJESTIC HYMNAL" just for a real period of teaching, and drill, and developing an interest in new and old songs. We can use an old book too long; also it is a good thing sometimes to get a new book for some special drills and for use in the church even if we store the old ones for future use or for supplying weaker, smaller, or mission groups.

THINGS TO CONSIDER . . .

W. M. DAVIS

The Resurrection

Only a few people, who think in a narrow channel, try to deny the resurrection of the dead. With the majority of men it is accepted as a fact. This belief is imbedded in the hearts of men in all nations. It is the greatest hope of humanity. Nothing could fill the hearts of men with deeper despair, than to blot out the hope of the resurrection of the dead.

When light on the resurrection was dim, Job inquired, "If a man die, shall he live again?" (Job 14:14). In quiet resignation he said, "All the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change come." Job had a deep conviction of a resurrection, but in his time there had been no specific revelation concerning it, such as is provided in the New Testament.

In the New Testament there is abundant evidence of the resurrection of man from the grave. The most convincing testimony is that which pertains to the resurrection of Christ. The wisdom of man has tried in vain to repudiate this testimony. A few strong intellectuals have made a close study of Christ's resurrection in an effort to prove its apparent falsity, who were converted to its truth by their investigations. About six hundred people who knew Jesus before he was crucified said they saw him alive after he was crucified. More than this, they were ready to die, rather than deny what they had seen. This is not easy to overthrow or explain away.

In his vision on Patmos, John says he saw the earth and sea give up the dead: "And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works" (Rev. 20:13). An enormous population sleeps under the waves of the great deep. But graves in the sea are no problem with the Lord in the resurrection day. God will find the bodies that men have failed to rescue. So all the dead in earth and sea will be raised to stand in one great throng before the bar of judgment.

The New Jerusalem

In the twenty-first chapter of Revelations, we read of John's vision of the new Jerusalem. This scene followed his vision of the resurrection and judgment. Of this wonderful sight John writes, "And I, John, saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away" (Rev. 21:2-4).

The resurrection and judgment are past; the earth sleeps in silence, having been dissolved with the fervent heat. And now the apostle sees the heavenly Jerusalem as if descending from God. This must have been a scene of surpassing splendor. At this time John was an old man—the sun of life was going down. Men naturally wonder what heaven is like. The description here given is no doubt figurative, but it shows that the grandeur of heaven far transcends the glories of earth. A state where there is no sin, no pain, no death, and where God wipes all tears away is desired by all men. In heaven no one weeps beside the open grave—all these things have passed away.

Rightly Dividing The Word Of Truth

F. O. Howell

This term "rightly dividing," must mean proper application. In matters of faith, there can be no alternative other than to accept the plain letter of the law, whether the thing spoken of is incorporated in the law, or excluded by the law. This is a principle, to which there can be no exception, and therefore no compromise. In matters of this sort, we are to submit to the Lord, and not one to another. In this field of thought and understanding, there is little, or no division among preachers, leaders and congregations of the Churches of Christ.

There is, however, the question of "expediency," that is ever present in carrying out matters of faith, that is not infrequently highly explosive; and furnishes the battleground for most, if not all of our church troubles. It is to this phase of the question, that the writer addresses himself at this time. The occasion for this article, was a question asked in an "open forum" meeting at a recent lecture course of one of our colleges; about a congregation buying a pig to barbecue for a special occasion, to which some of the members offered serious objection.

First, let it be observed that each congregation of the saints, is an autonomus body according to the scriptures. The Christ is the Lord, the King, the Law-giver, the High-Priest, the Ruler, the Governor; and it is up to each congregation of the saints to see to it that he is so honored and respected. Any sort of super-organization, that would destroy, or in any sort of way abridge this right, prerogative, responsibility and obligation, is contrary to both the genius and letter of the scriptures, and should be strictly avoided. Advice and counsel may be offered or it may be sought, as opportunity arises or as the needs may appear to require; but this should always be on the basis of freely give and freely receive, and never with compulsion or restraint. While all saints are members of the church of our Lord by regeneration or the new birth, none of us have an authentic voice in the affairs of a local congregation, unless and until we have so identified ourselves. Neither is it the prerogative of a local congregation to assume dominion or watch-care, over members of the church who have not formally so identified themselves. All Christians are inter-related in many ways; but we also have our personal rights, prerogatives, responsibilities and obligations, and one of these is to identify ourselves with a loyal congregation, and then do our part to carry out its programme. That we should do just this, is a matter of faith; but with which congregation we should identify ourselves is a matter of expediency, that we have a perfect right to determine.

It is well to state in this connection, that in communities where there are numerous congregations in close proximity, it sometimes happens, that a member becomes peeved, and leaves the fellowship of his home congregation and places membership with another, without wrongs being redressed and grievances settled. It should be remembered that a separation and a severance of ties, never settles any thing, and unless we forgive, we shall not be forgiven. Let it be remembered, that sin against a brother stands as a barrier between the worshiper and his God; and that geographical removal, serves only as a means of adding insult to injury. Such practices are a serious impact of great magnitude against all parties that have responsibility in maintaining proper and righteous brotherly relations. A proper division of the word, in matters of this sort, will uncover startling errors that have wide repercussions in maintaining the faith "that was once for all delivered to the saints."

Now, back to the "open forum" and the "barbecuing of the pig." There were probably two hundred preachers, and as many elders present, when this question was raised, and the question of "expediency" from many angles was freely discussed, in which great numbers participated. The matter of class and church picnics, the serving of foods and refreshments, the providing of kitchens and other equipments for such purposes, church buildings, class rooms, classes, teachers and the like, provisions for the care of orphans, widows, the aged and the poor generally. The means of transportation in going to the ends of the earth, in the proclamation of the gospel; and numerous other things including methods of teaching, dispensing the communion, the receiving of offerings, etc.: and finally the widely used method among the stronger churches, of providing a "budget plan" for outlining the annual programme, estimating necessary expenditures for its execution, and then submitting it to the congregation for comment, revision and elimination, with a view of coming to a meeting of minds; so that all may feel that they have been considered and consulted, and that every member may be able to estimate his reasonable part in the over-all operation, and make his plans and purposes accordingly, as he may be prospered. All seemed to be approaching a meeting of minds to the effect that "expediency" must be given a place, in providing any sort of operations in the affairs of any congregation if it is to accomplish any sort of workable programme; but what about "pig"?

One of the older set of preachers arose, and in substance presented the following; to-wit, Paul stated, "All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient";—"All things are lawful, but not all things edify." It appears therefore, that for anything to be "expedient," it must not be out of harmony with the Scriptures; and it must be accepted and approved, by the congregation that is concerned. Now, let us consider the Jerusalem church. In its early operations, it was directed and supervised by the inspired apostles, and therefore, it must have been right. No command was given to the effect that there must be a "common treasury," yet none of them said that aught that he possessed, was his own. They made all they had, available to the church treasury, and laid it at the apostles' feet. All were fed out of that abundance made available, and it certainly met the approval of the Lord, the apostles and the entire church as well. Such an act, was never condemned in the Scriptures, and their flocks and herds were not excluded from their offerings. There was so much business connected with this matter of expediency, for such it no doubt was, that seven of their very best men were selected to supervise and oversee the daily distribution of foods. It appears, that this arrangement was discontinued, after the case of Ananias and Sapphira, in Acts 5, but is never condemned in the Scriptures. Matters of expediency, can never be uniform. They must vary, with the needs of the local congregation. All matters of faith are the same, and must remain the same regardless of prosperity, adversity, or condition of servitude. So long as matters of expediency are kept within the bounds of the congregation that provides them and are carried on unto edification and without compulsion or restraint, it appears that there can be no reasonable or scriptural objection to them. We all alike, are subject to the Lord in matters of faith, and we have no other alternative. No doubt the apostle Peter was referring to this great field of expediency, when in 1 Peter 5:5, he exhorted, "Yea, all of you be subject one to another." Solomon, never uttered a more profound and significant truth, than when he

BLUE RIDGE CAMP MEETING, JULY 18-24

A. R. Holton

A good program has been arranged for the Blue Ridge Camp Meeting at Blue Ridge, North Carolina, July 18-24. The program is well balanced, consisting of class teaching and sermons together with rest and recreation for those in attendance. All guests will be housed in the buildings of the Blue Ridge Assembly. This is the southern headquarters of the Y.M.C.A. Guests will have access to all the classrooms and to the 1600 acres of woods and trails belonging to the assembly.

Last year, groups came from all sections of our country. The Great Smoky Mountains National Park is visited annually by thousands of visitors from all parts of the country. Those visiting will get first-hand information regarding the opportunities for mission work in North and South Carolina. The growth of the churches in these states has been remarkable within the past few years. It is hoped that something will be known at this meeting of the work of every congregation in the two states.

Young people will be interested to know that special provision has been made for them under the direction of L. E. Cranford, minister of the University Church of Christ, Nashville, Tennessee.

Reservations for the meeting should be made at once to J. W. Brents, Woodmont Boulevard, Nashville, Tennessee.

said, quote, "Where there is no vision, the people perish." It must therefore appear to the discerning mind, that the Lord was making provision for the greatest possible exercise of human wisdom and ingenuity in promoting his kingdom, when he left out of his "Will and Testament" so many matters of detail, that could not establish uniformity, without serious handicaps, impairments and repercussions. Brother David Lipscomb taught us in his Bible classes, that all of the elements necessary to carry out a commandment, are included in the commandment whether or not they are set forth in detail. This, is a necessary implication, the force of which, it is impossible to resist. The wisdom and judgment of the elders of any congregation should be seriously considered in the light of the Scriptures, before the members begin to make objection to their recommendations and decisions. It appeared that the "pig" question was settled, and that the great assembly came to a meeting of minds. Brother Guy N. Woods, was the "open forum" director, and the incident was at the Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tenn.

The Wise Person

Dick Powell

To the Christian there is no more beautiful promises in the Scriptures than those to soul winners. We are told in Prov. 11:30 that, "He that winneth souls is wise," and also that "they who are teachers shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever" (Dan. 12:3). Happy indeed then is the Christian who has the vision and who diligently seeks to acquire the skill to win souls.

It is sad but true, that there are countless numbers of Christians who doubt their ability to do successful personal work for Christ. Many have the strange idea that some extraordinary gifts are required or else they feel that extraordinary attainments are necessary. Some even imagine that only the highly educated and the specially trained can ever be fitted for such work. If this were true we could almost be led to believe that Christ made a great mistake in his choice of the twelve disciples (Matt. 10:2-4). Of course, it is certainly true that the greater the education and the more thorough the preparation, other things being equal, the better fitted one will become to do his work. However, any Christian with an ordinary education, an earnest heart, and a moderate degree of tact and judgment can acquire the needful skill.

Therefore, to any or all who aspire to become soul winners, I would like to submit the following helpful suggestions:

1. First of all, a genuine love for mankind is necessary. Soul winning without love is utterly impossible. Matt. 22:39 tells us, "... Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." As recorded in 2 Cor. 5:14, the apostle Paul said concerning his own motive, "The love of Christ constraineth us." The book of Acts records that before Paul was converted he was a hater of Gentile nations (Acts 9:1, 2). After his conversion he became an apostle to the Gentiles (Acts 9:3-18; 22:3-16). Well did Paul realize that he had the greatest gift any man could hope for, and because of this he wanted to share it with others. In so doing he fulfilled the Golden Rule of Matt. 12:7, "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." Thus the whole of his life and career was devoted to winning those whom he had once hated. Truly could it be said that, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends" (Jno. 15:13). Surely it can be said that love for the souls of men is born of the love for Christ (2 Cor. 5:14).

2. Secondly, the soul winner must surrender his all to the task at hand. In the work of soul winning half-heartedness is fatal. It requires the whole weight of one's thoughts, interest and love to impress him whom you would seek to save.

To make clear the meaning of this second point turn to John 4. Here Jesus is pictured talking to the woman of Samaria at "Jacob's well" (Jno. 4:6). As we read the story we learn that he was completely absorbed in what he was doing. In fact some of his greatest personal work and teaching was now taking place. After a season of time Jesus' disciples returned from their errand. Upon returning, the disciples commented upon his devotion to his task and the earnestness of his manner. Thus when time had passed and they were alone "... his disciples prayed him, saying, Master, eat" (Jno. 4:31). "But he said unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not of. Therefore said the disciples one to another, Hath any man brought him aught to eat? Jesus saith unto them, My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work" (Jno. 4:32-34). Every soul winner must realize that soul winning is an absorbing undertaking. By saying this I do not mean to imply that the soul winner must devote all his time to soul winning. No indeed! For a fact it is known that some of the most successful are those who can give only a part of their time to this momentous work. It is well to remember though that it must be whole-hearted work whenever and wherever it is done.

Certainly the fact should be realized that soul winning is like all other great and heroic forms of effort. We must become dead to other things in order to become efficient in this. We are to renounce the frivolous and superficial things in the interest of this great thing. Renunciation is a great Christian law. A glad and wholehearted surrender of the things which have no place in a Christian's effort is the first step toward attaining a higher level of usefulness and power.

3. Thirdly, a thorough knowledge of the Scriptures is essential to the soul winner. The greater the scope and the more comprehensive the better. It is expedient however that the soul winner have a ready recollection of those passages of scripture which pertain to this task. We must "... be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh ... a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear" (1 Peter 3:15). If this can be done from memory, fine, but if not, we should be at least sufficiently familiar to turn to any pertinent passage at will. The truth which is God's word (Jno. 17:17), is the sword of the Holy Spirit (Eph. 6:17). As this sword is unsheathed and wielded by the Christian the Spirit can do its work, "For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discernor of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Heb. 4:12). By having a thorough knowledge we can assure ourselves of teaching the pure and unadulterated gospel of Christ when saying, Roman 1:16: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek."

4. Fourthly, the soul winner should be alert to discover possibilities for soul winning. Too many times we make the mistake of thinking that these opportunities come rarely. As a matter of fact, they are coming all the time in our intercourse with our fellow men. Concerning this thought it is well for us to remember the words spoken in Jno. 4:35; Matt. 9:37, 38: "Say not ye, There are four months, and then cometh the harvest? Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." "... but the laborers are few; Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest." May this prayer be our command.

5. Fifthly, the last helpful suggestion is to have and use skill in presenting the truth of Christ's gospel. "Perhaps the best qualification for presenting clearly the truth that one knows is to have a clear grasp of the truth itself." The greatest need of a soul winner is to state the saving truths of God's word in the clearest possible manner. Therefore the soul winner should master the elementary truths of the gospel of Christ. Each scripture should be fused into the Christian soul winner by the mediums of thought, meditation, and prayer. "But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night" (Psalm 1:2). "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much" (Jas. 5:16b). When all of this has been accomplished then the effect of the soul winner's efforts on the life of others will be like the bursting forth of fountains of living water in the midst of parched desert.

BILL HUMBLE TO KANSAS CITY

James R. Cope

Bill J. Humble, faithful gospel preacher, will serve as evangelist for the 39th and Flora church in Kansas City, Missouri, beginning June 7. For the past four years, Brother Humble has served on the faculty of Florida Christian College. At the same time he has labored with the 9th Avenue church in St. Petersburg.

Brother Humble has wrestled with the problem of giving up formal school work for the past two years. Since he began preaching ten years ago, he has either been in school or teaching in secular fields during the entire time. He leaves Florida Christian College with mutual goodwill between himself and the college.

I first knew Brother Humble as a student in Freed-Hardeman College almost ten years ago. His is a scholarly mind and a studious disposition. His recent work, Alexander Campbell and Controversy, which deals with Campbell's debates, gives a forthright indication of his ability. He has made contributions to the Gospel Advocate, Christian Worker, and the Preceptor. While we regret the loss of Brother Humble's talents, we believe that his usefulness in the kingdom, freed from many details incurred in school work, will redound to the honor of God and the profit of the brethren.

Through political and social upheavals caused by the last world war, Germany has become a fertile field for preaching the gospel. The Germans have been torn from the traditions of the past and are now very receptive to the preaching of the simple gospel.

There have been great strides made in the past five years in Germany by the churches of Christ of America, and we believe that even greater accomplishments will be effected in the future.

Under the direction of the elders of the Skillman Avenue church of Christ, Dallas, Texas, Jack Nadeau has been preaching in Munich, Germany, for the past four years. On April 1, 1953, he and his family arrived back in Dallas for a few months' visit among the churches. They are living here and worshipping and working with the Skillman Avenue congregation. He wants to visit among the churches and report on the work in Germany telling of the successes in the past and the possibilities and needs of the future. He has some very fine colored slides to show which depict the German work and scenes of interest.

Brother Nadeau is sent out with the backing and endorsement of the Skillman Avenue elders. If you would like to have him visit your home congregation, please write or call him in care of the Skillman Avenue Church of Christ, Dallas. He will be here until September 1st and will be available for speaking engagements all during this time.—Signed: Elders, Skillman Avenue Church of Christ, Dallas.

The Work In Southeast Arkansas

Doyle Banta

Many think of Arkansas as a field where the church is quite strong and that is true in some sections. It is not strong in southeast Arkansas. We have many towns where there is no New Testament church. With the church in West Helena taking the lead and others cooperating, we are trying to put a congregation in each town. During the past two years four new congregations have been started. In August of 1951 we established the work in Elaine, Ark., 30 miles south of us. The first meeting there resulted in 16 baptized and a few restored. At present we have about 60 meeting in the Community Hall. They hope to erect a building this year. Brother Harvey Martin of Memphis, Tenn., preaches for them each Sunday. This past summer, with the help of others, a congregation was begun in Marvell, Ark., 17 miles west of us. That church now has about 60 meeting in the Legion Hut. They hope to build this summer. Last summer we baptized an elderly lady in Holly Grove, Ark. The church is now meeting in her home. She is Sister Kate Cannon. We hope to see this work enlarged soon. Brother Porter Hogan of West Memphis, Ark. has taken the lead in planting the church in Hughes, Ark. They now meet in the Legion Hall. We have about ten members there. We have also conducted two meetings among the colored to establish the work in West Helena. Nine have been baptized so far. These all meet with the colored church in Helena.

Allen E. Vann to Marvell, Ark.

The coming of Brother Allen E. Vann of Casper, Wyo., to Marvell about the middle of April is great news for us in this section. Brother Vann is well qualified for the work. I have known him for several years and found him to be true to the Book, a good preacher and hard worker. Brother Vann will live in Marvell, then divide his time between Marvell, Cypert and Shiloh churches. Cypert is one of the oldest congregations in this section and located only four miles south of Marvell. Shiloh is located about 20 miles west of Marvell. He will have a heavy schedule preaching at Cypert at 10:00, Marvell at 11:10, Shiloh at 3:00 p.m., Cypert at 6:00 p.m. and Marvell at 7:30 p.m. He will do personal work in all three communities each week. He will also be with each congregation for prayer meeting.

Possibly some are wondering just why we are so glad to see Brother Vann come. Before he arrived, do you realize the nearest full time preacher to me is Memphis, Tenn., 76 miles away? The closest full time man to me since coming here has been 46 miles away. In fact in southeast Arkansas I can only think of about four full time men. This section of Arkansas is ripe. We just need the workers. We are encouraging the members to do more personal teaching, but we can use many more full time workers.

The church in West Helena has been established for several years. Glenn Parks, Carrol Trent, Joe Spaulding, L. C. Lawson and myself have served this congregation. During Brother Lawson's stay here a new building and preacher's home were erected in one of the best locations in the town. The church here numbers about 225 members. Our building is full, so we hope to establish another congregation soon.

We now have congregations in La Grange, Aubrey, Mariana, Forrest City, Hughes, Holly Grove, Shiloh, Marvell, Cypert, Coffee, South Helena, and Elaine. Brother J. W. Smith of

You Can Do Personal Work

Otis Gatewood

Brother Howard L. Schug of Frankfurt, Germany, speaks to a young law student from the University of Frankfurt.

This young lawyer is now a Christian and is attending the Bible training school in Frankfurt to train himself to preach the gospel. He was a leader of Communists in West Germany from 1946 to 1949, and spent two years in the East Zone of Germany. He was invited to Moscow by the Communists. He was converted to the Lord by personal work. Learn how to do personal work by reading: YOU CAN DO PERSONAL WORK, by Otis Gatewood. Price $2.50. Order from the Firm Foundation Publishing House, Box 77, Austin 61, Texas.

West Helena, who holds a secular job, has aided much in this section. He established and preaches for the church in South Helena. Brother W. C. Lumpkin of the Coffee church farms, but has aided greatly in the work at Dyer and Marvell.

A big job is still ahead. Helena has 12,000 population and yet no congregation in Helena proper. We have many small towns such as Barton, Lexa, De Witt, Poplar Grove, Wabash, Mellwood, Moro, Clarendon, Rondo, Roe and many others. We have thousands among the colored who need the truth. As yet we only have a small congregation in Helena, Marvell, Blackston, and Forrest City. Brother Berry Minor who lives in Helena and serves as county agent has been a great help in the colored work. He is the only colored preacher in this section of Arkansas. The colored church meets at St. Francis and O'Connor Streets in Helena and has a block building.

The church in South Helena has been remodeled and so has the church at Aubrey and La Grange. The Coffee church is now completing a new building.

We know there are many other fields with fewer churches and workers but wanted to give you this information concerning our work. We are growing and we face the future with greater zeal and determination. We ask your prayers in our labors. West Helena Ark.

Growing Or Drifting?

Virgil Bentley

There has been some controversy in the church in recent years. It has taken on various forms and centered in specific issues, but largely the controversy sums itself up as to whether the church is growing or drifting.

Some declare the church is growing and making the most rapid progress it has made in centuries. Others warn that red danger signals are on every hand, and that the church is on the very verge of apostasy. Is it not possible that this is a most healthy condition? We shall have real cause for alarm when there is no longer talk of the church's growth. We shall also have an equally just cause for alarm when Christians cease warning of the dangers of apostasy.

Certainly the church is growing! It is inconceivable that anyone could doubt this. And certainly the church is faced with dangers. It always has been, and always will be. The church is a divine institution. It is also a powerhouse for human service. As servants in the kingdom of God we should walk circumspectly. We should see clearly our opportunities, and also the dangers which accompany them, and never go overboard in regard to optimism or pessimism. The church has room for the eager energies of youth, and it also has room for the seasoned wisdom of experience.

The apostle Paul exhorted Christians in this manner: "I therefore, the prisoner in the Lord, beseech you to walk worthily of the calling wherewith ye are called, with all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in love; giving diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace" (Eph. 4:1-3). Our calling is a high one, and certainly it demands meekness, longsuffering, forbearance and love. Brethren will sometimes let personalities enter into the issues and feeling will run high, and this often is at the expense of the church in peace and unity. Let us not give in to error, but let us always give in to whims in order to spare the church.

It is hard indeed for us to remember that the ultimate criteria for conduct and work in the church is New Testament teaching, and not necessarily what the church did 40 years ago. If the church isn't growing it ought to be. If the church isn't aware of the ever-present danger of apostasy in this the twentieth century it ought to be. I am thankful for the cautious and constructive critics. May God help us when we are found without either!

Studies In Galatians (No. 16)

R. C. Bell

The sins in the church at Corinth included partyism, fornication, litigation, idolatry, and drunkenness. Apparently, the Galatians were guilty of like sins, but Paul saw another sin in them that disturbed him far more deeply. They were forsaking God's house, built on the rock, for one of their own building on sand. After having begun in the Spirit, they were turning back to the flesh; denying a full redemption in the Spirit, they were looking for a supplement in their own natural strength and ability to work out for themselves perfected righteousness. In effect, according to Paul, this made void the grace of God, the cross of Christ, the power of the Spirit, and destroyed the house the triune God built to its deepest foundation. Thus, their religion became all of the flesh.

Inasmuch as the Galatians did not know "the deep things of Satan" (Rev. 2:24), they did not see the doctrinal implications of their legalism. There is no better evidence of Satan's deep malice and demonic sagacity than his perverting the law, which God intended to convict men of sin, to humble them, and to lead them to Christ, into a powerful instrument to make men proud and self-righteous. He is deep and wicked enough to turn Christians into blind, Pharisaic hypocrites.

Doubtless, the Galatians continued to preach baptism "into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit" for the remission of sins, observe the Lord's Supper, and meet other requirements, yet, all unknown to themselves, they were "fallen away from grace." Christians today should not think that, because they do not observe the carnal ordinances of Moses, they are immune to the legal principle. They should realize that, in infinite wisdom and goodness, God in Christianity, without any help from man except his absolute surrender, assumes all responsibility, no matter what Satan knows and does, for enabling and perfecting Christians who really trust him and cooperate with him. This kind of faith would have saved the Galatians from legalism with its truly terrible consequences, as it will save Christians today from legalism with its truly terrible consequences.

"Works of the Flesh"

A cursory examination of these "works" shows a catalogue of fifteen items (ASV), all related to the Mosaic Code. The first three items ("fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness") remind us of, "Thou shalt not commit adultery." The next two ("idolatry, sorcery") of, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." Then follow eight items ("enmities, strife, jealousies, wraths, factions, divisions, parties, envyings"), which violate, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." "Where love is thin, faults are thick." The last two ("drunkenness, revellings") are beastly self-gratification, which are always beneath human dignity. With authoritative finality that admits no argument, Paul follows this list with: "I forewarn you, even as I did forewarn you, that they who practice such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." Let us read the list again; it was written for us too.

Sorcery, or witchcraft, which is superhuman knowledge and power acquired by compact with evil spirits and traffic with the dead, is a biblical subject. God gives warning against it in the Old Testament: "There shall not be found with thee any one that useth divination . . . or a sorcerer . . . or a consulter with a familiar spirit, or a wizard, or a necromancer (one who communicates with the dead) . . . For whosoever doeth these things is an abomination unto Jehovah" (Deut. 18:10, 12). Immediately following this scripture, God promises to send Christ in lieu of such leaders. In 1 Sam. 28, is found the story of King Saul and the witch of Endor. Paul's epitaph reads: "So Saul died for his trespass . . . and also for that he asked counsel of one that had a familiar spirit" (1 Chron. 10:13).

In the New Testament, we meet sorcery often, always opposing Christianity. Simon the sorcerer (Acts 8); "Elymas the sorcerer" (Acts 13); and the maid with "a spirit of divination" (Acts 16) are well-known figures. Sorcery was very prevalent in Ephesus (Acts 19). Satan, "the god of this world," opposed Christianity, especially in new places with sorcery. In Gal. 5:20, written some twenty-five years after Pentecost, Paul brackets it with idolatry, with which it is allied and coeval. At a time yet to come, all sorcerers of all time shall have their part "in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone" (Rev. 21:8).

The two leading features of sorcery, reading destiny and commerce with the dead, are prevalent today. Doubtless, there is much humbuggery, based as all idolatry is, on greed, superstition and religious ignorance, yet, according to the Bible, a core of reality exists. The road to Endor, for men like Saul, is still open. For Christians, however, as for the ancient Jews, it is a closed road of disobedience and ruin. They cannot honor Christ as Mediator in some dark room seeking guidance from a "medium." This and all such like is of the flesh.

"Fruit of the Spirit"

"The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control." The Spirit in this verse is a tree bearing a cluster of ninefold heavenly fruit. Because of its relationship to the rest of the cluster, love comes first. Without love, none of the fruit is sound and wholesome. The joy, the longsuffering, the meekness and all the rest, if they have not love, are rotten at the core and worthless. Magic love is living, contagious, creative, and imparts these qualities to the entire cluster. "The greatest of these is love." Love, joy, peace! What more would you have? Long after the shallow wells of the flesh have run dry, from the perpetual fountain of the Spirit down deep within the human spirit continue to "flow rivers of living water" for "refreshing from the presence of the Lord." "A well of water springing up unto eternal life." "Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty" and fruit.

The Holy Spirit is the only tree that produces "the fruit of the Spirit." Since such fruit is not native to earth, the flesh does not, and cannot produce it. "The flesh lusteth against the Spirit." All Paul knows to do with the flesh is to crucify it "with the passions and lusts thereof." God does not expect men in the flesh to produce spiritual fruit and live his life until he gives them his Spirit, and they "become partakers of the divine nature." As without changing gravity a magnet counteracts it, so without changing the flesh, the Holy Spirit counterworks it, and keeps it in subjection so that it cannot "bite and devour" and destroy. It never becomes spiritual, any more than foolishness becomes wisdom. It is a tiger which only the Spirit can even chain.

What Does The Bible Say?

How Approximately $25,000 Worth of Books Were Burned!

Books are wonderful servants, marvelous tools. But the printed page can be used to carry the Word of God or to carry lies of Atheism, Communism, and all manner of error and immorality. In Ephesus the preaching of Christ resulted in the burning of about $25,000 worth of books of magic or sorcery. These books were filled with incantations and charms which were supposed to guard the pagans from evil spirits. The "Ephesian Letters" were famous in ancient witchcraft. When Paul enlightened the people they repented of their practice of evil sorcery and proved their change of will by publicly burning these expensive books.

The lesson for us is that when we truly believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and repent of our sins "we must bring forth works" showing our change of attitude. The man who claims to have obeyed the gospel, to have confessed his faith in Christ, repented and to have been baptized into Christ and goes on living like he did as a worldian, has not truly been converted.

Genuine repentance is essential to salvation in Christ. Jesus said: "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish . . ." (Luke 13:3). Repentance is a change of will, of attitude, of direction. The burning of these heathen books was a logical result of their change of loyalty from pagan gods to the living God.

There are two great forces which lead us to repentance. One is the fear of the Lord. We must all appear before the judgment bar of God to give account for the deeds we have done. Secondly, there is the goodness of God which leads us to repent (Romans 3:4). The prodigal son repented when he "came to himself" and decided to arise and go to his father.

God is calling you home today if you are serving the vain idols of this world, money, power, the lust of the flesh. He is calling you "to repent and be converted that your sins may be blotted out" (Acts 3:19). There is coming a time when it will be too late to repent. May I appeal to you to accept the love of God in Christ today!

God loves you. Christ died for you. No sin is too great to be forgiven if you will repent and obey the Lord. The longer you put off repenting, the harder it becomes. Do it today. Then show your change of will by your life!

New Policy In Children's Home-Part II

F. E. Hayes

"Home is the highest and finest product of civilization. Children should not be deprived of it except for urgent and compelling reasons."

Study that a moment. An expert said it, but every Christian knows it. Yet there are hundreds of children in Christian orphan homes that could be placed in private Christian homes if the need could be clearly seen and the heart truly stirred to pity.

The man who said the above, Leon Richman, is a child welfare expert in Cleveland, Ohio. He also said this: "A program of child welfare is more than merely giving food and shelter. It is social engineering, which lays the foundation for the future of our nation."

We have given food and shelter. It can be said to our credit. But we have left the "engineering" in the hands of those who themselves say that we are better equipped to handle it. We have neglected the opportunity which Christian orphan homes are reminding us of right now—the opportunity of opening our private homes to children we may want to adopt or give foster care.

Richman, in an article on "New Needs and New Approaches in Foster Care," says that 24-hour group life (such as we have in orphan homes) is not ideal for little children. Their physical and emotional needs require personal care which only a family can provide.

John Dula, Houston, Texas, child welfare expert, says: "Many babies beginning to toddle are handicapped in their progress when cared for in an institution or a group where their needs for individual attention are not met to the same measure as is possible in their own or a foster family."

These men recognize that not all children in orphan homes are eligible for adoption. But most of those who are not, because they have not been legally surrendered, are available for placement in foster homes. Says Dula: "It is unfortunate that so many of our children have had to live, for one reason or another, for many years in our institutions. It is unfortunate that there are many institutions which encourage prolonged stays."

Brother Byron Fullerton, speaking for the Tipton Home, has taken the lead among Christian children's homes in reminding the brotherhood that boys and girls in the homes are available for foster care. His action is to be praised.

Now the problem is to convince Christian parents that an opportunity for real service exists. Many of those who want children can find them in orphan homes operated by Christians. It seems hardly necessary to argue the superiority of a private home. To mention one moment in the twenty-four hours of the day should be enough: think of the difference between going to sleep with "mother's" kiss warming the cheek and going to sleep to the call: "Lights out!"

Even more important is the task of convincing Christian parents that it is worthwhile to provide foster homes for children who have not been legally surrendered and hence cannot be adopted. Many who have had the experience say it is satisfying beyond expression. Boys and girls who had no hope of having a "dad" and a "mom" react in heartwarming ways when a Christian family wants them. They learn again to love and trust. They grow up to take their place among others who have known family life. There are sweet memories of meals and romps and goodnights.

Some Christian families have only one child or two. Many of them could support another child. Some of them have considered it, but dismissed the plan as too troublesome. It is the hope of this writer that he can remind Christian parents that it is always troublesome to start doing a great job, but always infinitely rewarding to see it finished.

There is no substitute for our own arms, brethren. Our Master cannot gather in the luckless little ones of the world unless he can unlock our arms to do it. We have a chance greater than any we have ever had before. Our Christian homes stand ready to help us. Proud little faces, fighting back their hopes for fear of another rebuff, are looking our way and wondering. Hungry little hearts beg silently for the love that only we can give in fullest measure. Lips that yearn for daddy's kiss are parted in hope.

Is it nothing to us?

THE VALUE OF THE NEW VERSION

The late Joe S. Warlick said to me at one time that in his opinion the best commentaries on the Bible are the various translations. This is pretty well in keeping with my own observation. The new version of the Bible that is now being widely advertised, should be of much help to Bible students. I do not think that it should, by any means, displace the King James Version or the American Standard Revised Version now in common use. Either of these, in my estimation, are preferable for public use and as to that, for devotional Bible study in the home or other communities. A careful reading of the new version should be made. There are many words and phrases that will be found to be helpful in Bible study. Read it in the old King James Version and if you are not familiar with some of the words or expressions, you will do well to turn to the new version, and, it is many times, helpful.

The greatest objection to the translation is that the great scholars, who did the work, are practically all modernists, but no scholar can translate from the reliable Greek texts and consistently make renderings that will modify seriously the meaning of the plain statements in regard to the duty of man. As to the work of these scholars, the RSV New Testament has been on the market since 1946 and has received less attention from Bible students than it should have received. It should have been more critically examined by many who have almost entirely ignored it. Not until the entire Bible was published in the fall of 1952, was much attention given to it. The seven years acceptance of the RSV New Testament, with little or no criticism, has doubtless contributed something to the popularity of the new version.

As for the scholars who did the work of translating, the late Dr. Moffatt and Dr. Goodspeed have had their translations of the New Testament out for a long number of years. Both of these scholars, as well as Dr. Williams, have brought out translations of the New Testament that are far more vulnerable than the New Testament in the RSV. All three of them give Matt. 1:23 as a "young woman" and this, with no supporting evidence; whereas the RSV translates the passage, "virgin." For my part, I have little expectation that the RSV will become what its producers want it to be. I still think that the King James Version and American Standard Revised Version will be used when the new version has passed its day of big advertising and excitement among the people. I do not think it will, or should, become a standard for use among the churches or in the homes of the people. It is of interest and value as a reference book in connection with the reading and studying of the Bible in the three great English translations: King James, 1611;

English Revised, 1881; and the American Standard Revised Version of 1901. At an early date, we hope to publish a rather detailed review of the RSV.

CHRIST OR MODERNISM

A New Book By W. W. Otey

The subjects treated in this book are certainly worthy of careful consideration by the reader. William Wesley Otey was born in Pulaski County, Virginia, 86 years ago. He was baptized by my father, J. T. Showalter, when he was 19 years of age. The same year, 1886, he began preaching at rural points in Floyd County, Virginia. Brother Otey married Minnie Showalter, a relative of mine.

I have known Brother Otey from the time he was quite young, particularly from the time he began preaching. He was a close Bible student and immediately, as a young man, became popular as a preacher of the gospel. With little opportunity in the field of educational attainments and advantages, he became a man of one Book, the Bible. Denominational teaching and teachers were met, studied, reviewed and refuted in a commendable way. My life was enriched by its contacts with him. I began preaching some six years later than he, and we were associated together in several evangelistic efforts in the Lord.

Brother Otey has offered for the public an examination of some things that to him seem in place and of importance at the present time.

It is a day of many books on many subjects. Some are good and some are worthless in the various fields of philosophy and religion. Brother Otey, in his book, is clearly constructive. His critical notes on the translators of the RSV show care and study. He is, of course, bitterly opposed to modernistic teaching as it relates to the Bible and as all, or practically all, of the translators of the RSV are of certain schools of modernism, he gives some time to criticism of their attitude and of the tinge of modernism that they undoubtedly have shown in their translation of the Bible.

The merits of the RSV, if observed at all, are assumed without much comment on the part of the author. The errors assailed are handled in a way characteristic of the real conviction, faith and energy of Brother Otey. It is a pleasure for me to commend this book to a loyal brotherhood. The author of the book has lived for many years as a preacher, debater, and writer. In 1910 he conducted a debate with J. B. Briney on Instrumental Music and Missionary Societies that was published in book form and is a worthwhile publication.

Brother W. W. Otey, in a long life, has stood among the most highly esteemed exponents of the gospel of Christ and is justly loved and appreciated by the faithful in Christ. His book should have a wide circulation and we commend it to all interested in publications relating to the faith, as a book well worth a studious examination. The price of this new book is $2.50 and all orders should be sent to W. W. Otey, Belle Plaine, Kansas.

ACC LECTURES FOR 1953

The Firm Foundation Publishing House, for a number of years, has been publishing the principal addresses in the Abilene Christian College Lectureship during February of each year. These volumes from year to year are added to the principal libraries, public and private, and to individual's private libraries. They have become a feature and embody some of the finest literature that is now published by the loyal churches of Christ.

These compositions are of high order, prepared and delivered by outstanding men—preachers, lecturers, debaters, and educators—among the churches of Christ.

We are, this week, mailing out the volume for 1953 to all who have ordered it with confidence that it will be received, read, and studied with a full measure of appreciation by loyal and faithful disciples of our Lord. A large number who have, from time to time, been buying and filing in their library these volumes, have developed a confidence and an appreciation for them and are replete in their commendations and expressions of thankfulness that they have these great annuals for their library for many years.

It may be noted that the Firm Foundation Publishing House has in stock miscellaneous numbers of volumes for several past years. If your library is short on some particular year, we are probably in position to supply it. Write us. We are sending these volumes forth with a full measure of confidence in its merit, and also with the persuasion that it will be highly appreciated. There is one address in the 1953 book that several have said is worth the price of the entire book. Such a remark might be made with regard to several of the addresses.

From the Old Paths Book Club comes a reproduction of "Christ's Second Coming: Will It Be Premillennial?" by David Brown, Professor of Divinity, Free Church College, Aberdeen. This highly valuable and interesting discussion, on a great subject, bears publication date of 1882. This book contains a total of 468 pages. It is carefully indexed in detail and also contains a special index of texts, either quoted or referred to. All of this makes it quite a remarkable book. Mr. Brown is committed with zeal against the whole idea of premillennialism. The discussions are of an order that all Bible students, specially preachers, would be interested in, and our suggestion would be that no one would make a mistake in sending the price of this book to Old Paths Book Club, Box 5, Rosemead, California. The price of the book is $3.50.

In this connection, it is certainly in order to recognize the merit of the work that has been done by Brother John Allen Hudson in the Old Paths Book Club. He has succeeded in reproducing quite a large quantity of excellent literature that has been out of print for many years. Readers would do well to take up the matter of becoming subscribers to the Old Paths Book Club. For full information, write Old Paths Book Club as above.

G. S. Westbrook of the Pioneer Park church of Christ in Lubbock, preached in a meeting with the Brykerwood church in Austin, May 4-13. Mac Bartee is minister of the Bryker-wood church. Brother Westbrook has been preaching for the Pioneer Park church for over two and one-half years, going there from the College Street church in Waxahachie. He has preached in many meetings in South Texas, but this was his first time to preach the gospel in our capital city. Brother Westbrook helped Brother Bartee to "get started" preaching about 1944, while living in Victoria, where they worked together on a radio dialogue, arousing considerable interest. The two then worked together in preaching and singing in a very fine meeting at Llano a year ago last fall.

BURTON COFFMAN NAMED EXECUTIVE ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT AT HARDING COLLEGE

Thirteen hundred people attended the graduation exercises at Harding College, Thursday, June 4. One hundred and twenty-six people received degrees. W. O. Beeman, member of the Executive Committee of the Board of Harding College, announced that the Board had confirmed the appointment of Burton Coffman, Minister, 16th and Decatur Church of Christ, Washington, D.C., to the important post of Executive Assistant to the President, in charge of Public Relations.

Burton Coffman has served as minister for the church of Christ in Houston, Wichita Falls, Lawton, and Sherman. He is now serving as editor of the Christian Leader.

Coffman has already resigned as minister in Washington. A. R. Holton has been engaged to serve the Washington church. Coffman's resignation is effective as of August 1.

Following his resignation in Washington, Coffman will spend some three months in the Far East where he has been invited by the Air Force to preach at the various Air Force bases in Japan and Korea.

Coffman will take up his duties at Harding College immediately upon his return from the Far East. He and his wife, the former Thelma Bradford, will make Searcy their permanent home.

Sister Perry is a great help in the Lord's work. They have three fine children.

John G. Bills, 4133 Middlesex Drive, San Diego 16, California, May 24: We have had five responses since last report: three baptized, one membership, and one confession of wrongs. He is resigning, however, so that Fordyce can get a man to do full time work. A man is badly needed "on the grounds" there. May God continue to bless you in your work.

I will be at El Reno, Oklahoma, June 14, filling in for Brother Joe Crumley. I am ready and anxious to have some meetings and evangelistic work for the summer and fall. This meeting will be held at the National headquarters of the YMCA. Write me for full information.

Robert P. Stevens, P. O. Box 459, Grass Valley, California, May 21: Praise be to the Lord. Our hearts are made to rejoice in the baptism of another dear soul. The church building is on your right as you enter the city.

R. V. Wood, Box 482, Mission, Texas, June 1: Yesterday was our second Lord's day with the church here, and we were happy to note a general trend upward in all phases of the work. One new class was begun with the young married folks and the high school ages. We anticipate a pleasant and profitable work here and there is much work to be done. We will have our vacation Bible school beginning June 22. When coming to the valley, worship with us, and if you know members that live here that are not attending our services, please give me their names.

C. Ray Miller, 203 South Witte, Poteau, Oklahoma, June 1: Since last report there have been two baptized, two memberships, and four restored. Brother B. E. Lemmons of Sherman, Texas, was to have begun our meeting June 8 to 17, however, due to a minor accident he was unable to be with us. I will substitute for him. June 20th, I will begin a meeting and vacation Bible school at Moten, Arkansas, a congregation located five miles south of Mammoth Spring. The brethren here report we are having the highest contribution and Bible study attendance in years.

Vernon L. Simpson, 409 South Fourth Street, Kenedy, Texas, May 27: Last Lord's day I began work with the congregation in Kenedy, Texas, after nearly two years' labor with the Washington Heights church in Fort Worth. My last Sunday at Washington Heights was encouraging; eleven fine people came forward: five to be restored and six to be baptized. I am looking forward to a very pleasant work here in Kenedy. The church is few in number, but the town is growing and the church should grow even faster. May all the glory be given to the Lord.

Busby closed a good meeting with the Cloverdale congregation May 25, during which three were baptized, eight restored, and three identified with the congregation. The meeting ran one day longer than had been announced, and the last service was the biggest one of the series—even though it was on Monday night. Yesterday, one was restored to duty and two identified with the congregation. Our work continues in a good way and our future is bright. Visitors usually find a warm welcome here, so visit us when you come our way.

Bill McCown, 176 Ohio Street, New Braunfels, Texas, June 5: The meeting at Nixon, Texas, closed May 24th with one baptism. Brother A. N. Patterson, colored, is now in a meeting in New Braunfels in an effort to get the work started here among the colored people. I spoke last night for the church at Stockdale, Texas. A good crowd was present, with several from Nixon being on hand. I will begin a meeting with the church at Gonzales and C. L. Maxwell on Sunday, July 5, to continue through the 19th. Our work here holds its own. We are feeling the toll of vacations in our attendance.

W. T. Garnett, Portales, New Mexico, June 2: The work at Eastside in Portales is going along nicely. Two fine young men and their wives were baptized into Christ the last two weeks. I want to commend Brother Porter Wilhite on his timely article in the June 2 issue of the Firm Foundation. The Fourth Street church of Christ here in Portales, is doing that very thing. Brother W. A. Kercheville is being supported by the Fourth Street church. He is working in the interest of the Children's Home, we hope will soon be a reality. Brother R. L. Allen is also working with them. Brother Allen is also working as one of the elders at Fourth Street. We are happy for the fine spirit that is existing between the two congregations here. Brother Grover Ross is a fine preacher and we are enjoying the fine fellowship with him. He preaches for the Fourth Street church here. Beginning this week the two congregations will have a daily radio program at 8 a.m. over KENM radio station. If you would like to help build the "Children's Home" here in Portales, send a contribution to the Fourth Street Church of Christ, and it will help. When passing this way, visit with us.

Three came to be restored last Sunday; thus we close the month of May with seven baptisms and four restorations in the last seven weeks, making a total of 24 responses to the gospel during the past nine months. We seek an interest in the prayers of the faithful to the end that the Lord's work may grow and prosper in Missouri. When in Missouri, come and worship with us.

Will W. Slater, Fort Worth, Texas, May 26: I recently taught a singing school in Cieso, Texas. Brother A. F. Waller is the minister there and is doing a good work. They have a nice new building and prospects for work are good. This leaves me in a meeting in Buffalo, Oklahoma. My nephew, Noah Sparks, Jr., is doing the preaching and I am conducting the song services. My work in Hydro, Oklahoma, will end June 15. My nephew will take the work in August. Brother Glen Rabe will be speaking during June, and he will be assisted by Brethren Dick Rose, Roy Reid and Robert Matheny. I have been urged to assist the Santa Paula group through June and longer if possible. The church building is well located at 501 Ojai Road, and the city is in a prosperous section.

Elton D. Dilbeck, 1335 Granada Drive, New Orleans 22, Louisiana, June 2: We have been laboring with the Carrollton Avenue church for four months. During this time we have been encouraged no little with increased interest, attendance and monetary contributions. For the months of April and May, the contributions averaged some $600 per week. Nine have confessed faults, six have been baptized and fourteen have placed membership. Good progress is being made in our efforts to air-condition our auditorium. From June 16-25, I will be engaged in gospel preaching services with the church in Okay, Oklahoma. The church in New Orleans meets on Carrollton Avenue mid-way between Canal and Tulane Streets. A pre-millennial group meets in another section of our city.

Brother Joe Malone will preach for us in a gospel meeting July 6-15. A Vacation Bible School will be conducted at the same time. Remember us in your prayers.

George A. Bennett, Box 216, Lexington, Oklahoma, May 25: We set an all-time high in Bible classes yesterday of 124, bringing our average for May up to 102 over an average of 88 for April. One has been baptized since last report. Yesterday also marked the close of a series of lectures on the general theme, "The Christian's Need" which had lasted for eight days.
